Source: L. 2001: Entire article added, p. 1060, § 1, effective June 5.

37-80.5-102. Legislative declaration. The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that the purpose of this article is to authorize the creation of water banks within each water division to be operated under strict parameters established by rules approved by the water court. Accordingly, this article provides for the promulgation of rules concerning water banks and requires the water court to approve the rules and the state engineer to report to the general assembly regarding the operation of the banks. The water bank program created by this article is intended to simplify and improve the approval of water leases, loans, and exchanges, including interruptible supply agreements, of stored water within each river basin, reduce the costs associated with such transactions, and increase the availability of water-related information. It is also the purpose of the water banks to assist farmers and ranchers by developing a mechanism to realize the value of their water rights assets without forcing the permanent severance of those water rights from the land. The general assembly affirms the state constitution’s recognition of water rights as a private usufructuary property right, and this article is not intended to restrict the ability of the holder of a water right to sell, lease, or exchange that water right in any other manner that is currently permitted under Colorado law. Further, this article is not intended to be implemented in any way that would cause material injury to the owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or a decreed conditional water right, nor to repeal or in any manner amend the existing water rights adjudication system except as may be specifically set forth in this article.

Editor's note: (1) Subsection (4) provided for the repeal of this section, effective when the period to file an appeal regarding promulgation of the rules under § 37-80.5-104.5 has expired or, if such an appeal is filed, when the litigation concerning such appeal has been fully resolved. The revisor of statutes was notified November 1, 2010, that the appeal period regarding the promulgation of the rules has expired and no appeal has been filed.

(2) For additional information pertaining to the repeal of this section and the affect on the Arkansas river basin, see § 37-80.5-104.5 (4).

37-80.5-104.5. Water banks within each water division - duties of state engineer - rules. (1) (a) Upon request by a water conservancy district or water conservation district, the state engineer shall promulgate program rules necessary or convenient for the operation of a water bank within the division in which such district is located. The state engineer shall hold public meetings and consult with the Colorado water conservation board regarding formulation of the rules. The rules shall be promulgated in accordance with the following:

(I) The rules shall authorize, facilitate, and permit the lease, exchange, or loan of stored water within a water division; except that nothing in this article shall be construed to authorize any lease, exchange, or loan of water that would negatively affect any of Colorado's interstate compacts.

(II) The rules shall not permit the transfer, lease, loan, exchange, or sale of water from the banks to instream flow uses as provided in section 37-92-102 (3) unless such transfer, lease, loan, exchange, or sale is to the Colorado water conservation board.

(III) The banks shall operate within existing requirements of Colorado water law as set forth in the "Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969", article 92 of this title, including specifically the requirement that water transferred through the banks be put to a beneficial use, and the "Colorado Ground Water Management Act", article 90 of this title; except that, in compliance with rules promulgated pursuant to this article, leases, loans, and exchanges effectuated through the banks need not require adjudication pursuant to article 92 of this title, and the state engineer shall administer such leases, loans, and exchanges notwithstanding the fact that they may not have been adjudicated.

(IV) The rules shall define the terms "interruptible supply" and "water banking".

(V) The rules shall take into account and address, as appropriate, any necessary or desirable limitations upon the time, place, or type of use of waters made available through the water banks, and the appropriate length of agreements implementing banking transactions.

(b) The rules shall ensure that operation of the banks shall not cause any material injury to the owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or a decreed conditional water right.

(c) The rules shall establish criteria pursuant to which the state engineer shall:

(I) Accept a deposit of a quantity of water in a bank, including necessary proof of:

(A) Ownership or a lease or contract that includes the right to use and control the disposition of water; and

(B) The legal parameters of the water for use subject to the proposed deposit, whether by decree or by contract;

(II) Credit a withdrawal of a quantity of water from a bank, including the term, location, and type of the proposed use of the withdrawn water;

(III) Publish a summary of each water bank's transactions, including the amounts of water subject to such transactions; and

(IV) Administer the withdrawn water:

(A) Within the priority system if the withdrawn water is subject to prior appropriation;

(B) With or without the need for an adjudication; and

(C) Without causing material injury to the owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or a decreed conditional water right.

(d) The rules shall delegate administration of a bank to the water conservancy district or water conservation district that submitted the request for the bank. Such district shall be entitled to charge a transaction fee for deposits, withdrawals, or both, sufficient to cover the bank's administration costs. Notwithstanding any restriction on the power of a water conservancy district or a water conservation district to act outside the geographic boundaries of such district, a district that has been delegated authority pursuant to this paragraph (d) shall have full authority to administer the bank's operations pursuant to this section, including any power to act outside the geographic boundaries of such district when necessary to administer the bank.

(2) The deposit of credits in a bank is voluntary, and credits may be removed by the owner at any time prior to an actual transaction in which control of a credit is transferred, subject to the terms and conditions of the deposit agreement executed with the operator of the bank.

(3) The state engineer shall seek a waiver or clarification of any federal laws, rules, or regulations that may impede the implementation of the water bank program.

(4) (a) The repeal of section 37-80.5-104 shall not affect the validity of any bank operating in the Arkansas river basin or any such bank's water deposit or withdrawal. After such repeal, such bank shall operate pursuant to the rules promulgated pursuant to this section.

(b) The state engineer shall provide the revisor of statutes with written notification when the period to file an appeal regarding promulgation of the rules under this section has expired or, if such an appeal is filed, when the litigation concerning such appeal has been fully resolved.

Editor's note: Subsection (4)(b) requires the state engineer to provide the revisor of statutes with written notice when the period to file an appeal regarding the promulgation of rules under this section has expired or, if an appeal is filed, when the litigation on the appeal has been resolved. The revisor of statutes was notified November 1, 2010, that the period for filing an appeal has ended and there has been no appeal of the rules.

37-80.5-105. Review of rules. Judicial review of all rules promulgated pursuant to this article shall be in accordance with the "State Administrative Procedure Act", article 4 of title 24, C.R.S.; except that venue for such review shall lie exclusively with the appropriate water judge for each water division.

Source: L. 2001: Entire article added, p. 1063, § 1, effective June 5. L. 2003: Entire section amended, p. 2394, § 5, effective June 5.

37-80.5-106. Report. (1) The state engineer shall submit a report to the general assembly and the governor on or before November 1, 2005, regarding:

- (a) The effectiveness of the program;
- (b) Existing statutory, regulatory, or contractual constraints on the successful use of water banking within Colorado;
- (c) Institutional constraints upon the successful use of water banking within Colorado;
- (d) Interstate compact constraints upon the successful use of water banking within Colorado;
- (e) Social or economic constraints upon the successful use of water banking within Colorado; and

(f) Any recommended limitations upon the use of water banks within Colorado, with specific reference to the time, place, or type of use of waters made available under such recommended limitations and the length of agreements implementing the same.

Diversion of Waters from State

37-81-101. Diversion of water outside state - application required - special conditions - penalty. (1) (a) The general assembly hereby finds and declares that the location and availability of water in this state varies greatly from place to place and that the state as a whole suffers a shortage of water. The general assembly further recognizes that, because of Colorado’s unique location at the headwaters of four of the nation’s major western rivers and because all the major river systems in Colorado flow out of the state, and that, in order to insure the availability of these scarce water resources for the use of citizens of the state of Colorado, compacts have been entered into with the downstream states on all the major rivers originating in Colorado.

(b) It is also recognized that it has been the continuing historical policy of the state of Colorado to conserve and prevent waste of its water resources to provide adequate supplies of water necessary to insure the continued health, welfare, and safety of all of its citizens. Accordingly, the general assembly hereby determines that, for the purpose of conserving the scarce water resources of this state and to thereby insure the continuing health, welfare, and safety of the citizens of this state, it is unlawful for any person, including a corporation, association, or other entity, to divert, carry, or transport by ditches, canals, pipes, conduits, natural streams, watercourses, or any other means any of the water resources found in this state into any other state for use therein without first complying with this section and section 37-81-104.

(2) To effectuate the purposes of subsection (1) of this section and section 37-81-104, no person may divert, carry, or transport any surface or groundwater from this state by ditches, canals, pipes, conduits, natural streams, watercourses, or other means without meeting the requirements for obtaining a permit to construct a well if the source of water is to be groundwater or if a well permit is not required without first obtaining an adjudication from the water court for the right to use water outside the state. In the case of a well for which a permit has been issued for a use of groundwater within Colorado, a change of use for a use outside the state must be approved by the water court or, if it is designated groundwater, the change must be approved by the Colorado ground water commission. A person desiring to divert, carry, or transport any water outside Colorado shall file an appropriate application therefor and comply with the requirements of this section in addition to any other requirements, terms, and conditions provided or authorized by law pertaining to such application.

(3) Prior to approving an application, the state engineer, ground water commission, or water judge, as the case may be, must find that:

(a) The proposed use of water outside this state is expressly authorized by interstate compact or credited as a delivery to another state pursuant to section 37-81-103 or that the proposed use of water does not impair the ability of this state to comply with its obligations under any judicial decree or interstate compact which apportions water between this state and any other state or states;

(b) The proposed use of water is not inconsistent with the reasonable conservation of the water resources of this state; and

(c) The proposed use of water will not deprive the citizens of this state of the beneficial use of waters apportioned to Colorado by interstate compact or judicial decree.

(4) Any diversion of water from this state which is not in compliance with this section shall not be recognized as a beneficial use for purposes of perfecting a water right to the extent of such unlawful diversion or use.

37-81-102. Officials charged with enforcement. It is the duty of the state engineer, the division engineers, and the water commissioners of this state to see that the waters of the state are available for the use and benefit of the citizens and inhabitants of the state for its growth, prosperity, and general welfare, and it is the further duty of said officials to prevent the waters thereof from being diverted, carried, conveyed, or transported by ditches, canals, pipes, conduits, natural streams, watercourses, or other means into other states for use therein unless there is specific authorization therefor, as provided in section 37-81-101. Upon its being brought to the knowledge of the state engineer of Colorado that any person, corporation, or association is unlawfully carrying or transporting any of such waters into any other state for use therein, or is intending so to do, it is his duty to immediately call the matter to the attention of the attorney general, in behalf of and in the name of the state, who shall apply to any district court or to the supreme court of the state of Colorado for such restraining orders or injunctions, both preliminary and final, as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this section and section 37-81-101, and jurisdiction is conferred upon said courts for such purposes.

ANNOTATION

Water officials, charged with the duty of protecting and enforcing the rights of appropriators guaranteed by the constitution, statutes, and court decrees of Colorado, cannot plead, as excusing the discharge of that duty, a compact between states, which compact invades those rights without questioning the power of the state to grant them originally. La Plata River & Cherry Creek Ditch Co. v. Leddy, 55 Colo. 24, 129 P. 220 (1912) (case decided prior to earliest source of this section).

37-81-103. Effect of apportionment credits upon diversions of water from state. (1) For the purpose of evaluating applications made pursuant to section 37-81-101, no water occurring in any aquifer or being a part of or hydraulically connected to any interstate stream system may be diverted or appropriated in Colorado for a use which contemplates or involves the transportation of such water into or through another state or states through which such interstate stream system flows, for use of such diverted water in such other state or states whether as a vehicle or medium for the transportation of another substance, or for any other use, unless the amount of water so diverted or appropriated and transported through or into such other state or states is credited as a delivery to such other state or states by Colorado, of water to which such other state or states may be or claim to be entitled from such interstate source under an existing interstate compact or otherwise. Water mixed with other substances in the process of forming a slurry for the purpose of transporting any substance as a suspended solid shall not be deemed to have lost its character as water.

(2) The burden shall be upon the claimant or other person seeking to divert or appropriate water or seeking a water right based upon a claimed diversion or appropriation coming within the provisions of subsection (1) of this section to prove that a means exists and is accepted by each state, including Colorado, through which said stream system and said diverted water flows or will flow by which the credit required in this section will be entered and recognized by each such state.

(3) This article shall not be applicable to water contained in agricultural crops, animal and dairy products, beverages, or processed or manufactured products or to products transported in cans, bottles, packages, kegs, or barrels.

37-81-104. Fee for diversion - fund created. (1) (a) To effectuate the purposes of this article, the general assembly hereby authorizes a fee of fifty dollars per acre-foot to be assessed and collected by the state engineer on water diverted, carried, stored, or transported in this state for beneficial use outside this state measured at the point of release from storage or at the point of diversion.

(b) Notwithstanding the amount specified for the fee in paragraph (a) of this subsection (1), the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of the fee if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of the fee is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of the fee as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

(2) All moneys collected pursuant to subsection (1) of this section shall be credited to the water diversion fund, which fund is hereby created. The general assembly shall annually appropriate all moneys in said fund for water projects for the state. Said appropriation shall be consistent with part 13 of article 3 of title 2, C.R.S.

37-82-101. Waters of natural surface streams subject to appropriation. (1) The water of every natural stream, as referred to in sections 5 and 6 of article XVI of the state constitution, includes all the water occurring within the state of Colorado which is in or tributary to a natural surface stream but does not include nontributary groundwater as that term is defined in section 37-90-103. All nontributary groundwater shall be subject to such administration and use as the general assembly may provide by law. Such nontributary waters, when released from the dominion of the user, become a part of the natural surface stream where released, subject to water rights on such stream in the order of their priority.

(2) A stream system which arises as a natural surface stream and, as a natural or man-induced phenomenon, terminates within the state of Colorado through naturally occurring evaporation and transpiration of its waters, together with its underflow and tributary waters, is a natural surface stream subject to appropriation as provided in subsection (1) of this section.

- III. Appropriation Under Instant Section.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "Principles and Laws of Colorado's Nontributary Ground Water", see 62 Den. U. L. Rev. 809 (1985). For article, "The Constitution, Property Rights and the Future of Water Law", see 61 U. Colo. L. Rev. 257 (1990).

Annotator's note. Since § 37-82-101 is similar to repealed § 148-2-1, C.R.S. 1963, § 147-2-1, CRS 53, and laws antecedent to CSA, C. 90, § 5, relevant cases construing these provisions have been included in the annotations to § 37-82-101.

Subsection (2) is of general and uniform applicability and does not constitute unconstitutional special legislation. Am. Water Development, Inc. v. City of Alamosa, 874 P.2d 352 (Colo. 1994).

Considering the history of Colorado, the nature of its soil and climate, its constitutional and legislative enactments, as well as the decisions of our courts, we have no hesitation in saying that our legislators used the term "irrigation" according to the common parlance of our people, in its special sense, as denoting the application of water to lands for the raising of agricultural crops and other products of the soil. Platte Water Co. v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 12 Colo. 525, 21 P. 711 (1889).

The application of water to the growing of trees upon the streets of a city, or trees, shrubs, grasses, and the like, in public parks, is as much irrigation as the application of water to the growth of crops upon farm lands, and neither the farmer nor the municipality, using or seeking to use water from the same source, has any right superior to the other. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

Water diverted and used for the propagation of fish is devoted to a useful purpose and may be appropriated therefor. Faden v. Hubbell, 93 Colo. 358, 28 P.2d 247 (1933).

The former statute recognized two classes of appropriations for irrigations, one for ditches diverting water directly from the stream, and one for the storage of water, to be used subsequently. Handy Ditch Co. v. Greeley & Loveland Irrigation Co., 86 Colo. 197, 280 P. 481 (1929).

The impounding and piping of waters for the purpose of generating electricity to be sold as a commodity constitute a valid appropriation of waters under the constitution and laws of the state of Colorado, as they have been construed by the court of last resort of this state. Cascade Town Co. v. Empire Water & Power Co., 181 F. 1011 (D. Colo. 1910).

II. RIGHT OF APPROPRIATION.

A. In General.

There are no riparian rights in Colorado as against a valid appropriation of water. Cascade Town Co. v. Empire Water & Power Co., 181 F. 1011 (D. Colo. 1910).

The doctrine of appropriation for agriculture is evoked by the imperative necessity for artificial irrigation of the soil. It would be an ungenerous and inequitable rule that would deprive one of its benefits simply because he has, by large expenditure of time and money, carried the water from one stream over an intervening watershed and cultivated land in the valley of another. Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882).

The right to the water in the streams of Colorado, by prior appropriation, antedated any legislation. It was the common law of the people; and legislation, both national and territorial, was but a recognition declaratory of the right as it had theretofore and then existed.

Neither in any territorial or national legislation do we find any provision or declaration of rights to water by appropriation, or to be acquired in any other manner, for domestic use. It is first found in the constitution of the state. Armstrong v. Larimer County Ditch Co., 1 Colo. App. 49, 27 P. 235 (1891).

The common-law doctrine in respect of the rights of riparian proprietors in the waters of natural streams never had obtained in Colorado. From the earliest times in that jurisdiction the local customs, laws, and decisions of courts have united in rejecting that doctrine and in adopting a different one which regards the waters of all natural streams as subject to appropriation and diversion for beneficial uses and treats priority of appropriation and continued beneficial use as giving the prior and superior right. Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551 (1872); Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882); Platte Water Co. v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 12 Colo. 525, 21 P. 711 (1889); Crippen v. White, 28 Colo. 298, 64 P. 184 (1901); Snyder v. Colo. Gold Dredging Co., 181 F. 62 (8th Cir. 1910).

In so choosing between these two inconsistent doctrines Colorado acted within the limits of her authority, first as a territory and then as a state, and her choice was recognized and sanctioned by congress, so far as the public lands of the United States were concerned. Cascade Town Co. v. Empire Water & Power Co., 181 F. 1011 (D. Colo. 1910).

The constitution has, to a large extent, obliterated the common-law doctrine of riparian rights and substituted in lieu thereof the doctrine of appropriation. Sieber v. Frink, 7 Colo. 148, 2 P. 901 (1883); Fuller v. Swan River Placer Mining Co., 12 Colo. 12, 19 P. 836 (1888); Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028, 4 L.R.A. 767 (1889); Strickler v. City of Colo. Springs, 16 Colo. 61, 26 P. 313 (1891); Combs v. Agricultural Ditch Co., 17 Colo. 146, 28 P. 966 (1892); Oppenlander v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 142, 31 P. 854 (1892).

This right to water by prior appropriation was recognized by the first general assembly of the territory and such rights continued to be recognized during the entire territorial existence. Armstrong v. Larimer County Ditch Co., 1 Colo. App. 49, 27 P. 235 (1891).

The doctrine of prior appropriation has become thoroughly entrenched in our jurisprudence, through constitutional and statutory provisions, and by a uniform and unbroken line of judicial decisions. Comstock v. Larimer & Weld Reservoir Co., 58 Colo. 186, 145 P. 700, 1916A Ann. Cas. 416 (1914).

It is said of the doctrine in this state that the common-law rule of continuous flow of natural streams is abolished, is so firmly established by the constitution, the statutes of the territory and the state, and by many decisions of the courts, that the supreme court declines to reopen or reconsider it, however interesting discussion thereof might otherwise be, and notwithstanding its importance. Cascade Town Co. v. Empire Water & Power Co., 181 F. 1011 (D. Colo. 1910).

The right to appropriate water and put the same to beneficial use at any place in the state is no longer open to question. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

An appropriation is the intent to take accompanied by some open physical demonstration of the intent. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

The appropriation is, in legal contemplation, made when the act evidencing the intent is performed. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

When the individual, by some open, physical demonstration, indicates an intent to take, for a valuable or beneficial use, and through such demonstration ultimately succeeds in applying the water to the use designated, there is an appropriation. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

The required "first step" must consist of open work "on the land" in order that notice can be given to others of the intention of the appropriators. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

The requisite intent to appropriate does not have to precede or be contemporaneous with the acts which constitute the work on the land. What is required is that at some point in time the two requirements, the open physical demonstration and the requisite intent to appropriate, coexist. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

In order to make an appropriation, no new facilities need be contracted. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

Even if no new ditch is built, a valid appropriation by means of an existing ditch could be made. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

Large expenditures indicate a good faith effort to appropriate and put to beneficial use unappropriated waters of the state of Colorado. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

River flow is as much affected by intercepting and diverting water, which otherwise would flow into it, as by directly withdrawing water from its channel. Peterson v. Reed, 149 Colo. 573, 369 P.2d 981 (1962).

The natural presumption is that all flowing water finds its way to a stream. Peterson v. Reed, 149 Colo. 573, 369 P.2d 981 (1962).

Drainage and seepage waters tributary to a natural stream cannot be independently appropriated by intercepting such waters before they commingled with the stream. Peterson v. Reed, 149 Colo. 573, 369 P.2d 981 (1962).

That the parties intercepted the waters of a drainage ditch before they emptied into a stream is immaterial where these waters were tributary to the stream and were subject to the prior appropriations thereon. Peterson v. Reed, 149 Colo. 573, 369 P.2d 981 (1962).

It is immaterial that waters of a drainage ditch are characterized as "artificially developed" where the findings of the trial court determined such waters to be tributary to a natural stream, the presumption being that all flowing water finds its way to a stream. Peterson v. Reed, 149 Colo. 573, 369 P.2d 981 (1962).

B. Necessity for Beneficial Use.

An appropriation, to be valid, must be manifested by the successful application of the water to the beneficial use designed or accompanied by some open, physical demonstration of intent to take the same for such use. Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551 (1872); Schilling v. Rominger, 4 Colo. 100 (1878); Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882); Thomas v. Guiraud, 6 Colo. 530 (1883); Larimer County Reservoir Co. v. People ex rel. Luthe, 8 Colo. 614, 9 P. 794 (1885); Platte Water Co. v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 12 Colo. 525, 21 P. 711 (1889); Woods v. Sargent, 43 Colo. 268, 95 P. 932 (1908); Comstock v. Larimer & Weld Reservoir Co., 58 Colo. 186, 145 P. 700 (1914).

From the first, the court has recognized and emphasized the idea that a priority could only be legally acquired by the application of the water to some beneficial use. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889); Ft. Morgan Land & Canal Co. v. South Platte Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 1, 30 P. 1032 (1892).

Only by a diversion and beneficial use can a priority of right be acquired. Ft. Morgan Land & Canal Co. v. South Platte Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 1, 30 P. 1032 (1892).

In the absence of express statutes to the contrary, the first appropriator of water from a natural stream, for a beneficial purpose, has, with the qualifications contained in the constitution, a prior right thereto, to the extent of such appropriation. Schilling v. Rominger, 4 Colo. 100 (1878); Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882).

A diversion unaccompanied by an application gives no right. Ft. Morgan Land & Canal Co. v. South Platte Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 1, 30 P. 1032 (1892).

The right to water thus acquired is not in any way dependent upon the locus of its application to the beneficial use designed. Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882).

An appropriator of water is not entitled to have water turned out to him unless he can beneficially use it. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

The measure of the appropriation does not depend alone upon the amount diverted and carried, but the amount which is applied to a beneficial use must also be considered. Woods v. Sargent, 43 Colo. 268, 95 P. 932 (1908).

Where all witnesses agreed that in planning for a reasonable municipal water supply provision should be made for an adequate supply in years of minimum runoff and maximum consumption, and evidence disclosed large expenditures in good faith effort to acquire unappropriated waters of the state for present and anticipated needs, a finding by the trial court of lack of need was erroneous. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

C. Nature of Right Acquired.

The right to water in this country by priority of appropriation is entitled to protection as well after patent to a third party of the land over which the natural stream flows, as when such land is part of the public domain; and it is immaterial whether or not it be mentioned in the patent and expressly excluded from the grant. Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882); Strickler v. City of Colo. Springs, 16 Colo. 61, 26 P. 313 (1891); Armstrong v. Larimer County Ditch Co., 1 Colo. App. 49, 27 P. 235 (1891).

A corporation which under its charter has the exclusive right to divert the waters of a nonnavigable stream, and the exclusive privilege of using and controlling the same for mechanical, agricultural, mining, and city purposes, cannot allow such right to remain in abeyance for a long series of years, and thereafter assert the same to the exclusion of those who have in the meantime acquired rights to the use of such stream by actual appropriation and use, in pursuance of the general laws of the state. Platte Water Co. v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 12 Colo. 525, 21 P. 711 (1889).

A priority has been declared a property right, and as such is subject to sale and transfer. Ft. Morgan Land & Canal Co. v. South Platte Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 1, 30 P. 1032, 36 Am. St. R. 259 (1892).

Water rights acquired by appropriation for purposes of irrigation in this state cannot be held to be inseparably annexed to the land in connection with which such rights were acquired. Even though under certain circumstances such rights may be considered appurtenant to the land they may undoubtedly be severed from the land; and may be sold and conveyed separate and apart therefrom; and where such severance, sale and conveyance have taken place, as by the assignment and sale of stock representing water rights in an incorporated ditch company, a subsequent sale and conveyance of the land does not pass the title to such water rights. Oppenlander v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 142, 31 P. 854 (1892).

Where a municipal corporation beneficially entitled to an irrigating ditch, and having present occasion for only part of the volume diverted, leases the excess to other consumers, its rights are preserved, as if it had actually applied the water to beneficial uses. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

Whether a deed to land conveys a water right in connection therewith depends upon the intention of the grantor to be gathered from the terms of the deed, or where it is silent on the subject, from the circumstances surrounding the transaction. Arnett v. Linhart, 21 Colo. 188, 40 P. 355 (1895); Gelwicks v. Todd, 24 Colo. 494, 52 P. 788 (1898); Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Childs, 25 Colo. 360, 54 P. 1020 (1898); Daum v. Conley, 27 Colo. 56, 59 P. 753 (1899); King v. Ackroyd, 28 Colo. 488, 66 P. 906 (1901); Bessemer Irrigating Ditch Co. v. Woolley, 32 Colo. 437, 76 P. 1053, (1904); City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

After water has been appropriated and diverted from a natural stream into ditches, canals, or other artificial works, it becomes personal property and cannot be appropriated from such works. Tongue Creek Orchard Co. v. Town of Orchard City, 131 Colo. 177, 280 P.2d 426 (1955).

The original appropriators have the right, and in fact it is their duty, to prevent, as far as possible, all waste of the water which they have appropriated, in order that the others who are entitled thereto may receive the benefit thereof. Tongue Creek Orchard Co. v. Town of Orchard City, 131 Colo. 177, 280 P.2d 426 (1955).

Notwithstanding that it has been held that water when reduced to possession is personal property, a water right is something vastly different and, when perfected by appropriation and beneficial use of water, constitutes realty in the nature of a possessory right. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Although a water right has attained to the dignity of real property, it cannot be said that it has attained to the dignity of an estate in fee or a freehold estate, it is still a possessory right, even after its consummation, and dependent on the continuous use of the water, and a failure to comply with this condition subjects the right to loss by abandonment. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Beneficial use is the ultimate essential in the establishment of a water right, so it also is essential in the perpetuation of such right. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

An abandonment of property held by possessory title takes place instantly when the occupant deserts it without an intention of ever reclaiming it for himself, and careless of what thereafter may become of it. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

The law in Colorado on abandonment of water rights has been settled for many years. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Where, by clear and convincing evidence, it is shown that for an unreasonable time available water has not been used, an intention to abandon may be inferred in the absence of proof of some fact or condition excusing such nonuse, the issue of intent in such instance becomes a question of fact for determination by the trial court from all the pertinent facts and surrounding circumstances, and where supported by competent evidence such finding will not be disturbed on review. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

"Abandonment" is a question of intent, nonuse alone being insufficient. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

In common usage, "to abandon" means to forsake; give up wholly; quit; when applied to a possessory right, such as is a water right, it means to discontinue, desert, relinquish, surrender, vacate, or give up; its opposite is to occupy, keep, maintain, use, preserve, and protect, and in water and irrigation matters it has no special, mystical, or different meaning than that well and generally recognized in all instances where are involved legal rights, the preservation and continuation of which are dependent upon possession, use, or occupancy. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

That the life of such right terminates and that it goes out of existence upon abandonment is a principle so well recognized that citation of authority to support it is unnecessary, but in the absence of expressed declaration, the difficult question for determination is whether, at any time following its acquisition, the owner of the right decided to quit, surrender, or give it up. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Although the intent of the party charged with abandoning a water right, ditch, or other works, is a necessary element to work an actual abandonment upon his part, the intent to abandon may be implied, and an actual abandonment decreed by the court from the acts of the appropriator or owner, or from his failure to act; and that, too, in the absence of any direct statement by him that he has abandoned the right, even in the face of declarations of the party charged, that he still owns the right and has not abandoned it, without any act of possession or user of the right by him, the court will declare the right to be abandoned, should the facts and circumstances in the case show that there was an actual abandonment. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Nonuse for an unreasonable period of time raises an implication or presumption of abandonment. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

To rebut the presumption of abandonment arising from such long period of nonuse, there must be established not merely expressions of desire or hope or intent, but some fact or condition excusing such long nonuse. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Mere "expressions of desire or hope or intent" in abandonment cases are insufficient excuse for nonuse of a water right. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Nonuse of a water right may not be justified by a showing that the owner intended to sell the property, or that it was kept listed with real estate brokers. Speculation on the market, or sale expectancy, is wholly foreign to the principle of keeping life in a proprietary right and is no excuse for failure to perform that which the law requires. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Oral declarations of ownership, in the absence of showing of reasonable justification for nonuser, are insufficient to overcome the presumption of intent to abandon. Knapp v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 131 Colo. 42, 279 P.2d 420 (1955).

Individuals in whom a prior right to the use of water is vested may lose such right by acquiescence in an adverse use thereof by another continued uninterruptedly for the statutory period. Greeley & Loveland Irrigation Co. v. McCloughan, 140 Colo. 173, 342 P.2d 1045 (1959); Nesbitt v. Jones, 140 Colo. 412, 344 P.2d 949 (1959).

III. APPROPRIATION UNDER INSTANT SECTION.

This section was an express statutory recognition of utilization of lands from natural overflow as one means of appropriation, as in the flooding of meadows by natural overflow without the use of any artificial means whatever. Humphreys Tunnel & Mining Co. v. Frank, 46 Colo. 524, 105 P. 1093 (1909); Broad Run Inv. Co. v. Deuel & Snyder Imp. Co., 47 Colo. 573, 108 P. 755 (1910); Cascade Town Co. v. Empire Water & Power Co., 181 F. 1011 (D. Colo. 1910).

This section included all lands in the immediate valley of the stream. Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882).

This section did not prohibit the diversion of water to the "detriment" of parties who might at some future period conclude to settle upon the stream; nor was the general assembly legislating with a view to preserving in such stream sufficient water for the "use" of settlers who might never come, and consequently never have use therefor. Coffin v. Left Hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443 (1882).

37-82-102. Priority of right to spring water. All ditches constructed for the purpose of utilizing the waste, seepage, or spring waters of the state shall be governed by the same laws relating to priority of right as those ditches constructed for the purpose of utilizing the water of running streams; but the person upon whose land the seepage or spring waters first arise shall have the prior right to such waters if capable of being used upon his lands.

ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Right to Seepage or Spring Water.
- III. Water Tributary to Natural Streams.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "Foreign Water in Colorado — The City's Right to Recapture and Re-Use Its Transmountain Diversion", see 42 Den. L. Ctr. J. 116 (1965). For article, "A Review of Recent Activity in Colorado Water Law", see 47 Den. L.J. 181 (1970). For note, "A Survey of Colorado Water Law", see 47 Den. L.J. 226 (1970).

The validity of this section, so far as it relates to water which is in no sense tributary to a stream, has never been denied by the courts and is not now disputed. Colo. & Utah Coal Co. v. Walter, 75 Colo. 489, 226 P. 864 (1924).

This section does not apply to a ditch built to catch the surface drainage from the irrigation of adjoining lands. Burkart v. Meiberg, 37 Colo. 187, 86 P. 98 (1906).

Where defendants own and irrigate, from a natural stream, a tract of land, the natural slope of which is towards plaintiff's land, and plaintiff, by constructing a ditch upon her own land parallel with the common boundary line, has for many years intercepted the surface drainage from defendants' land and used it for irrigating her land, but defendants later constructed upon their own land a ditch parallel to plaintiff's ditch to intercept such surface drainage, carry it around plaintiff's land, and irrigate another tract owned by them, it was held, that plaintiff has not made a valid appropriation of such water as against defendants so as to prevent such action upon their part, and this is true although later defendants sell such adjoining tract of land, and continue to use such surface drainage, with the consent of the vendee, upon the tract of land below plaintiff. Burkart v. Meiberg, 37 Colo. 187, 86 P. 98 (1906).

The declaratory judgment act is applicable to a dispute over the right to the use of spring waters not tributary to any natural stream. Colo. & Utah Coal Co. v. Walter, 75 Colo. 489, 226 P. 864 (1924).

Applied in Archuleta v. Boulder & Weld County Ditch Co., 118 Colo. 43, 192 P.2d 891 (1948).

II. RIGHT TO SEEPAGE OR SPRING WATER.

There are no Colorado constitutional or statutory inhibitions against a person on whose lands spring water arises, which water is not tributary to and does not enter a natural stream, from using said water on his lands; on the contrary, this section expressly provides that the person on whose lands spring water first arises has the prior right to the use thereof. Cline v. Whitten, 144 Colo. 126, 355 P.2d 306 (1960).

The owner of land upon which is located a spring, the water of which he uses for irrigation and stock purposes, has the first and prior right to its use, it not being tributary to, or forming a part of any natural stream. Haver v. Matonock, 79 Colo. 194, 244 P.914 (1926); Faden v. Hubbell, 93 Colo. 358, 28 P.2d 247 (1933).

The rights of senior appropriators cannot be injuriously affected by claims of junior claimants. In re Water Dist. No. 11, Water Div. No. 2, 178 Colo. 160, 496 P.2d 311 (1972).

Where seepage water, which plaintiff claims to have diverted, if left to itself, would never have reached a natural stream, any appropriation of the water which plaintiff's testator might have made was subject to the superior right of the owner of the land on which the same arose to apply such waters to a beneficial use on his premises. Lomas v. Webster, 109 Colo. 107, 122 P.2d 248 (1942).

Where all of the water of the stream is capable of being used upon the plaintiff's land and it has been used for irrigating his land and for stock water purposes for more than 20 years before defendants' alleged rights attached, under this section the plaintiff has a first and prior right to use of the water so far as he desires to use the same as against the defendants or other appropriators. Haver v. Matonock, 79 Colo. 194, 244 P. 914 (1926).

Where plaintiff has expressed a desire to make use of all the waters, the defendants have no right to use the same so long as the plaintiff desires to use them and applies them to a beneficial use. Haver v. Matonock, 79 Colo. 194, 244 P. 914 (1926).

A plaintiff who has right to water from one creek and defendant who has right to water from another, defendant has right to spring run-off water flowing near headwaters of both creeks which is naturally tributary to creek for which he has water rights. *Grimes-Brooks Reservoir Co. v. The appropriation thereof is not included in or controlled by a prior adjudication decree in the same district. Ironstone Ditch Co. v. Ashenfelter, 57 Colo. 31, 140 P. 177 (1914).

Where consumers constructed at their own labor and expense the feeder ditch by which the seepage water around the rim of Ash mesa, doing no one any good, was conveyed a mile up the river and emptied in the stream just above their headgate, this was an independent appropriation from extraneous sources, which they could make under this section. Ironstone Ditch

Co. v. Ashenfelter, 57 Colo. 31, 140 P. 177 (1914).

Since consumers, by their efforts, lawfully contributed water to the stream which otherwise would not have reached it above their headgate, it was theirs, independent of the original adjudication decree, and because by their labor they contributed extraneous water to the normal flow, is no reason why they may not sell their priorities, and irrigate their land with the independent water. Ironstone Ditch Co. v. Ashenfelter, 57 Colo. 31, 140 P. 177 (1914).

A valid appropriation of water may be made from a canon, notwithstanding it is not a running stream and the water comes entirely from the rainfall in the surrounding hills. Denver, T. & F. W. R. R. v. Dotson, 20 Colo. 304, 38 P. 322 (1894).

The evidence established, by adverse possession, plaintiff's right to seepage water as against the owner of the land on which water arose although such water, if left to itself, would not reach or become part of a natural stream. Lomas v. Webster, 109 Colo. 107, 122 P.2d 248 (1942).

Where plaintiffs alleged that spring water arising on their land was nontributary to any natural stream, and that defendants have, and threaten to continue interfering therewith, the complaint asserted a statutory right to the use of such waters, and it was error to dismiss the complaint. Cline v. Whitten, 144 Colo. 126, 355 P.2d 306 (1960).

No one is authorized to interfere with the lawful exercise of a right to the use of spring water under this section. Cline v. Whitten, 144 Colo. 126, 355 P.2d 306 (1960).

An owner of water rights is entitled to injunctive relief against anyone who interferes with and threatens to continue to interfere with the exercise of such rights. Cline v. Whitten, 144 Colo. 126, 355 P.2d 306 (1960).

In an action by a prior appropriator of water from a stream to restrain a subsequent appropriator from diverting the tributary waters of the stream, if the defendant relies upon the defense that he has appropriated only percolating, drainage, and seepage waters which he has acquired a right to under this section, such defense must be presented by answer, and cannot be raised by demurrer. Ogilvy Irrigating & Land Co. v. Insinger, 19 Colo. App. 380, 75 P. 598 (1904).

One who claims a prior right under this section to appropriate water on the ground that it is seepage water diverted from a different stream and drainage and brought into the valley of the stream from which he seeks to appropriate it and first rises on his land has the burden of proof to show that it is such water and the quantity thereof. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905).

Evidence which fails to show how much of the water claimant collects in the bed of the stream comes from the seepage of water brought into the valley from a different stream and how much comes from other sources, and which fails to show how much of such seepage water first rises on claimant's lands, is insufficient to sustain a claim of priority of right to seepage water under this section. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905).

Courts will not take judicial notice that a spring has a certain location and is tributary to a natural stream, in the face of a positive declaration to the contrary in a complaint, which is not denied by the answer. Colo. & Utah Coal Co. v. Walter, 75 Colo. 489, 226 P. 864 (1924).

Where evapotranspiration is the only factor impeding the flow of seep and spring waters, such waters shall be considered tributary to the stream into which they flow and rights to such waters are not protected under this section. SRJ I Venture v. Smith Cattle, Inc., 820 P.2d 341 (Colo. 1991).

III. WATER TRIBUTARY TO NATURAL STREAMS.

The statute determining the right to use water coming from a spring on a landowner's property applies if, and only if, there first be a determination that the spring water in question is "nontributary" in nature. Ranson v. City of Boulder, 161 Colo. 478, 424 P.2d 122 (1967).

This section is applicable only to appropriations of waste, seepage, and spring waters before they reach the channel or bed of a natural stream, whether by natural surface flow, by percolation or by being artificially turned into the same, but after waste waters reach the stream, unless there is then an intention by the owner to reclaim them, they become part of its volume, and inure to the benefit of the appropriators of its waters, to be enjoyed in accordance with their numerical priorities. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905); Cline v. Whitten, 150 Colo. 179, 372 P.2d 145 (1962).

There is no difference in principle between waste water thus added to a natural stream and water which, by natural law, so finds its way into such channel by percolation, surface, or subterranean flow. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905).

This section does not apply to seepage waters which rise or come to the surface for the first time in the bed or channel of a natural stream. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905).

Such waters become part of the volume of such natural stream, inure to the benefit of the appropriators of the water of the stream in the numerical order of their appropriations, and the owner of the land through which the stream flows at the point where such waters rise therein has no priority of right thereto. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905).

This section does not apply to the water of a spring which constitutes the source of one of the branches of a natural stream the water of which had been appropriated prior to the enactment of the law. Clark v. Ashley, 34 Colo. 285, 82 P. 588 (1905).

Where defendants were awarded priorities to the waters of a certain stream, superior to those of the plaintiff's, and subsequently, by seepage from defendants' ditch, water appeared in a certain gulch tributary to the stream in question, plaintiff's attempted appropriation of these waters conferred no right, the seepage being still part of the waters of the stream. Durkee Ditch Co. v. Means, 63 Colo. 6, 164 P. 503 (1917).

In Colorado, flowing water is presumed to find its way to a stream and therefore to be tributary in nature, and the burden of proving otherwise rests upon the party claiming that such water is not tributary. Ranson v. City of Boulder, 161 Colo. 478, 424 P.2d 122 (1967).

Seepage and percolation waters belong to the river and since this is true they belong to the people of the state. Comstock v. Ramsay, 55 Colo. 244, 133 P. 1107 (1913); Durkee Ditch Co. v. Means, 63 Colo. 6, 164 P. 503 (1917); Trowell Land & Irrigation Co. v. Bijou Irrigation Dist., 65 Colo. 202, 176 P. 292 (1918); Rio Grande Reservoir & Ditch Co. v. Wagon Wheel Gap Imp. Co., 68 Colo. 437, 191 P. 129 (1920); Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. McCune, 71 Colo. 256, 206 P. 393 (1922); Nevius v. Smith, 86 Colo. 178, 279 P. 44 (1929);

Cline v. Whitten, 150 Colo. 179, 372 P.2d 145 (1962).

This rule is limited strictly to such waters as "belong to the stream". Nevius v. Smith, 86 Colo. 178, 279 P. 44 (1929).

An appropriator of spring and seepage water has the right to its use superior to that of the owner of the land upon which the water arises, when such water would ultimately reach, and become a part of, a natural stream. Nevius v. Smith, 86 Colo. 178, 279 P. 44 (1929); Lomas v. Webster 109 Colo. 107, 122 P.2d 248 (1942).

Where a party makes a valid appropriation of spring and seepage water arising on the land of another and which would eventually reach, and become a part of, a natural stream, the owner of the land upon which the water develops cannot deprive him of the acquired right without compensation. Nevius v. Smith, 86 Colo. 178, 279 P. 44 (1929).

Whatever may be the right of the owner of the lands upon which seepage or spring waters first arise, as against a prior appropriator where such waters are not tributary to a stream, the law is well settled that waters which are tributary to a stream belong to the stream and are subject to appropriation for beneficial use the same as other waters of the stream. De Haas v. Benesch, 116 Colo. 344, 181 P.2d 453 (1947).

Subject to prior appropriations, underground waters supplying a natural stream are open to appropriation like surface waters, because they belong to the river. McClellan v. Hurdle, 3 Colo. App. 430, 33 P. 280 (1893); Medano Ditch Co. v. Adams, 29 Colo. 317, 68 P. 431 (1902); LaJara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 105, 83 P. 644 (1905); Nevius v. Smith, 86 Colo. 178, 279 P. 44 (1929); Faden v. Hubbell, 93 Colo. 358, 28 P.2d 247 (1933).

37-82-103. Appropriation of natural springs. The waters of natural flowing springs may be appropriated for all beneficial uses, and the priorities of such appropriations may be determined as provided by law. If it is found that the water of any such springs is not tributary to any natural stream, the determinations shall fix the rights of appropriators from such springs among themselves.

37-82-106. Right to reuse of imported water. (1) Whenever an appropriator has lawfully introduced foreign water into a stream system from an unconnected stream system, such appropriator may make a succession of uses of such water by exchange or otherwise to the extent that its volume can be distinguished from the volume of the streams into which it is introduced. Nothing in this section shall be construed to impair or diminish any water right which has become vested.

(2) To the extent that there exists a right to make a succession of uses of foreign, nontributary, or other developed water, such right is personal to the developer or his successors, lessees, contractees, or assigns. Such water, when released from the dominion of the user, becomes a part of the natural surface stream where released, subject to water rights on such stream in the order of their priority, but nothing in this subsection (2) shall affect the rights of the developer or his successors or assigns with respect to such foreign, nontributary, or developed water, nor shall dominion over such water be lost to the owner or user thereof by reason of use of a natural watercourse in the process of carrying such water to the place of its use or successive use.

The importer does not need to maintain physical control over the waters. When the foreign water can no longer be distinguished volumetrically, it becomes part of the natural stream and cannot be reused by the importer.

However, this requirement attaches for each importation so that a current failure to distinguish the volume of foreign water from the receiving stream does not preclude future distinction and reuse. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The right to reuse foreign water is not subject to abandonment by non-use. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

“Owe the river” accounting method was insufficient to effectuate an exchange of waters to the extent that Denver took water from the South Platte before notifying either the division or state engineer that a corresponding release would be required and was available. In order for the division and state engineers to effectively exercise their discretion in administering water rights so as to protect the rights of downstream senior appropriators, the engineers must be notified in advance of a diversion that might affect those rights. City of Denver v. City of Englewood, 826 P.2d 1266 (Colo. 1992).

37-83-105. Owner may loan agricultural water right - loans to Colorado water conservation board for instream flows. (1) Subject to the limitations of this subsection (1) and pursuant to the procedures set forth in paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of this section, the owner of a water right decreed and used solely for agricultural irrigation purposes may loan all or a portion of the water right to another owner of a decreed water right on the same stream system and that is used solely for agricultural irrigation purposes for no more than one hundred eighty days during any one calendar year if the division engineer approves such loan in advance and the loan does not cause injury to other decreed water rights.

(2) (a) A water right owner may loan water to the Colorado water conservation board for use as instream flows pursuant to a decreed instream flow water right held by the board for a period not to exceed one hundred twenty days, subject to the following:

(I) Prior to accepting the loan, the Colorado water conservation board shall compile a statement about the duration of the loan, a description of the original points of diversion, and other relevant information sufficient for the state engineer to determine that such loan does not injure existing decreed water rights.

(II) Consistent with current law, only the Colorado water conservation board is entitled to hold instream flow water rights and may accept proposed loans in accordance with section 37-92-102 (3).

(III) The loan shall not be accepted unless the state engineer determines that the Colorado water conservation board's temporary instream flow use will not injure existing water rights of others.

(IV) A loan approved pursuant to this paragraph (a) shall not be exercised for more than three years in a ten-year period, for which only a single approval by the state engineer is required. The ten-year period shall begin when the state engineer approves the loan. The state engineer shall not approve a loan pursuant to this paragraph (a) for another ten-year period; except that, if the agreement has not been exercised during the term of the agreement, an applicant may reapply one time by repeating the application process pursuant to this subsection (2).

(V) A party may file comments concerning potential injury to such party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights due to the operations of the loan of a water right to a decreed instream flow right with the state engineer by January 1 of the year following each year that the loan is exercised. The procedures of paragraph (b) of this subsection (2) regarding notice, opportunity to comment, the state engineer's decision, and an appeal of such decision shall again be followed with regard to such party's comments.

(b) In determining whether injury will occur, the division engineer shall ensure that the following conditions are met:

(I) The proponent has filed a request for approval of the loan with the division engineer, together with a filing fee in the amount of one hundred dollars. Moneys from the fee shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and deposited in the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1). The request for approval shall include:

(A) Evidence of the proponent's legal right to use the loaned water right;
(B) A statement of the duration of the proposed loan;
(C) A description of the original points of diversion, the return flow pattern, the stream reach, and the time, place, and types of use of the loaned water right;

(D) A description of the new proposed points of diversion, the return flow pattern, the stream reach, and the time, place, and types of use of the loaned water right; and

(E) A reasonable estimate of the historic consumptive use of the loaned water right;

(II) The proponent has provided written notice of the request for approval of the loan by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties on the substitute water supply plan notification list established pursuant to section 37-92-308 (6) for the water division in which the proposed loan is located and proof of such notice is filed with the division engineer;

(III) The proposed use of the loaned water right is for agricultural irrigation purposes or for instream flow purposes by the Colorado water conservation board;

(IV) None of the water rights involved in the loan are adjudicated to or diverted at a well located more than one hundred feet from the bank of the nearest flowing stream;

(V) The division engineer has given the owners of water rights and decreed conditional water rights fifteen days after the date of mailing of notice under subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b) to file comments on the proposed loan; except that the division engineer may act on the application immediately after the applicant provides evidence that all persons entitled to notice of the application under subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b) have either consented to or commented on the application. Such comments shall include any claim of injury or any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the proposed loan to prevent injury to a party's water right and any other information the commenting party wishes the division engineer to consider in reviewing the proposed loan.

(VI) The division engineer, after consideration of any comments received, has determined that the operation and administration of the proposed loan will not cause injury to other decreed water rights and, for loans made pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (2), will not affect Colorado's compact entitlements. The division engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met. In making the determinations specified in this subparagraph (VI), the division engineer shall not be required to hold any formal hearings or conduct any other formal proceedings, but may conduct a hearing or formal proceeding if the division engineer finds it necessary to address the issues.

(VII) The division engineer shall approve or deny the proposed loan within twenty days after the date of mailing of notice under subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b), or within five days after the applicant provides evidence that all persons entitled to notice of the application under subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b) have either consented to or commented on the application, whichever is earlier.

(VIII) When the division engineer approves or denies a proposed loan, the division engineer shall serve a copy of the decision on all parties to the application by first-class mail or, if such parties have so elected, by electronic mail. Neither the approval nor the denial by the division engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any legal action that may be initiated concerning the loan. Any appeal of a decision by the division engineer concerning the loan pursuant to this section shall be made to the water judge in the applicable water division within fifteen days after the date on which the decision is served on the parties to the application. The water judge shall hear such appeal on an expedited basis.

(c) All periods of time during which a loaned water right is used by the board for instream flow purposes shall be excluded from any historic consumptive use analysis of the loaned water right required under any water court proceeding.

37-83-106. Authority of political subdivisions to lease or exchange water. Water conservancy districts and water conservation districts which own or hold rights to water may enter into cooperative agreements with other political subdivisions of the state for the lease or exchange of water produced in the exercise of such district's water rights and the construction or use of waterworks within or outside of district boundaries, according to such terms as such district and political subdivision agree upon. Conservation districts, conservancy districts, and other political subdivisions of the state may enter into agreements with each other to provide funds or undertake measures to carry out section 37-45-118 (1) (b) (II), including agreements for the exchange or lease of such water outside the boundaries of the conservation or conservancy district. Such leases and exchanges may cover the time period necessary to amortize, or repay bonds issued for, the cost of constructing the waterworks involved, and may be renewable according to such terms as such district and political subdivision may agree upon. Any water rights leased or exchanged under this section shall be only for the time certain contained in each such agreement or extension thereof. Any water rights or changes of water rights which are necessary to implement such agreements shall be adjudicated as provided by law. If mutually agreeable, districts and other political subdivisions may submit any contractual disputes arising under this section between them to nonbinding arbitration, as they may determine.

ANNOTATION

This section allows water conservancy districts to enter into cooperative agreements with other political subdivisions for the lease or exchange of water outside of district boundaries under regulated conditions. However, it allows extra-district use only in specified situations, and the ultimate authority to approve such transactions rests with the water conservancy district. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The northern Colorado water conservancy district (NCWCD) enacted rules and regulations to implement the limitations placed on the distribution of Colorado-Big Thompson (CBT) water by the Water Conservancy Act and the 1938 repayment contract between the United States and the NCWCD for the construction of the CBT project. The Water Conservancy Act, the repayment contract, and the rules enacted by the NCWCD all prohibited use of CBT water outside the boundaries of the NCWCD boundaries. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Head of ditch to be latticed. Every corporation and company, whether created by special act or organized under the general incorporation laws of this state, and every partnership or any persons who own or control any canal or ditch, or any part thereof, being two feet in width or over and carrying water to the depth of twelve inches or over, which canal or ditch, or any part thereof, is within the corporate limits of any city with a population of seventy thousand or more or any city existing by special charter of a population equal to or exceeding seventy thousand, or any of the additions thereto, at their own expense, shall safely and securely lattice or slat the head of any flume or covering of the canal or ditch with proper materials, so that persons or animals cannot accidentally enter such flume or covering at the head thereof and pass or be carried down the current of the canal or ditch, and they shall thereafter maintain and keep the same in good order and repair at their own cost and expense.

This section is constitutional. Platte & Denver Canal & Milling Co. v. Dowell, 17 Colo. 376, 30 P. 68 (1892).

This section is general and applies to all canals of the dimensions specified, and there is nothing upon its face to indicate that the members of the general assembly thought at the time of its enactment of any particular canal. Platte & Denver Canal & Milling Co. v. Dowell, 17 Colo. 376, 30 P. 68 (1892).

This section does not forbid or attempt to interfere with the use of a canal in carrying on appellant's business, and it does not undertake to deprive appellant of its property or the enjoyment thereof, because appellant can without injury to the usefulness of the canal so maintain it as not to endanger the safety of life and property; and, as already in effect suggested, it has no constitutional right to perpetuate this danger. Platte & Denver Canal & Milling Co. v. Dowell, 17 Colo. 376, 30 P. 68 (1892).

The failure of appellant to perform its statutory duty was negligence per se, and no contributory negligence being shown, appellees were entitled to recover. Platte & Denver Canal & Milling Co. v. Dowell, 17 Colo. 376, 30 P. 68 (1892).

37-84-111. Penalty for failure to cover and lattice. If any such corporation, company, partnership, or person fails or refuses to comply with any of the provisions of section 37-84-110, such corporation, company, partnership, or person shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty dollars for each day such failure or refusal continues, to be recovered by a civil action in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, in any court of competent jurisdiction. Nothing in this section and section 37-84-110 shall be construed to bar an action for special damages by any person who has suffered such damages by reason of any failure to comply with said sections.

37-84-112. Headgates - specifications - failure to maintain - penalty. (1) The owners of any irrigation ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir in this state, taking water from any stream, shall erect where necessary and maintain in good repair, at the point of intake of such ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir, a suitable and proper headgate of height and strength and with embankments sufficient to control the water at all ordinary stages and suitable and proper measuring flumes, weirs, and devices and shall also erect and maintain in good repair suitable wastegates where necessary in connection with such ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir intake. The framework of such headgate shall be constructed of timber not less than four inches square, and the bottom, sides, and gate shall be of plank not less than two inches in thickness, or said gate may be made of other material of equal strength and durability or may be made and constructed upon plans and specifications approved by the state engineer. No such headgate shall be deemed complete until provided with suitable locks and fastenings (except when the division engineer deems such locks and fastenings unnecessary therefor) and keys therefor are delivered to the division engineer of the division who has control thereof during the seasons of the distribution of water.

(2) If the owners of any such irrigation ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir fail or neglect to erect or maintain in good repair said headgate, measuring flume, weir, or devices, in the manner and form provided in this section, then the state engineer or division engineer, upon ten days' previous notice in writing, duly served upon such owners, or upon any agent or employee representing them or controlling such ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir, shall refuse to deliver any water from such stream to such owners, or to such ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir, until such owners erect or repair the headgate, measuring flume, weirs, or devices of such ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir. The owners of all such ditches, canals, flumes, or reservoirs shall be liable for all damages resulting from their neglect or refusal to comply with the provisions of sections 37-84-112 to 37-84-117. Such owners who divert water from any such stream and into any such ditch, canal, flume, or reservoir contrary to the orders of the state engineer or division engineer are guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, and each day of violation shall be deemed a separate offense.

37-84-113. Measuring flumes - construction. The owners of any irrigation ditch, canal, or reservoir, transferring water from one natural stream to another, or from a reservoir, ditch, or flume to a stream in order that said water may be diverted from such stream for irrigation or any other purpose, shall construct suitable and proper measuring flumes or weirs, equipped with self-registering devices if required by the state engineer, for the proper and accurate determination of the amount and flow of water turned into, carried through, and diverted out of said natural stream. If the owners of any such irrigation ditch, canal, or reservoir fail or neglect, upon five days' previous notice in writing duly served upon them or their agent or employee, to erect, maintain, or repair such measuring flume, weir, or device, the state engineer or division engineer shall refuse to allow to be taken or diverted from any stream any water whatever on account of delivery of water to such stream, for such time and until such owners cause to be erected or repaired such flumes, weirs, or devices, at the point of delivery to and taking from said natural streams so used as a conduit.

ANNOTATION

No authority is presented purporting to support the proposition that the defendant should be required to install a measuring device to determine the amount of water which runs in a ditch in which he claims no interest, the statute places this responsibility upon the owners of the ditch. Georges v. Vahldick, 161 Colo. 278, 421 P.2d 471 (1966).

While this section implicitly acknowledges that a natural stream may be used as a conduit, the statute implies nothing about relief from the legal obligation to adjudicate a change of water right imposed by § 37-92-302, but merely mandates the measurement of any water carried through and diverted out of such a natural stream. Trail's End Ranch, L.L.C. v. Colo. Div. of Water Res., 91 P.3d 1058 (Colo. 2004).

37-84-114. Rating of flumes and weirs. The state engineer or division engineer shall rate the measuring flume and weirs referred to in sections 37-84-112 to 37-84-117, and the original notes of such rating, together with a complete table compiled therefrom, shall be filed as a part of the records of the office of the state engineer, and the state engineer shall supply the division engineer of the division in which such measuring flumes or weirs are located with a copy of such rating table, which shall be used by him in measuring water flowing to and from such natural stream.

37-84-115. Gauge rods. A gauge rod, marked in feet and tenths and one-hundredths of a foot, shall be permanently fixed and maintained at the outlets of all reservoirs, under the supervision of the division engineer, and if any owner or possessor of any reservoir fails or refuses to provide, fix, and maintain such gauge rod then the owner or possessor of such reservoir shall not be entitled to impound any water whatever in said reservoirs until the provisions of this section are fully complied with. Notwithstanding the foregoing the division engineer may determine that such rod is not necessary with respect to specific reservoirs. Such determination shall be in writing and may be rescinded in writing at any time.

37-84-116. Control of headgates and weirs. All headgates, measuring weirs, flumes, and devices used in connection with canals, flumes, and ditches or reservoirs for the measuring and delivering of waters therefrom and thereto shall be under the supervision and control at all times of the state engineer and the division engineer of the water division wherein such headgates, measuring weirs, flumes, and devices are located. Nothing in sections 37-84-112 to 37-84-117 shall be construed as prohibiting any water user in the state of Colorado or his appointed agent from reading any gauge, gauge rod, or measuring device or from determining the quantity of water diverted by any canal or impounded in or delivered from any reservoir, and it is here declared the intent and purpose of sections 37-84-112 to 37-84-117 to give any water user of Colorado or his appointed agent the right of ascertaining the quantity of water being diverted by any canal or impounded in or delivered from any reservoir without his being required to assign any reason for making such observations. Noncompliance with the provisions of sections 37-84-112 to 37-84-117 shall, during such noncompliance, forfeit the right to divert water into any canal or to impound water in or deliver water from any reservoir.

37-84-117. Reservoirs in streams. (1) The owners of any reservoir situate upon or in the bed of any natural stream or through which any natural stream flows, for the purpose of storing or diverting water, at the expense of the owner, shall cause a complete survey of the contour lines of said reservoir to be made, which said survey may be approved by the state engineer, or, in the discretion of the state engineer, shall be made under the supervision of the state engineer or his deputy or the division engineer of the division in which such reservoir is located. Said contour lines shall be ascertained for at least every vertical foot in depth and, in all cases where deemed necessary by the state engineer, for fractions of a foot. There shall be prepared a table to be filed in duplicate with and approved by the state engineer, showing the capacity of said reservoir, in cubic feet, for each foot in depth or fraction thereof, one copy of which said table shall be furnished to the division engineer in whose division such reservoir is situate. All maps, plats, field notes, and the table of such reservoir, survey, and capacity shall be filed with and approved by the state engineer and remain a part of the records of his office.

(2) The owners of such reservoir, at their own expense, under the supervision and with the approval of the state engineer, shall permanently fix and maintain a gauge rod at or near the outlet of such reservoir, marked in feet and tenths and one-hundredths of a foot, and in correspondence with the contour lines, from and by means of which the amount of water stored in, or taken from, said reservoir may be correctly ascertained, and, at the expense of such owners and under the supervision and with the approval of the state engineer, shall construct and permanently maintain a suitable and permanent measuring weir or flume equipped with self-registering devices, according to plans and specifications approved by the state engineer, in the bed and channel of every natural stream or watercourse discharging waters into said reservoir by means of which all of the water flowing into said reservoir from and through each such stream or watercourse, at all times may be definitely ascertained and determined.

(3) Such gauge rods, flumes or weirs, and devices shall be at all times subject and open to inspection by the owner or duly authorized agent or representative of the owners of any appropriation of water from the stream upon or in which such reservoir is constructed or operated. Upon the failure or neglect of the owners of any such reservoir to construct or permanently maintain such gauge rods, measuring flumes, or weirs, equipped as provided in this section or upon the failure or neglect of such owners to cause complete survey of the contour lines of said reservoir to be made, after thirty days' notice in writing, directing such contour survey to be made, duly served upon such owners, or their agent or employee, by the state engineer or division engineer, the state engineer or division engineer shall refuse to allow any water whatsoever to be taken into or diverted from or by means of said reservoir. When suitable weirs, flumes, gauge rods, and measuring devices have been installed and equipped, the state engineer and division engineer may allow water to be stored in any such reservoir after thirty days have expired after the giving of said notice, in the event that the survey of said contour lines is then being prosecuted in good faith.

(4) Upon complaint in any manner made to the state engineer or the division engineer by the owners of any appropriation of water from any stream upon which any such reservoir is located, or any stream of which such stream is a tributary, charging a violation of any of the requirements of this section, the state engineer or division engineer shall thereupon forthwith inquire into the truth of such complaint and, if the charges are found to be true, shall enforce the provisions of this section.

(5) Upon order of the state engineer there shall be released from the water in storage in each stream bed reservoir such quantities of water as, in the determination of the state engineer, are necessary to prevent evaporation from the surface of such reservoir from depleting the natural flow of the stream running through such reservoir which would otherwise be available for use by other appropriators. In determining the quantity of any evaporation release under this section, the state engineer shall compute the surface evaporation from the reservoir and deduct therefrom any accretions to the stream flow resulting from the existence of the reservoir and any natural depletions to the stream flow which would have resulted if the reservoir were not in existence.

37-84-118. Ditch owners to provide flow - when. Every person or company owning or controlling any canal or ditch used for the purposes of irrigation and carrying water for pay, when demanded by the users from April 1 until November 1 in each year, shall keep a flow of water therein, so far as may be reasonably practicable for the purpose of irrigation, sufficient to meet the requirements of all such persons as are properly entitled to the use of water therefrom, to the extent, if necessary, to which such person may be entitled to water and no more. Whenever the rivers or public streams or sources from which the water is obtained are not sufficiently free from ice, or the volume of water therein is too low and inadequate for that purpose, then such canal or ditch shall be kept with as full a flow of water therein as may be practicable, subject, however, to the rights of priorities from the streams or other sources, as provided by law, and the necessity of cleaning, repairing, and maintaining the same in good condition.

37-84-124. Amount of water taken. It is the duty of every person who is entitled to take water for irrigation purposes from any ditch, canal, or reservoir to see that he receives no more water from such ditch, canal, or reservoir through his headgate, or by any ways or means whatsoever, than the amount to which he is entitled. At all times, such person shall take every precaution to prevent more water than the amount to which he is entitled from such ditch, canal, or reservoir from coming upon his land.

ANNOTATION

Purpose of provisions. This section and § 37-84-125 are directed at prevention of diversions which exceed the decreed rate of diversion and are not intended to prohibit out-of-priority diversions. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

37-84-125. Receipt of too much water. It is the duty of every such person, taking water from any ditch, canal, or reservoir, to be used for irrigation purposes, on finding that he is receiving more water from such ditch, canal, or reservoir, either through his headgate or by means of leaks, or by any means whatsoever, immediately to take steps to prevent his further receiving more water from such ditch, canal, or reservoir than the amount to which he is entitled. If knowingly he permits such extra water to come upon his land from such ditch, canal, or reservoir, and does not immediately notify the owners of such ditch or take steps to prevent its further flowing upon his land, he shall be liable to any person, company, or corporation who may be injured by such extra appropriation of water, for the actual damage sustained by the party aggrieved. The damages shall be adjudged to be paid, together with the costs of suit, and a reasonable attorney's fee to be fixed by the court and taxed with the costs.

ANNOTATION

Purpose of provisions. Section 37-84-124 and this section are directed at prevention of diversions which exceed the decreed rate of diversion and are not intended to prohibit out-of-priority diversions. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

In an action for damages for being denied use of water in irrigation canal as result of alleged wrongful acts of named defendants, and for injunctive relief, wherein during the course of the trial plaintiffs tendered an amended complaint which included a request that attorneys' fees be assessed against defendants in addition to costs for the sole purpose of bringing the action under the provisions of this section, it was held that this section did not apply to the situation. #### ANNOTATION

Constitutional and statutory provisions not applicable to political subdivision. The language of § 8 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., and of this article, is not applicable to a political subdivision of the state of Colorado. Matthews v. Tri-County Water Conservancy Dist., 200 Colo. 202, 613 P.2d 889 (1980).

Provisions applicable to private parties. The framers intended, and the general assembly understood, that § 8 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., was applicable only to private persons or corporations engaged in the business of storage, carriage, and sale of water for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, or domestic purposes. Matthews v. Tri-County Water Conservancy Dist., 200 Colo. 202, 613 P.2d 889 (1980).

Water conservancy districts not subject to county commissioners' jurisdiction. Water conservancy districts, when fixing rates for sale of water, are not subject to the jurisdiction of the boards of county commissioners. *Matthews v. 37-85-102. Right to continue purchasing water. Any persons, acting jointly or severally, who have purchased and used water for irrigation for lands occupied by them from any ditch or reservoir, and have not ceased to do so for the purpose or with intent to procure water from some other source of supply, have the right to continue to purchase water to the same amount for their lands, on paying or tendering the price thereof fixed by the board of county commissioners as provided in sections 37-85-103 to 37-85-106 or, if no price has been fixed by them, the price at which the owners of such ditch or reservoir may be then selling water or did sell water during the then last preceding year. This section shall not apply to the case of those who may have taken water as stockholders or shareholders after they have sold or forfeited their shares or stock, unless they have retained a right to procure such water by contract, agreement, or understanding and use between themselves and the owners of such ditch and not then to the injury of other purchasers of water from or shareholders in the same ditch.

- III. The Carrier.
- IV. Measure of Damages.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For note, "A Survey of Colorado Water Law", see 47 Den. L.J. 226 (1970).

State owns water diverted from natural stream. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887); Northern Colo. Irrigating Co. v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 95 Colo. 555, 38 P.2d 889 (1934).

Neither the carrier nor the landowner owns the water diverted from a natural stream in Colorado; they have only the use thereof under regulations prescribed by the state, which owns the water. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co. v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 95 Colo. 555, 38 P.2d 889 (1934).

To constitute a valid appropriation, the water diverted must, within a reasonable time, be applied to some beneficial use. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887).

The priority of an appropriation may date from the commencement of the ditch, proper diligence having been exercised. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887).

Section does not apply to a proceeding between individuals in which no ditch company is a party, as where the question to be determined is whether a sheriff's deed includes a water right. Cooper v. Shannon, 36 Colo. 98, 85 P. 175 (1906).

II. THE CONSUMER.

Where an original appropriator conveyed his water right to a ditch company which in turn contracted to furnish water for irrigation to the appropriator's land without charge, such appropriator was no longer owner of water right but a consumer whose rights were determined by contract, and his successors in interest acquired his rights thereunder. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

A contractual right to make use of water on specific lands is far different from the "water right" acquired by original appropriation, diversion and application to a beneficial use. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

A user having contracted for and beneficially used for irrigation purposes a specific volume of water for any particular year, without any valid limitation as to future use, would be entitled to the same volume each year succeeding, when needed for the purposes of irrigation, upon tender, annually, without intermission, of the rate which the company could lawfully exact, and compliance with its rules and regulations, so far as reasonable. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Richards, 22 Colo. 450, 45 P. 423 (1896); City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

Where nothing in a contract specifically required the grantor to continue for any definite time in the exercise of his right, nor was there in the conveyance under which plaintiff held the lands, any condition or requirement that he should observe or perform any of the conditions of the contract under which water had been obtained, it was held that a provision of his contract that upon failure of the grantor to pay the annual rental, he should surrender all right or interest thereby created, did not necessarily involve a surrender of the statutory right to continue to purchase water for the same land, and that, notwithstanding plaintiff's repudiation of the contract, his right under the statute was undeniably. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Pouppirt, 22 Colo. App. 563, 127 P. 125 (1912).

A corresponding duty to deliver devolves upon the carrier. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Pouppirt, 22 Colo. App. 563, 127 P. 125 (1912).

If, by collusion with the employees of the irrigating company, he receives a volume in excess of what is specified in the contract, making no payment for such excess, he acquires no right to such excessive volume in subsequent years. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

The consumer's rights may be waived, and a voluntary contract as to these matters may be binding upon him. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887).

Where a consumer, by the annual use of the water in a particular volume, has acquired the right to continue in the enjoyment of the same volume, a condition limiting his right, imposed upon him without his consent, and against his protest, is invalid; e.g., where a municipal corporation having acquired the control of the works of an irrigation company, requires even those who are entitled to be supplied therefrom, by reason of such former user, to enter into contracts "subject to the needs and requirements of the city" such contracts, executed under protest, are without effect to limit the right of the consumer to the volume of water before rightfully enjoyed; otherwise as to any volume in excess thereof. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

When, however, his contract expires by limitation, and is not renewed, and he does not take the necessary steps to preserve the status growing out of his contractual relation with the carrier, his rights to a future use of water from the ditch cannot be based upon past use, in other words, his contract with the carrier is for carriage, and his rights are limited by its terms, so far as valid, to the volume of water for the period mentioned in his contract. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1904).

A consumer supplied with water by contract from a ditch owned and operated by a carrier company in a sense is an appropriator from the stream supplying the ditch, but does not occupy the exact status of an independent appropriator directly from the stream, as his rights are limited by the terms of his contract, so far as valid, with the ditch company, as well as other limitations which the law, from the nature of the relation between the carrier company and a contract consumer from its ditch, imposes. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

All consumers, generally speaking, have the right to be supplied from all the priorities decreed the ditch through which they are supplied, whose rights by virtue of prior use aggregate the volume of such priorities, and in such circumstances stand upon an equal plane. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

Where the first appropriation decreed a ditch was designed for some particular purpose or enterprise, and later priorities awarded were to supply a different class or group of consumers from the first, then the later priorities would be as distinct as if used through separate canals, and the rights of the different classes of consumers would attach only to the respective priorities awarded for their respective use. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

A provision in a contract between the consumer and carrier limiting the volume of water which the consumer is entitled to have delivered is valid. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

Upon tender of the rate fixed and compliance with reasonable regulations established, if the carrier has water undisposed of, the consumer is entitled to its use, and mandamus lies where his demand is refused. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887).

A prior purchaser is entitled to continue to purchase, although he may be able to obtain water from some other source. Golden Canal Co. v. Bright, 8 Colo. 144, 6 P. 142 (1884).

III. THE CARRIER.

The carrier cannot acquire the rate-making power although in its contracts for the sale of water it may attempt to reserve the right, and such contracts are subject to constitutional and statutory provisions which should be read into them. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 95 Colo. 555, 38 P.2d 889 (1934).

If the carrier assumes and exercises the rate-making power, its acts are subject to review and change by the county commissioners upon a proper showing. This, in effect, was decided in Montezuma Water & Land Co. v. McCracken, 62 Colo. 394, 163 P. 286 (1917). Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 95 Colo. 555, 38 P.2d 889 (1934).

An irrigation canal company, carrying water for hire, is not the proprietor of the water which it is entitled to divert, but must be regarded as an intermediate agency existing for the purpose of aiding consumers in the exercise of their rights to appropriate water, as well as a private enterprise prosecuted for its benefit. City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

It is a quasi-public servant, charged with certain duties, and subject to a reasonable control, and it has, in general, a monopoly of the business, and, at common law, could not coerce compliance with unreasonable regulations or charges. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887).

The carrier is entitled to compensation for carriage, but it cannot charge for the right to use water from its canal, nor can it exact in advance a part or all of its transportation charge, for the remaining years of its corporate life, as a condition precedent to use for the current irrigating season. Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigating Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1888).

A ditch owner may make reasonable rules to be observed by both himself and the consumer in the sale and distribution of water from his ditch, but a prior purchaser who has complied with the provisions of this section cannot be required, as a condition precedent to the exercise of his right to purchase water, to acknowledge the equity of all the rules adopted by the ditch owner. Golden Canal Co. v. Bright, 8 Colo. 144, 6 P. 142 (1884).

Since this section declares that, upon doing certain things a consumer shall have the right to purchase water of respondent, it would be an impotent construction to admit that a clear legal obligation binding the latter to sell is not also created, and the consumer is entitled, upon performance of the condition precedent, to admission to the use and enjoyment of a certain quantity of water from the carrier's ditch, to say that the latter is not burdened with the duty of admitting the former to such use and enjoyment is to deny the right and nullify the statute. Golden Canal Co. v. Bright, 8 Colo. 144, 6 P. 142 (1884).

IV. MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

The rental value of the land is not to be taken as the measure of damages for a failure to furnish water for irrigation, except when the consequent loss of crops was entire. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Richards, 22 Colo. 450, 45 P. 423 (1896).

In an action against a ditch company for damages for failure to furnish water for irrigation, the rental value of the land is adopted as a basis for estimating damages, the jury should be instructed to deduct from the rental value the necessary outlay which the plaintiff would have been required to make in the cultivation of the lands. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Richards, 22 Colo. 450, 45 P. 423 (1896).

While the loss of trees, seed and labor, occasioned by a failure to furnish water for irrigation, may constitute a proper element of damage in an action for such failure, compensation for permanent improvements or for depreciation in the value of live stock and farm implements cannot be recovered. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Richards, 22 Colo. 450, 45 P. 423 (1896).

37-85-103. County commissioners to hear and consider applications. The board of county commissioners of each county, at its regular sessions in each year, and at such other sessions as it in its discretion may deem proper, in view of the irrigation and harvesting season, and the convenience of all parties interested, shall hear and consider all applications which may be made to it by any party interested, either in furnishing and delivering for compensation in any manner, or in procuring for such compensation, water for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, or domestic purposes, from any ditch, canal, conduit, or reservoir, the whole or any part of which lies in such county. The application shall be supported by such affidavits as the applicant may present, showing reasonable cause for such board of county commissioners to proceed to fix a reasonable maximum rate of compensation for water to be thereafter delivered from such ditch, canal, conduit, or reservoir, within such county.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For comment, "Water: State-wide or Local Concern? City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co.", see 56 Den. L.J. 625 (1979).

The county commissioners have been invested with the power to set rates by the Colorado constitution. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

Pursuant to § 8 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., the general assembly has provided statutory procedures under this and the following sections whereby those furnishing water carriage can have the county commissioners establish reasonable maximum rates. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

Constitutional and statutory provisions not applicable to political subdivision. The language of § 8 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., and of this article is not applicable to a political subdivision of the state of Colorado. Matthews v. Tri-County Water Conservancy Dist., 200 Colo. 202, 613 P.2d 889 (1980).

Provisions only applicable to private parties. The framers intended, and the general assembly understood, that § 8 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., was applicable only to private persons or corporations engaged in the business of storage, carriage, and sale of water for irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, or domestic purposes. Matthews v. Tri-County Water Conservancy Dist., 200 Colo. 202, 613 P.2d 889 (1980).

The rate-making power cannot be delegated to others. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

Therefore, a carrier is not vested with power to prescribe the rate which it shall receive for its services. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

A contract between the carrier and the consumer, whereby the carrier attempts to fix and collect the rate for carrying and delivering water to the consumer, is not binding on the latter because the Colorado constitution and this section upon the subject, have conferred upon and vested in the county commissioners of the respective counties the exclusive power to fix the rate for such service. Farmers Water Dev.

Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

The only time the courts can interfere with rate making is after the board of county commissioners either acts or fails to act, and then only to determine whether what was done or not done was unreasonable, arbitrary, or an abuse of discretion. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

An assessment provided for by a court decree directing a ditch company to assess and plaintiff to pay a reasonable rate for carrying extra water for plaintiff is not a rate to be charged for use of water to be determined by the county commissioners, and the court's decree does not usurp the rate power of the county commissioners. Zoller v. Mail Creek Ditch Co., 31 Colo. App. 99, 498 P.2d 1169 (1972).

A mutual water company has been defined as a private corporation organized for the express purpose of furnishing water only to shareholders thereof and not for profit or for hire. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

Where a party is entitled to run water through a ditch as co-owner, in the absence of a contract concerning compensation to the ditch company therefor, he must pay his pro rata share of the upkeep of the ditch, and the amount fixed by the county commissioners as to such share is prima facie proof thereof. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

No stipulation of the parties and no decree of the trial court can have any validity as to the rates to be charged by a ditch company to users who are neither stockholders nor co-owners of such ditch company, the authority to set reasonable rates for the carriage and delivery of such water being in the board of county commissioners. Farmers Water Dev. Co. v. Barrett, 151 Colo. 140, 376 P.2d 693 (1962).

Water conservancy districts not subject to county commissioners' jurisdiction. Water conservancy districts, when fixing rates for sale of water, are not subject to the jurisdiction of the boards of county commissioners. Matthews v. Tri-County Water Conservancy Dist., 200 Colo. 202, 613 P.2d 889 (1980).

37-85-104. Commissioners to appoint day for hearing. Every board of county commissioners, upon examination of such affidavit, or from the oaths of witnesses in addition thereto, if it finds that the facts sworn to show the application to be in good faith, and that there are reasonable grounds to believe that unjust rates of compensation are or are likely to be charged or demanded for water from such ditch, canal, conduit, or reservoir, shall enter an order fixing a day not sooner than twenty days thereafter nor later than the third day of the next regular session of the board, when they will hear all parties interested in such ditch, or other waterworks, or parties interested in procuring water therefrom for any of the said uses, as well as all documentary or oral evidence or depositions, taken according to law, touching the said ditch or other work and the cost of furnishing water therefrom.

37-85-105. Order fixing date of hearing. (1) At the time so fixed, all persons interested, on either side of the controversy, in lands which may be irrigated from such ditch, or other work, may appear by themselves, their agents, or their attorneys, and said board of county commissioners shall then proceed to take action in the matter of fixing such rates of compensation for the delivery of water; but the applicant, if the application is made by a party desirous of procuring water, within ten days from the time of entering the said order fixing the hearing, shall cause a copy of such order, duly certified, to be delivered to the owner of such ditch, canal, conduit, or reservoir, or to the president, secretary, or treasurer of the company, if it is owned by a corporation or association having such officers. If such owner cannot be found, a copy shall be left at his usual place of abode, with some person residing there over twelve years of age; and, if such officer of any corporation or association cannot be found, such copy shall be left at the usual place of business of the company of which he is such officer or at his residence if such company has no place of business; and, if such ditch or other work is owned by several owners not being an incorporated company, it shall be sufficient to serve notice by delivering copies to a majority of them.

(2) If the applicant is the owner or party controlling such ditch, canal, conduit, or reservoir, such notice shall be given by causing printed copies of such order in handbill form, in conspicuous type, to be posted securely in ten or more public places throughout the district watered from such ditch, or other work, if the water is used for irrigation, and one copy shall be posted for every mile in length of such ditch; but, if such ditch, or other work, is for the supply of water for milling or mining, it shall be sufficient to serve such copy on the parties then taking water therefrom. The person making such service or posting such printed copies shall make affidavit of the manner in which the same has been done, which affidavit shall be filed with the said board of county commissioners.

(3) Depositions mentioned in section 37-85-104, to be used before the board of county commissioners, shall be taken before any officer in the state authorized by law to take depositions, upon reasonable notice being given to the opposite party of the time and place of taking the same.

ANNOTATION

Applied in McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

37-85-106. Hearing - testimony - maximum rates. (1) The board of county commissioners may adjourn or postpone any hearing from time to time as may be found necessary or for the convenience of parties or of public business. It shall hear and examine all legal testimony or proofs offered by any party interested concerning the original cost and present value of works and structure of such ditch, canal, conduit, or reservoir, the cost and expense of maintaining and operating the same, and all matters which may affect the establishing of a reasonable maximum rate of compensation for water to be furnished and delivered therefrom. It may issue subpoenas for witnesses, which subpoenas shall be served by the sheriff of the county, who shall receive the lawful fees for all such service; and said board may also issue a subpoena for the production of all books and papers required for evidence before it.

(2) Upon hearing and considering all the evidence and facts and matters involved in the case, said board of county commissioners shall enter an order describing the ditch, canal, conduit, reservoir, or other work in question with sufficient certainty and fixing a just and reasonable maximum rate of compensation for water to be thereafter delivered from such ditch or other work within the county in which such board of county commissioners acts, and such rate shall not be changed within two years from the time when it is so fixed, unless upon good cause shown. The district court of the proper county in case of refusal to obey the subpoena of the board of county commissioners may compel obedience thereto or punish for refusal to obey, after hearing, as in cases of attachment, for contempt of such district court.

ANNOTATION

In conformity with § 8 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., the general assembly enacted this and the three preceding sections, and herein provided a full procedure for establishing a reasonable maximum water rate by the board of commissioners. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

This and the three preceding sections contain provisions which specifically confer upon the county commissioners the power to fix the maximum rate of compensation for the carriage of water to be used for irrigating agricultural lands. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 95 Colo. 555, 38 P.2d 889 (1934).

Under these sections the important duty of fixing a maximum rate is vested exclusively in the boards of county commissioners of the several counties. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

The landowner is protected from exorbitant charges for carriage by the provisions of this section authorizing the board of county commissioners to fix reasonable rates for carriage, and the company is protected from having its investments confiscated by its right to have the courts enjoin the enforcement of a rate that will not yield an income at least sufficient to meet operation and maintenance costs and an additional income such as will provide a return on its investment which is reasonable in view of the nature, character and extent of the benefits, if any, that accrue to the users. Bd. of County

Comm'rs v. Rocky Mt. Water Co., 102 Colo. 351, 79 P.2d 373 (1938).

On the question of what is a reasonable rate for the carriage of water, profitable use to the landowner is immaterial in determining the rate base, but the extent to which it has been profitable is a factor to be considered in fixing what is a reasonable return on the rate base to which the carrier is entitled. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Rocky Mt. Water Co., 102 Colo. 351, 79 P.2d 373 (1938).

It will be presumed, the contrary not appearing, that in prescribing a rate the board acted solely upon the evidence produced before it, without any mixture of improper motive, and that the evidence was sufficient to support the order. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

Where a judgment had been entered declaring a rate of charge prescribed by the county commissioners unreasonable and confiscatory, and a little more than three months thereafter, the board, upon a second hearing, established the same rate, the court declined to indulge in presumptions in support of the second order. Montezuma Water & Land Co. v. McCracken, 62 Colo. 394, 163 P. 286 (1917).

The maximum reasonable rates fixed by the board of county commissioners are subject to judicial control. Montezuma Water & Land Co. v. McCracken, 62 Colo. 394, 163 P. 286 (1917).

A decree of the district court vacated an order of the county commissioners prescribing ing a rate of charge, and enjoined the board from enforcing or attempting to enforce the rate so prescribed. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P.903 (1914).

Where the county commissioners fixed a rate, and on the application of a water company refused to change the same, and, while in session, each member of the board stated that he would not consider another petition for a modification thereof, the water company is not precluded from bringing an action to restrain the enforcement of the rate fixed and to obtain the fixing of a different rate, on the ground that it had not, previous to bringing the action and after the expiration of two years from the date of fixing the rate, petitioned the board for a new rate. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 39 Colo. 166, 89 P. 794 (1931).

Where the rate fixed by the board of county commissioners for the use of water is such that the owner of the ditch can make no profit therefrom, its enforcement may properly be enjoined, since the term "reasonable compensation", as used in this section implies that something must be given for the service. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 39 Colo. 166, 89 P. 794 (1931).

Although the county commissioners have the power to fix a reasonable maximum rate of compensation for water to be delivered from irrigating ditches, this does not give to them the authority to confiscate the property of the ditch owner, neither does it give them the authority to compel the ditch owner to carry the water without compensation. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 39 Colo. 166, 89 P. 794 (1931).

Where, upon a second petition, and due notice given to all concerned, the county commissioners, after full hearing, prescribed the same rate set down in the previous order so vacated, it was held that the second order of the board was not to be regarded as a violation of the injunction, and, not being assailed by any direct proceeding, and no lack of jurisdiction or excess of authority being shown, the rate prescribed thereby became the lawful maximum rate binding all concerned. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

Where a rate of charge fixed by the board has been judicially declared unreasonable and confiscatory, the board will not be permitted to evade the effect of such judgment by declaring and establishing the same rate of charge, upon the same evidence. Montezuma Water & Land Co. v. McCracken, 62 Colo. 394, 163 P. 286 (1917).

Where the only thing enjoined in water company's suit was the enforcement of an admittedly erroneous rate, and where such items as value of structures, equipment, and operating expense, are or may be variable, and since the board may at any time readjust this rate, the supreme court found nothing to review. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Rocky Mt. Water Co., 106 Colo. 276, 103 P.2d 686 (1940).

The board is not charged with the duty of seeing that the prescribed rate is observed by the carriers of water. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

The board can act only on the petition of an interested party. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

No appeal has been provided from the board's decision in fixing such maximum rate, and for that reason we think, when such rate is once fixed by the board in accordance with this act, the general assembly intended it should be observed and obeyed by all persons or corporations affected by it until annulled by some proper court. McCracken v. Montezuma Water & Land Co., 25 Colo. App. 280, 137 P. 903 (1914).

37-85-107. False swearing. Every person who swears or affirms falsely in any matter is guilty of perjury in the second degree. Every person who testifies falsely after being duly sworn or having affirmed as a witness in any proceeding provided for in sections 37-85-103 to 37-85-106 is guilty of perjury in the first degree and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished accordingly.

37-85-108. Bonus deemed an extortionate rate. (1) It shall not be lawful for any person owning or controlling, or claiming to own or control, any ditch, canal, or reservoir carrying or storing, or designed for the carrying or storing of, any water taken from any natural stream or lake within this state, to be furnished or delivered for compensation for irrigation, mining, milling, or domestic purposes, to persons not interested in such ownership or control, to demand, bargain for, accept, or receive from any person who may apply for water for any of the aforesaid purposes any money or other valuable thing whatsoever, or any promise or agreement therefor, directly or indirectly, as royalty, bonus, or premium prerequisite or condition precedent to the right or privilege of applying, or bargaining for, or procuring such water. Such water shall be furnished, carried, and delivered upon payment or tender of the charges fixed by the board of county commissioners of the proper county, as is provided by law.

(2) Any moneys, and every valuable thing, or consideration of whatsoever kind, which is so demanded, charged, bargained for, accepted, received, or retained, contrary to the provisions of this section, shall be deemed an additional and corrupt rate, charge, or consideration for the water intended to be furnished and delivered therefor, or because thereof, and wholly extortionate and illegal; and, when paid, delivered, or surrendered may be recovered by the party paying, delivering, or surrendering the same from the party to whom, or for whose use, the same has been paid, delivered, or surrendered, together with costs of suit, including reasonable fees of attorneys of plaintiff, by proper action in any court having jurisdiction.

ANNOTATION

The evident purpose of this section was to protect against extortion persons who owned or were in possession of lands lying under such ditches, or who were lawfully entitled to receive water therefrom upon tender or payment of a fixed compensation, and to whom the ditch company is under a reciprocal obligation to furnish it. Schneider v. People, 30 Colo. 493, 71 P. 369 (1903).

This and the following section are purely penal and make it an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment for any person or corporation to demand or accept any royalty, bonus or premium as a condition precedent to the right to procure water. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Richards, 22 Colo. 450, 45 P. 423 (1896).

The words of this section designating the persons, or class of persons, entitled to demand and receive water, are comprehensive enough to include all persons whomsoever, whether they own or are in possession of land lying under and susceptible of being irrigated from the ditch, or have any right to the use of water carried by it, or whether the lands are so remote or so situate with reference to the ditch as not be to susceptible of irrigation by that method. Schneider v. People, 30 Colo. 493, 71 P. 369 (1903).

In order to bring a case within this section it is necessary that, inter alia, the information should show that the applicant for the water is of the class of persons entitled to invoke the protection of the section; that is, to demand of the ditch owner and receive from him the water upon compliance by him with the terms of the statute. Schneider v. People, 30 Colo. 493, 71 P. 369 (1903).

In a prosecution under this section of the owner or person in control of a ditch, for refusing to supply water to a person entitled to the same, an information which charges the offense in the language of the statute is insufficient. Schneider v. People, 30 Colo. 493, 71 P. 369 (1903).

It is also necessary that the pleading should designate the land for which the water was demanded as being so situate that the duty of the ditch to furnish water for its irrigation is made to appear and that the company might ascertain its location so as to deliver the water. Schneider v. People, 30 Colo. 493, 71 P. 369 (1903).

37-85-109. Penalty for collecting excessive rate. Every person owning or controlling, or claiming to own or control, any ditch, canal, or reservoir, who, after demand in writing made upon him for the supply or delivery of water for irrigation, mining, milling, or domestic purposes, to be delivered from the canal, ditch, or reservoir, owned, possessed, or controlled by him, and after tender of the lawful rate of compensation therefor in lawful money, shall demand, require, bargain for, accept, receive, or retain from the party making such application any money or other thing of value, or any promise or contract, or any valuable consideration whatever, as such royalty, bonus, or premium prerequisite or condition precedent, as is prohibited by section 37-85-108, is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than three months nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

The carrier cannot charge a bonus for performing its duty. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co. v. Poupirt, 22 Colo. App. 563, 127 P. 125 (1912).

37-85-110. Penalty for refusal to deliver water. Every person owning or controlling, or claiming to own or control, any ditch, canal, or reservoir, such as is mentioned in section 37-85-108, who, after demand in writing made upon him for the supply or delivery of water for irrigation, mining, milling, or domestic purposes, to be delivered from the canal, ditch, or reservoir, owned, possessed, or controlled by him, and after tender of the lawful rate of compensation therefor in lawful money, refuses to furnish or carry and deliver from such ditch, canal, or reservoir any water so applied for, which water may be by use of reasonable diligence in that behalf and, within the carrying or storage capacity of such ditch, canal, or reservoir, be lawfully furnished and delivered without infringement of prior rights, is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than three months nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

ANNOTATION

When a ditch company has water subject to its control, bona fide applicants are entitled to its use for irrigation purposes upon tender of the lawful rate for carriage and compliance with the reasonable rules of the carrier. Combs v. Agricultural Ditch Co., 17 Colo. 146, 28 P. 966 (1892); City & County of Denver v. Brown, 56 Colo. 216, 138 P. 44 (1914).

37-85-111. Action when corporation refuses to deliver water. When any corporation, in defiance or by attempted evasion of the provisions of sections 37-85-101 and 37-85-108 to 37-85-111, after tender of the compensation, refuses to deliver water, such as is mentioned in section 37-85-110, to any person lawfully entitled to apply therefor, it is the duty of the attorney general, upon request of the board of county commissioners of the proper county or upon his otherwise receiving due notice thereof, to institute and prosecute to judgment and final determination proceedings in the nature of quo warranto for the forfeiture of the corporate rights, privileges, and franchises of any such corporation so offending or by mandamus or other proper proceedings to compel it to do its duty in that behalf.

It is established in this state that where a ditch owner is permitted, without interfer- ence, to construct an irrigating ditch over the land of another, and the ditch is put in use, a right-of-way is thereby acquired, and the necessity for condemning, to obtain possession, is obviated. Leonard v. Buerger, 130 Colo. 497, 276 P.2d 986 (1954).

This section was enacted by the first legislative assembly. Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551 (1872).

It gives a private person the right to invoke the power of eminent domain for a private use. Ortiz v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 100, 83 P. 964 (1905).

Under this section, if any person who owns farming land which has not sufficient length of area exposed to a stream to obtain a sufficient fall of water to irrigate it, or where his land is too far removed from the stream to build a ditch directly therefrom to the lands wholly upon the same, take and condemn lands belonging to others for a right-of-way for a ditch to divert and carry water from the stream to irrigate his own lands. Ortiz v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 100, 83 P. 964 (1905).

Owner of conditional water right may condemn rights-of-way over the lands of others for the purpose of transporting water for beneficial use. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

Condemnation right not dependent on supply source. The right of condemnation for purposes of obtaining a right-of-way to the point of diversion of the water right is not dependent upon whether the source of supply is characterized as a well or a spring. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

A purely private party may have a right-of-way condemned for a ditch through the lands of another to convey water to his lands for domestic, agricultural or mining purposes. Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888).

A right to convey water over the land of another for the purpose of irrigating one's land may be acquired under this section and such right needs not a grant from the owner of the servient estate to support it. Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551 (1872).

Right extends to bed of ditch and sufficient ground on either side. The right of an owner with respect to a ditch excavated over the private land of another extends to the bed of the ditch and sufficient ground on either side. Shrull v. Rapasardi, 33 Colo. App. 148, 517 P.2d 860 (1973).

Such lands were formerly held in subordination to the dominant rights of others, who must necessarily pass over them to obtain a supply of water to irrigate their own lands, but since the adoption of the constitution, the taking of private property for private use (which this amounts to) is prohibited unless compensation be made, and the general assembly has provided proceedings for this purpose. Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551 (1872); Schilling v. Rominger, 4 Colo. 100 (1878); Branagan v. Dulaney, 8 Colo. 408, 8 P. 669 (1885); Stewart v. Stevens, 10 Colo. 440, 15 P. 786 (1887).

When water transportation facility constructed without acquiring easement, landowner limited to temporary relief. When a facility for the transportation of water is constructed or utilized by one having the right of eminent domain, without prior acquisition of an easement, the remedy of the landowner is limited to temporary relief, pending conduct of the eminent domain proceedings by the owners of the water right. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

This right may also be acquired by contract between the parties, or by the gratuitous license of the landowner, and in either case, after entry and expenditure of money, the right is irrevocable, because after entry under a license and construction of the ditch, the license operates as an irrevocable grant. De Graffenried v. Savage, 9 Colo. App. 131, 47 P. 902 (1897); Bogolino v. Giorgetta, 20 Colo. App. 338, 78 P. 612 (1904).

There is no law which forbids one to grant permission to his neighbor to dig an irrigation ditch across his land without first purchasing a right-of-way and getting a deed to it, and when, under such circumstances, the ditch actually is excavated and put into use without objection, or by approval, the owner of land traversed thereby may not thereafter withdraw his consent, deny the right of maintenance, or destroy the ditch, and such consent need not even be in writing, and where the ditch has been in existence for any appreciable time, consent to its original construction is presumed. Leonard v. Buerger, 130 Colo. 497, 276 P.2d 986 (1954); Shrull v. Rapasardi, 33 Colo. App. 148, 517 P.2d 860 (1973).

This section applies only to such ditches as have been constructed through lands for the benefit of adjoining proprietors, and not to those constructed by the owner of land to water his own land exclusively. Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888).

This section and the following section have no application to a proceeding to condemn a right-of-way for a ditch to carry waste and surplus water from the end of a ditch on another's land. Schneider v. Schneider, 36 Colo. 518, 86 P. 347 (1906).

Right to spill waste water is part of right to transport water where essential to the maintenance of the ditch. Hitti v. Montezuma Valley Irrigation Co., 42 Colo. App. 194, 599 P.2d 918 (1979).

It does not confer the rights given upon persons other than those described in the statute, or to enable them to exercise the right under conditions other than those mentioned. Junction Creek & N. D. D. & I. Ditch Co. v. City of Durango, 21 Colo. 194, 40 P. 356 (1895).

The right of one person to conduct water over the land of another is an interest in real estate, which must be conveyed by deed in compliance with the terms of the statute of frauds, and in countries where the humidity of the climate is sufficient to supply moisture to plants, there can be no reason for distinguishing this from other easements in the soil, and therefore the law of England, and of most of our states on this point will be found in the general rules relating to real property. Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551 (1872).

It is clear under all the authorities that appellant could not resort to the summary remedy of obstructing or destroying the ditch or preventing the parties from entering upon the line of the ditch to operate it. De Graffenried v. Savage, 9 Colo. App. 131, 47 P. 902 (1897).

37-86-103. Extent of right-of-way. Such right-of-way shall extend only to a ditch, dike, cutting, pipeline, or other structure sufficient for the purpose required.

The owner of the carrying ditch in making the diversion from the natural stream acts solely as the agent or trustee for him who applies the water to a beneficial use, gets no title in or right to the use of the water and has no property in it subject to disposal, and he who applies the water thus diverted to beneficial use acquires a property right in the use of the water applied which he, and he only, can sell, dispose of, and convey by deed separate and apart from the land to which it has been applied or with the land to which it has been applied. Pioneer Irrigation Co. v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 236 F. 790 (D. Colo. 1916).

When water transportation facility constructed without acquiring easement, landowner limited to temporary relief. When a facility for the transportation of water is constructed or utilized by one having the right of eminent domain, without prior acquisition of an easement, the remedy of the landowner is limited to temporary relief, pending conduct of the eminent domain proceedings by the owners of the water right. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

37-86-104. Condemnation of right-of-way. (1) Upon the refusal of owners of tracts of land through which said right-of-way is proposed to run, to allow passage through their property, the person desiring such right-of-way may proceed to condemn and take same under the provisions of articles 1 to 7 of title 38, C.R.S., concerning eminent domain.

(2) State agencies shall, to the maximum extent practicable, cooperate with persons desiring a right-of-way for water conveyance structures.

The prosperity of the country required that the greatest possible use of the waters should be made, and that no restrictions should exist to its appropriation, transportation and use, and the right-of-way for conveying it across the land of another was regarded as a general servitude attaching to such land ex necessitate, regardless

Where it was contended that because the contemplated canal of the petitioner was parallel for many miles with the canal of the defendant company, and therefore greatly damaged it, that the right to proceedings under this section did not exist, this contention is without support in law or reason, because no authorities are presented which intimate that the construction of one canal is sufficient reason to prohibit the construction of another because it runs parallel with the first, and if the rule would obtain it would result in the creation and continuation of a monopoly against which the constitution of our state and the statutes are directly aimed. *San Luis Land Canal & Imp. ## ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Burdening Servient Estate.
- III. Priorities.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Ditches subject to enlargement and joint use under the provisions of this section are strictly private ditches. Junction Creek & N. D. D. & I. Ditch Co. v. City of Durango, 21 Colo. 194, 40 P. 356 (1895).

The provisions of this section are for the benefit of the landowner, and cannot be invoked by rival ditch companies. San Luis Land, Canal & Imp. Co. v. Kenilworth Canal Co., 3 Colo. App. 244, 32 P. 860 (1893).

Under this section and the next section, the owner of lands over which another has acquired an easement to maintain a lateral ditch, for the irrigation of his lands, is not, merely by his property in the servient tenement, entitled to divert water from such lateral, to the prejudice of the owner of the dominant tenement. Sebold v. Rieger, 26 Colo. App. 209, 142 P. 201 (1914).

This section does not conflict with the constitutional provisions granting a right-of-way for the construction of ditches, but, while recognizing the privilege, it simply undertakes to regulate the exercise thereof so as to inflict the least possible inconvenience and injury upon the owner of the servient estate. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883).

The provisions of this section are not applicable where there is no ditch presently on a defendant's property "constructed for the purpose of conveying water through said property" and where a defendant's head ditch and laterals therefrom lie wholly on defendant's own property, or where it is undisputed that a defendant uses his head ditch to carry waters in a northerly and southerly direction from an irrigation system on his property, and plaintiffs' only requirement for a ditch across defendant's property is to carry their irrigation water both from the irrigation canal and the well in a northerly direction across the westerly portion of a defendant's property. Mott v. Coleman, 132 Colo. 306, 287 P.2d 655 (1955).

The provisions of this section are not applicable where the ditches in question already exist and the rights of the parties in such ditches are already vested. Campbell v. Kelsall, 717 P.2d 1019 (Colo. App. 1986).

II. BURDENING SERVIENT ESTATE.

This section is designed to avoid the burdening of improved or occupied lands with unnecessary irrigating ditches, and to this end, it provides that under certain circumstances such lands shall not be subjected to the burden of two or more irrigating ditches, when the same object can feasibly and practicably be attained by uniting and conveying all the water necessary through such lands in one ditch. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

This section is intended to prevent improved lands from being needlessly cut up by many ditches to lead water to lands of other owners. Broadmoor Land Co. v. Curr, 133 F. 37 (8th Cir. 1904).

Under this section as it existed prior to the law of 1881 any number of farmers cultivating separate tracts of land below, whenever it became necessary for them to bring water through the lands of another lying above, in order to obtain a sufficient fall for the purpose of irrigation, might each condemn a right-of-way for the construction of a separate ditch through such lands, thus burdening the servient estate with one ditch after another until its value would be greatly reduced, or perhaps totally destroyed, with no authority in the proprietor to prevent the same. Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888).

This and the following section clearly and in unmistakable language apply to the right of the owner of the lands to assert that his property shall not be burdened with more than one irrigating ditch, provided that one ditch be of sufficient capacity to carry water for the purposes contemplated by the act. San Luis Land, Canal & Imp. Co. v. Kenilworth Canal Co., 3 Colo. App. 244, 32 P. 860 (1893).

Two or more outside parties cannot burden the servient estate with two or more ditches and two or more easements without the owner's consent, when it is practicable to accomplish the same object by imposing but one burden. Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888).

Upon a proper verdict a court may authorize a petitioner to enlarge, improve, and use a ditch in common with the original owner. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

A court cannot require such owner to perform work or make expenditures for the purpose of adapting the ditch to petitioner's use. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

Construction of section in relation to federal reclamation statute. United States v. O'Neill, 198 F. 677 (D. Colo. 1912).

III. PRIORITIES.

This section indicates the general policy of the irrigation laws as to priorities, and even without such a statute, persons voluntarily uniting their irrigating ditches would not necessarily forfeit any priorities which they might have theretofore respectively acquired. Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

The same irrigating ditch may have two or more priorities belonging to the same or different parties, and two or more persons may divert water through the same headgate for the irrigation of their several farms without any surrender, joinder, or merger of their respective priorities. Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

Where petitioner and others arranged to divert water for the irrigation of their several farms through a single headgate, and so carried the water for a certain distance through a ditch constructed and used by them in common, these facts, without other pertinent evidence, do not justify the conclusion that petitioner agreed to surrender his separate priority; nor is the inference to be indulged that he intended so to do. Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

37-86-106. Shortest route must be taken. Whenever any persons find it necessary to convey water through the lands of others, they shall select for the line of such conveyance the shortest and most direct route practicable upon which said ditch can be constructed with uniform or nearly uniform grade.

The ditches under contemplation are such as only convey water to be used upon the land

It is not reasonable to suppose that priority of right to water, where water is scarce, or likely to become so, will be lightly sacrificed or surrendered by its owner, nor should the owner of such a right be held to have surrendered it or merged it, except upon reasonably clear and satisfactory evidence. Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

Where it is a matter of mutual convenience to convey the water for the use of respective farms for a certain distance through the same irrigating ditch, in so doing the parties are entitled to have their respective rights protected the same as if the water had been conveyed through separate ditches, or through ditches having separate and independent headgates. *Trippe v. 37-86-107. Owner of ditch must permit enlargement. No persons having constructed a private ditch for the purposes and in the manner provided in section 37-86-106 shall prohibit or prevent any other person from enlarging or using any ditch by them constructed in common with them, upon payment to them of a reasonable proportion of the cost of construction of said ditch.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Revision of Water and Irrigation Statutes", see 31 Dicta 29 (1954).

This section is, in most respects, a complement of § 37-86-105. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883).

This section is unconstitutional insofar as it attempts to limit or direct the compensation to be paid for the property. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883).

In an action to condemn a right-of-way for an irrigating ditch to convey the waste and surplus water from the end of a ditch on defendant's land, this section providing for enlarging ditches has no application. Schneider v. Schneider, 36 Colo. 518, 86 P. 347 (1906).

A ditch which is used for the carriage of water for hire to the people generally is quasi-public, and a city cannot, by condemnation proceedings, acquire a right to enlarge and use it in conjunction with the ditch company. Junction Creek & N. D. D. & I. Ditch Co. v. City of Durango, 21 Colo. 194, 40 P. 356 (1895).

The ditches subject to enlargement and joint use under this section are strictly private ditches, and such as are used to convey water across the land of another to irrigate the adjoining land of the person or corporation owning the ditch, and this is clearly manifest by the language of the act, and also from its object and purpose. Junction Creek & N. D. D. & I. Ditch Co. v. City of Durango, 21 Colo. 194, 40 P. 356 (1895).

The whole act of 1881 must be considered in determining the meaning of the term "private ditch", as used in this section. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

Prior to its enactment, the right to condemn the right-of-way for separate ditches through the land of another for the purpose of irrigating the land below and adjoining, by persons owning the same, was practically unlimited; and to limit this right and protect the servient estate from the burden of unnecessary ditches, the act in question was passed. Junction Creek & N. D. D. & I. Ditch Co. v. City of Durango, 21 Colo. 194, 40 P. 356 (1895).

The statutory right to enlarge applies only to such ditches as have been constructed through lands for the benefit of adjoining proprietors, and not to those constructed by the owner of land to water his own land exclusively. Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888) (modifying Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883)).

There are good reasons for requiring others to enlarge a ditch constructed upon such a route whenever practicable, if it afterwards becomes necessary for them to convey water through the same lands; but a farmer in distributing water upon his own lands may have but little regard to the grade of his small ditches or laterals, and this section does not contemplate the enlargement by others of such ditches, and thus not only burdening his lands with an easement, but compelling him against his will to accept such parties as cotenants with him. Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888).

The right to enlarge and use the ditch of another already constructed will be enforced in the same manner, and under the same law, as the right to take or damage any other kind of private property. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883); Downing v. More, 12 Colo. 316, 20 P. 766 (1888).

If a company can make arrangement with the owner of a canal whereby it may put in the canal a headgate and use the canal itself as a conduit for carrying the water directly from the stream to such headgate and thence by its own feeder carry the water of the stream to its reservoir for storage purposes is a matter of contract between the two, and such a right might be acquired by condemnation in a proper case under this section and by contract. Water Supply & Storage Co. v. Larimer & Weld Irrigation Co., 24 Colo. 322, 51 P. 496 (1897).

Where the El Moro company consented that the Chicosa company should enlarge the ditch, should share in its cost and maintenance as thus enlarged, waived any right to other compensation, and agreed that the Chicosa company should enjoy so much of the El Moro ditch as was necessary for these purposes, their right under these circumstances is clearly an easement, and as we must conclude according to our present advices, not an easement revocable at the option of the El Moro company, but a continuing one, of which the Chicosa company could enforce the quiet enjoyment. Chicosa Irrigating Ditch Co. v. El Moro Ditch Co., 10 Colo. App. 276, 50 P. 731 (1897).

A ditch owned by an incorporated company is not exempt from this section. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

This section is wholly inapplicable where both plaintiffs and defendants take the position that a defendant's head ditch cannot be used for carrying waters to defendant's lands. Mott v. Coleman, 132 Colo. 306, 287 P.2d 655 (1955).

37-86-108. Incorporation of lateral ditch owners. Whenever the owners of sixty percent or more of the area of lands served by any one lateral ditch used for the delivery of water for irrigation from a common source organizes a corporation having for its object the taking over and owning of all of the interests of the incorporators in said lateral, said incorporators to receive shares of stock in said corporation for their holdings, the corporation as organized has power, under the eminent domain laws of the state of Colorado, to condemn the interest in said lateral belonging to the owners of the remaining forty percent or less of the lands so served by the lateral.

ANNOTATION

A lateral ditch is a branch ditch which has its headgate in the main ditch and not in a natural watercourse. New Multa Trina Ditch Co. v. Patch, 123 Colo. 444, 230 P.2d 597 (1951).

Where the headgate of the ditch in question was located on the bank of a creek, not in a ditch bank, and a water right had been adju- dicated to the ditch and a priority number of appropriation assigned thereto, the ditch was not a lateral ditch as the term is employed in irrigation usage and in this section. New Multa Trina Ditch Co. v. Patch, 123 Colo. 444, 230 P.2d 597 (1951).

37-86-109. Consideration of incorporation benefits. In such condemnation proceedings, the court, jury, or commissioners having authority in the premises shall consider, as one of the elements of benefit accruing to the owners of the property so being condemned, the advantages accruing to said owner by reason of the organization of said corporation.

37-86-110. Payment of damages. It is lawful for such corporation to pay the damages, if any, assessed on account of the taking in such condemnation proceedings, in its own corporate stock at the same price per share paid therefor by the original incorporators, and the court, jury, or commissioners having authority in the premises, in arriving at the damage to be awarded, shall take into consideration the amount of stock which the original incorporators have received for their holdings.

37-86-111. Head of ditch may be extended upstream. In case the channel of any natural stream becomes so cut out, lowered, turned aside, or otherwise changed from any cause, as to prevent any ditch, canal, or feeder of any reservoir from receiving the proper inflow of water to which it may be entitled from such natural stream, the owners of such ditch, canal, or feeder have the right to extend the head of such ditch, canal, or feeder to such distance up the stream which supplies the same as may be necessary for securing a sufficient flow of water into the same. For that purpose they have the same right to maintain proceedings for condemnation of right-of-way for such extension as in case of constructing a new ditch. The priority of right to take water from such stream through such ditch, canal, or feeder as to any such ditch, canal, or feeder shall remain unaffected in any respect by reason of such extension; but no such extension shall interfere with the complete use or enjoyment of any ditch, canal, or feeder.

ANNOTATION

Rights to the use of water which depend for their existence upon a compliance with the requirements of the so-called map and statement statute, which has been held unconstitutional, cannot be enforced as against superior rights, notwithstanding the original appropriators of water relied upon the validity of the statute, and the rights of other appropriators of water in the same district have been adjudicated upon the assumption that the statute was valid. Great Plains Water Co. v. Lamar Canal Co., 31 Colo. 96, 71 P. 1119 (1903).

Change of point of diversion must be without harm to others. Although the point of diversion may be changed in some instances, the statute provides an exclusive remedy, and the change must be accomplished without harm to other appropriators. Harvey v. Davis, 655 P.2d 418 (Colo. 1982).

It is just as accurate to say of the extension of the right-of-way for a ditch that it has been made or enlarged, as to say that a ditch has been made or enlarged; for, as will be seen from this section, extending the right-of-way for a ditch by carrying the headgate farther up the stream necessarily involves the making of a ditch or other conduit for carrying water, that is, the extension is made by making a ditch, etc., and such extension may subsequently involve the enlarging of its capacity. Lamar Canal Co. v. Amity Land & Irrigation Co., 26 Colo. 370, 58 P. 600 (1899).

37-86-112. Water to be prorated among consumers. If at any time any ditch or reservoir from which water is drawn for irrigation shall not be entitled to a full supply of water from the natural stream which supplies the same, the water actually received into and carried by such ditch, or held in such reservoir, shall be divided among all the consumers of water from such ditch or reservoir, as well as the owners, shareholders, or stockholders thereof, as the parties purchasing water therefrom and parties taking water partly under and by virtue of holding shares and partly by purchasing the same to each his share pro rata, according to the amount he is then entitled, so that all owners and purchasers shall suffer from the deficiency arising from the cause aforesaid each in proportion to the amount of water which he should have received in case no such deficiency of water had occurred.

ANNOTATION

This section provides for prorating the water actually received into and carried by any irrigating ditch, canal, or reservoir among all the consumers therefrom in time of scarcity, so that all such consumers shall suffer proportionately from the deficiency of water. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889); Larimer & Weld Irrigation Co. v. Wyatt, 23 Colo. 480, 48 P. 528 (1897).

This section does not take away the consumer's right to water; it simply regulates the use of this right. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

The consumer is allowed only his percentage of such proportion of the priority as is available. Johnston v. Wanamaker Ditch Co., 95 Colo. 551, 38 P.2d 907 (1934).

Although in times of shortage these water owners may be best served by resorting to rotation and sectionizing, but when necessity demands a resort to these expedients they are as applicable to him as to others. Johnston v. Wanamaker Ditch Co., 95 Colo. 551, 38 P.2d 907 (1934).

The consumer is presumed to know that in times of scarcity his use may be subjected to two interruptions, viz.: First, that canals and ditches holding priorities antedating the diversion of his carrier may demand all the water in the natural stream, so that there will be none for him or any of his co-consumers; and second, that if there is water, but not the full quantity appropriated, he will be obliged to prorate with such co-consumers, and under these circumstances the consumer is hardly in position to resist the enforcement of the prorating statute or to assert that it operates harshly and unjustly upon him. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

It cannot be so construed as to interfere with the constitutional rights of prior appropriators. Larimer & Weld Irrigation Co. v. Wyatt, 23 Colo. 480, 48 P. 528 (1897).

Giving this section a literal and unqualified interpretation, it manifestly conflicts with the constitution. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

For those consumers using the water of natural streams for the same beneficial purpose, priority of use gives superiority of right, irrespective of the mode of diversion; and this rule is applicable to individual consumers, as between themselves, when they receive the water through the agency of an artificial stream as well as when they receive the same direct from the natural stream, and this section must be limited accordingly. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889); Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

There is nothing in the assertion that this section, the prorating statute, insofar, at least, as it applies to cases like the one at bar, is class legislation, and for that reason void. It is in this respect purely remedial, and it was not intended, nor does it operate, to inflict burdens; its intent and its operation was and is to distribute them. It reaches all consumers having secured priorities through diversion by carriers alike; it makes no distinction among them; each and all are equally within its purview. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

The provision may be properly carried into effect when the rights of all the consumers are equal in the matter of their respective appropriations, as when a ditch has been constructed as a common enterprise by and for the mutual and equal benefit of all the consumers therefrom, or when, by reason of contractual relations, waiver, or other circumstances, certain consumers stand on a footing of substantial and practical equality, having no priority of appropriation one over another. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

Consumers taking water from the same carrier within a reasonable time after the carrier's diversion have the same constitutional priority dating from such diversion, and as to such consumers the prorating statute is constitutional. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

The consumer who first uses may be compelled to prorate with another whose use is subsequent in date, but each consumer has a perfect right to go to the natural stream for the water he needs, and there is no law forcing him to deal with the carrier, and it is no answer to say that the overpowering law of necessity takes away his volition to choose, for he in fact makes his election when he purchases land so far from the natural stream as to compel reliance upon the carrier. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889).

Evidence held insufficient to provide basis for apportionment. Grimes-Brooks Reservoir Co. v. Kayser, 180 Colo. 111, 502 P.2d 1104 (1972).

37-86-113. Irrigation of meadows. All persons who have enjoyed the use of the water in any natural stream for the irrigation of any meadow land by the natural overflow or operation of the water of such stream, in case the diminishing of the water supplied by such stream, from any cause, prevents such irrigation therefrom in as ample a manner as formerly, shall have right to construct a ditch for the irrigation of such meadow and to take water from such stream therefor. Their right to water through such ditch shall have the same priority as though such ditch had been constructed at the time they first occupied and used such land as meadow ground.

Law reviews. For article, "Water for Recreation: A Plea for Recognition", see 44 Den. L.J. 288 (1967). For comment, "Colorado River Water Conservation Dist. v. Colorado Water Conservation Bd.: Diversion as an Element of Appropriation", see 57 Den. L.J. 661 (1980).

Under this section plaintiff acquired valid rights to the overflow of the stream for his meadow lands, and these rights were vested before defendant began the construction or operation of its mill. Humphreys Tunnel & Mining Co. v. Frank, 46 Colo. 524, 105 P. 1093 (1909).

Plaintiff's rights paramount to any rights defendant has in the waters of the stream.

Humphreys Tunnel & Mining Co. v. Frank, 46 Colo. 524, 105 P. 1093 (1909).

Plaintiff's rights were subject only to the rights acquired by prior appropriators of the water for some useful purpose and his right, as well as theirs, as against defendant, is to have the natural waters and all accretions come down the natural channel undiminished in quality as well as quantity. Humphreys Tunnel & Mining Co. v. Frank, 46 Colo. 524, 105 P. 1093 (1909).

Though other appropriations, to the full capacity of the stream during its ordinary flow, were made before plaintiff's rights accrued, this does not prevent him from building a ditch and diverting and using its waters whenever his seniors do not need it. Humphreys Tunnel & Mining Co. v. Frank, 46 Colo. 524, 105 P. 1093 (1909).

When the demands of the senior upon the stream cease the rights of the junior attach, and, as against a wrong-doer like the defendant, the junior is entitled to protect the stream from pollution, the same as if he were the senior and only appropriator, and if the acts of defendant interfere with such rights of plaintiff, as they have, defendant must be held responsible for the resulting injury. Humphreys Tunnel & Mining Co. v. Frank, 46 Colo. 524, 105 P. 1093 (1909).

In a class action for declaratory judgment by the United States to adjudicate the rights of the affected parties to the use of water of the Colorado river arising out of a federally financed water diversion project where intervenors had vested rights under this section in the overflow of the Colorado river for the natural irrigation of their meadow lands, those rights cannot be taken for public purposes, such as this project, without imposing upon the government the constitutional duty to pay just compensation therefor. United States v. Martin, 267 F.2d 764 (10th Cir. 1959).

One who has acquired an appropriation for his meadow lands, as the result of the natural overflow of the waters of the stream, may not, when the same has become diminished in quantity, and whenever thereafter it suits his convenience, construct a ditch and have a priority awarded to date back by way of relation to his meadow appropriation, where such priority antedates the priorities fixed by a previous statutory decree. Broad Run Inv. Co. v. Deuel & Snyder Imp. Co., 47 Colo. 573, 108 P. 755 (1910).

On appeal from a statutory proceeding adjudicating priorities of water rights under this section, a contention that the same priorities of right adjudicated and determined by the decree appealed from were adjudicated and determined by a former decree in the same water district, will not be considered where neither the decree appealed from, nor the former decree, nor the proceedings in which it was pronounced appear in the abstract of the record. Means v. Gotthelf, 31 Colo. 168, 71 P. 1117 (1903).

Where no exception was taken to the decree by bill of exceptions, and the transcript does not contain a bill of exceptions and there is no certificate under the hand and seal of the judge that the transcript contains all the evidence, the question as to whether the decree is supported by the evidence cannot be considered. Means v. Stow, 31 Colo. 282, 73 P. 48 (1903); Means v. Gotthelf, 31 Colo. 168, 71 P. 1117 (1903).

Applied in Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 197 Colo. 469, 594 P.2d 570 (1979).

37-87-101. Storage of water. (1) (a) The right to store water of a natural stream for later application to beneficial use is recognized as a right of appropriation in order of priority under the Colorado constitution. No water storage facility may be operated in such a manner as to cause material injury to the senior appropriative rights of others. Acquisition of those interests in real property reasonably necessary for the construction, maintenance, or operation of any water storage reservoir, together with inlet, outlet, or spillway structures or other facilities necessary to make such reservoir effective to accomplish the beneficial use or uses of water stored or to be stored therein, may be secured under the laws of eminent domain.

(b) State agencies shall, to the maximum extent practicable, cooperate with persons desiring to acquire real property for water storage structures.

(2) Underground aquifers are not reservoirs within the meaning of this section except to the extent such aquifers are filled by other than natural means with water to which the person filling such aquifer has a conditional or decreed right.

ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Immediate Use of Water.
- III. Cooperation by State Agencies.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For comment on People ex rel. Park Reservoir Co. v. Hinderlider, 98 Colo. 505, 57 P.2d 894 (1936), appearing below, see 9 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 91 (1936). For article, "Revision of Water and Irrigation Statutes", see 31 Dicta 29 (1954). For article, "Water for Oil Shale Development", see 43 Den. L.J. 72 (1966). For note, "A Survey of Colorado Water Law", see 47 Den. L.J. 226 (1970).

As this section stands it is a grant, and the court is not at liberty to write into it, by way of interpretation, the word "only", so as to read "Persons desirous to construct and maintain reservoirs, for the purpose of storing water, shall have the right to take...(only) any unappropriated water...for irrigating purposes." To do this would make this section a prohibition. People ex rel. Park Reservoir Co. v. Hinderlider, 98 Colo. 505, 57 P.2d 894 (1936).

The court said it assumed without deciding, that this section was in force, and that the general assembly was not prohibited by the constitution from passing it with the word "thereafter" inserted, so as to read "Persons desirous to construct and maintain reservoirs, for the purpose of storing water, shall have the right to take from any of the natural streams of the state and store away any unappropriated water not (thereafter) needed for immediate use for...irrigating purposes" and that such is its proper interpretation. People ex rel. Park Reservoir Co. v. Hinderlider, 98 Colo. 505, 57 P.2d 894 (1936).

Where a corporation constructed the embankment of a reservoir in the bed of a stream, but applied the water to no beneficial use, and it afterwards conveyed the reservoir site to another, reserving any appropriation of priority which it had acquired by reason of construction, it was held, that having never applied the water to any beneficial use, it had nothing to reserve, and the reservation accomplished nothing. Windsor Reservoir & Canal Co. v. Lake Supply Ditch Co., 44 Colo. 214, 98 P. 729 (1908).

Where plaintiff claiming to be entitled to the waters of a certain stream, for storage, between certain dates, brought an action to restrain the officials of the water service from enforcing an order of the division engineer which required the water commissioner of the district to cease the storing of water, during the same period, it was held that the appropriators for direct irrigation in other districts of the division would, of necessity, be affected by the decree and were indispensable parties. Comstock v. Larimer & Weld Reservoir Co., 58 Colo. 186, 145 P. 700 (1914).

Where one claiming the right to water for storage seeks to restrain its application to direct irrigation, it is not sufficient to aver merely an appropriation for storage and a decree establishing the right because the complaint must go further and show that the plaintiff's right is relatively prior to that asserted by those against whom the relief is sought. Comstock v. Larimer & Weld Reservoir Co., 58 Colo. 186, 145 P. 700 (1914).

When water has escaped from a reservoir and become a part of the underground waters, its identification as reservoir water is impracticable, if not impossible, and the rule to be applied in such a case must take account of the rights of others, and be of general and practicable application. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. McCune, 71 Colo. 256, 206 P. 393 (1922).

Water escaping from a reservoir or a ditch, underground, and becoming percolating water which will naturally reach a public stream, must be regarded as a part of the stream, and it belongs to the appropriators in the order of their priorities when needed, and cannot be made the subject of a direct appropriation. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. McCune, 71 Colo. 256, 206 P. 393 (1922).

There was no need to exercise a private right of eminent domain or any trespass where an aquifer recharge and water storage rights application did not involve the construction of any project facilities on land owned by a third party. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 45 P.3d 693 (Colo. 2002).

The justice of allowing reservoir companies to control the water which they have diverted is not to be questioned; but it should be borne in mind that they do not own the water, but have only a right to its use; which use must be consistent with the rights of other appropriators. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. McCune, 71 Colo. 256, 206 P. 393 (1922).

In addition, the water so diverted and stored must be beneficially applied; that is, in this instance, it must have been applied to lands for the purposes of irrigation. Thomas v. Guiraud, 6 Colo. 530 (1883); Sieber v. Frink, 7 Colo. 148, 2 P. 901 (1883); Wheeler v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 10 Colo. 582, 17 P. 487 (1887); Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028 (1889); Ft. Morgan Land & Canal Co. v. South

Platte Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 1, 30 P. 1032 (1892); Woods v. Sargent, 43 Colo. 268, 95 P. 932 (1908); Highland Ditch Co. v. Union Reservoir Co., 53 Colo. 483, 127 P. 1025 (1912).

A decree awarding a priority to a reservoir providing that sufficient water should be permitted to flow from the source of supply into the reservoir to satisfy the volume of the priority when "not needed for immediate use for domestic or irrigation purposes", is presumably in part based upon this section. Highland Ditch Co. v. Union Reservoir Co., 53 Colo. 483, 127 P. 1025 (1912).

In an eminent domain proceeding to condemn land for a reservoir site, a report of commissioners based upon undisputed evidence but not supported by any findings, is not binding on the court, and where the question of the necessity of taking such site was not raised in either the pleadings or the evidence, a finding by the commissioners that the land proposed to be condemned was not necessary for the reservoir site was without force or effect. Mortensen v. Mortensen, 135 Colo. 167, 309 P.2d 197 (1957).

II. IMMEDIATE USE OF WATER.

This section confers the only authority for filling reservoirs. Water Supply & Storage Co. v. Tenney, 24 Colo. 344, 51 P. 505 (1897).

Water for storage in reservoirs can be used only when not needed for immediate domestic and irrigating use. Water Supply & Storage Co. v. Tenney, 24 Colo. 344, 51 P. 505 (1897).

It is scarcely conceivable that a district court would deliberately enter a decree giving to a reservoir owner any priority to fill his reservoir which would conflict with any right of a ditch owner to use water for irrigation, even though the priority of the latter was junior in time to the construction of the reservoir. Water Supply & Storage Co. v. Tenney, 24 Colo. 344, 51 P. 505 (1897).

Where the defendant asked the court to charge the jury, which the court refused to do, that when needed for immediate use in irrigating lands by others having such right, one might not divert water from a natural stream for storage purposes in a reservoir, the court held that if the facts of the case called for an instruction on the law of defense of property, then this instruction should also have been given, for there was evidence that plaintiff was storing water in a fish pond when defendant needed it for immediate use in watering his crops. Newby v. People, 28 Colo. 16, 62 P. 1035 (1900).

Where there were senior appropriators of all the available flow of a natural stream who needed it for immediate use for domestic and irrigating purposes during the irrigation season from about June 1 to November 1, of each calendar year, this section does not allow water to be diverted for storage in reservoirs during such period of time, hence the storage system of the plaintiff could be operated only during the nonirrigating season from November 1 of each year until June 1 of the next succeeding year, by reason of which the work of rebuilding plaintiff's ditch must be done, if at all, during that irrigating season. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. North Sterling Irrigation Dist., 75 Colo. 185, 225 P. 261 (1924).

The construction of an irrigation ditch and the appropriation of water thereby to the irrigation of lands during the irrigation season, and a decree of priority for that purpose, give the appropriator no priority of right to water during the nonirrigating season for the purpose of storage for future use in a reservoir subsequently constructed. New Loveland & Greeley Irrigation & Land Co. v. Consolidated Home Supply Ditch & Reservoir Co., 27 Colo. 525, 62 P. 366 (1900).

The fact that at the time of commencing the construction of an irrigation ditch it was the intention of the appropriator to also use it as a feeder to a reservoir to be constructed sometime in the future, in which to store the water during the nonirrigating season for future use, would give the appropriator no prior right to water for storage during the nonirrigating season to date from the commencement of the ditch, unless the construction of the reservoir was so closely connected with the construction of the ditch as to show them to be one system, and the work thereon was prosecuted to completion and water thereby appropriated to a beneficial use with reasonable diligence. New Loveland & Greeley Irrigation & Land Co. v. Consolidated Home Supply Ditch & Reservoir Co., 27 Colo. 525, 62 P. 366 (1900).

The priority to the use of water for storage during the nonirrigating season depends upon the time of appropriation for that purpose, and an appropriator who first constructed his reservoir and appropriated water for that purpose is entitled to priority over a subsequent appropriator notwithstanding the subsequent storage appropriator was a prior appropriator for irrigation and supplied his reservoir through a ditch with prior rights for irrigation purposes. New Loveland & Greeley Irrigation & Land Co. v. Consolidated Home Supply Ditch & Reservoir Co., 27 Colo. 525, 62 P. 366 (1900).

It is not unreasonable to suppose that the provisions of this section intended that an owner of a reservoir for irrigation purposes shall have the right to take and store unappropriated waters, and also waters that already have been appropriated by others but that are not at the time needed by such prior appropriators for immediate use for domestic or irrigation purposes, because such storage would save the water from going to waste, a most desirable object in this "dry and thirsty land", where every drop of water is sorely needed, and such a construction would save this section from coming into conflict with the constitution. People ex rel. Park Reservoir Co. v. Hinderlider, 98 Colo. 505, 57 P.2d 894 (1936) (concurring opinion).

III. COOPERATION BY STATE AGENCIES.

Where a third party held a 99-year lease on three reservoir sites that left the lessor, the state board of land commissioners, with no meaningful discretion to refuse to grant the third party a right of way for the reservoirs, it was impracticable for the state board of land commissioners to cooperate with an applicant for reservoir sites that significantly overlapped the third party's reservoirs. Even though the third party's lease was nonexclusive, the lessee had the right to control the stored water, which precluded the state board of land commissioners from granting the applicant a lease for the storage sites because doing so would unreasonably interfere with the lessee's rights. Although the lease allowed for the relocation of the reservoir sites, that right did not apply to a relocation for the benefit of a third party, nor for water development that did not benefit the particular parcel of land on which the reservoirs were located. In any event, it is not practicable to relocate an existing dam and reservoir. City of Aurora v. ACJ P'ship, 209 P.3d 1076 (Colo. 2009).

37-87-102. Definitions - natural streams and use thereof by reservoir owners.

(1) As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Mean annual flood" means a flood which has a magnitude (peak discharge) which is expected to be equaled or exceeded on the average once every 2.33 years and has a forty-three percent chance of being equaled or exceeded (0.43 exceedance probability) during any year, by application of the criteria defined in subsection (2) of this section.

(b) "Natural stream" means a place on the surface of the earth where water naturally flows regularly or intermittently with a perceptible current between observable banks, although the location of such banks may vary under different conditions.

(c) "One-hundred-year flood" means a flood which has a magnitude (peak discharge) which is expected to be equaled or exceeded on the average once during any one-hundred-year period (recurrence interval) and has a one percent chance of being equaled or exceeded during any year (0.01 exceedance probability). The terms "one-hundred-year flood", "one percent chance flood", and "intermediate regional flood" are synonymous.

(d) "One-hundred-year floodplain" means that area in and adjacent to a natural stream which is subject to flooding as a result of the occurrence of a one-hundred-year flood.

(e) "Ordinary high watermark" of any stream means the visible channel of a natural watercourse within which water flows with sufficient frequency so as to preclude the erection or maintenance of man-made improvements without special provision for protection against flows of water in such channel or the channel defined by the mean annual flood, whichever is greater.

(2) Whenever the records basic to a determination of probable future water flows, either with respect to this section or by other requirements of law, extend for a period of one hundred or more years, the calculation based upon those results shall be deemed conclusive. If such records do not extend for a period of one hundred or more years the determination shall be made by interpolation and correlation to a full one hundred years of records by relating them to known records of water basins as similar as reasonably possible to the basin under consideration or by other acceptable methods.

(3) (a) In any case in which a determination of probable future surface water flows at any place in the state is required, the calculation shall be based upon past surface water runoff at the place in question supplemented as provided in this section. Such probable flows shall be determined by reference to the records of reliable stream gauging stations. A stream gauging station record shall be deemed reliable if made by the state of Colorado or the United States as part of a regular program of either of those entities, except as to any part of such records which the state engineer shall have designated as being unreliable, on the basis of facts so showing. Whenever a designation of probable future runoff is required at a place other than the location of a reliable stream gauging station, the determination of probable runoff at such other place shall be made by relating the probable future runoff at that place to the recorded runoff at a comparable gauging station or gauging stations by the interpolation of reasonable hydrologic, geologic, and natural vegetative factors supplemented as provided in this section. Unless clearly unrelated, the factors of the comparison shall include, but not be limited to, the following elements or characteristics:

(I) The water basin contributing to the probable future flow at the place where probable future runoff is to be determined, considering:

- (A) The size;
- (B) The altitude or altitudes;
- (C) The various soil permeabilities;
- (D) The various vegetative covers;

(II) The known runoff as determined by reliable stream gauging stations using interpolations when necessary from comparable gauging stations and relating interpolations to the characteristics of the basin measured by the comparable gauging stations as related to the basin of runoff being determined;

(III) The slope or slopes of the terrain whose surface runoff contributes to the surface water flows at the place at which a determination of probable future surface water flows is required.

(b) The state engineer shall promulgate rules pursuant to section 24-4-103, C.R.S., which include other factors for consideration in any area or situation in which calculations based on the criteria in paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) will probably be made more accurate by use of other or additional criteria. Whenever conditions are such that records of past precipitation are an appropriate factor, he may designate any portion of official precipitation records of agencies of the United States or of the state of Colorado which are appropriate in evaluating probable future water flows. He may approve use of factors referred to in this paragraph (b) with respect to particular areas or design of specific structures when requested to do so.

(c) No dam safety requirement shall be imposed to meet a potential hazard of a flood whose magnitude is such that the hazard would probably exist whether or not the dam failed.

(3.5) Whenever a determination of probable future surface water flows, or the probability of frequency of their recurrence, at any place in Colorado is required by relation to a longer period of flow than that for which there is a reliable record of flow as defined in subsection (3) of this section, the determination shall be made by interpolation and correlation of known records to the longer period by relating known records of water basins as similar as reasonably possible to the place of determination or basin under consideration, or by use of geologic determinations, or by use of other methods reasonably calculated to formulate an accurate estimate of probable future flows or the probability of frequency of their recurrence at the place of determination of such flows.

(3.7) Calculations of probable flows or frequency of recurrence based upon application of the principles set forth in subsections (3) and (3.5) of this section shall relieve anyone acting in accordance with such principles of any liability respecting an occurrence different than that predicted. This exemption from liability shall apply to the state and its public officials or employees when acting in performance of their public duties.

(4) The owners of any reservoir may conduct the waters legally stored therein into and along any of the natural streams of the state, but not so as to raise the waters thereof above ordinary high watermark, and may take the same out again at any point desired if no material injury results to the prior or subsequent rights of others to other waters in said natural streams. Due allowance shall be made for evaporation and other losses from natural causes for the protection of all rights to the waters flowing in said streams, such losses to be determined by the state engineer.

Law reviews. For article, "Foreign Water in Colorado — The City's Right to Recapture and Re-Use Its Transmountain Diversion", see 42 Den. L. Ctr. J. 116 (1965).

This section providing that the owners of reservoirs may conduct the water from the reservoirs into and along any of the natural streams of the state, emphasizes the doctrine that these are public streams. Hartman v. Tresise, 36 Colo. 146, 84 P. 685 (1906).

In some circumstances, dams, ditches, canals, and tunnels, taken together, may be considered as a reservoir within the meaning of this section. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co. v. Sill, 104 Colo. 215, 89 P.2d 1012 (1939).

This section should be so construed as to include inlets to, as well as outlets from, reservoirs in connection with natural streams, whereby the latter are used to carry abnormal amounts due to delivery therein of privately owned water. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co. v. Sill, 104 Colo. 215, 89 P.2d 1012 (1939).

37-87-103. Notice of release of stored waters. The owners of reservoirs who avail themselves of the provisions of this section and section 37-87-102 shall give reasonable prior notice to the irrigation division engineer of the irrigation division in which the reservoir is located or to the chief administrative water official of such irrigation division of the date on which they desire to release stored waters into any natural streams, together with the quantity thereof in cubic feet per second of time, the length of period to be covered by such releases, and the name of the ditch, canal, pipeline, or reservoir to which the water so released from storage is to be delivered, to the end that the water officials in responsible charge of any stream into which such stored water is released shall have ample time in which to make the necessary observations measurements of flow and storage and records thereof and to provide for a proper patrol of the said stream, for the protection of the reservoir owner and also all other appropriators along the stream whose interests might be affected as a result of such reservoir release. Such notice may be given to the division engineer when the reservoir from which the water is to be released and the point where the water is to be taken from the stream or again stored are in the same water district.

ANNOTATION

Where a mining company created large bodies of liquid tailings on its land and failed to contain those harmful and obnoxious materials, which contaminated a stream and were discharged by a flood on the land of another as the result of the failure of a wall surrounding the tailing ponds, the correct measure of damage was recognized as the difference between the value of the land immediately before the alleged injury and after the injury. The reasonable cost to clear the land of debris was not the measure, but it is nevertheless recognized that evidence of cost of repair can be considered in arriving at this difference in market value. Freel v. Ozark-Mahoning Co., 208 F. Supp. 93 (D. Colo. 1962).

37-87-104. Liability of owners for damage. (1) Any provision of law to the contrary notwithstanding, no entity or person who owns, controls, or operates a water storage reservoir shall be held liable for any personal injury or property damage resulting from water escaping from that reservoir by overflow or as a result of the failure or partial failure of the structure or structures forming that reservoir unless such failure or partial failure has been proximately caused by the negligence of that entity or person. No entity or person shall be required to pay punitive or exemplary damages for such negligence in excess of that provided by law. Any previous rule of law imposing absolute or strict liability on such an entity or person is hereby repealed.

(2) No such entity or person shall be liable for allowing the inflow to such reservoir to pass through it into the natural stream below such reservoir.

(3) (a) No stockholder, officer, or member of a board of directors of an owner of a reservoir shall be liable for any personal injury or property damage resulting from water escaping from such reservoir or as a result of the failure or partial failure of the structure or structures forming such reservoir for which the owner shall have been found liable if a valid liability insurance policy, or adequate substitute as provided in paragraph (b) of this subsection (3), has been purchased by the owner of the reservoir and is in effect at the time such damage occurs. Such insurance policy shall insure against such damages and provide coverage in an amount of not less than fifty thousand dollars for each claim and in an aggregate amount of not less than five hundred thousand dollars for all claims which arise out of any one incident. The policy may provide that it does not apply to any act or omission of a stockholder, officer, or member of a board of directors of an owner if such act or omission is dishonest, fraudulent, malicious, or criminal. The policy may also contain other reasonable provisions with respect to policy periods, territory, claims, conditions, and other matters common to such policies of insurance. The limitation of liability pursuant to this paragraph (a) shall not apply to any criminal, fraudulent, or malicious act or omission by a member of the board of directors of the owner, an officer of the owner, or a stockholder of the owner, nor shall it apply to any ultra vires act of the owner or of a member of the board of directors, an officer, or a stockholder of such owner. The provisions of this paragraph (a) shall not be deemed to impose any liability upon a member of the board of directors, an officer, or a stockholder of the owner of a reservoir beyond that provided in section 7-42-118, C.R.S.

(b) An adequate substitute for such insurance may be in the form of:

(I) A good and sufficient bond, in an amount equal to such recovery limitations duly executed by a qualified corporate surety approved by the commissioner of insurance, conditioned upon the payment by the entity or person who owns, controls, or operates a water storage reservoir of any valid and final judgment for damages imposed within the judgment limitations established in this subsection (3);

(II) A good and sufficient escrow of acceptable securities, as defined in section 24-91-102, C.R.S., or an annual irrevocable letter or annual letters of credit issued by any national or state bank or any bank for cooperatives as chartered under Title III of the federal "Farm Credit Act of 1971", as amended, and deposited with an escrow agent pursuant to an escrow contract or agreement requiring the escrow agent to pay from the escrow account amounts necessary to discharge a valid and final judgment for damages within the limits established in this subsection (3). Such escrow contract or agreement shall provide that it cannot be revoked or amended until after any claims for damage against such entity or person have been discharged or until applicable statutes of limitations pertaining thereto have expired.

(III) A combination of insurance and any of the substitutes described in this paragraph (b).

ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Extent of Owner's Liability.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "Water for Oil Shale Development", see 43 Den. L.J. 72 (1966). For comment on Barr v. Game, Fish & Parks Comm'n, see 50 Den. L.J. 381 (1973). For article, "1986 Colorado Tort Reform Legislation", see 15 Colo. Law. 1363 (1986). For article, "The New Dam Safety and Dam Construction Regulations", see 18 Colo. Law. 1097 (1989).

This section is simply an affirmation of a common-law principle, which was enacted in this state as part of an act with reference to irrigation, and in this act the right is given for the construction of reservoirs for certain purposes, and the context indicates, we think, that the paragraph relied upon was inserted as a precautionary measure, under the apprehension that without it, it would be possible to place such a construction upon the act as would relieve owners of reservoirs from liability for leakage and overflow. Sylvester v. Jerome, 19 Colo. 128, 34 P. 760 (1893).

The common-law principle referred to as being affirmed by this section is as follows: "The person who, for his own purposes, brings on his own land and collects and keeps there anything likely to do mischief if it escapes, must keep it at his own peril; and if he does not do so, is prima facie answerable for all the damage which is the natural consequence of its escape, but he can excuse himself by showing that the escape was owing to the plaintiff's default; or, perhaps, that the escape was the consequence of vis major, or the act of God". Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

The purpose of this section and § 37-87-113 is to protect persons owning property below the reservoir from having their situation impaired, not from having it improved. Ireland v. Henrylyn Irrigation Dist., 113 Colo. 555, 160 P.2d 364 (1945).

The statute does not deprive a court of equity of jurisdiction to restrain the filling of a reservoir, when the remedy at law given by the section is not adequate to a particular exigency. Sylvester v. Jerome, 19 Colo. 128, 34 P. 760 (1893).

A writ commanding the defendants to refrain from diverting water did not forbid the repairing or changing the reservoir so as to prevent the injury complained of, and when ever it was so changed they were at liberty to apply to the court for a modification or dissolution of the injunction. Sylvester v. Jerome, 19 Colo. 128, 34 P. 760 (1893).

The natural hillside or mesa, against which the embankment is constructed, and which aids in impounding the water, is part of the reservoir, within this section, and the owner is liable for injuries occasioned by its giving way, though the artificial embankment remains. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

The general assembly did not intend that one who appropriates a natural bank as part of his reservoir should be exempt from liability in the event of its washing out, but did intend the word "embankment" should include not only an artificial barrier, but a natural one as well, if used as a part of the reservoir, to prevent the escape of water. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

It is true that the ditch owners have been held to the exercise of ordinary care only, for the statute does not hold them to an absolute liability, but there is a very good reason for the legislative distinction, a ditch carrying water can, by the exercise of ordinary care, be rendered harmless, and the carrying of water through ditches is not a dangerous or menacing vocation; the water is not restrained, and the pressure is but slight, while in a reservoir the water is restrained, and the pressure is very great, so great that the exercise of the greatest amount of care and skill may not prevent the water from effecting its escape. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910); Beaver Water & Irrigation Co. v. Emerson, 75 Colo. 513, 227 P. 54 (1927).

A recovery for past, present and prospective damages is a bar to an action for subsequent damages. Fort v. Bietsch, 85 Colo. 176, 274 P. 812 (1929).

Although a judgment in an action for damages may have been void or voidable, the successful party by accepting and retaining its fruits, is estopped from again suing for the same thing. Fort v. Bietsch, 85 Colo. 176, 274 P. 812 (1929).

The owner of a reservoir acquires no vested right to have spillways of reservoirs on the stream above his storage basin maintained at the same size and elevation as constructed at the time he acquired his storage rights. Ireland v. Henrylyn Irrigation Dist., 113 Colo. 555, 160 P.2d 364 (1945).

The defendant dam owner, enlarging spillway, held not liable for injury to reservoirs by flood waters. Ireland v. Henrylyn Irrigation Dist., 113 Colo. 555, 160 P.2d 364 (1945).

Public entities are not subject to the strict liability imposed by this section, and are therefore also exempt from common law strict liability because the legislature intended to repeal existing common law that might make public entities strictly liable. Kane v. Town of Estes Park, 786 P.2d 412 (Colo. 1990).

II. EXTENT OF OWNER'S LIABILITY.

Under this section, owners of reservoirs are made liable for all damages arising from leakage or overflow of the waters therefrom or by floods caused by breaking of their embankments. Ryan Gulch Reservoir Co. v. Swartz, 77 Colo. 60, 234 P. 1059 (1925).

No skill, care, or diligence, in construction or maintenance relieves owners at reservoirs made liable. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

The owner is liable whether he is negligent or not and whether the breaking of his dam was caused by the negligence of a third person or not. Beaver Water & Irrigation Co. v. Emerson, 75 Colo. 513, 227 P. 547 (1924).

The true rule of law is, that the person who, for his own purposes, brings on his own land and collects or keeps there anything likely to do mischief if it escapes, must keep it at his own peril; and if he does not do so, is prima facie answerable for all the damage which is the natural consequence of its escape. Cass Company-Contractors v. Colton, 130 Colo. 593, 279 P.2d 415 (1955).

Colorado cases have followed the doctrine of absolute liability for certain dangerous enterprises, such as the impounding of waters, and this was based on the common law which later became embodied in this section. Cass Company-Contractors v. Colton, 130 Colo. 593, 279 P.2d 415 (1955).

An act of God or the public enemy is a good defense in an action under this section, even though the liability imposed thereby is fixed by statute, without regard to negligence of the defendants. Ryan Gulch Reservoir Co. v. Swartz, 77 Colo. 60, 234 P. 1059 (1925); Barr v. Game, Fish & Parks Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 482, 497 P.2d 340 (1972).

In order for a flood to come within the term, "act of God", and therefore be a good defense under this statute, it must have been so unusual and extraordinary a manifestation of nature as could not under normal conditions have been reasonably anticipated or expected, and an "act of God" does not necessarily mean an operation of natural forces so violent and unexpected that no human foresight or skill could possibly have prevented its effect, it is enough that the flooding should be such as human foresight could not be reasonably expected to anticipate and whether it comes within this description is ordinarily a question of fact. Barr v. Game, Fish & Parks Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 482, 497 P.2d 340 (1972).

Where the court found that with modern meteorological techniques, a maximum probable storm is predictable and a maximum probable flood is foreseeable, and the storm and flood which occurred were less than maximum, the defense of "act of God" is not available. Barr v. Game, Fish & Parks Comm'n, 30 Colo. App. 482, 497 P.2d 340 (1972).

An owner is defined in law to be, "He who had dominion over a thing which he may use as he pleases except as restrained by the law or by an agreement", and "includes any person having a claim or interest in real property, though less than an absolute fee". Larimer County Ditch Co. v. Zimmerman, 4 Colo. App. 78, 34 P. 1111 (1893).

The intention of the general assembly was to hold responsible the parties whose duty it was to construct and maintain, and to construe the statute otherwise would defeat the legislative intent, and might in any instance prevent redress to the injured party. Larimer County Ditch Co. v. Zimmerman, 4 Colo. App. 78, 34 P. 1111 (1893).

The responsibility is laid only upon the owners of reservoirs which store water for irrigation. This right of storage includes surface or flood waters, as well as waters diverted from a natural watercourse. Canon City & C. C. R. R. v. Oxtoby, 45 Colo. 214, 100 P. 1127 (1909).

A prima facie case is made when the damage and cause, by the breaking, are established. Larimer County Ditch Co. v. Zimmerman, 4 Colo. App. 78, 34 P. 1111 (1893).

It is not necessary to allege and prove negligence. Larimer County Ditch Co. v. Zimmerman, 4 Colo. App. 78, 34 P. 1111 (1893); Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

Where defendants created large bodies of liquid tailings upon their land and thus were statutorily obligated to prevent the escape of these materials and their failure to contain these harmful and obnoxious materials results in their being liable for the resultant damages, regardless of fault on their part, because liability for damage which directly results from floods is fixed by this section. Freel v. Ozark-Mahoning Co., 208 F. Supp. 93 (D. Colo. 1962).

37-87-104.5. Notification of ownership of dam - when person in control deemed owner. The person or persons actually in control of the physical structure of any dam shall be deemed, for determining liability arising from ownership of a dam and with respect to operation thereof, to be the owners thereof unless notice of the name and address of the true owner thereof, together with reasonable evidence of such ownership, has been filed in the office of the state engineer by January 1, 1985. Any change in ownership shall be immediately filed in the office of the state engineer.

Source: L. 84: Entire section added, p. 968, § 12, effective April 30.

37-87-105. Approval of plans for reservoir - notice of modification. (1) No dam shall be constructed in this state to impound water above the elevation of the natural surface of the ground for the purpose of creating a reservoir with a capacity of more than one hundred acre-feet of water or with a surface area at the high water line in excess of twenty acres or if the height of the dam will exceed ten feet measured vertically from the elevation of the lowest point of the natural surface of the ground, where that point occurs along the longitudinal centerline of the dam, up to the flowline crest of the spillway of the dam before plans and specifications for that dam have been filed in the office of the state engineer and approved by him in accordance with regulations established by the state engineer governing such structures.

(2) Repealed.

(3) In making his determination for approval, the state engineer shall be guided by dam, spillway, and construction regulations established pursuant to this article. Such regulations may include less stringent requirements than those dictated by consideration of probable maximum precipitation. The state engineer shall issue his written decision regarding the approval of plans and specifications within one hundred eighty days of submittal to him. The state engineer shall have authority to require the material used and the work of construction to be accomplished in accordance with regulations which the state engineer may establish. No work shall be deemed complete until the state engineer furnishes to the owners of such structures a written statement of acceptance, which statement shall specify the dimensions of such dam and capacity of such reservoir. The state engineer shall render his written decision regarding acceptance within sixty days of written notification by the owner that construction has been completed.

(4) No alteration, modification, repair, or enlargement of a reservoir or dam which will affect the safety of the structure shall be made without prior written notice and approval in accordance with this section to the state engineer. General maintenance, ordinary repairs, or emergency actions not impairing safety shall be excluded from the terms of this subsection (4).

Knowing the imminent danger attendant upon the storage of water, and to avoid, as far as it was possible for human agency to avoid, damages to the lower proprietors, the general assembly provided the scheme of protection found in this and the following sections. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

It only applies to reservoirs having certain capacity or dams having certain dimensions. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

The enactment of this section and the following sections did not repeal § 37-87-104. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

By this section, dams of the dimensions mentioned are required to be under the supervision of the state engineer, and it becomes his duty to supervise the construction of reservoirs, and exercise a general supervision of them at all times, to the end that they may not overflow and that breakage or seepage may not occur. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

The state has such an interest in the construction of reservoirs as to justify the statutory provisions declaring what shall constitute proper construction, and when such a structure is deemed complete. Riverside Reservoir & Land Co. v. Green City Irrigation Dist., 59 Colo. 514, 151 P. 443 (1915).

The provisions of this section are to be read into every contract for the construction or enlargement of a reservoir. Riverside Reservoir & Land Co. v. Green City Irrigation Dist., 59 Colo. 514, 151 P. 443 (1915).

Doubtless, contracts may be entered into and enforced for the construction of a reservoir of such proportions, in such manner and of such materials as may be desired, but these must be limited by the provisions of this section, that where the reservoir is of or above specified dimensions, the plans and specifications must be first approved by the state engineer; that such public official shall be the consulting engineer during the construction; that he shall have authority to require the material used and the work of construction done to his satisfaction, and the reservoir may be regarded as completed only when he has accepted the same and has so certified to the owners. Riverside Reservoir & Land Co. v. Green City Irrigation Dist., 59 Colo. 514, 151 P. 443 (1915).

One agreeing to take shares in a reservoir company, in consideration of the company's agreement to enlarge and complete its reservoir to a certain capacity, cannot be required to accept the shares, until it is made to appear that this section has been complied with. Riverside Reservoir & Land Co. v. Green City Irrigation Dist., 59 Colo. 514, 151 P. 443 (1915).

In an action to recover for labor and materials, where the parties contracted for construction of reservoir, and neither party made an issue of the height or lawfulness of the dam, the trial court's finding that the dam was constructed without authorization in violation of this section was wholly voluntary, gratuitous, and immaterial, requiring reversal. Rippey v. Cowieson, 151 Colo. 504, 379 P.2d 396 (1963).

37-87-107. Safety inspections - amount of water to be stored. Dam safety inspections shall be made on all dams within the state by qualified, experienced personnel as often as the state engineer deems necessary or appropriate for the protection of public health and safety so that a determination of the amount of water which is safe to impound in the reservoir can be made by the state engineer. The dam safety inspections shall include, but shall not be limited to, review of previous inspections, reports and drawings, site inspection of the dam, spillways, outlet facilities, seepage control and measurement system, and permanent monument or monitoring installations, if any. Based upon inspection reports and other information affecting the safety of each dam, the state engineer shall determine the amount of water which is safe to impound in the reservoir. It is unlawful for the owners of any reservoir to store in said reservoir water in excess of the amount so determined by the state engineer to be safe.

37-87-108. Withdrawal of excess water. If the owners of any such reservoir impound water therein to a depth greater than that determined by the state engineer to be safe, it is the duty of the division engineer of the district wherein such reservoir is located to forthwith proceed to withdraw from said reservoir so much of the water as shall be in excess of the amount so determined by the state engineer to be safe, and the division engineer shall close the inlets to the same to prevent said reservoir from being refilled to an amount beyond what said state engineer has designated as being safe. If the owners of said reservoir, or any other persons, interfere with the division engineer in the discharge of said duty, the said division engineer shall call to his aid such persons as he deems necessary and employ such force as the circumstances demand to enable him to comply with the requirements of this section. Any costs incurred by the state engineer in rectifying a failure of compliance by the owner may be recovered in a suit for civil damages.

ANNOTATION

This section requires the division engineer of a district to draw off the excess water from reservoirs. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Hider, 47 Colo. 443, 107 P. 1068 (1910).

37-87-108.5. Emergency actions. (1) If, in the opinion of the state engineer, conditions of any dam or reservoir are so dangerous to the health and safety of life or property as not to permit time for issuance and enforcement of an order relative to construction, modification, maintenance, or restriction of storage, or the dam is threatened by any large flood, the state engineer may immediately employ remedial measures necessary to protect such life and property.

(2) (a) The state engineer shall maintain complete control of any such dam or reservoir which, pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, has been determined to be dangerous to life or property until such dam or reservoir is deemed safe, or until any emergency conditions which precipitated the state engineer taking control of any such dam or reservoir, pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, have abated. The state engineer is hereby empowered to determine the proper time at which to relinquish control of any such dam or reservoir.

(b) For purposes of this paragraph (b), measures taken by the state engineer pursuant to subsection (1) of this section shall be deemed final action by the state engineer for purposes of judicial review. The owner or operator of any dam upon which the state engineer has employed remedial measures pursuant to subsection (1) of this section may seek judicial review of the propriety of such measures by filing an action in the state district court for the district in which such dam is located.

(3) (a) Any necessary and reasonable costs and expenses incurred by the state engineer in fulfilling the duties mandated by subsections (1) and (2) of this section in connection with a remedial or emergency action shall be recoverable by the state engineer from the owner of any such dangerous or threatened dam.

(b) Any owner failing or refusing, after written notice has been given, to pay the reasonable costs and expenses incurred by the state engineer pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) shall be, upon complaint by the state engineer to the attorney general, subject to reasonable attorney fees incurred in the recovery of such costs and expenses.

(4) (a) All moneys collected by the state engineer pursuant to subsection (3) of this section shall be credited to the emergency dam repair cash fund created in section 37-60-122.5, to the extent necessary to replenish the account. Moneys collected in excess of such amount shall be credited to the Colorado water conservation board construction fund.

(b) The general assembly shall make annual appropriations from the emergency dam repair cash fund created in section 37-60-122.5, for the direct and indirect costs incurred by the state engineer in the performance of those duties authorized to be carried out by the state engineer in this section.

37-87-109. Complaint that reservoir is unsafe. Upon complaint being made to the state engineer by one or more persons residing or having property in such a location that their homes or property would be in danger of destruction or damage in the event of a flood occurring on account of the breaking of the embankment of any reservoir within the state, that said reservoir is in an unsafe condition, or that it is being filled with water to such an extent as to render it unsafe, it is the duty of the state engineer to forthwith examine said reservoir and determine the amount of water it is safe to impound therein. If, upon such examination, the state engineer finds that said reservoir is unsafe, or is being filled with water to such an extent as to render it unsafe, it is his duty to immediately cause said water to be drawn from said reservoir to such an extent as will, in his judgment, render the same safe. If water is then flowing into said reservoir, he shall cause it to be discontinued.

ANNOTATION

Whenever in the judgment of the state engineer, any of the structures become unsafe, it becomes his duty and the duty of the owners under his direction to draw off sufficient water or to otherwise prevent, if possible, overflow or breakage. Garnet Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. Sampson, 48 Colo. 285, 110 P. 79 (1910).

37-87-110. Engineer may use force. The state engineer is authorized to use such force as is necessary to perform the duties required of him in section 37-87-109 and to have and exercise all of the powers conferred upon the division engineer by section 37-87-108. If, after any of such reservoirs have been examined by said state engineer, the owners thereof, or any other person, fills or attempts to fill them, or any of them, to a point in excess of the amount the state engineer has determined to be safe, then it is the duty of the division engineer of the district wherein such reservoir is located to proceed as directed by section 37-87-108. All direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred in performing any action authorized by this section shall be recoverable by the state engineer from the owner of the affected reservoir and if not reimbursed may be collected by action brought by the state engineer in the district court of the county in which the reservoir, or part thereof, is located.

37-87-112. Review of action of state engineer. Any action of the state engineer under section 37-87-110 shall be subject to review in a de novo proceeding commenced by complaint of the owner in the district court in and for the county where the affected structure is located. When the state engineer has directed that certain measures shall be taken immediately for the protection of the public safety, any such judicial proceeding shall be accelerated on the court's calendar and determined immediately upon the conclusion of such proceeding. The judgment and action of the state engineer shall control until judicial determination of the cause.

37-87-114. Penalty - disposition of fines. (1) Any reservoir owner or operator failing or refusing, after notice in writing has been given, to obey the reasonable directions of the state engineer as to the construction or safe operation of any reservoir shall be subject to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars for each offense, and each day's continuance after time of notice has expired shall be considered a separate offense. Such fines shall be recovered by civil action in the name of the people by the district attorney, upon the complaint of the state engineer, in the district court of the county where the injury complained of occurred. The proceeds of all fines, after payment of costs and charges of the proceedings, shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the general fund of the county.

(2) Upon the complaint of the state engineer, the attorney general is authorized to commence proceedings against any reservoir owner or operator for refusing, after notice in writing has been given, to obey the directions of the state engineer as to the construction or safe operation of any reservoir to secure compliance with any such reasonable direction necessary for public safety in the district court of the county wherein any portion of such reservoir is located, pursuant to the Colorado rules of civil procedure; except that, if it appears to the court that the public safety is in jeopardy as the result of a failure to obey the directions of the state engineer, the court shall expedite the proceedings so that determinations may be made with respect to the directions of the state engineer commencing not later than twenty days from the service of the complaint on the owner or operator of a reservoir.

37-87-114.4. Annual report. The state engineer shall submit an annual report to the general assembly by November 1 of each year concerning the activities of the state engineer and the division of water resources relating to sections 37-87-105 to 37-87-114 for the preceding fiscal year. In addition to the copies required to be filed as provided in section 24-1-136 (9), C.R.S., a copy of such report shall be provided to each of the following: The governor and the chairmen of the committees of reference of the senate and the house of representatives dealing with agriculture and natural resources. Such report shall include but not be limited to information on the following: Approvals of plans and specifications for construction of dams and reservoirs and for alterations, modifications, repairs, and enlargements; number of safety inspections made and the results thereof; use of appropriated funds; receipts generated for inspections of dams and reservoirs; rules and regulations adopted or amended; enforcement orders and proceedings; dam failures and reasons therefor; and other available data regarding the effectiveness of the state's dam and reservoir safety program.

37-87-114.5. Applicability of provisions - exemptions. (1) The provisions of sections 37-87-105 to 37-87-114 shall not apply to:

- (a) Structures not designed or operated for the purpose of storing water;
- (b) Mill tailings impoundment structures permitted under article 32 or 33 of title 34, C.R.S.;
- (c) Uranium mill tailings and liquid impoundment structures permitted under article 11 of title 25, C.R.S.; except that the state engineer shall render such consultation as necessary for the permitting of such structures;
- (d) Siltation structures permitted under article 33 of title 34, C.R.S.; or
- (e) Structures which store water only below the elevation of the natural surface of the ground.

37-87-122. Erosion control dams. (1) The provisions of sections 37-87-101 to 37-87-108 shall not apply to erosion control dams of the character defined in this section, unless such dams also come within the specification requirements of said sections.

(2) Erosion control dams for reservoirs may be constructed on watercourses, the channels of which have been determined by the state engineer to be normally dry, having a vertical height not exceeding fifteen feet from the bottom of the channel to the bottom of the spillway, and having a capacity not exceeding ten acre-feet at the emergency spillway level, upon approval of an application for such erosion control dam by the state engineer, which application shall be accompanied by a fee of fifteen dollars. The approval by the state engineer of an erosion control dam shall be chronologically numbered in order of approval and in concert with any livestock water tanks approved pursuant to section 35-49-109, C.R.S. When such reservoirs are to be constructed with such height exceeding fifteen feet and such capacity exceeding ten acre-feet, they shall be constructed in accordance with section 37-87-105.

(3) Such reservoirs may be constructed with a capacity in excess of two acre-feet if, at or below the two acre-feet level, an ungated outlet tube is installed, with twelve inches minimum diameter and large enough to assure adequate capacity to drain within thirty-six hours any impoundment in excess of two acre-feet.

(4) The state engineer shall prepare and keep on file at the office of the state engineer standard specifications for erosion control dams which shall be subject to revision by the state engineer and shall in general be used as a guide by persons proposing to construct such dams.

(5) The fees collected pursuant to subsection (2) of this section shall be deposited by the state engineer with the state treasurer, who shall credit all such fees to the general fund of the state.

Restriction of facilities within reservoirs. (1) The general assembly hereby declares that the prevention of seasonal flooding which causes destruction of property and crops, loss of livestock, and risk or loss of human life is manifestly of greater concern and benefit to this state than the availability of recreational facilities and other facilities, not functionally related to the operation of the reservoir, constructed below the high water level of a reservoir.

(2) In order to achieve the purposes of subsection (1) of this section, no person, including any state or federal agency, quasi-municipal corporation, or political subdivision, shall construct any permanent recreational structure within a reservoir below the elevation at the crest of the spillway of the reservoir unless such facility is constructed in such a manner as to withstand partial or complete inundation and sustain minimal or no damage thereby or unless such facility is necessary to the operation of the reservoir. Said facility should be capable of being restored to full recreational use with a minimum amount of cleaning or expense. This subsection (2) and subsection (3) of this section shall not apply to facilities completed before July 1, 1984, but shall apply to any enlargement or remodeling of such facilities.

(3) The state engineer shall order the removal of any facilities constructed, enlarged, or remodeled in violation of this section. Such order may be appealed by the affected person or enforced by the state engineer pursuant to article 4 of title 24, C.R.S.

37-87-125. Notice of intent to construct impoundment structure. Any person proposing to construct a reservoir for the purpose of storing water, other than a reservoir specified in section 37-87-105 (1) or a livestock water tank as described in section 35-49-103, C.R.S., shall submit notice thereof to the state engineer prior to the beginning of any construction. Such notice shall include the location of such proposed reservoir with reference to section, township, and range and the dimensions of the reservoir, the dam, and the spillway. If any reservoir is constructed without the notice required by this section, the state engineer may prohibit the storage of water in such reservoir or direct the withdrawal of water from such reservoir. The provisions of this section shall not apply to structures listed in section 37-87-114.5.

37-88-108. Control of Boss lake reservoir. (1) The board of county commissioners of Chaffee county has charge and control of that certain state reservoir situated in said county and commonly known as the Boss lake reservoir and, without expense to the state of Colorado, other than expenses payable from the Colorado water conservation board construction fund and such financial assistance or other aid as may be available to nonstate-owned reservoirs, shall maintain and keep said reservoir in good condition and provide for the storage of water as contemplated in the law providing for the construction of said reservoir and also for the distribution of said water under the direction of the division engineer for the district in which said reservoir is situated, at such times as the scarcity of water in the stream known as the South Arkansas demands that the waters in said stream should be replenished; except that said waters shall be distributed by the said division engineer pro rata without reference to the dates of priorities of water rights and further except that the county of Chaffee shall assume and shall be held responsible for any damages resulting from breakage of the dam or water discharges therefrom unless the responsibility for damages has been assumed by the upper Arkansas water conservancy district as part of the agreement pursuant to subsection (2) of this section.

(2) The board of county commissioners of Chaffee county may agree with the upper Arkansas water conservancy district in which the Boss lake reservoir is located for said district's assumption of the duty to control, maintain, and keep the reservoir in good condition. The agreement may further provide for the upper Arkansas water conservancy district to assume and be held responsible for any damages resulting from breakage of the dam or water discharges therefrom.

37-88-109. County control of reservoirs. (1) The board of county commissioners of any county wherein is situated any state reservoir shall have charge and control of such reservoir and, without expense to the state of Colorado, other than expenses payable from the Colorado water conservation board construction fund and such financial assistance or other aid as may be available to nonstate-owned reservoirs, shall maintain and keep said reservoir in good condition and provide for the storage of water as contemplated in the law providing for the construction of said reservoir and also for the distribution of said water under the direction of the division engineer for the district in which said reservoir is situated, at such times as the scarcity of water in the stream which such reservoir is intended to reinforce demands that the water in said stream should be replenished for agricultural purposes; except that said waters shall be distributed by said division engineer pro rata without reference to priority of water rights and also except that the counties in which said reservoirs are situated shall assume and shall be held responsible for any damages resulting from breakage of the dams or water discharges therefrom. The provisions of this section shall not apply to any state reservoir constructed primarily for the purpose of irrigating state lands, but any such reservoir shall remain in the control of the state board of land commissioners.

(2) In the case of reservoirs owned by the division of parks and wildlife, the state engineer or the division engineer in the district in which such reservoirs are located shall have the authority to cause the release of water stored therein for domestic and municipal purposes in time of scarcity. All expenses occasioned by the release of such waters for said purposes shall be borne by the counties or the beneficiaries of such releases, and said reservoirs, when refilled in priority, shall be restocked at the expense of the county or the beneficiary of said release.

37-88-110. Monument lake dam and reservoir - transfer of title - ownership and control. (1) Upon completion of the repair described in subsection (2) of this section, the governor is hereby authorized to execute a deed of conveyance to the town of Monument of all the right, title, and interest of the state of Colorado in and to the structure known as Monument lake dam located in El Paso county.

(2) The transfer of title to Monument lake dam pursuant to subsection (1) of this section shall not occur until such time as the dam is repaired to the satisfaction of the state engineer's office and other governmental entities with applicable jurisdiction. The town of Monument and El Paso county are jointly responsible for financing the repair of Monument lake dam and are authorized to apply for financial assistance from the Colorado water resources and power development authority established in article 95 of this title, the Colorado water conservation board established in article 60 of this title, and from any other appropriate state, federal, or private source.

(3) As there are no adjudicated water rights to Monument lake reservoir, upon the transfer of title to Monument lake dam pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, the town of Monument may acquire and assume the duties and responsibilities relating to the storage of water in Monument lake reservoir.

(4) Upon the transfer of title to Monument lake dam pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, the town of Monument shall assume all liability and responsibility relating to the control, management, and maintenance of Monument lake dam and reservoir, and at such time the board of county commissioners of El Paso county shall be relieved from all responsibilities relating to Monument lake reservoir pursuant to section 37-88-109.

37-89-102.	Jurisdiction of county court.	37-89-104.	Jurisdiction of county court.

37-89-101. Penalty for cutting or breaking gate, bank, flume. Any person who knowingly and willfully cuts, digs, breaks down, or opens any gate, bank, embankment, or side of any ditch, canal, flume, feeder, or reservoir, or who knowingly and willfully breaks, cuts, checks, or otherwise interferes with the flow of water in any drainage ditch, box drain, or tile drain, or any manhole, or other opening in any box drain or tile drain, in which such person may be a joint owner, or which may be the property of another, or in the lawful possession of another and used for the purpose of drainage, irrigation, manufacturing, mining, or domestic purposes, with intent to injure any person, association, or corporation, or for personal gain, unlawfully, with intent of stealing, taking, or causing to run or pour out of or into such ditch, canal, reservoir, feeder, flume, drainage ditch, box drain, or tile drain any water for personal profit, benefit, or advantage, or with intent to check or change the flow in any such ditch, canal, feeder, flume, drainage ditch, box drain, or tile drain, to the injury of any other person, association, or corporation, lawfully in the use of such water or of such ditch, canal, reservoir, feeder, flume, drainage ditch, box drain, or tile drain, is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than seven hundred fifty dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than ninety days. The court shall further order that such person make full restitution to the victim of his or her conduct for the actual damages that were sustained. The amount of such restitution shall be equal to the actual pecuniary damages sustained by the victim. The court shall fix the manner and time in which such restitution shall be made.

ANNOTATION

The county court has general jurisdiction in cases of misdemeanor including the offense of interference with a headgate. Lambert v. People, 78 Colo. 313, 241 P. 533 (1925).

In a prosecution for changing a headgate, the fact that some other person had previously interfered with it, gave defendant no right to interfere, unless possibly to restore it to the official setting. Lambert v. People, 78 Colo. 313, 241 P. 533 (1925).

The decrees of water priorities cannot be attacked in a criminal prosecution for interfering with headgates. Lambert v. People, 78 Colo. 313, 241 P. 533 (1925).

37-90-102. Legislative declaration. (1) It is declared that the traditional policy of the state of Colorado, requiring the water resources of this state to be devoted to beneficial use in reasonable amounts through appropriation, is affirmed with respect to the designated ground waters of this state, as said waters are defined in section 37-90-103 (6). While the doctrine of prior appropriation is recognized, such doctrine should be modified to permit the full economic development of designated ground water resources. Prior appropriations of ground water should be protected and reasonable ground water pumping levels maintained, but not to include the maintenance of historical water levels. All designated ground waters in this state are therefore declared to be subject to appropriation in the manner defined in this article.

(2) The general assembly finds and declares that the allocation of nontributary ground water pursuant to statute is based upon the best available evidence at this time. The general assembly recognizes the unique, finite nature of nontributary ground water resources outside of designated ground water basins and declares that such nontributary ground water shall be devoted to beneficial use in amounts based upon conservation of the resource and protection of vested water rights. Economic development of this resource shall allow for the reduction of hydrostatic pressure levels and aquifer water levels consistent with the protection of appropriative rights in the natural stream system. The doctrine of prior appropriation shall not apply to nontributary ground water. To continue the development of nontributary ground water resources consonant with conservation shall be the policy of this state. Such water shall be allocated as provided in this article upon the basis of ownership of the overlying land. This policy is a reasonable exercise of the general assembly’s plenary power over this resource.

Article not unconstitutional in violation of §§ 5 and 6 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., insofar as said act applies to tributary ground water. Kuiper v. Lundvall, 187 Colo. 40, 529 P.2d 1328 (1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 996, 95 S. Ct. 2391, 44 L.Ed.2d 663 (1975).

Article is not unconstitutional on theory that it delegates judicial functions to an administrative agency of the executive branch of the government. Kuiper v. Lundvall, 187 Colo. 40, 529 P.2d 1328 (1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 996, 95 S. Ct. 2391, 44 L.Ed.2d 663 (1975).

This article is not unconstitutional on theory that it bestows powers upon the state engineer and the Colorado ground water commission to grant or refuse a permit to drill a well thereby giving them, in effect, the authority to adjudicate a water right. Kuiper v. Lundvall, 187 Colo. 40, 529 P.2d 1328 (1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 996, 95 S. Ct. 2391, 44 L. Ed.2d 663 (1975).

If a plaintiff were permitted to proceed on a theory of "unappropriated water" under § 6 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., and pump water from his proposed well until such time as it was no longer economically feasible to withdraw water from the aquifer, then no subsequent regulation of his pumping could protect senior appropriators, and all pumping from the basin within the area of influence of the plaintiff's well would have to cease until a reasonable pumping level was restored through the slow process of recharge, and this is not the concept of appropriation contained in this section, and not the one the supreme court will follow.

Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

This act is an attempt to permit the full development of ground water sources and alleviate the growing friction between surface water appropriators and well owners. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Prior appropriation rules for surface water are primarily designed and developed to protect the relative rights of senior and junior appropriators, in order to maximize the beneficial use of the surface water. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

This act creates in the owner of overlying land an inchoate right to control and use a specified amount of nontributary ground water. The right may vest upon construction of a well in accordance with a permit from the state engineer or by adjudication in the water court. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

In view of the clearly expressed legislative intent to permit adjudication for future uses without a corresponding obligation to develop them, anti-speculation doctrine does not apply to a judicial determination of available nontributary ground water, because a structure to withdraw nontributary ground water may not be constructed without satisfying the state engineer of a non-speculative, beneficial use to which the water will be put. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

Designated ground water treated differently. Although designated ground water in the Denver basin aquifers is allocated on the basis of overlying land ownership, in the manner of nontributary ground water, it is regulated by the state ground water commission, which has the dual responsibility of determining availability and issuing permits for its withdrawal. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

The general assembly chose a modified system of prior appropriation for the establishment and administration of rights to use designated ground water in order to: (1) Permit full economic development of designated ground water resources; (2) protect prior appropriations of designated ground water; and (3) protect and maintain reasonable ground water pumping levels. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

The court and the Colorado ground water commission derive their authority to pass on an application to drill a well on certain property from this section (formerly Senate Bill 367), which deals with captive ground water.

Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

This act separates certain water termed "designated ground water" from the system of appropriation for surface water systems, and it creates a permit system for the allocation and use of ground waters within designated ground water basins. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Provisions create conceptual framework for appropriation and administration of ground and tributary water. The Colorado Ground Water Management Act, §§ 37-90-101 et seq., and the Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969, §§ 37-92-101 et seq., create a conceptual framework which provide for the appropriation and administration of designated ground water under the management act, and the appropriation and administration of all tributary water, except that which may be included in the definition of "designated ground water", under the 1969 act. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Ground water existing in designated underground water basins is made subject to the doctrine of prior appropriation. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

Because one's right to water is determined by priority of appropriation which is based on a beneficial use of the water, plaintiff's claim that she is entitled to ownership of the water rights by virtue of her co-tenancy in the overlying land fails. Farmer v. Farmer, 720 P.2d 174 (Colo. App. 1986).

Priority of claims for appropriating ground water determined by modified prior appropriation doctrine. The priority of claims for the appropriation of designated ground water is to be determined by the doctrine of prior appropriation, as modified to permit full economic development of the designated ground water resources. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Vickroy decision not retrospectively applied. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy (627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981)) should not be retrospectively applied to those decrees involving well permits in designated ground water basins issued prior to the Vickroy decision. Ground Water Comm'n v. Shanks, 658 P.2d 847 (Colo. 1983).

The general assembly has plenary power over the allocation and use of nontributary water and may subject the vesting of use rights in such water to whatever requirements it may design. A deed purporting to transfer nontributary water rights may not negate the application of legislative choices to an inchoate right. Chatfield East Well Co. v.

Chatfield East Prop. Owners Ass'n, 956 P.2d 1260 (Colo. 1998).

Appropriators of the "designated ground waters" are required to obtain a permit for their appropriations and the act establish a system of prior appropriation, similar in operation to the system regulating surface water rights, to regulate the water rights of the ground water users. Jackson v. Colo. 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Relief involving taking ground water sought first under ground water provisions. It is appropriate, as a matter of policy, and is consistent with legislative intent, to require that any relief sought which involves the taking of ground water in a designated ground water basin must be sought first through the administrative and judicial channels, as appropriate, prescribed for resolution of questions arising under this article. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Underground water basins require management that is different from the management of surface streams and underground waters tributary to such streams. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

General assembly has provided means to obtain maximum utilization of water resources. Kuiper v. Lundvall, 187 Colo. 40, 529 P.2d 1328 (1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 996, 95 S. Ct. 2391, 44 L.Ed.2d 663 (1975).

The underground water dealt with by this section is not subject to the same ready replenishment enjoyed by surface streams and tributary ground water. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

While protecting against depletion of underground aquifer. Colorado's permit system for regulation of the appropriation of water in designated ground water basins under this article permits the full development of ground water sources while protecting against depletion of the underground aquifer, which is not subject to the same ready recharge enjoyed by surface streams and tributary ground water. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

This section is designed to protect prior appropriations of ground water while, at the same time, insuring that reasonable ground water pumping levels are maintained. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

The principles underlying the doctrine of prior appropriation are applicable to a designated ground water basin, modified only by the policy against any unreasonable depletion of the aquifer in the basin. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

The policies of protecting senior appropriators and maintaining reasonable ground water pumping levels set forth by the underground water act require management which takes into account the long-range effects of intermittent pumping in the aquifer. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

Duties of commission. The ground water commission must protect senior appropriators against unreasonable injury, foster the full economic development of designated ground water resources, and conserve designated ground water resources. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978); Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. Dreiling, 198 Colo. 560, 606 P.2d 836 (1979).

In the case of surface streams and underground waters tributary to such streams, seasonal regulation of diversion by junior appropriators can effectively protect the interests of more senior appropriators and no long-range harm can come of overappropriations since the streams are subject to seasonal recharge. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

When water is being mined from the ground water basin, and a proposed appro- priation would result in unreasonable harm to senior appropriators, then a determination that there is no water available for appropriation is justified. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

Review provisions in ground water management act apply only to review by commission of promulgation and adoption by local management districts of proposed regulations and control measures generally applicable rather than individual actions taken by districts concerning interpretation, and district court in county in which wells were located, rather than commission, had jurisdiction. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

For case construing the former 1957 Colorado ground water act, see Whitten v. Coit, 153 Colo. 157, 385 P.2d 131 (1963).

37-90-103. Definitions - repeal. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Alternate point of diversion well" means any well drilled and used, in addition to an original well or other diversion, for the purpose of obtaining the present appropriation of that original well, from more than one point of diversion.

(2) "Aquifer" means a formation, group of formations, or part of a formation containing sufficient saturated permeable material that could yield a sufficient quantity of water that may be extracted and applied to a beneficial use.

(3) "Artesian well" means a well tapping an aquifer in which the static water level in the well rises above where it was first encountered in the aquifer, due to hydrostatic pressure.

(4) "Board" or "board of directors" means the board of directors of a ground water management district as organized under section 37-90-124.

(5) "Colorado water conservation board" refers to the board created in section 37-60-102.

(6) (a) "Designated ground water" means that ground water which in its natural course would not be available to and required for the fulfillment of decreed surface rights, or ground water in areas not adjacent to a continuously flowing natural stream wherein ground water withdrawals have constituted the principal water usage for at least fifteen years preceding the date of the first hearing on the proposed designation of the basin, and which in both cases is within the geographic boundaries of a designated ground water basin. "Designated ground water" shall not include any ground water within the Dawson-Arkose, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills formation located outside the boundaries of any designated ground water basin that was in existence on January 1, 1983.

(b) (I) However, "designated ground water" may include any ground water in the Crow Creek drainage area in Weld county, upstream from the confluence of Crow Creek and Little Crow Creek, within the Laramie-Fox Hills formation located outside such boundaries when the Laramie-Fox Hills formation is not overlaid by the Dawson-Arkose, Denver, or Arapahoe formations.

(II) If, upon receipt by the state engineer of the findings of the Laramie-Fox Hills study, as authorized by Senate Bill 250, 1985 legislative session, that the upper Crow Creek drainage area in Weld county, upstream from the confluence of Crow Creek and Little Crow Creek, within the Laramie-Fox Hills formation when the Laramie-Fox Hills formation is not overlaid by the Dawson-Arkose, Denver, or Arapahoe formations should not be a designated ground water basin, this paragraph (b) is repealed.

(7) "Designated ground water basin" means that area established by the ground water commission in accordance with section 37-90-106.

(8) "Ground water commission" or "commission" refers to the ground water commission created and provided for in section 37-90-104 to facilitate the functioning of this article.

(9) "Ground water management district" or "district" means any district organized under the provisions of this article.

(10) "Historical water level" means the average elevation of the ground water level in any area before being lowered by the activities of man, as nearly as can be determined from scientific investigation and available facts.

(10.5) "Nontributary ground water" means that ground water, located outside the boundaries of any designated ground water basins in existence on January 1, 1985, the withdrawal of which will not, within one hundred years of continuous withdrawal, deplete the flow of a natural stream, including a natural stream as defined in sections 37-82-101 (2) and 37-92-102 (1) (b), at an annual rate greater than one-tenth of one percent of the annual rate of withdrawal. The determination of whether ground water is nontributary shall be based on aquifer conditions existing at the time of permit application; except that, in recognition of the de minimis amount of water discharging from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers into surface streams due to artesian pressure, when compared with the great economic importance of the ground water in those aquifers, and the feasibility and requirement of full augmentation by wells located in the tributary portions of those aquifers, it is specifically found and declared that, in determining whether ground water of the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers is nontributary, it shall be assumed that the hydrostatic pressure level in each such aquifer has been lowered at least to the top of that aquifer throughout that aquifer; except that not nontributary ground water, as defined in subsection (10.7) of this section, in the Denver basin shall not become nontributary ground water as a result of the aquifer's hydrostatic pressure level dropping below the alluvium of an adjacent stream due to Denver basin well pumping activity. Nothing in this subsection (10.5) shall preclude the designation of any aquifer or basin, or any portion thereof, which is otherwise eligible for designation under the standard set forth in subsection (6) of this section relating to ground water in areas not adjacent to a continuously flowing natural stream wherein ground water withdrawals have constituted the principal water usage for at least fifteen years preceding the date of the first hearing on the proposed designation of a basin.

(10.7) "Not nontributary ground water" means ground water located within those portions of the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers that are outside the boundaries of any designated ground water basin in existence on January 1, 1985, the withdrawal of which will, within one hundred years, deplete the flow of a natural stream, including a natural stream as defined in sections 37-82-101 (2) and 37-92-102 (1) (b), at an annual rate of greater than one-tenth of one percent of the annual rate of withdrawal.

(10.9) "Oil and gas well" means a well permitted by the Colorado oil and gas conservation commission or a well authorized by a federal or tribal entity for the primary purpose of mining, including exploration or production, of petroleum products.

(11) "Person" means any individual, partnership, association, or corporation authorized to do business in the state of Colorado, or any political subdivision or public agency thereof, or any agency of the United States, making a beneficial use, or taking steps, or doing work preliminary to making a beneficial use of designated underground waters of Colorado.

(12) "Private driller" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, political subdivision, or public agency which operates as lessee or owner its own well drilling rig and equipment and which digs, drills, re-drills, cases, recases, deepens, or excavates a well upon the property of such entity.

(12.5) "Quarter-quarter" means a fourth of a fourth of a section of land and is equal to approximately forty acres.

(12.7) "Replacement plan" means a detailed program to increase the supply of water available for beneficial use in a designated ground water basin or portion thereof for the purpose of preventing material injury to other water rights by the development of new points of diversion, by pooling of water resources, by water exchange projects, by providing substitute supplies of water, by the development of new sources of water, or by any other appropriate means consistent with the rules adopted by the commission. "Replacement plan" does not include the salvage of designated ground water by the eradication of phreatophytes, nor does it include the use of precipitation water collected from land surfaces that have been made impermeable, thereby increasing the runoff, but not adding to the existing supply of water.

(13) "Replacement well" means a new well which replaces an existing well and which shall be limited to the yield of the original well and shall take the date of priority of the original well, which shall be abandoned upon completion of the new well.

(14) "Resident agriculturist" means a bona fide farmer or rancher residing in the designated ground water basin whose major source of income is derived from the production and sale of agricultural products.

(15) "State engineer" means the state engineer of Colorado or any person deputized by him in writing to perform a duty or exercise a right granted in this article.

(16) "Subdivision" means an area within a ground water basin.

(17) "Supplemental well" means any well drilled and used, in addition to an original well or other diversion, for the purpose of obtaining the quantity of the original appropriation of the original well, which quantity can no longer be obtained from the original well.

(18) "Taxpaying elector" means a person qualified to vote at general elections in Colorado, who owns real or personal property within the district and has paid ad valorem taxes thereon in the twenty months immediately preceding a designated time or event, which property is subject to taxation at the time of any election held under the provisions of this article or at any other time in reference to which the term "taxpaying elector" is used. A person who is obligated to pay taxes under a contract to purchase real property in the district shall be considered an owner. The ownership of any property subject to the payment of a specific ownership tax on a motor vehicle or trailer or of any other excise or property tax other than general ad valorem property taxes shall not constitute the ownership of property subject to taxation as provided in this article.

(19) "Underground water" and "ground water" are used interchangeably in this article and mean any water not visible on the surface of the ground under natural conditions.

(20) "Waste" means causing, suffering, or permitting any well to discharge water unnecessarily above or below the surface of the ground.

(21) (a) "Well" means any structure or device used for the purpose or with the effect of obtaining ground water for beneficial use from an aquifer. Well includes an augmentation well that diverts ground water tributary to the South Platte river and delivers it to a surface stream, ditch, canal, reservoir, or recharge facility to replace out-of-priority stream depletions, or to meet South Platte river compact obligations, either directly or by recharge accretions, as part of a plan for augmentation approved by the water judge for water division 1 or a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to section 37-92-308.

(b) "Well" does not include a naturally flowing spring or springs where the natural spring discharge is captured or concentrated by installation of a near-surface structure or device less than ten feet in depth located at or within fifty feet of the spring or springs' natural discharge point and the water is conveyed directly by gravity flow or into a separate sump or storage, if the owner obtains a water right for such structure or device as a spring pursuant to article 92 of this title.

(22) "Well driller" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, political subdivision, or public agency which digs, drills, cases, recases, deepens, or excavates a well either by contract or for hire or for any consideration whatsoever.

Commission to categorize ground water as "underground water" or "designated ground water". The general assembly left categorization of ground water as "underground water" or as "designated ground water" as a factual matter to be resolved by the ground water commission when it established designated ground water basins. Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

Tributary character of water held to meet definition of "designated ground water". Kuiper v. Lundvall, 187 Colo. 40, 529 P.2d 1328 (1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 996, 95 S. Ct. 2391, 44 L. Ed.2d 663 (1975).

Applications for appropriating designated ground water committed to commission's jurisdiction. Applications for the appropriation of designated ground water to a beneficial use are committed to the jurisdiction of the ground water commission. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Vickroy decision not retrospectively applied. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy (627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981)) should not be retrospectively applied to those decrees involving well permits in designated ground water basins issued prior to the Vickroy decision. Ground Water Comm'n v. Shanks, 658 P.2d 847 (Colo. 1983).

Under the definition of nontributary groundwater under subsection (10.5), whether groundwater is nontributary is not dependent upon the quantitative effect that a well has on a stream but rather upon the annual withdrawal rate and a measure of the relationship between that rate and the resulting stream depletions. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

Subsection (10.5) is not a useful tool for evaluating the significance of the effect that stream depletions will have on vested rights and does not determine the injurious nature of a withdrawal. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

The 1996 amendments to the definition of nontributary groundwater were specifically tailored to address issues raised in previous court cases, thus demonstrating clear legislative intent that the amended definition should apply to pending decrees and permit applications. Chatfield East Well Co. v. Chatfield East Prop. Owners Ass'n, 956 P.2d 1260 (Colo. 1998).

Unconfined aquifer found to be part of a natural surface stream within the meaning of subsection (10.5). Am. Water Development, Inc. v. City of Alamosa, 874 P.2d 352 (Colo. 1994).

Amount of surface stream depletion alone does not determine whether water is nontributary under the meaning of subsection (10.5). The underflow and tributary waters of streams described in the natural stream legislation are included as part of the natural streams and the effect on such underflow and tributary waters must be considered in determining whether ground water to be withdrawn is nontributary. Am. Water Development, Inc. v. City of Alamosa, 874 P.2d 352 (Colo. 1994).

Not nontributary ground water is limited to aquifers in the Denver basin, and the Laramie-Fox aquifer located in Park county therefore cannot be not nontributary ground water. Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch LLP v. Bargas, 986 P.2d 262 (Colo. 1999).

Gravel pits which will be reclaimed by being filled with ground water obtained from an aquifer are "wells" under the statutory definition of the term. Three Bells Ranch v. Cache La Poudre, 758 P.2d 164 (Colo. 1988); Zigan Sand & Gravel v. Cache Le Poudre, 758 P.2d 175 (Colo. 1988).

A permit is required for the extraction of methane from coal beds because such an oil and gas well has the effect of obtaining ground water for beneficial use, and is therefore a "well" as defined in this article notwithstanding the Colorado oil and gas commission's exclusive jurisdiction over oil and gas operations. Vance v. Wolfe, 205 P.3d 1165 (Colo. 2009).

Replaced wells must be abandoned. The statutory definition of "replacement well" imposes the obligation to abandon replaced wells upon completion of replacement wells. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981).

Because no prior supreme court decision mandates that a well owner's replaced wells be plugged according to administrative regulations, the water court must exercise its own discretion, as limited by statutes, supreme court decisions, and particular facts of the case, to determine whether to require the well owner to plug his replaced wells. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 695 P.2d 1136 (Colo. 1985).

Judgment upheld designating area as ground water basin. Hayes v. State, 178 Colo. 447, 498 P.2d 1119 (1972).

Applied in Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. Dreiling, 198 Colo. 560, 606 P.2d 836 (1979).

37-90-104. Commission - organization - expenses. (1) There is created a ground water commission to consist of twelve members, nine of whom shall be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate.

(2) The appointed members of the commission holding office as of July 1, 1971, shall continue in office for the term of their appointment and until their successors are appointed.

(3) (a) All appointments to the commission shall be for four-year terms, except those made to fill vacancies, which shall be for the remainder of the term vacated.

(b) Appointments made after July 1, 1971, as terms expire or are vacated, shall be made so that the commission includes six members who are resident agriculturists of designated ground water basins, with no more than two resident agriculturists from the same ground water basin to be members of the commission at the same time; one member who shall be a resident agriculturist and who shall be appointed from water division 3; and two residents of the state who shall represent municipal or industrial water users of the state, one of whom shall be appointed from the area west of the continental divide.

(4) In addition to the appointed members, the executive director of the department of natural resources shall be a voting member, and the state engineer, and the director of the Colorado water conservation board shall be nonvoting members of the commission. Six voting members shall constitute a quorum at any regularly or specially called meeting of the commission, and a majority vote of those present shall rule. The commission shall establish and maintain a schedule of at least four general meetings each year. The chairman, at his discretion, or two members may call special meetings of the commission to dispose of accumulated business.

(5) Members of the commission shall be paid no compensation but shall be paid actual necessary expenses incurred by them in the performance of their duties as members thereof and a per diem of fifty dollars per day while performing official duties, not to exceed two thousand four hundred dollars in any year.

(6) The commission shall biennially select a chair and vice-chair from among the appointed members. The state engineer shall be ex officio the executive director of the commission and shall carry out and enforce the decisions, orders, and policies of the commission. The commission may delegate to the executive director the authority to perform any of the functions of the commission as set forth in this article except the determination of a designated ground water basin as set forth in section 37-90-106 and the creation of ground water management districts. If any person is dissatisfied with any action of the executive director under the exercise of the powers delegated by the commission, the person may appeal said action to the commission, which shall hear the person's appeals as specified in sections 37-90-113 and 37-90-114.

(7) The provisions of section 24-6-402 (3) (a) (II), C.R.S., concerning imminent court action, as applied to the ground water commission and to any member, employee, contractor, agent, servant, attorney, or consultant thereof, shall not include any actions within the scope of sections 37-90-106 to 37-90-109 and section 37-90-111.

ANNOTATION

Applied in Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982); Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

37-90-105. Small capacity wells. (1) The state engineer has the authority to approve permits for the following types of wells and to allow the following types of rooftop precipitation collection systems in designated ground water basins without regard to any other provisions of this article:

(a) Wells not exceeding fifty gallons per minute and used for no more than three single-family dwellings, including the normal operations associated with such dwellings but not including the irrigation of more than one acre of land;

(b) Wells not exceeding fifty gallons per minute and used for watering of livestock on range and pasture;

(c) (I) One well not exceeding fifty gallons per minute and used in one commercial business.

(II) To qualify as a "commercial business" under this paragraph (c), the business shall be:

(A) A business that will be operated by the well owner and that will have its own books, bank accounts, checking accounts, and separate tax returns;

(B) A business that will use water solely on the land indicated in the permit for the well and for the purposes stated in such permit;

(C) A business that will maintain its individual assets and will own or lease the property on which the well is to be located or where the business is operated;

(D) A business that will have its own contractual agreements for operation of the business;

(E) A business that agrees not to transfer a permit issued under this paragraph (c) to another entity that also holds a small capacity commercial well permit under this paragraph (c); and

(F) A business that agrees to notify any potential buyer that such buyer shall notify the state engineer of any change in ownership of such business within sixty days after any such change in ownership.

(d) Wells to be used exclusively for monitoring and observation purposes if said wells are capped and locked and used only to monitor water levels or for water quality sampling;

(e) Wells to be used exclusively for fire-fighting purposes if said wells are capped and locked and available for use only in fighting fires; or

(f) (I) Any system or method of collecting precipitation from the roof of a building that is used primarily as a residence and is not served by, whether or not connected to, a domestic water system that serves more than three single-family dwellings, but only if the use of the water so collected is limited to one or more of the following:

(A) Ordinary household purposes;

(B) Fire protection;

(C) The watering of poultry, domestic animals, and livestock on farms and ranches; or

(D) The irrigation of not more than one acre of gardens and lawns.

(II) On and after July 1, 2009, any person wishing to use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture that meets the requirements of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (f) shall comply with one of the following provisions:

(A) A person who has a well permit issued or recorded pursuant to this section and who intends to use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture that qualifies under subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (f) shall file, on a form prescribed by the state engineer and consistent with this section, a notice and description of the system or method of rooftop precipitation capture to be used in conjunction with the well. No fee shall be charged for the filing of this form.

(B) A person who applies for a new well permit pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (1) and who intends to use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture that qualifies under subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (f) shall include on the well permit application a description of the system or method of rooftop precipitation capture to be used in conjunction with the well. An applicant under this sub-subparagraph (B) shall pay the well permit application fee pursuant to sub-subparagraph (C) of subparagraph (I) of paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section; however, such applicant shall not be required to pay any additional application fee for the rooftop precipitation collection system.

(C) A person who does not intend to construct and use a well, but would otherwise be entitled to the issuance of a well permit pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (1), shall submit an application in the form and manner designated by the state engineer for a permit to install and use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture and pay a fee in an amount to be determined by the state engineer. If the state engineer determines that the proposed system or method of rooftop precipitation capture meets the requirements of this paragraph (f), the state engineer shall issue a permit for the system or method, but not otherwise. The state engineer shall enforce the provisions of the permit in the same manner as the enforcement of any well permit issued pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (1).

(III) A person using or legally entitled to use a well pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (1) shall be allowed to collect rooftop precipitation pursuant to this paragraph (f) only for use by the same dwellings that are or would be served by the well and subject to all of the limitations on use contained in the well permit or, in the absence of a well permit, the well permit to which the person would be legally entitled, as determined by the state engineer or as otherwise limited by the board of a ground water management district pursuant to subsection (7) of this section.

(2) The state engineer has the authority to adopt rules in accordance with section 24-4-103, C.R.S., to carry out the provisions of this section. Any party adversely affected or aggrieved by a rule adopted by the state engineer may seek judicial review of such action pursuant to section 24-4-106, C.R.S.

(3) (a) (I) (A) and (B) Repealed.

(C) Effective July 1, 2006, wells of the type described in this section may be constructed only upon the issuance of a permit in accordance with the provisions of this section. A fee of one hundred dollars shall accompany any application for a new well permit under this section. A fee of sixty dollars shall accompany any application for a replacement well of the type described in subsection (1) of this section.

(II) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

(b) Beginning on August 5, 1998, the state engineer shall not approve a permit for a small capacity well with an annual volume of use in excess of five acre-feet, unless the well is located in a ground water management district that has adopted rules that allow an annual volume in excess of five acre-feet. This limitation shall not apply to a replacement permit for a well where the original permit allows an annual volume of use in excess of five acre-feet or to a permit for a well covered by the provisions of subsection (4) of this section where the actual annual volume of use was in excess of five acre-feet.

(c) If the application is made pursuant to this section for a well that will be located in a subdivision, as defined in section 30-28-101 (10), C.R.S., and approved on or after June 1, 1972, pursuant to article 28 of title 30, C.R.S., for which the water supply plan has not been recommended for approval by the state engineer, the cumulative effect of all such wells in the subdivision shall be considered in determining material injury, and the state engineer shall deny the application if it is determined that the proposed well will cause material injury to existing water rights.

(d) (I) If any person wishes to replace an existing well of the type described in subsection (1) of this section, such person shall file an application pursuant to this subsection (3) for the construction of a well and shall state in such application such person's intent to abandon the existing well that is to be replaced.

(II) If such a replacement well will not change the amount or type of use of water that can lawfully be made by means of the existing well, a permit to construct and use the replacement well shall be issued, and the existing well shall be abandoned within ninety days after the completion of the replacement well.

(e) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, wells for which permits have been granted or may be granted shall be constructed within two years after the permit is issued, which time may be extended for successive years at the discretion of the state engineer for good cause shown.

(4) (a) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, any wells of the type described by this section that were put to beneficial use prior to May 8, 1972, and any wells that were used exclusively for monitoring and observation purposes prior to August 1, 1988, not of record in the office of the state engineer, may be recorded in that office upon written application, payment of a processing fee of one hundred dollars, and permit approval. The record shall include the date the water is claimed to have been first put to beneficial use.

(b) Any owner of an existing well that was constructed prior to May 8, 1972, or has a well permit issued prior to January 1, 1996, under the provisions of this section, and that was put to beneficial use for watering livestock in a confined animal-feeding operation prior to January 1, 1996, and has been used for that purpose, may apply by December 31, 1999, to obtain a new permit for that well up to the extent of its beneficial use prior to January 1, 1996, for watering livestock in that commercial business pursuant to paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section. Such well shall be in addition to the one commercial business well allowed in paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section. Such an application shall include a sixty dollar filing fee and shall provide documentation of the annual volume of water put to beneficial use from the well. The state engineer shall have the authority to determine the adequacy of the submitted information for the purpose of approving completely, approving in part, or denying the application. Permits issued after January 1, 1996, up to August 5, 1998, shall remain valid thereafter according to the terms and conditions of those permits.

(5) The state engineer shall act upon an application filed under this section within forty-five days after such filing and shall support the ruling with a written statement of the basis therefor.

(6) (a) Any person aggrieved by a decision of the state engineer granting or denying an application under this section may request a hearing before the state engineer pursuant to section 24-4-104, C.R.S. The state engineer may, in the state engineer's discretion, have such hearings conducted before such agent as it may designate for a ruling in the matter. Any party who seeks to reverse or modify the ruling of the agent of the state engineer may file an appeal to the state engineer pursuant to section 24-4-105, C.R.S.

(b) Any party aggrieved by a final decision of the state engineer granting or denying an application filed under this section may within thirty days after such decision file a petition for review with the district court in the county in which the well is located. Upon receipt of such petition, the designated ground water judge for the basin in which the well is located shall conduct such hearings, pursuant to section 24-4-106, C.R.S., as necessary to determine whether or not the decision of the state engineer shall be upheld. In any case in which the state engineer's decision is reversed, the judge shall order the state engineer to grant or deny the application, as such reversal may require, and may specify such terms and conditions as are appropriate.

(7) The board of any ground water management district has the authority to adopt rules that further restrict the issuance of small capacity well permits and use of rooftop precipitation collection systems. In addition, the board of any ground water management district has the authority to adopt rules that expand the acre-foot limitations for small capacity wells set forth in this section. However, in no event shall an annual volume of more than eighty acre-feet be allowed for any small capacity well. Rules adopted by the board may be instituted only after a public hearing. Notice of such hearing shall be published. Such notice shall state the time and place of the hearing and describe, in general terms, the rules proposed. Within sixty days after such hearing, the board shall announce the rules adopted and shall cause notice of such action to be published. In addition, the board shall mail, within five days after the adoption of the rules, a copy of the rules to the state engineer. Any party adversely affected or aggrieved by such a rule may, not later than thirty days after the last date of publication, initiate judicial review in accordance with the provisions of section 24-4-106, C.R.S.; except that venue for such judicial review shall be in the district court for the county in which the office of the ground water management district is located.

ANNOTATION

The "quantity of existing claims" which must be considered by the ground water commission is the sum of all water rights which have been appropriated and those water rights which are in the process of being appropriated under conditional permits. Thompson v. Colo. Ground

Judgment upheld designating area as ground water basin. Hayes v. State, 178 Colo. 447, 498 P.2d 1119 (1972).

37-90-106. Determination of designated groundwater basins - exception - legislative declaration - repeal. (1) (a) The commission shall, from time to time as adequate factual data become available, determine designated groundwater basins and subdivisions thereof by geographic description. If factual data obtained after the designation of a groundwater basin justify, the commission may alter the boundaries or description of that designated groundwater basin by adding lands to the basin. After a determination of a designated groundwater basin becomes final, the commission may alter the boundaries to exclude lands from that basin only if factual data justify the alteration and the alteration would not exclude from the designated groundwater basin any well for which a conditional or final permit to use designated groundwater has been issued. The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that allowing alterations to exclude lands from a designated groundwater basin only under such circumstances as set forth in this paragraph (a) reaffirms, rather than alters, the general assembly's original intent that there be a cut-off date beyond which the legal status of groundwater included in a designated groundwater basin cannot be challenged, and that such cut-off date was intended to be the date of finality for the original designation of the basin. After this cut-off date has passed, any request to exclude wells that are permitted to use designated groundwater from an existing groundwater basin shall constitute an impermissible collateral attack on the original decision to designate the basin.

(a.5) Nothing in Senate Bill 10-052, enacted in 2010, shall affect litigation brought under this section that is pending on January 1, 2010.

(b) In making such determinations the commission shall make the following findings:

(I) The name of the aquifer within the proposed designated basin;

(II) The boundaries of each aquifer being considered;

(III) The estimated quantity of water stored in each aquifer;

(IV) The estimated annual rate of recharge;

(V) The estimated use of the ground water in the area.

(2) If the source is an area of use exceeding fifteen years as defined in section 37-90-103 (6), the commission shall list those users who have been withdrawing water during the fifteen-year period, the use made of the water, the average annual quantity of water withdrawn, and the year in which the user began to withdraw water.

(3) Before determining or altering the boundaries of a designated ground water basin or subdivisions thereof, the state engineer shall prepare and file in his office a map clearly showing all lands included therein, together with a written description thereof sufficient to apprise interested parties of the boundaries of the proposed basin or subdivisions thereof. The commission shall publish the same and hold a hearing thereon. Following such hearing, the commission shall enter an order to either create the proposed designated ground water basin, to include modification of the proposed boundaries, if any, or dismiss the original proposal, according to the factual information presented or available.

(4) (a) The commission shall not, after May 23, 1983, determine as part of any designated ground water basin any ground water within the Dawson-Arkose, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills formations which was located outside the boundaries of any designated ground water basin that was in existence on January 1, 1983.

(b) (I) However, the commission may determine as a part of any designated ground water basin any ground water in the Crow Creek drainage area in Weld county, upstream from the confluence of Crow Creek and Little Crow Creek, within the Laramie-Fox Hills formation when the Laramie-Fox Hills formation is not overlaid by the Dawson-Arkose, Denver, or Arapahoe formations.

(II) If, upon receipt by the state engineer of the findings of the Laramie-Fox Hills study, as authorized by Senate Bill 250, 1985 legislative session, that the upper Crow Creek drainage area in Weld county, upstream from the confluence of Crow Creek and Little Crow Creek, within the Laramie-Fox Hills formation when the Laramie-Fox Hills formation is not overlaid by the Dawson-Arkose, Denver, or Arapahoe formations should not be a designated ground water basin, this paragraph (b) is repealed.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Ground Water Mining Law and Policy", see 53 U. Colo. L. Rev. 505 (1982).

By terms of the act, administration and enforcement are placed in the ground water commission, the state engineer, and locally formed ground water management districts; the ground water commission, composed of twelve voting members, possesses the authority to create "designated ground water basins". North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Commission to categorize ground water as “underground water” or “designated ground water”. The general assembly left categorization of ground water as “underground water” or as “designated ground water” as a factual matter to be resolved by the ground water commission when it established designated ground water basins. Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

Commission is appropriate forum. The ground water commission is the appropriate forum for determining whether disputed ground water is designated ground water located in a designated ground water basin. Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

Not all water in basin conclusively ground water. The creation of a designated ground water basin does not establish conclusively that all ground water in the basin is designated ground water. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

The burden of proving water not ground water upon proponent. After the creation of a designated ground water basin, the proponent of the proposition that certain ground water within the basin is not designated ground water has the burden of proving that proposition. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

The ground water commission’s jurisdiction over surface water rights is limited to altering a designated ground water basin’s boundaries to exclude any ground water hydrologically connected to the surface water rights that the commission improperly included in the designated ground water basin. The commission must so alter the boundaries upon a showing that pumping the ground water has more than a de minimis impact on the surface rights and is injuring the rights. The state engineer and the water courts then have jurisdiction over the ground water. Gallegos v. Colo. Ground Water Comm’n, 147 P.3d 20 (Colo. 2006).

37-90-107. Application for use of ground water - publication of notice - conditional permit - hearing on objections - well permits. (1) Any person desiring to appropriate ground water for a beneficial use in a designated ground water basin shall make application to the commission in a form to be prescribed by the commission. The applicant shall specify the particular designated ground water basin or subdivision thereof from which water is proposed to be appropriated, the beneficial use to which it is proposed to apply such water, the location of the proposed well, the name of the owner of the land on which such well will be located, the estimated average annual amount of water applied for in acre-feet, the estimated maximum pumping rate in gallons per minute, and, if the proposed use is irrigation, the description of the land to be irrigated and the name of the owner thereof, together with such other reasonable information as the commission may designate on the form prescribed. The amount of water applied for shall only be utilized on the land designated on the application. The place of use shall not be changed without first obtaining authorization from the ground water commission.

(2) Upon the filing of such application, a preliminary evaluation shall be made to determine if the application may be granted. If the application can be given favorable consideration by the ground water commission under existing policies, then, within thirty days, the application shall be published.

(3) After the expiration of the time for filing objections, if no such objections have been filed, the commission shall, if it finds that the proposed appropriation will not unreasonably impair existing water rights from the same source and will not create unreasonable waste, grant the said application, and the state engineer shall issue a conditional permit to the applicant within forty-five days after the expiration of the time for filing objections or within forty-five days after the hearing provided for in subsection (4) of this section to appropriate all or a part of the waters applied for, subject to such reasonable conditions and limitations as the commission may specify.

(4) If objections have been filed within the time in said notice specified, the commission shall set a date for a hearing on the application and the objections thereto and shall notify the applicants and the objectors of the time and place. Such hearing shall be held in the designated ground water basin and within the district, if one exists, in which the proposed well will be located or at such other place as may be designated by the commission for the convenience of, and as agreed to by, the parties involved. If after such hearing it appears that there are no unappropriated waters in the designated source or that the proposed appropriation would unreasonably impair existing water rights from such source or would create unreasonable waste, the application shall be denied; otherwise, it shall be granted in accordance with subsection (3) of this section. The commission shall consider all evidence presented at the hearing and all other matters set forth in this section in determining whether the application should be denied or granted.

(5) In ascertaining whether a proposed use will create unreasonable waste or unreasonably affect the rights of other appropriators, the commission shall take into consideration the area and geologic conditions, the average annual yield and recharge rate of the appropriate water supply, the priority and quantity of existing claims of all persons to use the water, the proposed method of use, and all other matters appropriate to such questions. With regard to whether a proposed use will impair uses under existing water rights, impairment shall include the unreasonable lowering of the water level, or the unreasonable deterioration of water quality, beyond reasonable economic limits of withdrawal or use. If an application for a well permit cannot otherwise be granted pursuant to this section, a well permit may be issued upon approval by the ground water commission of a replacement plan that meets the requirements of this article and the rules adopted by the commission. A replacement plan shall not be used as a vehicle for avoiding limitations on existing wells, including but not limited to restrictions on change of well location. Therefore, before approving any replacement plan that includes existing wells, the commission shall require independent compliance with all rules governing those existing wells in addition to compliance with any guidelines or rules governing replacement plans.

(6) (a) (I) No person shall, in connection with the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining as defined in section 34-32-103 (9), C.R.S., expose designated ground water to the atmosphere unless said person has obtained a well permit from the ground water commission. If an application for such a well permit cannot otherwise be granted pursuant to this section, a well permit shall be issued upon approval by the ground water commission of a replacement plan which meets the requirements of this article, pursuant to the guidelines or rules and regulations adopted by the commission.

(II) Any person who extracted sand and gravel by open mining and exposed ground water to the atmosphere after December 31, 1980, shall apply for a well permit pursuant to this section and, if applicable, shall submit a replacement plan prior to July 15, 1990.

(b) If any designated ground water was exposed to the atmosphere in connection with the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining as defined in section 34-32-103 (9), C.R.S., prior to January 1, 1981, no such well permit or replacement plan shall be required to replace depletions from evaporation; except that the burden of proving that such designated ground water was exposed prior to January 1, 1981, shall be upon the party claiming the benefit of this exception.

(c) Any person who has reactivated or reactivates open mining operations which exposed designated ground water to the atmosphere but which ceased activity prior to January 1, 1981, shall obtain a well permit and shall apply for approval of a replacement plan or a plan of substitute supply pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (6).

(d) In addition to the well permit filing fee required by section 37-90-116, the commission shall collect the following fees for exposing ground water to the atmosphere for the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining:

(I) For persons who exposed ground water to the atmosphere on or after January 1, 1981, but prior to July 15, 1989, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars; except that, if such plan is filed prior to July 15, 1990, as required by subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of this subsection (6), the filing fee shall be seventy dollars if such plan includes ten acres or less of exposed ground water surface area or three hundred fifty dollars if such plan includes more than ten acres of exposed ground water surface area;

(II) For persons who expose ground water to the atmosphere on or after July 15, 1989, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed. In the case of new mining operations, such fee shall cover two years of operation of the plan.

(III) For persons who reactivated or who reactivate mining operations that ceased activity prior to January 1, 1981, and who enlarge the surface area of any gravel pit lake beyond the area it covered before the cessation of activity, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars;

(IV) For persons who request renewal of an approved substitute water supply plan prior to the expiration date of the plan, two hundred fifty-seven dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed;

(V) For persons whose approved substitute water supply plan has expired and who submit a subsequent plan, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed. An approved plan shall be considered expired if the applicant has not applied for renewal before the expiration date of the plan. The state engineer shall notify the applicant in writing if the plan is considered expired.

(VI) For persons whose proposed substitute water supply plan was disapproved and who submit a subsequent plan, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed. The state engineer shall notify the applicant in writing of disapproval of a plan.

(e) Excluding the well permit filing fee required by section 37-90-116 (2), the state treasurer shall credit all fees collected with a replacement plan to the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

(f) A person who has obtained a reclamation permit pursuant to section 34-32-112, C.R.S., shall be allowed to apply for a single well permit and to submit a single replacement plan for the entire acreage covered by the reclamation plan without regard to the number of gravel pit lakes located within such acreage.

(g) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in paragraph (d) of this subsection (6), the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

(7) (a) The commission shall allocate, upon the basis of the ownership of the overlying land, any designated ground water contained in the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers. Permits issued pursuant to this subsection (7) shall allow withdrawals on the basis of an aquifer life of one hundred years. The commission shall adopt the necessary rules to carry out the provisions of this subsection (7).

(b) Any right to the use of ground water entitling its owner or user to construct a well, which right was initiated prior to November 19, 1973, as evidenced by a current decree, well registration statement, or an unexpired well permit issued prior to November 19, 1973, shall not be subject to the provisions of paragraph (a) of this subsection (7).

(c) (I) (A) and (B) Repealed.

(C) Effective July 1, 2006, rights to designated ground water in the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers to be allocated pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (7) may be determined in accordance with the provisions of this section. Any person desiring to obtain such a determination shall make application to the commission in a form to be prescribed by the commission. A fee of sixty dollars shall be submitted with the application for each aquifer, which sum shall not be refunded. The application may also include a request for approval of a replacement plan if one is required under commission rules to replace any depletions to alluvial aquifers caused due to withdrawal of ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers.

(II) The publication and hearing requirements of this section shall also apply to an application for determination of water rights pursuant to this subsection (7).

(III) Any such commission approved determination shall be considered a final determination of the amount of ground water so determined; except that the commission shall retain jurisdiction for subsequent adjustment of such amount to conform to the actual local aquifer characteristics from adequate information obtained from well drilling or test holes.

(d) (I) (A) and (B) Repealed.

(C) Effective July 1, 2006, any person desiring a permit for a well to withdraw ground water for a beneficial use from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers shall make application to the commission on a form to be prescribed by the commission. A fee of one hundred dollars shall be submitted with the application, which sum shall not be refunded.

(II) A well permit shall not be granted unless a determination of ground water to be withdrawn by the well has been made pursuant to paragraph (c) of this subsection (7).

(III) The application for a well permit shall also include a replacement plan if one is required under commission rules to replace any depletions to alluvial aquifers caused due to withdrawal of ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers and the required plan has not been approved pursuant to paragraph (c) of this subsection (7). The publication and hearing requirements of this section shall apply to an application for such a replacement plan.

(IV) The annual amount of withdrawal allowed in any well permits issued under this subsection (7) shall be less than or equal to the amount determined pursuant to paragraph (c) of this subsection (7) and may, if so provided by any such determination, provide for the subsequent adjustment of such amount to conform to the actual aquifer characteristics encountered upon drilling of the well or test holes.

(8) The commission shall have the exclusive authority to issue or deny well permits under this section. The commission shall consider any recommendation by ground water management districts concerning well permit applications under this section.

L. 2006: (6)(d) amended, p. 1270, § 1, effective July 1. L. 2012: (6)(e) amended, (SB 12-009), ch. 197, p. 792, § 7, effective July 1.

Editor's note: (1) Section 10 of chapter 7, Session Laws of Colorado 2003, provides for an effective date of March 1, 2003; however, the Governor did not sign the act until March 5, 2003.

(2) Subsection (7)(c)(I)(B) provided for the repeal of subsections (7)(c)(I)(A) and (7)(c)(I)(B) and subsection (7)(d)(I)(B) provided for the repeal of subsections (7)(d)(I)(A) and (7)(d)(I)(B), effective July 1, 2006. (See L. 2003, p. 44.)

(3) Section 13 of chapter 197, Session Laws of Colorado 2012, provides that the act amending subsection (6)(e) applies to revenues credited on or after July 1, 2012.

Subsection (7) does not violate article XVI, sections 5 and 6, of the Colorado Constitution because the doctrine of prior appropriation does not apply to the allocation and administration of designated ground water located within the Denver basin aquifers. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. N. Kiowa-Bijou Groundwater Mgmt. Dist., 77 P.3d 62 (Colo. 2003).

The statute establishes a ground water commission, which in turn establishes boundaries of ground water basins. Larrick v. District Court, 177 Colo. 237, 493 P.2d 647 (1972).

Applications for appropriating designated ground water committed to commission's jurisdiction. Applications for the appropriation of designated ground water to a beneficial use are committed to the jurisdiction of the ground water commission. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Although designated ground water in the Denver basin aquifers is allocated on the basis of overlying land ownership, in the manner of nontributary ground water, it is regulated by the state ground water commission, which has the dual responsibility of determining availability and issuing permits for its withdrawal. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

Water not within definition of "designated ground water". An application for an initial appropriation of ground water, even if not within the definition of "designated ground water", in a designated ground water basin must be addressed to the ground water commission. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Holders of permits may not claim the maximum and beneficially use only a portion. Holders of conditional permits may not claim the maximum amount permitted under their permits and yet place only a portion of the claimed water to beneficial use. Peterson v. Ground Water Comm'n, 195 Colo. 508, 579 P.2d 629 (1978).

A threshold showing of a non-speculative, beneficial use is required for designated ground water. This showing is prior even to a determination of availability by the commission. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

Ground water commission must consider appropriative intent among the evidence and all other matters which it must consider in acting upon an application for appropriating designated ground water. Jaeger v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 746 P.2d 515 (Colo. 1987).

Under this section the commission is empowered to deny an application if it finds that the proposed appropriation will unreasonably impair existing water rights from the same source, or will create unreasonable waste. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

Appropriators of the designated ground waters are required to obtain a permit for their appropriations and the act establishes a system of prior appropriation, similar in operation to the system regulating surface water rights, to regulate the water rights of the ground water users. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Priority of claims for appropriating ground water determined by modified prior appropriation doctrine. The priority of claims for the appropriation of designated ground water is to be determined by the doctrine of prior appropriation, as modified to permit full economic development of the designated ground water resources. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Under the circumstances of this case, a so-called three-mile test provided a reasonable basis for assessing the effect of a proposed use on other users in the district. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

The three-mile test was developed for use in the northern high plains; it is partly based on policy and partly based on fact and theory, and when using that test, a circle with a three-mile radius is drawn around the proposed well site, a rate of pumping is determined which would result in a 40 percent depletion of the available ground water in that area over a period of 25 years, and if that rate of pumping is being exceeded by the existing wells within the circle, then the application for a permit to drill a new well may be denied. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

The three-mile test takes into account the factors specified by this section. Fundingsland v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 171 Colo. 487, 468 P.2d 835 (1970).

Amount of water applied for shall only be utilized on land designated on application and, the place of use shall not be changed without first obtaining authorization from the ground water commission. W-Y Ground Water Mgt. Dist. v. Goeglein, 196 Colo. 230, 585 P.2d 910 (1978).

No change in diversion point or place of use to detriment of others. An appropriator cannot change the point of diversion or the place of use if the change increases the amount of water or the historical use to the detriment of other appropriators. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

A change in the place of use of a water right may be allowed only when the change will not cause unreasonable harm to a prior appropriator. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

An appropriation made for the irrigation of a particular tract of land cannot be used to irrigate additional lands if the expanded use will injure the rights of other appropriators. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

No change in amount. Consumptive use of water may not be increased to the injury of other appropriators. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

Burden of proof on applicant to show non-injury. The burden of proof to establish that a change of use will not injure the rights of other users from the same source rests upon the person seeking the change. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

Where expansion of use is the injury asserted, establishment of no increase in historical use is the burden of the applicant, and the use of water on increased acreage is evidence of increased use either in volume or time. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

Grant of change of place of use discretionary. This section vests the ground water commission with discretion to grant, but does not mandate, a change of place of use. W-Y Ground Water Mgt. Dist. v. Goeglein, 196 Colo. 230, 585 P.2d 910 (1978).

Relief involving taking ground water sought first under ground water provisions. It is appropriate, as a matter of policy, and is consistent with legislative intent, to require that any relief sought which involves the taking of ground water in a designated ground water basin must be sought first through the administrative and judicial channels, as appropriate, prescribed for resolution of questions arising under this article. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Vickroy decision not retrospectively applied. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy (627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981)) should not be retrospectively applied to those decrees involving well permits in designated ground water basins issued prior to the Vickroy decision. Ground Water Comm'n v. Shanks, 658 P.2d 847 (Colo. 1983).

With respect to issuing permits and promulgating regulations, the act makes available to affected water users the procedures providing for notice, hearing, and review of the commission and the management district measures. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Subsection (7) vests the Colorado ground water commission with the authority to determine a use of right for the withdrawal of Denver basin designated ground water by overlying landowners, or those acting with landowner consent, whose land lies within the boundaries of a designated ground water basin that is located in the Denver basin. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. N. Kiowa-Bijou Groundwater Mgmt. Dist., 77 P.3d 62 (Colo. 2003).

The ground water management districts do not possess statutory authority to determine an applicant's water use right under subsection (7). The district's regulatory authority begins once a permit has been issued, therefore, an applicant seeking the Colorado ground water commission's determination of its use right need not initially submit its application to the water district for approval. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. N. Kiowa-Bijou Groundwater Mgmt. Dist., 77 P.3d 62 (Colo. 2003).

The anti-speculation doctrine applies to the Colorado ground water commission's determination of an applicant's right to use designated ground water in the Denver basin, therefore, an applicant must establish a threshold showing that there exists a beneficial, non-speculative use for the amount of allocated designated Denver basin ground water that will not create unreasonable waste. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. N. Kiowa-Bijou Groundwater Mgmt. Dist., 77 P.3d 62 (Colo. 2003).

Applied in Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978); Cherokee Water Dist. v. State, Ground Water Comm'n, 196 Colo. 192, 585 P.2d 586 (1978); Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983); State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L. Ed.2d 474 (1984).

37-90-107.5. Replacement plans. Any person desiring to obtain an approval of a replacement plan within the boundaries of a designated ground water basin pursuant to the provisions of this article shall make an application to the commission in a form prescribed by the commission. The applicant shall also submit a summary of the application to the commission for publication. If the commission determines the application to be complete, it shall be published pursuant to section 37-90-112 within sixty days after the filing of such an application. If an objection is filed, a hearing shall be held pursuant to section 37-90-113. The commission shall approve the replacement plan if the commission determines that the replacement plan meets the requirements of this article and rules adopted by the commission. A replacement plan shall not be used as a vehicle for avoiding limitations on existing wells, including but not limited to restrictions on change of well location. Therefore, before approving any replacement plan that includes existing wells, the commission shall require independent compliance with all rules governing those existing wells in addition to compliance with any guidelines or rules governing replacement plans.

37-90-108. Final permit - evidence of well construction and beneficial use - limitations. (1) (a) After having received a conditional permit to appropriate designated ground water, the applicant, within one year from the date of the issuance of said permit, shall construct the well or other works necessary to apply the water to a beneficial use.

(b) The applicant, upon completion of the well, shall furnish information to the commission, in the form prescribed by the commission, as to the depth of the well, the water-bearing formations intercepted by the well, and the maximum sustained pumping rate in gallons per minute.

(c) If the well described in the conditional permit is not constructed within one year from the date of the issuance of the conditional permit as provided in this subsection (1), the conditional permit shall expire and be of no force or effect; except that, upon a showing of good cause, the commission may grant one extension of time only for a period not to exceed one year. If the well has been constructed timely but the completion information required by this subsection (1) has not been furnished to the commission, the procedures specified in subsection (6) of this section shall apply.

(2) (a) If the well or wells described in a conditional permit have been constructed in compliance with subsection (1) of this section, the applicant, within three years after the date of the issuance of said permit, shall furnish by sworn affidavit, in the form prescribed by the commission, evidence that water from such well or wells has been put to beneficial use; except that the requirements of this paragraph (a) shall not apply to a well described in a conditional permit issued on or after July 1, 1991, to withdraw designated ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers.

(b) Such affidavit shall be prima facie evidence of the matters contained therein but shall be subject to objection by others, including ground water management districts, claiming to be injured thereby and to such verification and inquiry as the commission shall consider appropriate in each particular case.

(c) If such required affidavit is not furnished to the commission within the time and as provided in this subsection (2), the conditional permit shall expire and be of no force or effect except as provided in subsection (4) of this section.

(d) If the well described in a conditional permit issued on or after July 1, 1991, to withdraw designated ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers has been constructed in compliance with subsection (1) of this section, the applicant shall file a notice with the commission of commencement of beneficial use on a form prescribed by the commission within thirty days after the first beneficial use of any water withdrawn from such well.

(3) (a) (I) To the extent that the commission finds that water has been put to a beneficial use and that the other terms of the conditional permit have been complied with and after publication of the information required in the final permit, as provided in section 37-90-112, the commission shall order the state engineer to issue a final permit to use designated ground water, containing such limitations and conditions as the commission deems necessary to prevent waste and to protect the rights of other appropriators. In determining the extent of beneficial use for the purpose of issuing final permits, the commission may use the same criteria for determining the amount of water used on each acre that has been irrigated that is used in evaluating the amount of water available for appropriation under section 37-90-107. The provisions of this subparagraph (I) shall not apply to a well described in a conditional permit issued on or after July 1, 1991, to withdraw designated ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers.

(II) A final permit is not required to be issued for a well described in a conditional permit issued on or after July 1, 1991, to withdraw designated ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers. For such a well, a conditional permit, subject to the conditions of issuance of such a permit, shall be considered a final determination of a well's water right if the well is in compliance with all other applicable requirements of this article.

(b) In determining the extent of beneficial use prior to the issuance of a final permit, the commission may either increase or decrease the quantity of water and the amount of irrigated acreage, if any, according to the evidence presented to the commission, but no increase shall be permitted which will increase the quantity of water beyond that authorized by the original decree, conditional permit, registration statement, or other well permit issued prior to basin designation or which otherwise will unreasonably affect the rights of other appropriators.

(c) Any owner of an existing valid conditional permit issued before July 1, 1978, may file with the commission an amended statement of beneficial use, in the form prescribed by the commission, on or before December 31, 1979, and not thereafter, if any such change occurred and was approved on or before August 5, 1977.

(4) The procedural requirement that a statement of beneficial use shall be filed shall apply to all permits wherein the water was put to beneficial use since May 17, 1965. If information pertaining to completion of the well as required in subsection (1) of this section has been received but evidence that water has been placed to beneficial use has not been received as of three years after the date of issuance of the conditional permit, the commission shall so notify the applicant by certified mail. The notice shall give the applicant the opportunity to submit proof that the water was put to beneficial use prior to three years after the date of issuance of the conditional permit. The proof must be received by the commission within twenty days after receipt of the notice by the applicant, and, if the conditional permit was issued on or after July 14, 1975, the proof must be accompanied by a filing fee of thirty dollars. If the commission finds the proof to be satisfactory, the conditional permit shall remain in force and effect. The commission shall consider any records of the commission and any evidence provided to the commission and all other matters set forth in this section in determining whether the conditional permit should remain in force and effect.

(5) All final permits shall set forth the following information as a minimum:

- (a) The priority date;
- (b) The name of the claimant;
- (c) The quarter-quarter in which the well is located;
- (d) The maximum annual volume of the appropriation in acre-feet per year;
- (e) The maximum pumping rate in gallons per minute; and
- (f) The maximum number of acres which have been irrigated, if used for irrigation.

(6) The procedural requirement that the well completion information required by subsection (1) of this section be furnished to the commission shall apply to all permits issued after May 17, 1965. If the well has been constructed within twenty-four months after the date of issuance of the permit where the permit was issued before June 7, 1979, or within twelve months after the date of issuance of the permit where the permit was issued on or after June 7, 1979, or by the expiration date of the permit, including any extension, but the completion information has not been furnished to the commission within six months after said allowable time for the well completion, the commission shall so notify the applicant by certified mail. The notice shall give the applicant the opportunity to submit proof that the well was completed within the time specified above or by the expiration date of the permit and to submit the information required by subsection (1) of this section and a showing that, due to excusable neglect, inadvertence, or mistake, the applicant failed to submit the evidence and information on time. The proof and information must be received by the commission within twenty days after receipt of the notice by the applicant and must be accompanied by a filing fee of thirty dollars. If the commission finds the proof to be satisfactory, the permit shall remain in force and effect. The commission shall consider any records of the commission and any evidence provided to the commission and all other matters set forth in this section in determining whether the permit should remain in force and effect.

(7) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in this section, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Oil Shale and Water Quality: The Colorado Prospectus Under Federal, State, and International Law", see 58 Den. L.J. 715 (1981).

Annotator's note. The following annotations include cases decided under former provision similar to this section.

The general assembly intended that the extent of beneficial use would limit the ground water appropriator by providing for the issuance of final permits based upon proof of beneficial use. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

Regardless of the quantity specified in a decree, the amount of water actually applied to beneficial use defines the full extent of the water right. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

The general assembly intended that the commission engage in a confirmatory investigation and that the issuance of final permits be a meaningful action. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

Where the commission fails to undertake an independent investigation to determine if the amount of water claimed is put to beneficial use prior to issuing a final permit, the commission procedure is not in compliance with statutory scheme. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

Commission must implement legislative scheme. The commission cannot rely upon conditional permits as though they are enforceable "existing claims" without implementing the legislative scheme which includes the issuance of final permits. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

The final permit is essential to the legislative scheme for the administration of ground water rights. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

Vested right in water not acquired after conditional permit expires. This article does not contemplate that appropriators may acquire a vested right in water put to beneficial use after their conditional permits have expired. Berens v. Ground Water Comm'n, 200 Colo. 170, 614 P.2d 352 (1980).

Conditional permits do not permit their holders to sleep on water rights and later expand their use to the full extent of their permits. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978); Peterson v. Ground Water Comm'n, 195 Colo. 508, 579 P.2d 629 (1978).

Conditional permit to last one year. Conditional permits expire and are of no effect one year after their issuance unless the statutory requirements necessary for the issuance of a final permit have been satisfied, or the commission has extended a conditional permit for a time certain for good cause shown, or the appropriator has submitted well completion data, but has failed to submit proof of beneficial use, where upon the appropriator is entitled to notice and 20 days to provide the missing information. Peterson v. Ground Water Comm'n, 195 Colo. 508, 579 P.2d 629 (1978).

Subsection (3) reflects a legislative determination that most designated ground water appropriations can be completed within one year, but also permits the commission to grant extensions upon good cause shown to avoid unjust results. Kuiper v. Warren, 195 Colo. 541, 580 P.2d 32, cert. denied, 439 U.S. 984, 99 S. Ct. 575, 58 L. Ed.2d 56 (1978).

Extension procedure and due diligence doctrine protect conditional ground water appropriators. The statutory extension procedure of this section and the doctrine of due diligence afford ground water appropriators, who are reasonably proceeding to complete appropriations under conditional rights, protection against loss of their rights. Kuiper v. Warren, 195 Colo. 541, 580 P.2d 32, cert. denied, 439 U.S. 984, 99 S. Ct. 575, 58 L. Ed.2d 56 (1978).

Beneficial uses. Land reclamation and dust control are proper beneficial uses for appropriations of tributary and nontributary water. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L. Ed.2d 474 (1984).

Intent to put water to beneficial use must not be speculative. Anti-speculative doctrine of Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Vidler Tunnel Water Co. (197 Colo. 413, 594 P.2d 566 (1979)) requiring more than mere future plans to beneficially use water, applies to appropriations of groundwater in designated ground water basins. Jaeger v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 746 P.2d 515 (Colo. 1987).

When extent of beneficial use is fixed. Normally, the extent of beneficial use and the measure of the water right is fixed at the time a final decree is entered. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

The procedure set out in this section places the burden on the appropriator to prove that he has made a valid appropriation consistent with Colorado law. Thompson v. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n, 194 Colo. 489, 575 P.2d 372 (1978).

Applied in Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

37-90-109. Priority - discontinuance orders - grounds. (1) Priority of claims for the appropriation of designated ground water shall be determined by the doctrine of prior appropriation. All claims based on actual taking of designated ground water for beneficial use prior to May 17, 1965, shall be determined by the doctrine of prior appropriation and shall relate back to the date of placing designated ground water to beneficial use. All claims for the beneficial use of designated ground water initiated after May 17, 1965, shall relate back to the date of filing of an application with the commission, unless such application is rejected.

(2) In order to establish priority of a claim to appropriate designated ground water which has existed prior to May 17, 1965, a priority date shall be awarded to each well based upon the time the water was first applied to a beneficial use. The date shown in the records now filed in the state engineer's office shall be prima facie evidence of the date the water was first applied to beneficial use. All wells constructed as replacements for or as supplements to original wells for the same beneficial use shall be considered as a unit and awarded a priority date of the earliest well.

(3) As soon as practical after the establishment of a designated ground water basin, the commission shall establish tentative priority dates for the respective wells within such designated ground water basin, or subdivisions thereof, in accordance with the information contained in its files. The commission may require such additional information from the well claimant as will permit it to make a proper determination of the priority date and may request such other information as is required to be set forth in a final permit pursuant to section 37-90-108 (5). If the claimant fails or refuses to furnish the requested information within a period of thirty days, the commission may proceed to make a determination from the records available.

(4) After establishing the proposed priority date and after receiving the information required by section 37-90-108 (5) for the final permit on claims for the beneficial use of designated ground water, the commission shall order the state engineer to issue a final permit to appropriate designated ground water in the manner and pursuant to the standards set forth in section 37-90-108 for final permits; except that a final permit is not required to be issued for a well described in a conditional permit issued on or after July 1, 1991, to withdraw designated ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers and except that this section shall not apply to any final priority lists established by the commission prior to January 1, 1985, and any final permits issued pursuant to said lists.

(5) and (6) Repealed.

Authorizing commission to establish priority of claims not unconstitutional. By authorizing the commission to establish the priority of claims for the appropriation of designated ground water, the ground water management act does not violate the doctrine of separation of powers nor constitute an unlawful delegation of judicial powers under art. III, Colo. Const., and § 1 of art. VI, Colo. Const. In re Water Rights in Irrigation Div. No. 1, 181 Colo. 395, 510 P.2d 323 (1973).

Determining quantity and priority of existing claims. For purposes of this section, the quantity of existing claims and the priority of those claims can only be rightfully determined if the commission complies with all of the procedural requirements of § 37-90-108. 37-90-110. Powers of the state engineer. (1) In the administration and enforcement of this article and in the effectuation of the policy of this state to conserve its ground water resources and for the protection of vested rights, the state engineer, either in the state engineer's own capacity or as the executive director of the commission, is empowered:

(a) To require all flowing wells to be equipped with valves so that the flow of water can be controlled;

(b) To require both flowing and nonflowing wells to be so constructed and maintained as to prevent the waste of ground waters through leaky wells, casings, pipes, fittings, valves, or pumps, either above or below the land surface;

(c) To go upon all lands, both public and private, for the purpose of inspecting wells, pumps, casings, pipes, fittings, and measuring devices, including wells used or claimed to be used for domestic or stock purposes;

(d) To order the cessation of the use of a well pending the correction of any defect that the state engineer has ordered corrected;

(e) To commence actions to enjoin the illegal opening or excavation of wells or withdrawal or use of water therefrom and to appear and become a party to any action or proceeding pending in any court or administrative agency when it appears that the determination of such action or proceeding might result in depletion of the ground water resources of the state contrary to the public policy expressed in this article or might injure vested rights of other appropriators;

(f) To take such action as may be required to enforce compliance with any regulation, control, or order promulgated pursuant to the provisions of this article;

(g) To issue to the owners or users of wells pumping designated ground water in the state such orders as are necessary to implement the provisions of this section and section 37-90-111. In addition to any other method of giving notice, the mailing of the order in a certified letter to the well owner or operator, together with the posting of a written order, in plain sight, at the well head, shall be considered sufficient notice of the order of the state engineer, and, when so posted, the order shall be effective from the time of posting.

(h) To administer the movement of water involved in any commission-issued replacement plan or plan for augmentation involving designated ground water. In such administration, the state engineer shall issue such orders as are necessary and appropriate.

(i) To order any person supplying energy used to pump designated ground water to provide, at reasonable times, records of energy used to pump ground water. The state engineer may exercise this authority only in connection with an alleged violation of this article. Suppliers of energy used to pump ground water shall not be required to maintain records of energy used to pump ground water more than five years after the year in which the energy is consumed. Suppliers of energy used to pump ground water shall be held harmless from any and all civil or criminal liability with respect to the transfer of records pursuant to this section. Nothing contained in this paragraph (i) shall affect any reporting requirements of the public utilities commission pursuant to section 40-3-110, C.R.S. This paragraph (i) shall not apply to any person diverting by means of a well described in section 37-90-105 (1) (a).

ANNOTATION

Both the commission and state engineer have enforcement authority of the regulations established under the act and are the real and substantial parties in interest in an action to enjoin enforcement of water control measures, and consequently the suit is not against the state and therefore not barred by the federal constitution, and a decree could be entered in favor of or against the plaintiff without increasing or decreasing the decreed surface water rights or injuring the well owner's constitutional rights to appropriate water and apply it to a beneficial use; therefore, a decision for or against the plaintiff might indirectly affect the interests of all water users, but could not alter vested legal rights so as to raise the water users to the status of indispensable parties, and hence, the practical considerations and the absence of legal prejudice preclude a finding that all water users are indispensable parties. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

37-90-111. Powers of the ground water commission - limitations. (1) In the administration and enforcement of this article and in the effectuation of the policy of this state to conserve its designated ground water resources and for the protection of vested rights and except to the extent that similar authority is vested in ground water management districts pursuant to section 37-90-130 (2), the ground water commission is empowered:

(a) To supervise and control the exercise and administration of all rights acquired to the use of designated ground water. In the exercise of this power it may, by summary order, prohibit or limit withdrawal of water from any well during any period that it determines that such withdrawal of water from said well would cause unreasonable injury to prior appropriators; except that nothing in this article shall be construed as entitling any prior designated ground water appropriator to the maintenance of the historic water level or any other level below which water still can be economically extracted when the total economic pattern of the particular designated ground water basin is considered; and further except that no such order shall take effect until six months after its entry.

(b) To establish a reasonable ground water pumping level in an area having a common designated ground water supply. Water in wells shall not be deemed available to fill the water right therefor if withdrawal therefrom of the amount called for by such right would, contrary to the declared policy of this article, unreasonably affect any prior water right or result in withdrawing the ground water supply at a rate materially in excess of the reasonably anticipated average rate of future recharge.

(c) To issue permits for the construction of replacement wells. Any permits issued shall set forth the conditions under which a well may be modified by a change of the well itself or the pumping equipment therefor, by the drilling of a replacement well, or otherwise, in order to make it possible for the owner of a well to obtain the water to which such owner may be entitled by virtue of his original appropriation.

(d) In the exercise of any of the powers or duties conferred by this section, to confer and consult with the board of directors of the ground water management district board in the affected area, if any such board exists, before promulgating any orders or regulations which would affect the district in general;

(e) To order the total or partial discontinuance of any diversion within a ground water basin to the extent the water being diverted is not necessary for application to a beneficial use;

(f) In any area where a ground water management district has not been formed, to prescribe satisfactory and economical measuring methods for the measurement of water levels in and the amount of water withdrawn from wells and to require reports to be made at the end of each pumping season showing the date and water level at the beginning of the pumping season, the date and water level at the end of the pumping season, and showing any period of more than thirty days' cessation of pumping during such pumping season;

(g) Upon application therefor by any permit holder, to authorize a change in acreage served, volume of appropriation, place, time, or type of use of and by any water right, or of any well location, either conditional or final, granted under the authority of the commission but only upon such terms and conditions as will not cause material injury to the vested rights of other appropriators. No such change that increases the volume of appropriation beyond that authorized by the original decree, conditional permit, registration statement, or other well permit issued prior to basin designation shall be authorized, and no such change shall be approved until after publication of such application as provided in section 37-90-112; except that publication shall not be required to approve a temporary change pursuant to the rules adopted by the commission and except that publication shall not be required for replacement wells that are relocated no further than the maximum distance allowed by district rules and regulations without prior board approval or by commission policy where no district exists or where no district rule has been adopted.

(h) To adopt rules necessary to carry out the provisions of this article.

(2) No supplemental wells or alternate point of diversion wells shall be allowed in any area of any designated ground water basin in which the proposed well or wells combined would deplete the aquifer in excess of the rate of depletion prescribed by the ground water commission or by the ground water management district rules and regulations.

(3) In the exercise of any of the powers or duties conferred by this section, the commission shall confer and consult with the board of directors of the ground water management district board in the affected areas, if any such board exists, before promulgating any orders or regulations which would affect the district in general, and shall request written recommendations from the board of any existing district within which the conditional or final permit has been issued, before taking final action on any request or application made pursuant to this section.

(4) In any area within a designated ground water basin which has not been included within the boundaries of a ground water management district, the commission has the authority to exercise any power given by this article to the board of directors of a ground water management district, but, before instituting control measures pursuant to section 37-90-130, the commission shall follow the procedures set out in section 37-90-131.

(5) Notwithstanding any other provision of this article, the commission shall allocate, upon the basis of ownership of the overlying land, any designated ground water contained in the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers. Permits issued pursuant to this subsection (5) shall allow withdrawals on the basis of an aquifer life of one hundred years.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Principles and Law of Colorado's Nontributary Ground Water", see 62 Den. U. L. Rev. 809 (1985).

The administration and enforcement of the act is placed in the hands of an administrative commission, the state engineer and locally formed ground water management districts, and the commission is empowered to designate the ground water basins and to supervise and control the administration of all ground water so designated, it also grants or denies petitions for the formation of management districts within each ground water basin. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

General assembly not prevented from placing water adjudication jurisdiction in commission. Although in Colorado jurisdiction for water adjudication has traditionally been in the courts, there is nothing in the state constitution — and particularly nothing in § 6 of art. XVI — to prevent the general assembly from placing such jurisdiction in a different agency, such as the ground water commission in the case of designated ground water, considering that such determinations are appealable to the courts. In re Water Rights in Irrigation Div. No. 1, 181 Colo. 395, 510 P.2d 323 (1973).

Commission is proper agency to determine whether place of use of water can be changed without injury to others and, if so, the conditions to be imposed to prevent injury. In re Water Rights in Irrigation Div. No. 1, Irrigation Dist. No. 1, 181 Colo. 395, 510 P.2d 323 (1973).

The ground water commission is charged with establishing priority dates for wells within designated ground water basins and is empowered, in the absence of a management district, to supervise and control the exercise and administration of all rights acquired for the use of designated ground water, including limiting or prohibiting the withdrawal of water from wells when necessary to protect prior appropriators from unreasonable injury. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

However, where a management district exists, the management district has authority to administer designated ground water priorities within its boundaries. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

The Ground Water Management Act empowers the ground water commission, or a water management district where one exists, to issue well withdrawal curtailment orders in the administration of priorities, but does not impose a non-discretionary duty to do so. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

And, the management district's rules, its control and conservation measures, and its well spacing criteria, apply to the ground water commissions's injury analysis in the permitting phase, as they do when the management district addresses questions of administration and enforcement. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

Commission may permit use change beyond designated ground water basin. In the absence of a ground water management district, the ground water commission has the authority to permit a change in type of use and a change of place of use to an area beyond the boundaries of a designated ground water basin. Cherokee Water Dist. v. State, Ground Water Comm'n, 196 Colo. 192, 585 P.2d 586 (1978).

Determination as to whether disputed ground water is "designated ground water". The ground water commission is the appropriate forum for determining whether disputed ground water is designated ground water located in a designated ground water basin. Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

Since both the commission and state engineer have enforcement authority of the regulations established under the act and are the real and substantial parties in interest in an action to enjoin enforcement of water control measures, and consequently the suit is not against the state and therefore not barred by the federal constitution, and a decree could be entered in favor of or against the plaintiff without increasing or decreasing the decreed surface water rights or injuring the well owner's constitutional rights to appropriate water and apply it to a beneficial use, therefore, a decision for or against the plaintiff might indirectly affect the interests of all water users, but could not alter vested legal rights so as to raise the water users to the status of indispensable parties, and hence, the practical considerations and the absence of legal prejudice preclude a finding that all water users are indispensable parties. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Change in place of use allowed only without unreasonable harm to prior appropriator. A change in the place of use of a water right may be allowed only when the change will not cause unreasonable harm to a prior appropriator. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

Applied in Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. Dreiling, 198 Colo. 560, 606 P.2d 836 (1979).

37-90-111.5. Well enforcement - injunction - fines. (1) (a) If an order of the commission or the state engineer issued pursuant to section 37-90-105, 37-90-107, 37-90-108, 37-90-110 in relation to designated ground water, or 37-90-111 is not complied with, the commission or the state engineer in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, through the attorney general, shall apply to the district court in the county in which the water right or well is situated:

(I) For an injunction enjoining the person to whom such order was directed from continuing to violate the order. The term "injunction" includes a temporary restraining order and mandatory relief.

(II) To recover the civil penalties specified in paragraph (a) of subsection (5) of this section.

(b) In the proceeding, the prevailing party shall be entitled to the costs of the proceeding and reasonable attorney fees.

(2) In the case of an order with respect to the withdrawal of designated ground water, the designated ground water judge in ruling upon such injunction shall consider, depending on the basis for the order, whether the designated ground water is being applied to a beneficial use, whether the withdrawal is causing or will cause injury to persons or entities owning or entitled to use water under vested water rights, and whether the withdrawal of designated ground water is in violation of the statute, the rules adopted by the commission or state engineer, or the well permit's terms and conditions.

(3) Any person who has an interest in the subject matter of such proceedings may intervene, if such intervention is timely and will not cause undue delay.

(4) In the case of a violation of an injunction issued under this section, the designated ground water judge shall try and punish the offender for contempt of court. Such proceedings shall be in addition to, and not in lieu of, any other penalties and remedies, public or private, provided by law.

(5) (a) (I) Any person who diverts designated ground water contrary to a valid order of the commission or state engineer issued pursuant to section 37-90-105, 37-90-107, 37-90-108, 37-90-110, or 37-90-111, or in violation of rules adopted by the commission or state engineer shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each day such violation continues.

(II) Any person who, when required to do so by rules adopted by the commission or state engineer, fails to submit data as to the amounts of designated ground water pumped from a well, makes a false or fictitious report of the amounts of designated ground water pumped from a well, falsifies any data as to amounts pumped from a well, makes a false or fictitious report of a power coefficient for a well, or falsifies any power coefficient test shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each violation; except that this subparagraph (II) shall not apply to an order issued pursuant to section 37-90-110 (1) (i) or 37-90-130 (4) (c).

(III) It is unlawful for any person not authorized by the well owner, commission, or state engineer to willfully interfere with any power meter, totalizing flow meter, or other device used to measure designated ground water diversions. Any person who willfully damages a power meter, totalizing flow meter, or other device used to measure designated ground water diversions or who tampers with or falsifies any record made or being made by any such power meter, totalizing flow meter, or other device shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each violation.

(IV) This paragraph (a) shall not apply to any person diverting by means of a well described in section 37-90-105 (1) (a).

(b) The state engineer shall transmit all fines collected for violations of paragraph (a) of this subsection (5) to the state treasurer, who shall deposit them in the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

(6) Any person required by a valid order of the commission or the state engineer, or by existing rules of the commission or state engineer, to cease diversions of designated ground water or replace depletions caused by diversions of designated ground water, and whose failure to adhere to such order or rule results in the violation of an interstate compact, shall be liable for all direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred by the state of Colorado in performing any action, including the purchase of water or payment of damages, necessary for the state of Colorado to remedy the violation of such compact. The commission or state engineer in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, through the attorney general, shall apply to the district court in the county in which the water right or well is situated to recover such expenses. If the commission or the state engineer prevails, the court shall also award the costs of the proceeding and reasonable attorney fees.

37-90-112. Notice - publication. (1) When any notice is required to be published under any section of this article, including notice of elections, it shall be deemed to mean a publication in a newspaper of general circulation in each of the counties concerned. Publication of all notices shall be once each week for two successive weeks. The notice shall state the hour and date of the commencement of hearings on the subject matter of the notice; the place at which the hearings will be held; the place where written objections may be filed; and the final date by which written objections will be received; or, if for an election, the date, hours, and polling places.

(2) All objections, either to the published notice or any matter contained therein, shall be in writing and shall briefly state the nature of the objection and shall be filed within the time and at the place designated in the notice.

(3) The time for filing any written objections to notices described in this article shall extend to thirty days following the last publication of the notice.

Cross references: For publication of legal notices, see part 1 of article 70 of title 24.

37-90-113. Hearings. (1) Hearings on all matters to be heard by the commission shall be held within the boundaries of the designated ground water basin and within the ground water management district, if one exists, in which the water rights directly involved are situated or at such other place as may be designated by the commission for the convenience of, and as agreed to by, the parties involved. The hearings shall be conducted before the commission under reasonable rules and regulations of procedure prescribed by it. All parties to the hearing, including the commission, have the right to subpoena witnesses, who shall be sworn by the chairman or acting chairman of the commission to testify under oath at the hearing. All parties to the hearing shall be entitled to be heard either in person or by attorney.

(2) In any hearings required to be conducted by the commission, it may, in its discretion, have such hearings conducted before such agent as it may designate, either alone or in conjunction with the appearance of the commission if the agent is technically qualified to conduct or assist in such hearings. Unless agreed otherwise by all parties to a hearing or unless ordered otherwise by the commission due to extenuating circumstances, a hearing pursuant to this section shall be held within one hundred eighty days after the filing of a request for such a hearing. Appeals of rulings of the agent designated by the commission shall be reviewed at any regular or special commission meeting at the location chosen by the commission for that meeting.

(3) At any hearing or proceedings conducted or authorized by the commission affecting any water rights, either existing or potential, within any ground water management district, the commission shall receive and fully consider the testimony and recommendations of the board of directors or authorized agents of said district, if such testimony and recommendations are offered on behalf of the affected district.

37-90-114. Other administrative hearings. Any person claiming to be injured within the boundaries of a designated ground water basin by any act of the state engineer or commission under the provisions of this article, or the failure of the state engineer or commission to take any action under the provisions of this article, except as provided for the small capacity wells in section 37-90-105, shall file a written petition with the commission stating the basis of the alleged injury. Thereafter, only upon request by a petitioner and upon thirty-five days' written notice to any adverse party, the commission shall conduct a hearing upon the petition in the manner provided in section 37-90-113. If notice of any such act has been published pursuant to section 37-90-112 and no hearing has been requested pursuant to such notice, this section shall not be construed to create a subsequent or additional right to request a hearing concerning such act.

37-90-115. Judicial review of actions of the ground water commission or the state engineer. (1) (a) Any party, including a ground water management district, adversely affected or aggrieved by any decision or act of the ground water commission, except for the adoption of rules, under the provisions of this article or by a decision or act of the state engineer under section 37-90-110 may take an appeal to the district court in the county wherein the water rights or wells involved are situated.

(b) (I) The notice of such appeal shall be served by the appellant upon the state engineer or the commission and all interested parties within thirty-five days after the notice of such decision or act and, unless such appeal is taken within said time, the action of the state engineer or the commission shall be final and conclusive. For purposes of service only, "all interested parties" shall be limited to those parties which appeared at, and were granted party status in, any administrative hearing held by the commission or state engineer concerning the decision or act from which the appeal is taken. If no administrative hearing has been held, notice of such appeal shall be given by publication pursuant to section 37-90-112.

(II) Notice of such appeal, proof of service, and docketing of the appeal in the district court shall be accomplished in the same manner as any other civil suit originally commenced in the district courts of this state. Costs shall be charged to the appellant as in any other civil suit.

(III) Proceedings upon appeal shall be de novo; except that evidence taken in any administrative proceeding appealed from may be considered as original evidence, subject to legal objection, as if said evidence were originally offered in such district court.

(IV) It is the duty of the commission or the state engineer, upon being served with a notice of appeal pursuant to this section, to transmit to the district court to which the appeal is taken the papers, maps, plats, field notes, orders, decisions, and other available data affecting the matter in controversy or certified copies thereof, which certified copies shall be admitted in evidence as of equal validity with the originals.

(V) For the purpose of maximizing continuity in the disposition of designated ground water cases, on or before January 10 of each year, the supreme court shall designate or redesignate a designated ground water judge for each designated ground water basin, who shall be selected from a judicial district within which some part of that designated ground water basin lies, and any vacancy that occurs during such year shall be filled by designation of the supreme court. The services of each designated ground water judge shall be in addition to such judge's regular duties as a district judge but shall take priority over such regular duties, and the schedules of the district judges in each such judicial district shall be arranged and adjusted so that the designated ground water judge shall be free to hear designated ground water cases. All cases relating to designated ground water which are filed in each judicial district shall be assigned to the designated ground water judge, and all proceedings regarding said cases shall be heard by the designated ground water judge. If it becomes necessary during any year for the proper handling of designated ground water cases in any judicial district, the supreme court shall designate one or more additional designated ground water judges from that judicial district or may make temporary assignments of other judges to hear such cases.

(2) Any party adversely affected or aggrieved by a rule adopted by the ground water commission may take an appeal pursuant to section 24-4-106, C.R.S.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Nontributary Groundwater: The Continuing Saga", see 13 Colo. Law. 68 (1984).

General assembly not prevented from placing water adjudication jurisdiction in commission. Although in Colorado jurisdiction for water adjudication has traditionally been in the courts, there is nothing in the state constitution — and particularly nothing in § 6 of art. XVI — to prevent the general assembly from placing such jurisdiction in a different agency, such as the ground water commission in the case of designated ground water, considering that such determinations are appealable to the courts. In re Water Rights in Irrigation Div. No. 1, 181 Colo. 395, 510 P.2d 323 (1973) (decided under former law).

Where the water involved is designated ground water, jurisdiction over which was given to the ground water commission, and the location of the land and water is in a county, the district court of that county has jurisdiction of the action. Larick v. District Court, 177 Colo. 237, 493 P.2d 647 (1972).

Collateral attack on commission decision impermissible. Where ground water users failed to object to or appeal from the formation of a ground water district, their collateral attack on the decision of the commission to include their land within the boundaries of the district was impermissible. In re Water Rights in Irrigation Div. No. 1, 181 Colo. 395, 510 P.2d 323 (1973) (decided under former law).

Any person dissatisfied with any decision of the commission may take an appeal to the appropriate district court and those proceedings shall be de novo. Should a person take a timely appeal even after the commission's review and approval of a management district's proposed corrective measure, the measure would remain inoperative and without legal effect until the court should approve it; therefore, by this elaborate reviewing scheme, the general assembly intended to allow for the full development of issues and interests and their cautious scrutiny by both the agency and state judiciary before a decision or regulation would become operative upon persons having such a vital interest affected as the use and appropriation of water. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Appeals from actions of the water commission should be taken to the court of the county wherein the water rights or wells are situated. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Subject matter jurisdiction for appeal of denial of application is invoked by the filing of a timely notice of appeal in the district court. While service of notice of the appeal requires personal service on all interested parties, accomplishing personal service within 30 days is a procedural requirement the violation of which does not mandate, but may justify, dismissal of the appeal. Thus, district court's dismissal of appeal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is reversed and remanded for a hearing to determine whether the failure to timely serve all interested parties is sufficient cause for dismissal of the appeal. Eagle Peaks Farm v. Ground Wtr. Mgmt. Dist., 7 P.3d 1006 (Colo. App. 1999).

Review of state engineer's actions on well permit applications. The modified doctrine of prior appropriation provided for in the Colorado ground water management act applies to nontributary ground water, and rights to such water in designated ground water basins must be obtained through the procedures established in that act. Rights to nontributary ground water not located in a designated basin may be obtained only through application for a well permit from the state engineer under § 37-90-137. Review of the state engineer's action on well permit applications may be obtained under § 24-4-106, as prescribed by this section, for appeals taken before the 1983 revision of this section became applicable. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L. Ed.2d 474 (1984).

The "acts" and "decisions" of the commission referenced in this section are non-rule-making in nature, such as those involving the application of statutes or rules to specific well permit applications, water rights, change of water rights, or other matters focusing on particular water users in specific circumstances. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. Eagle Peak Farms, 919 P.2d 212 (Colo. 1996).

The general assembly did not intend to subject the commission to de novo review of any type. Agency rulemaking is quasi-legislative, not quasi-judicial, in character. De novo review of legislative proceedings does not take the traditional form of a new trial on the merits. Instead, it means that any relevant evidence may be introduced to prove illegality or the abuse of legislative discretion. Colo. Ground Water Comm'n v. Eagle Peak Farms, 919 P.2d 212 (Colo. 1996).

Upon application for well, court determines amount of water available for appro- priation. In determining whether an application for a well should be granted, the trial court must initially determine the amount of ground water that is available for appropriation under the commission's "40% depletion in 25 years" formula. Berens v. Ground Water Comm'n, 200 Colo. 170, 614 P.2d 352 (1980).

Inherent in determination are acres being irrigated and water applied to acres. Inherent in the determination of the amount of ground water available for appropriation in a particular three-mile circle are two issues relating to the three-mile circle: (1) How many acres are being irrigated in the three-mile circle; and (2) How much ground water is being applied to each acre under irrigation? Only after specific findings have been made on each issue may the trial court reach a conclusion as to the quantity of existing claims senior to applicants. Berens v. Ground Water Comm'n, 200 Colo. 170, 614 P.2d 352 (1980).

Upon determining amount of available water, court finds quantity of existing senior claims. Upon determining the amount of ground water available for appropriation in the three-mile circle surrounding the point of the applicant's proposed well, the trial court must then make a specific finding as to the quantity of existing claims senior to applicants. Berens v. Ground Water Comm'n, 200 Colo. 170, 614 P.2d 352 (1980).

Where conditional permits unexpired, court assumes full conditional appropriation used. Where conditional permits have not expired as of the date of trial, the trial court should assume that the full conditional appropriation will be put to beneficial use. Berens v. Ground

Where court finds number of irrigated acres at time permits expired. Once it has been determined that some or all of the conditional permits senior to the applicant for water have expired, the trial court must make an additional finding as to the number of acres under irrigation at the time those permits expired. Berens v. Ground Water Comm'n, 200 Colo. 170, 614 P.2d 352 (1980).

Plaintiff's constitutional rights should be fully protected by the procedures made available by the act, and the United States district court cannot presume otherwise. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

By entertaining an adjudication of water obtained through an underground well, the court in no way clothes itself with exclusive jurisdiction as to injunctions relating to those water priorities. Larrick v. District Court, 177 Colo. 237, 493 P.2d 647 (1972).

Where an action is brought in a district court of one county to adjudicate priorities in a district, a court acquires and retains exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate priorities throughout the district, because exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate priorities is a different matter than exclusive jurisdiction to entertain any future injunctive suit. Larrick v. District Court, 177 Colo. 237, 493 P.2d 647 (1972).

Judgment upheld designating area as ground water basin. Hayes v. State, 178 Colo. 447, 498 P.2d 1119 (1972).

Applied in Peterson v. Ground Water Comm'n, 195 Colo. 508, 579 P.2d 629 (1978); Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

37-90-116. Fees. (1) The state engineer or the commission shall collect the following fees:

- (a) (I) Repealed.
- (II) Effective July 1, 2006, with an application for the use of ground water, one hundred dollars, which sum shall not be refunded.
- (b) Repealed.
- (c) (I) Repealed.
- (II) Effective July 1, 2006, for issuing a permit to modify or replace an existing well, one hundred dollars.
- (d) For making a copy of a document filed in his office, fifty cents per page or fraction thereof;
- (e) For certifying copies of documents, records, or maps, two dollars for each certification;
- (f) The actual expenses of publication, if any is required, which sums shall be promptly billed to the applicant and paid prior to the approval of any permit or other application, unless the commission requires the applicant to pay these expenses directly to the newspaper, and the applicant provides a proof of such payment to the commission. All fees for publication expenses collected by the state engineer or by the commission shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit them to the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).
- (g) With an objection to an application for the use of ground water, ten dollars, which sum shall not be refunded;

(h) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, with an application for any change in a well permit, whether conditional or final, submitted pursuant to section 37-90-111 (1) (g), one hundred dollars, which sum shall not be refunded.

(i) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, with a request to extend the expiration date on a well permit, other than a well permit issued pursuant to section 37-90-105, sixty dollars.

(2) Departments and agencies of the state of Colorado shall be exempt from the payment of fees for applications for the use of ground water or for a permit to construct a well.

(3) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in subsection (1) of this section, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

37-90-117. Water conservation board - duties. The Colorado water conservation board has the power, and it is its duty, to investigate and determine the nature and extent of the ground water resources of the state of Colorado. It is also the duty of said board to study and determine the effect, if any, of the withdrawal of ground water upon aquifer supply and upon the surface flow of streams, and the information obtained thereby shall be made available to the state engineer and the ground water commission and any designated ground water management district. Nothing in this section shall be construed as impairing the authority of the state engineer, the ground water commission, or any ground water management district to make such investigation as it may find necessary or desirable to enable it to perform its duties under this article.

37-90-118. Ground water management districts - formation. Within areas determined as designated ground water basins by action of the commission in accordance with section 37-90-106, ground water management districts may be formed in the manner, and having the power, provided in sections 37-90-118 to 37-90-135; but no district shall be organized unless all ground water aquifers containing designated ground water within the geographic boundaries of the district have been included as a part of the district by the commission.

ANNOTATION

Once a basin is so designated, the act gives tax-paying electors in the designated area the right to create ground water management districts within the basin, so any district thus formed, if approved by the commission, is a governmental subdivision of the state of Colorado, and a corporate body with the powers of a public or quasi-municipal corporation. North

Formation of ground water management districts is optional. Cherokee Water Dist. v. State, Ground Water Comm'n, 196 Colo. 192, 585 P.2d 586 (1978).

37-90-119. Creation of districts - proposal - submission - changes - proposed boundaries. A proposal for the formation of a designated ground water management district must be first submitted to the ground water commission, which shall make a hydrologic, geographic, and geologic evaluation of the proposed boundaries and recommend any changes in such boundaries as are indicated by such evaluation. No further steps for the formation of such district shall be taken until the commission, in writing, gives its consent to the boundaries thereof. The commission shall give either its consent or disapproval of the proposed boundaries within ninety days after the proposal has been submitted to it.

37-90-120. Management districts - petition - signatures required - filing. Following receipt of the consent required by section 37-90-119, a petition calling for formation of the proposed district may be filed with the commission. The petition shall be signed by not less than fifteen percent of the taxpaying electors within the proposed district.

37-90-121. Management districts - petition - contents - minor defects - amendment. (1) The petition referred to in section 37-90-120 shall set forth:

(a) The name of the proposed district and boundaries thereof;

(b) A proposed division of the district into divisions as nearly equal in size as may be practicable, and considering the population thereof, each of which is to be represented by a director, who shall be a resident taxpaying elector in such division or reside within the designated ground water basin within which the district is located and be a resident agriculturist who owns and actively farms or ranches land located within such division;

(c) The number of directors that the district shall have if formed, not less than five nor more than fifteen in number, together with the name and address of each of the proposed directors, the division to be represented by each of them, and their terms of office, which shall be so designated that approximately one-half of them shall expire on the first Tuesday in March of the second year after the organization of the district is completed, and the remainder of them on the first Tuesday in March of the fourth year after the organization of the district is completed;

(d) Where the offices of such proposed district are to be maintained; and

(e) A prayer that the organization of the district be submitted to a vote of the taxpaying electors as provided in section 37-90-124.

(2) No petition for the organization of a district with the requisite signatures shall be declared null and void on account of minor defects, but the commission may at any time, prior to final determination of the sufficiency thereof, permit the petition to be amended in form to conform to the facts. Several similar petitions or duplicate copies of the same petition for the organization of the same district may be filed and shall together be regarded as one petition. All petitions, filed prior to the determination of the sufficiency of such petition, shall be considered as though filed with the first petition placed on file.

37-90-122. Management district - petition - certification of signatures - hearing - notice - publication. The commission shall examine the petition, and, if it finds that it bears the requisite number of signatures and otherwise meets the stated requirements, it shall thereupon set a date for hearing upon such petition and shall cause notice of such hearing, together with a copy of such petition, to be published, the final publication being not less than ten days nor more than thirty days prior to the date set for such hearing. The cost of such publication shall be paid by the petitioners and shall be advanced by them prior to publication.

37-90-123. Management districts - hearing - objections - change of boundaries. At the time set for such hearing, the commission shall examine the petition and hear objections thereto and may order changes in the boundaries thereof by the inclusion or removal of land therefrom upon finding that such change would be hydrologically, geologically, and geographically sound. The action of the commission may be reviewed by the district court in appeal proceedings filed within twenty days after its decision has been announced, which decision shall be announced within ninety days after the hearing.

37-90-124. Election on organization. (1) If, after the completion of the hearing on the feasibility of the organization of a district, it is determined that such district shall be organized, the commission shall forthwith make an order allowing the prayer of the petition, and, by order duly entered upon its record, shall call an election of the taxpaying electors in the district for the purpose of determining whether such district shall be organized, and shall set the date for such election.

(2) The commission shall thereupon publish a notice, the final publication to be not less than ten days nor more than thirty days immediately preceding the election, which notice shall state: The fact of filing of the petition; in summary form, the information required by section 37-90-121 (1) to be included in the petition; that an election will be held to decide the question of organization of the proposed district; the date of such election; the polling places at which such election is to be held; the qualifications of those eligible to vote at such election; and the specific question to be submitted.

(3) The commission shall appoint three taxpaying electors of the district as judges for each designated polling place. The election shall be held and conducted as nearly as may be in the same manner as general elections in this state. There shall be no special registration for such election, but, for the purpose of determining qualifications of electors, the judges shall be permitted to use the last official registration lists of electors residing in the district and a certified list of taxpayers in the district prepared by the county treasurer and, in addition, may require the execution of an affidavit concerning the qualification of any such taxpaying elector to vote.

(4) At such election the voters shall vote for or against the organization of the district. The judges of each polling place shall certify the returns of the election to the ground water commission. If a majority of votes cast at said election are against the organization of the district, the commission shall forthwith dismiss the petition, and no election shall be held on the original petition or another petition for organization of the same district within one year of such dismissal.

(5) If a majority of the votes cast at said election are for the organization of said district, the commission, by order duly entered of record, shall declare the district organized, define the boundaries thereof, and give it the corporate name designated in the petition by which in all proceedings it shall thereafter be known and designate the members of the first board of directors, as named in the organization petition and the districts they represent. Thereupon the district shall be a governmental subdivision of the state of Colorado and a body corporate with all the powers of a public or quasi-municipal corporation.

37-90-125. Filing decree. Within thirty days after the district has been declared a corporation by the commission, it shall transmit to the county clerk and recorder of each of the counties in which the district or a part thereof extends copies of the decree of the commission incorporating the district.

37-90-126. Management district - directors - qualifications - oath - bond - vacancies. The members of the board of directors shall meet the qualifications established in section 37-90-121 (1) (b). Each member of the board shall take an oath of office, shall give bond in the sum of five thousand dollars conditioned that he or she shall faithfully perform the duties of director and of such further office to which he or she may be elected in such district, and shall account for all funds or property coming into his or her hands as such director or other officer. Such bonds shall run to the district, shall be signed by a surety approved by the ground water commission, and shall be filed and recorded in the office of the state engineer. When such bond is so filed and approved, such person so elected shall take and hold office until his or her successor is elected and qualified. When a vacancy occurs on the board, such vacancy shall be filled by the remaining members of the board.

ANNOTATION

An appointed director must stand for election at the district's next regular election. This article does not address the issue but § 1-12-207 of the election code does. Because the election code was intended to provide answers to election procedures not included in other statutes, the election code provision controls. Deutsch v. Kalcevic, 140 P.3d 340 (Colo. App. 2006).

37-90-127. Management district - directors - election - term of office. As the terms of the members of the board of directors expire, their successors shall be nominated by petitions containing the signatures of not less than fifteen percent of the number of qualified taxpaying electors of the division who voted at the last preceding district election, to be filed with the secretary of the district not less than thirty-five days before the election; thereafter, the members shall be elected for terms of four years by the plurality vote of the taxpaying electors of the division of the district which they represent. Such elections shall be held on the first Tuesday in February preceding the expiration of such terms and shall be conducted by the district board in the general manner prescribed in section 37-90-124.

37-90-130. Management districts - board of directors. (1) The district board has the duty and responsibility of consulting with the commission on all ground water matters affecting the district to determine whether proposed restrictions or regulations are suitable for such area, to determine in conjunction with the commission whether the area of the district should be enlarged or contracted, to cooperate with the commission and the state engineer in the assembling of data on the ground water aquifers in the area and the enforcement of regulations or restrictions which may be imposed thereon, and to assist the commission and the state engineer to the end of conserving the ground water supplies of the area for the maximum beneficial use thereof.

(2) After the issuance of any well permit for the use of ground water within the district by the ground water commission as provided in sections 37-90-107 and 37-90-108, the district board has the authority to regulate the use, control, and conservation of the ground water of the district covered by such permit by any one or more of the following methods, but the proposed controls, regulations, or conservation measures shall be subject to review and final approval by the ground water commission if objection is made in accordance with section 37-90-131:

(a) To provide for the spacing of wells producing from the ground water aquifer or subdivision thereof and to regulate the production therefrom so as to minimize as far as practicable the lowering of the water table or the reduction of the artesian pressure;

(b) To acquire lands for the erection of dams and for the purpose of draining lakes, draws, and depressions, and to construct dams, drain lakes, depressions, draws, and creeks, and to install pumps and other equipment necessary to recharge the ground water reservoir or subdivision thereof;

(c) To develop comprehensive plans for the most efficient use of the water of the ground water aquifer or subdivision thereof and for the control and prevention of waste of such water, which plans shall specify in such detail as may be practicable the acts, procedure, performance, and avoidance which are or may be necessary to effect such plans, including specifications therefor; to carry out research projects, develop information, and determine limitations, if any, which should be made on the withdrawal of water from the ground water aquifer or subdivisions thereof; to collect and preserve information regarding the use of such water and the practicability of recharge of the ground water aquifer; and to publish such plans and information and bring them to the notice and attention of the users of such ground water within the district and to encourage their adoption and execution;

(d) To require the owner or operator of any land in the district upon which is located any open or uncovered well to close or cap the same permanently with a covering capable of sustaining weight of not less than four hundred pounds, except when said well is in actual use by the owner or operator thereof;

(e) To promulgate reasonable rules and regulations for the purpose of conserving, preserving, protecting, and recharging the ground water of the ground water aquifer or subdivision thereof, in conformity with the provisions of this article;

(f) To prohibit, after affording an opportunity for a hearing before the board of the local district and presentation of evidence, the use of ground water outside the boundaries of the district where such use materially affects the rights acquired by permit by any owner or operator of land within the district;

(g) In the control and administration of the quantity of ground water extracted from the aquifer, to adopt such devices, procedures, measures, or methods as it deems appropriate to effectuate this purpose;

(h) To promulgate reasonable rules and regulations with respect to the protection and compensation of the owners of any small capacity wells as defined in section 37-90-105 which may be injured by irrigation wells;

(i) To represent the district at any hearings or proceedings conducted or authorized by the commission affecting any water rights, either actual or potential, within the district;

(j) To exercise such other administrative and regulatory authority concerning the ground waters of the district as, without the existence of the district, would otherwise be exercised by the ground water commission.

(3) All special and regular meetings of the board shall be held at locations which are within the boundaries of the district or which are within the boundaries of any county in which the district is located, in whole or in part, or in any county so long as the meeting location does not exceed twenty miles from the district boundaries. The provisions of this subsection (3) may be waived only if the following criteria are met:

(a) The proposed change of location of a meeting of the board appears on the agenda of a regular or special meeting of the board; and

(b) A resolution is adopted by the board stating the reason for which a meeting of the board is to be held in a location other than under the provisions of this subsection (3) and further stating the date, time, and place of such meeting.

(4) After the issuance of any well permit for a small capacity well within the district pursuant to section 37-90-105, the district has the authority to enforce compliance with the terms and conditions governing the use of the ground water allowed by such permit to ensure that such use is within the scope of what is allowed by section 37-90-105 and the well permit.

ANNOTATION

The management district is a corporate government subdivision of the state of Colorado which is formed for the purpose of assisting the commission on all matters affecting the district area, which include enforcing commission regulations, providing data on underground aquifers within the area, determining if commission regulations are suitable for the area, and helping conserve the ground water for maximum beneficial use. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

The act provides that the district, along with its powers to enforce commission regulations, has general authority to regulate the use, control, and conservation of ground waters within the district, so to accomplish such purposes, the district board of directors has the power to impose upon water users within the district certain rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the commission if timely objection is filed to such a rule by a water user within the district; among others, the district possesses the power to promulgate regulations relating to the limitation upon exportation of ground waters outside of the district, where such use "materially affects the rights acquired by permit by any owner or operator of land within the district". North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Where a management district exists, the management district, not the ground water commission, has authority to administer designated ground water priorities within its boundaries. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

The Ground Water Management Act empowers the ground water commission, or a water management district where one exists, to issue well withdrawal curtailment orders in the administration of priorities, but does not impose a non-discretionary duty to do so. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

And, the management district's rules, its control and conservation measures, and its well spacing criteria apply to the ground water commissions's injury analysis in the permitting phase, as they do when the management district addresses questions of administration and enforcement. Upper Black Squirrel Creek v. Goss, 993 P.2d 1177 (Colo. 2000).

Ground water management district may, by rule, limit allowable ground water pumping by previously-permitted wells, subject to review of the rules by the ground water commission. The vested property right created by a permit is not unchangeable, but rather is subject to management by the district or, in the absence of a district, by the commission. Meridian v. Colo. Ground Water, 240 P.3d 382 (Colo. App. 2009).

With respect to issuing permits and promulgating regulations the act makes available to affected water users the procedures providing for notice, hearing, and review of the commission and the management district measures. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Provisions for review of "control measures" refer to general district regulations and not individual decisions made within the ambit of such control measures. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

Federal court decision that plaintiff challenging management district's water control measure should exhaust administrative remedies through review by ground water commission is not res judicata on the issue of commission's jurisdiction to review management district's application and interpretation of measure. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

37-90-131. Management district - board of directors - control measures - hearing - notice - publication - order. (1) (a) Whenever the board of directors determines that controls, regulations, or conservation measures are necessary in order to ensure the proper conservation of ground water within the district, it shall confer with the ground water commission and ground water users within the district. No such measures or regulations shall be instituted until after a public hearing. Notice of such hearing shall be published. Such notice shall state the time and place of the hearing and in general terms the corrective measures or regulations proposed. Within sixty-three days after such hearing, the board shall announce the measures or regulations ordered to be taken and shall cause notice of such action to be published. The board has the authority to compel compliance with such measures or regulations by an action brought in the district court of the county in which any failure to comply is found to exist.

(b) Any person adversely affected or aggrieved by the announcement of control or conservation measures or regulations adopted by the district board may appeal such decision to the ground water commission by filing a notice of appeal and the grounds therefor with the commission not later than thirty-five days after the date of last publication. The commission shall hear all such appeals pursuant to section 37-90-113. The commission shall have authority to affirm or reject the measures or regulations adopted by the district or to modify such measures or regulations but only upon consent from the district board. Judicial review of commission actions in such appeals may be taken pursuant to section 37-90-115.

(c) Any person adversely affected or aggrieved by an act of the district board, other than the announcement of control or conservation measures or regulations, has the right to be heard by the board. Such person shall file a written request for a hearing that states the basis of the alleged injury. Unless agreed otherwise by all parties to a hearing or unless otherwise approved by the district due to extenuating circumstances, a hearing shall be held within one hundred eighty-two days after filing the request for such a hearing. Upon thirty-five days' written notice to all adverse parties, the district shall conduct a hearing upon the matter. Hearing procedures shall be as informal as possible, with due regard for the rights of the parties. All parties shall have the right to subpoena witnesses and to be heard either in person or by attorney. The district board may have such hearings conducted before an agent or hearing officer. After such hearing, the district board shall issue a written decision containing its findings and conclusions and shall serve its decision upon all parties by first-class mail. Judicial review of such district decisions may be taken in the manner and governed by the standards set forth for review of commission and state engineer decisions in section 37-90-115.

(2) Subject to review by the ground water commission pursuant to subsection (1) of this section, the board may institute control measures or regulations to prescribe satisfactory and economical measuring methods for the measurement of water levels in and the amount of water withdrawn from wells and to require reports to be made at the end of each pumping season showing the date and water level at the beginning of the pumping season, the date and water level at the end of the pumping season, and any period of more than thirty-five days cessation of pumping during such pumping season.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For comment on the Colorado Administrative Procedure Act and its construction, see 51 Den. L.J. 275 (1974).

The act prescribes review and final approval within the administrative process and it is significant that the commission's authority with respect to the management district's proposed measure is not limited to appellate review but involves the commission's rule-making power, and in effect all management district regulations objected to by interested persons become commission regulations upon approval. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Proposed control, regulations, or conservation measures of the management districts are subject to review and final approval by the ground water commission if objection is made within 30 days after the publication of the corrective measure. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

The promulgation and adoption by management districts of proposed regulations and control measures applicable generally to water users within the district may be reviewed by the commission. In re Water Rights in Irrigation Div. No. 1, 181 Colo. 395, 510 P.2d 323 (1973) (decided under former law).

Following the pronouncement of any control measure, the district is required to send notice of such measures to every known ground water user in the district by registered or certified mail. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

The requirement that every user of ground water in a district be sent registered notice of every decision by the district pertaining to specific individuals would surely be a strained construction of legislative intent, as such notice requirement is obviously intended as a method of notifying water users of general control measures which the district proposes to adopt. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

The consequence of lodging a timely objection to a management district's proposed measure is to defer finality of the administra-

Provisions for review of "control measures" refer to general district regulations and not individual decisions made within the ambit of such control measures. North Kiowa-Bijou Mgt. Dist. v. Ground Water Comm'n, 180 Colo. 314, 505 P.2d 377 (1973).

In deference to the expertise of administrative agencies and in an attempt to avoid premature review of incomplete regulations and orders, no person is entitled to judicial relief in the federal courts for threatening injury until he has exhausted his prescribed administrative remedies, and with final approval pending, no obligation nor fixing of civil or criminal liability has been imposed on the plaintiff as a consummation of the administrative process; hence, plaintiff's failure to exhaust his administrative remedies goes to the very jurisdiction of the United States district court, since the exhaustion requirement under the present facts is a prerequisite to invoking federal jurisdiction. Jackson v. Colo., 294 F. Supp. 1065 (D. Colo. 1968).

Federal court decision that plaintiff challenging management district's water control measure should exhaust administrative rem-

37-90-132. Management district - board of directors - taxes - levy - limitation. The board of directors may levy and collect annually taxes necessary to finance the activities of such district to the amount of not more than two mills on the dollar of the valuation for assessment of all taxable property within the district. It shall, in accordance with the schedule prescribed by section 39-5-128, C.R.S., certify its mill levy to the board of county commissioners of the counties wholly or partially within the district, who shall extend the same on the county tax list, and the same shall be collected by the county treasurer in the same manner as state and county taxes are collected. In addition, annually the board of directors of the district may assess and certify a special assessment on all water wells, except those wells described in section 37-90-105, in the district not to exceed fifteen cents per acre-foot of the maximum annual volume of the appropriation of each such well. Said assessment shall be collected by the county treasurer in the same manner as other special assessments. It is the duty of the board to apply for and to receive from the county treasurers all money to the credit of the district.

37-90-134. Management district - issuance of bonds - indebtedness - submission to electors. (1) To pay for the construction, operation, and maintenance of any works, and expenses preliminary and incidental thereto, which the board is authorized to construct for the benefit of the district, the board is authorized to enter into contracts providing for payment in installments or to issue negotiable bonds of the district. If bonds are authorized, the same shall bear interest at a rate such that the net effective interest rate of the issue does not exceed the maximum net effective interest rate authorized, payable semiannually, and shall be due and payable not more than fifty years from their dates. The form, terms, and provisions of said bonds or contracts, provisions for their payment, and conditions for their retirement and calling, not inconsistent with law, shall be vested and determined by the board, and they shall be issued in payment of the works, equipment, expenses, and interest during and after the period of construction. Said bonds or contracts shall be executed in the name of and on behalf of the district and signed by the president of the board, the seal of the district affixed thereto and attested by the secretary of the board. Said bonds or contracts must be in such denominations or upon such conditions as the board determines and shall be payable to bearer and may be registered in the office of the county treasurer of each of the counties wherein the district or part of it is situated, with the interest coupons payable to bearer, which shall bear the facsimile signature of the president of the board. Bond interest shall be exempt from all state, county, municipal, school, and other taxes imposed by any taxing authority of the state of Colorado and shall not be sold at less than par and accrued interest.

(2) Whenever the board incorporated under this article, by resolution adopted by majority of said board, determines that the interests of said district and the public interest or necessity demand the acquisition, construction, or completion of any source of water supply, waterworks, or other improvements or facilities, or the making of any contract with the United States or other persons or corporations, to carry out the objects and purposes of said district, wherein the indebtedness or obligation is created, to satisfy which shall require a greater expenditure than the ordinary annual income and revenue of the district permits, said board shall order the submission of the proposition of incurring such obligation or bonded or other indebtedness for the purposes set forth in said resolution to the qualified taxpaying electors of the district at an election held for that purpose. Any election held for the purpose of submitting any proposition of incurring such obligation or indebtedness may be held separately or may be consolidated or held concurrently with any other election authorized by law at which such qualified taxpaying electors of the district are entitled to vote. Notice of the resolution and election shall be published in a form sufficient to apprise the taxpaying electors of the objects and purposes for which the indebtedness is proposed to be incurred, the estimated cost of the works or improvement, the amount of principal of the indebtedness to be incurred therefor, and the maximum rate of interest to be paid on such indebtedness. Such resolution and notice shall also fix the date upon which such election shall be held, the manner of holding the same, and the method of voting for or against the incurring of the proposed indebtedness. Such election shall be held in the same general manner as in this article provided for the election of directors. The bond issue or indebtedness proposed shall not be valid unless a majority of those voting at the election held for that purpose vote in favor of such bond issue or indebtedness in accordance with the terms of the resolution.

37-90-135. Management district - dissolution - procedure - funds - disposition. If there are no debts outstanding, the board of directors may, on its own motion or on the written petition of twenty percent of the taxpaying electors of the district, request of the ground water commission that the question of dissolution of such district be submitted to the electors of the district. The commission shall fix the date of such election, notice of which shall be given and which shall be conducted in the same manner as elections for the formation of such districts. If a majority of those voting on such question vote in favor of dissolution, the commission shall so certify to the county clerk and recorders of the counties involved and the district shall thereupon be dissolved. The question of dissolution shall not be submitted more often than once every twelve months. In case a district is dissolved the funds on hand or to be collected shall be held by the treasurer, and the directors shall petition the district court of the county in which the main office is located for an order approving the distribution of funds to the taxpayers of the district on the same basis as collected.

37-90-137. Permits to construct wells outside designated basins - fees - permit no ground water right - evidence - time limitation - well permits - rules - repeal. (1) On and after May 17, 1965, no new wells shall be constructed outside the boundaries of a designated ground water basin nor the supply of water from existing wells outside the boundaries of a designated ground water basin increased or extended, unless the user makes an application in writing to the state engineer for a permit to construct a well, in a form to be prescribed by the state engineer. The applicant shall specify the particular aquifer from which the water is to be diverted, the beneficial use to which it is proposed to apply such water, the location of the proposed well, the name of the owner of the land on which such well will be located, the average annual amount of water applied for in acre-feet per year, the proposed maximum pumping rate in gallons per minute, and, if the proposed use is agricultural irrigation, a description of the land to be irrigated and the name of the owner thereof, together with such other reasonable information as the state engineer may designate on the form prescribed.

(2) (a) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, upon receipt of an application for a replacement well or a new, increased, or additional supply of ground water from an area outside the boundaries of a designated ground water basin, accompanied by a filing fee of one hundred dollars, the state engineer shall make a determination as to whether or not the exercise of the requested permit will materially injure the vested water rights of others.

(b) (I) The state engineer shall issue a permit to construct a well only if:

(A) The state engineer finds, as substantiated by hydrological and geological facts, that there is unappropriated water available for withdrawal by the proposed well and that the vested water rights of others will not be materially injured; and

(B) Except as specified in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b), the location of the proposed well will be more than six hundred feet from an existing well.

(II) If the state engineer, after a hearing, finds that circumstances in a particular instance so warrant, or if a court decree is entered for the proposed well location after notice has been given in accordance with sub-subparagraph (B) of this subparagraph (II), the state engineer may issue a permit without regard to the limitation specified in sub-subparagraph (B) of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b); except that no hearing shall be required and the state engineer may issue a well permit without regard to the limitation specified in sub-subparagraph (B) of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b):

(A) If the state engineer notifies the owners of all wells within six hundred feet of the proposed well by certified mail and receives no response within the time set forth in the notice;

(B) If the proposed well is part of a water court proceeding adjudicating the water right for the well, or if the proposed well is part of an adjudication of a plan for augmentation or change of water right and if evidence is provided to the water court that the applicant has given notice of the water court application, at least fourteen days before making the application, by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to the owners of record of all wells within six hundred feet of the proposed well;

(C) If the proposed well will serve an individual residential site and the proposed pumping rate will not exceed fifteen gallons per minute; except that, if there is an oil and gas well within six hundred feet of the surface location of the proposed well, the state engineer shall notify the owner of such well by certified mail of the proposed well and may issue the well permit subject to the limitations specified in sub-subparagraph (A) of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b);

(D) If the proposed well is an oil and gas well and the only wells within six hundred feet of the surface location of the proposed well are oil and gas wells; or

(E) If the proposed well is an oil and gas well, there is an existing production water well that is not an oil and gas well within six hundred feet of the surface location of the proposed oil and gas well, the state engineer has provided written notice of the application by certified mail to the owners of such wells that are not oil and gas wells within thirty-five days after receipt of a complete application for the proposed well, and the state engineer has given those to whom notice was provided thirty-five days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the proposed well's application.

(c) The permit shall set forth such conditions for drilling, casing, and equipping wells and other diversion facilities as are reasonably necessary to prevent waste, pollution, or material injury to existing rights.

(d) (I) The state engineer shall endorse upon the application the date of its receipt, file and preserve such application, and make a record of such receipt and the issuance of the permit in his office so indexed as to be useful in determining the extent of the uses made from various ground water sources.

(II) The state engineer shall act upon an application filed under this section within forty-five days after its receipt.

(3) (a) (I) A permit to construct a well outside the boundaries of a designated ground water basin issued on or after April 21, 1967, shall expire one year after issuance unless, before the expiration and on forms as may be prescribed by the state engineer, the applicant to whom the permit was issued, or the well construction contractor, furnishes to the state engineer:

(A) Evidence that the well was constructed and that the pump was installed; or

(B) A showing of good cause as to why the well has not been constructed nor the pump installed and an estimate of time necessary to complete the tasks, upon which the state engineer may extend the permit for only one additional period, not to exceed one year. The limitation on the extension of well permits provided in this sub-subparagraph (B) shall not apply to well permits for federally authorized water projects contained in paragraph (d) of this subsection (3). The state engineer shall charge a fee of two hundred dollars for the extension; except that, on and after July 1, 2006, the state engineer shall charge a fee of sixty dollars for the extension.

(II) If the requirements of section 37-92-301 are met, the expiration of any permit pursuant to this paragraph (a) associated with a conditional ground water right shall not be the sole basis to determine the existence of reasonable diligence toward completion of such conditional water right.

(III) The state engineer may require the metering or other reasonable measurement of withdrawals of ground water pursuant to permits and the reasonable recording and disclosure of such measured withdrawals.

(b) Any permit to construct a well issued by the state engineer prior to April 21, 1967, shall expire on July 1, 1973, unless the applicant furnishes to the state engineer, prior to July 1, 1973, evidence that the water from such well has been put to beneficial use prior to that date. The state engineer shall give notice by certified or registered mail to all persons to whom such permits were issued at the address shown on the state engineer's records, setting forth the provisions of this subsection (3). Such notices shall be mailed not later than December 31, 1971.

(c) If evidence that the well has been constructed and that the pump was installed, as required pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (3), has not been received as of the expiration date of the permit to construct a well, the state engineer shall so notify the applicant by certified mail. The notice shall give the applicant the opportunity to submit evidence that the well was constructed and that the pump was installed before the expiration date. The evidence must be received by the state engineer within twenty-one days after receipt of the notice by the applicant and must be accompanied by a filing fee of thirty dollars. If the state engineer finds the evidence to be satisfactory, the permit shall remain in force and effect. The state engineer shall consider any records available in the state engineer's office, any evidence provided to the state engineer, and all other matters set forth in this section in determining whether the permit should remain in force and effect.

(d) In the case of federally authorized water projects wherein well permits are required by this section and have been secured, the expiration dates thereof may be extended for additional periods based upon a finding of good cause by the state engineer following a review of any such project at least annually by the state engineer.

(4) (a) In the issuance of a permit to construct a well outside a designated ground water basin and not meeting the exemptions set forth in section 37-92-602 to withdraw nontributary ground water or any ground water in the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers, the provisions of subsections (1) and (2) of this section shall apply.

(b) (I) Permits issued pursuant to this subsection (4) shall allow withdrawals on the basis of an aquifer life of one hundred years.

(II) Subject to the provisions of subsections (1) and (2) of this section, the amount of such ground water available for withdrawal shall be that quantity of water, exclusive of artificial recharge, underlying the land owned by the applicant or underlying land owned by another:

(A) Who has consented in writing to the applicant's withdrawal; or

(B) Whose consent exists by virtue of a lawful municipal ordinance or a quasi-municipal district resolution in effect prior to January 1, 1985, and which consent was the subject of a water court application for determination of nontributary ground water rights filed by the affected municipality or quasi-municipal district prior to January 1, 1985; or

(C) Who shall be deemed to have consented to the withdrawal of ground water pursuant to the provisions of subsection (8) of this section.

(b.5) (I) An applicant claiming to own the overlying land or to have the consent of the owner of the overlying land as contemplated in sub-subparagraph (A) of subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (4) shall furnish to the state engineer, in addition to evidence of such consent, evidence that the applicant has given notice of the application by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, no less than ten days prior to the making of the application, to every record owner of the overlying land and to every person who has a lien or mortgage upon, or deed of trust to, the overlying land recorded in the county in which the overlying land is located.

(II) For purposes of this paragraph (b.5), "person" means any individual, partnership, association, or corporation authorized to do business in the state of Colorado, or any political subdivision or public agency thereof, or any agency of the United States.

(III) The provisions of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b.5) do not apply to applicants whose right to withdraw the ground water has been determined by a valid decree nor to political subdivisions of the state of Colorado, special districts, municipalities, or quasi-municipal districts that have obtained consent to withdraw the ground water by deed, assignment, or other written evidence of consent where, at the time of application, the overlying land is within the water service area of such entity.

(c) Material injury to vested nontributary ground water rights shall not be deemed to result from the reduction of either hydrostatic pressure or water level in the aquifer.

(d) The annual amount of withdrawal allowed in any well permits issued under this subsection (4) shall be the same as the amount determined by court decree, if any, and may, if so provided by any such decree, provide for the subsequent adjustment of such amount to conform to the actual aquifer characteristics encountered upon drilling of the well or test holes.

(5) Any right to the use of ground water entitling its owner or user to construct a well, which right was initiated prior to July 6, 1973, as evidenced by an unexpired well permit issued prior to July 6, 1973, or a current decree, shall not be subject to the provisions of subsection (4) of this section.

(6) Rights to nontributary ground water outside of designated ground water basins may be determined in accordance with the procedures of sections 37-92-302 to 37-92-305. Such proceedings may be commenced at any time and may include a determination of the right to such water for existing and future uses. Such determination shall be in accordance with subsections (4) and (5) of this section. Claims pending as of October 11, 1983, which have been published pursuant to section 37-92-302 in the resume need not be republished.

(7) In the case of dewatering of geologic formations by withdrawing nontributary ground water to facilitate or permit mining of minerals: ~

(a) Except for coal bed methane wells, no well permit is required unless the nontributary groundwater being removed will be beneficially used. Except for coal bed methane wells, no well permit is required if the nontributary groundwater being removed to facilitate or permit the mining of minerals will be used only by operators within the geologic basin where the groundwater is removed to facilitate or permit the mining of minerals, including: Injection into a properly permitted disposal well; evaporation or percolation in a properly permitted pit; disposal at a properly permitted commercial facility; roadspreading or reuse for enhanced recovery, drilling, well stimulation, well maintenance, pressure control, pump operations, dust control on-site or off-site, pipeline and equipment testing, equipment washing, or fire suppression; discharge into state waters in accordance with the "Colorado Water Quality Control Act", article 8 of title 25, C.R.S., and the rules promulgated under that act; or evaporation at a properly permitted centralized exploration and production waste management facility.

(b) In the issuance of any well permit pursuant to this subsection (7), subsection (4) of this section does not apply and subsections (1), (2), and (3) of this section apply; except that, in considering whether the permit shall issue, the requirement that the state engineer find that there is unappropriated water available for withdrawal and the six-hundred-foot spacing requirement in subsection (2) of this section do not apply. The state engineer shall allow the rate of withdrawal stated by the applicant to be necessary to dewater the mine; except that, if the state engineer finds that the proposed dewatering will cause material injury to the vested water rights of others, the applicant may propose, and the permit shall contain, terms and conditions that will prevent such injury. The reduction of hydrostatic pressure level or water level alone does not constitute material injury. Permitting determinations pursuant to this subsection (7) neither confer a water right nor preclude determination of a water right by the water court.

(c) The state engineer may, pursuant to the "State Administrative Procedure Act", article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., adopt rules to assist with the administration of this subsection (7). The rule-making authority includes the promulgation of rules pursuant to which ground water within formations and basins, in whole or part, is determined to be nontributary for the purposes of this subsection (7). The rules may also provide rule-making and adjudicatory procedures for nontributary determinations to be made after the initial rule-making pursuant to this subsection (7). In all rule-making proceedings authorized by this subsection (7), the state engineer shall afford interested persons the right of cross-examination. Judicial review of all rules promulgated pursuant to this subsection (7), including all nontributary determinations made pursuant to this subsection (7), is in accordance with the "State Administrative Procedure Act"; except that venue for such review lies exclusively with the water judge or judges for the water division or divisions within which the ground water that is the subject of such rules or determinations is located. In any judicial action seeking to curtail the withdrawal, use, or disposal of ground water pursuant to this subsection (7) or to otherwise declare such activities unlawful, the court shall presume, subject to rebuttal, that any applicable nontributary determination made by the state engineer is valid. Any rules promulgated pursuant to this subsection (7) must not conflict with existing laws and do not affect the validity of ground water well permits existing prior to the adoption of such rules.

(8) It is recognized that economic considerations generally make it impractical for individual landowners to drill wells into the aquifers named in this subsection (8) for individual water supplies where municipal or quasi-municipal water service is available and that the public interest justifies the use of such ground water by municipal or quasi-municipal water suppliers under certain conditions. Therefore, wherever any existing municipal or quasi-municipal water supplier is obligated either by law or by contract in effect prior to January 1, 1985, to be the principal provider of public water service to landowners within a certain municipal or quasi-municipal boundary in existence on January 1, 1985, said water supplier may adopt an ordinance or resolution, after ten days' notice pursuant to the provisions of part 1 of article 70 of title 24, C.R.S., which incorporates ground water from the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers underlying all or any specified portion of such municipality's or quasi-municipality's boundary into its actual municipal service plan. Upon adoption of such ordinance or resolution, a detailed map of the land area as to which consent is deemed to have been given shall be filed with the state engineer. Upon the effective date of such ordinance or resolution, the owners of land which overlies such ground water shall be deemed to have consented to the withdrawal by that water supplier of all such ground water; except that no such consent shall be deemed to be given with respect to any portion of the land if:

(a) Water service to such portion of the land is not reasonably available from said water supplier and no plan has been established by that supplier allowing the landowner to obtain an alternative water supply;

(b) Such ordinance or resolution is adopted prior to September 1, 1985, and, prior to January 1, 1985, such ground water was conveyed or reserved or consent to use such ground water was given or reserved in writing to anyone other than such water supplier and such conveyance, reservation, or consent has been properly recorded prior to August 31, 1985;

(c) Such ordinance or resolution is adopted on or after September 1, 1985, and said ground water has been conveyed or reserved or consent to use such ground water has been given or reserved in writing to anyone other than such water supplier and such conveyance, reservation, or consent is properly recorded before the effective date of that ordinance or resolution;

(d) Consent to use such ground water has been given to anyone other than such water supplier by the lawful effect of an ordinance or resolution adopted prior to January 1, 1985;

(e) Such ground water has been decreed or permitted to anyone other than such water supplier prior to the effective date of such ordinance or resolution; or

(f) Such portion of the land is not being served by said water supplier as of the effective date of such ordinance or resolution and such ground water is the subject of an application for determination of a right to use ground water filed in the water court prior to July 1, 1985.

(9) (a) For the purpose of making the state engineer's consideration of well permit applications for the withdrawal of ground water from wells described in subsection (4) of this section more certain and expeditious, the state engineer may, to the extent provided in this subsection (9) and pursuant to the "State Administrative Procedure Act", adopt rules and regulations to prescribe reasonable criteria and procedures for the application for, and the evaluation, issuance, extension, and administration of, such well permits. Such rules and regulations shall only be promulgated after the state engineer has conducted a hydrogeologic analysis, the results of which factually support the promulgation and the content of such rules and regulations for any particular aquifer or portion thereof. All such rules and regulations shall allow the withdrawal pursuant to such permits of the full amount of ground water determined under subsection (4) of this section and shall afford the applicant the opportunity to rebut any presumptive aquifer characteristics. Presumptive aquifer characteristics established by those rules and regulations shall also apply to the determination of rights to ground water from wells described in subsection (4) of this section by the water judges, subject to rebuttal by any party. In all rule-making proceedings authorized by this subsection (9), the state engineer shall afford interested persons the right of cross-examination. Judicial review of all rules and regulations promulgated pursuant to this subsection (9) shall be in accordance with the "State Administrative Procedure Act"; except that venue for such review shall lie exclusively with the water judge or judges for the water division or divisions within which the subject ground water is located.

(b) On or before December 31, 1985, the state engineer shall promulgate reasonable rules and regulations applying exclusively to the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers to the extent necessary to assure that the withdrawal of ground water from wells described in subsection (4) of this section will not materially affect vested water rights to the flow of any natural stream. In no event shall the rules and regulations promulgated under this paragraph (b) require that persons who withdraw nontributary ground water, as defined in section 37-90-103 (10.5), relinquish the right to consume, by means of original use, reuse, and successive use, more than two percent of the amount of such ground water which is withdrawn without regard to dominion or control of the ground water so relinquished, nor shall they require that judicial approval of plans for augmentation providing for such relinquishment be obtained.

(c) (I) As to wells that will be completed in the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers and will withdraw ground water that is not nontributary ground water, as defined in section 37-90-103 (10.7), judicial approval of plans for augmentation shall be required prior to the use of such ground water. As to such wells completed in the Dawson aquifer, decrees approving such plans for augmentation shall provide for the replacement of actual stream depletion to the extent necessary to prevent any injurious effect, based upon actual aquifer conditions in existence at the time of such decree. As to such wells completed in the Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers more than one mile from any point of contact between any natural stream including its alluvium on which water rights would be injuriously affected by any stream depletion, and any such aquifer, such decrees shall provide for the replacement to the affected stream system or systems of a total amount of water equal to four percent of the amount of water withdrawn on an annual basis. As to such wells completed in such aquifers at points closer than one mile to any such contact, the amount of such replacement shall be determined using the assumption that the hydrostatic pressure level in each such aquifer has been lowered at least to the top of that aquifer throughout that aquifer. Such decrees may also require the continuation of replacement after withdrawal ceases if necessary to compensate for injurious stream depletions caused by prior withdrawals from such wells and shall meet all other statutory criteria for such plans.

(II) This paragraph (c) is not in effect until July 1, 2015, and until then paragraph (c.5) of this subsection (9) applies.

(c.5) (I) As to wells that will be completed in the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers and will withdraw ground water that is not nontributary ground water, as defined in section 37-90-103 (10.7), judicial approval of plans for augmentation shall be required prior to the use of such ground water. As to such wells completed in the Dawson aquifer, decrees approving such plans for augmentation shall provide for the replacement of actual out-of-priority depletions to the stream caused by withdrawals from such wells and shall meet all other statutory criteria for such plans. As to such wells completed in the Denver, Arapahoe, or Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers more than one mile from any point of contact between any natural stream including its alluvium on which water rights would be injuriously affected by any stream depletion, and any such aquifer, such decrees shall provide for the replacement to the affected stream system or systems of a total amount of water equal to four percent of the amount of water withdrawn on an annual basis. As to such wells completed in such aquifers at points closer than one mile to any such contact, the amount of such replacement shall be determined using the assumption that the hydrostatic pressure level in each such aquifer has been lowered at least to the top of that aquifer throughout that aquifer. Such decrees shall also require the replacement of actual out-of-priority depletions of the stream after withdrawal ceases to compensate for stream depletions caused by prior withdrawals from such wells and shall meet all other statutory criteria for such plans.

(II) This paragraph (c.5) is repealed, effective July 1, 2015.

(d) On or before July 1, 1995, the state engineer shall promulgate reasonable rules which shall apply to the permitting and use of waters artificially recharged into the Dawson, Denver, Arapahoe, and Laramie-Fox Hills aquifers. The rules shall effectuate the maximum utilization of these aquifers through the conjunctive use of surface and ground water resources.

(10) Owners of such permits issued pursuant to subsection (4) of this section shall be entitled to the issuance of permits for additional wells to be constructed on the land referred to in subsection (4) of this section. The standards of subsection (4) of this section shall be applied as if the applications for those additional well permits were filed on the same dates that the original applications were filed.

(11) (a) (I) No person shall, in connection with the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining as defined in section 34-32-103 (9), C.R.S., expose ground water to the atmosphere unless said person has obtained a well permit from the state engineer pursuant to this section. A well permit shall be issued upon approval by the water court of a plan for augmentation or upon approval by the state engineer of a plan of substitute supply; except that no increased replacement of water shall be required by the water court or the state engineer whenever the operator or owner of land being mined has, prior to January 15, 1989, entered into and continually thereafter complied with a written agreement with a water conservancy district or water users' association to replace or augment the depletions in connection with or resulting from open mining of sand and gravel.

(II) Any person who extracted sand and gravel by open mining and exposed ground water to the atmosphere after December 31, 1980, shall apply for a well permit pursuant to this section and, if applicable, shall apply for approval of a plan for augmentation or a plan of substitute supply prior to July 15, 1990.

(b) If any ground water was exposed to the atmosphere in connection with the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining as defined in section 34-32-103 (9), C.R.S., prior to January 1, 1981, no such well permit, plan for augmentation, or plan of substitute supply shall be required to replace depletions from evaporation; except that the burden of proving that such ground water was exposed prior to January 1, 1981, shall be upon the party claiming the benefit of this exception. Notwithstanding the provisions of this paragraph (b), judgments and decrees entered prior to July 1, 1989, approving plans for augmentation, which plans include the replacement of depletions from such evaporation, shall be given full effect and shall be enforced according to their terms.

(c) Any person who has reactivated or reactivates open mining operations which exposed ground water to the atmosphere but which ceased activity prior to January 1, 1981, shall obtain a well permit and shall apply for approval of a plan for augmentation or a plan of substitute supply pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (11).

(d) No person who obtains or operates a plan for augmentation or plan of substitute supply prior to July 1, 1989, shall be required to make replacement for the depletions from evaporation exempted in this subsection (11) or otherwise replace water for increased calls which may result therefrom.

(e) In addition to the well permit filing fee required by subsection (2) of this section, the state engineer shall collect the following fees for exposing ground water to the atmosphere for the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining:

(I) For persons who exposed ground water to the atmosphere on or after January 1, 1981, but prior to July 15, 1989, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars; except that, if such plan is filed prior to July 15, 1990, as required by subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of this subsection (11), the filing fee shall be seventy dollars if such plan includes ten acres or less of exposed ground water surface area or three hundred fifty dollars if such plan includes more than ten acres of exposed ground water surface area;

(II) For persons who expose ground water to the atmosphere on or after July 15, 1989, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed. In the case of new mining operations, such fee shall cover two years of operation of the plan.

(III) For persons who reactivated or who reactivate mining operations that ceased activity prior to January 1, 1981, and enlarge the surface area of any gravel pit lake beyond the area it covered before the cessation of activity, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars;

(IV) For persons who request renewal of an approved substitute water supply plan prior to the expiration date of the plan, two hundred fifty-seven dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed;

(V) For persons whose approved substitute water supply plan has expired and who submit a subsequent plan, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed. An approved plan shall be considered expired if the applicant has not applied for renewal before the expiration date of the plan. The state engineer shall notify the applicant in writing if the plan is considered expired.

(VI) For persons whose proposed substitute water supply plan was disapproved and who submit a subsequent plan, one thousand five hundred ninety-three dollars regardless of the number of acres exposed. The state engineer shall notify the applicant in writing of disapproval of a plan.

(f) Excluding the well permit filing fee required by subsection (2) of this section, the state treasurer shall credit all fees collected with an application for approval of a plan for augmentation or a plan of substitute supply to the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

(g) A person who has obtained a reclamation permit pursuant to section 34-32-112, C.R.S., shall be allowed to apply for a single well permit and to submit a single plan for augmentation or a single plan of substitute supply for the entire acreage covered by the reclamation plan without regard to the number of gravel pit lakes placed within such acreage.

(12) (a) In considering any well permit application in water division 3 that involves a new withdrawal of groundwater that will affect the rate or direction of movement of water in the confined aquifer, the state engineer shall recognize that unappropriated water is not made available and injury is not prevented as a result of the reduction of water consumption by nonirrigated native vegetation.

(b) (I) Repealed.

(II) Subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b) is repealed, effective July 1, 2004; except that nothing in this subsection (12) shall affect the validity of the rules adopted by the state engineer for groundwater withdrawals in water division 3, or affect the applicability of such rules to well permits that have been or will be issued, and judicial decrees that have been or will be entered, for the withdrawal of groundwater in water division 3.

(13) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in this section, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the commission by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

(14) The state engineer may issue permits for augmentation wells only in accordance with plans for augmentation approved by the water judge for water division 1 and substitute water supply plans approved pursuant to section 37-92-308 that include such wells.

Inherent in the state engineer's authority to issue a well permit is the authority to revoke or modify the permit when the evidence shows that doing so is required by law. The state engineer therefore has jurisdiction to resolve a petition to revoke a groundwater permit notwithstanding the fact that the issue is a water matter under § 37-92-203 because this section specifically delegates the issuance of groundwater permits to the state engineer's jurisdiction. The state engineer must follow the procedures established in § 24-4-104 of the State Administrative Procedures Act because the statutes specific to the state engineer are silent with regard to the procedures applicable to such a petition. V Bar Ranch LLC v. Cotten, 233 P.3d 1200 (Colo. 2010).

Nontributary ground water rights. The modified doctrine of prior appropriation provided for in the Colorado ground water management act applies to nontributary ground water, and rights to such water in designated ground water basins must be obtained through the procedures established in that act. Rights to nontributary ground water not located in a designated basin may be obtained only through application for a well permit from the state engineer under this section. Review of the state engineer's action on well permit applications may be obtained under § 24-4-106, as prescribed by § 37-90-115, for appeals taken before the 1983 revision of § 37-90-115 became applicable. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L. Ed.2d 474 (1984).

Filing of applications in water court. In securing a determination of water rights in tributary ground water, although § 37-92-302(2) provides that the water court shall not enter a decision on an application for determination of a water right requiring the construction of a well until the claimant supplements the application with a permit to construct a well, issued by the state engineer under this section, or evidence of its denial or failure of the state engineer to grant or deny the permit within six months, this section does not require the applicant to obtain the well permit prior to filing an application in water court. The claimant may file in the water court to protect his priority date while an application to construct a well is pending before the state engineer. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L. Ed.2d 474 (1984).

Landowners of land overlying an aquifer have standing to contest a Denver basin well permit application under this section. Chatfield East Well Co. v. Chatfield East Prop. Owners Ass'n, 956 P.2d 1260 (Colo. 1998).

The Colorado Ground Water Management Act creates in the owner of overlying land an inchoate right to control and use a specified amount of nontributary ground water. The right may vest upon construction of a well in accordance with a permit from the state engineer or by adjudication in the water court. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

Rights under prior decree do not limit a later statutory entitlement. Where a landowner has a decree that predates statutory changes, and the decree grants the landowner a portion of the full amount of nontributary ground water to which he is statutorily entitled, the decree will not be interpreted to reduce the amount of water available to the landowner under the statute as subsequently adopted. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

An applicant for a Denver basin well permit must be the landowner or a person who has the landowner's express or statutorily implied consent. Chatfield East Well Co. v. Chatfield East Prop. Owners Ass'n, 956 P.2d 1260 (Colo. 1998).

Subsection (8) requires specific notice of governmental entity's intent to adopt an implied consent resolution to appropriation nontributary groundwater in aquifers underlying land within the district's boundaries. Perry Park Water v. Cordillera Corp., 818 P.2d 728 (Colo. 1991).

Subsection (10) entitles the holder of previously issued well permits to the issuance of additional well permits to withdraw nontributary ground water from an aquifer beneath the overlying land. Willows Water Dist. v. Mission Viejo Co., 854 P.2d 1246 (Colo. 1993).

Allowing the applicants credit for runoff water collected from land surfaces that have been made impermeable, thereby eliminating their obligation under subsection (9)(c) to compensate holders of senior rights for injuries that may otherwise result from their withdrawals, would clearly undermine the purpose of the legislature's amendment to the definition of a plan for augmentation contained in § 37-92-103 (9). State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

After a plan for augmentation has been approved, there must be applications for all well permits addressed to and granted by the state engineer in order for the wells to be constructed under this section. Cache LaPoudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976); Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

Consideration for subsequent applications under plan of augmentation. After some wells have been constructed and are operable, on subsequent applications for wells under a plan for augmentation, the state engineer among other things may consider whether the plan actually is operating as contemplated and decreed. Cache LaPoudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976); Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

The state engineer was not required to fix an appropriation date of each well for which a permit is issued where one of the fundamentals of the plan for augmentation was that there would be equal priorities between well owners. Cache LaPoudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Approval of plan for augmentation does not eliminate all duties of state engineer. Cache LaPoudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976); Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

Permit not required to appropriate appropriated water. Permit to drill water well was not required to be issued by reason of § 6 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., where the evidence supported findings that the applicants were seeking to appropriate appropriated water and § 6 of art. XVI, Colo. Const., relates to the appropriation of unappropriated water. Hall v. Kuiper, 181 Colo. 130, 510 P.2d 329 (1973).

Exempt "602" wells are "vested water rights" for purposes of this section. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

The "expiration" date to which the statute refers, and from which the one-year renewal period begins, may be either the original expiration date or any new expiration date established by a prior extension. Mooney v. Kuiper, 194 Colo. 477, 573 P.2d 538 (1978).

Drilling and testing a well with temporary pumps does not, in itself, constitute "beneficial use of water" for purposes of tolling the expiration of a well permit. Danielson v. Milne, 765 P.2d 572 (Colo. 1988).

Well permit extensions may be denied if for certain purposes. Since subsection (3)(a) of this section requires that "good cause" be shown as a prerequisite to granting an extension, it thus authorizes the state engineer to deny repeated extensions sought for speculative or other illegitimate purposes. Mooney v. Kuiper, 194 Colo. 477, 573 P.2d 538 (1978).

The operative date for purposes of determining the land on which water rights may be used is the date of appropriation, not the date of adjudication. When a decree is silent regarding the place of use, the actual place of use is an implied term of the decree, and to prevent an expanded use, the state engineer properly modified a replacement well permit to limit the use of water to only those areas that were irrigated on the date of appropriation. V Bar Ranch LLC v. Cotten, 233 P.3d 1200 (Colo. 2010).

This section allows repeated applications for well permit extensions. Mooney v. Kuiper, 194 Colo. 477, 573 P.2d 538 (1978).

The general assembly intended renewable one-year extensions which can be granted when the state engineer, in his sound discretion, finds that good cause has been demonstrated. Mooney v. Kuiper, 194 Colo. 477, 573 P.2d 538 (1978).

Replaced wells must be abandoned. The statutory definition of "replacement well" imposes the obligation to abandon replaced wells upon completion of replacement wells. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981).

Augmentation plan must provide that post withdrawal depletions are replaced if they are injurious to vested water rights. Simpson v. Yale Invs., Inc., 886 P.2d 689 (Colo. 1994).

Factual findings are required to determine injurious effect. Simpson v. Yale Invs., Inc., 886 P.2d 689 (Colo. 1994).

The state engineer must take into account all vested water rights of which he has notice, whether or not adjudicated, in determining the impact of a proposed nonexempt well. This includes exempt wells. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Burden of proof of noninjurious effect with applicants. Once applicants have established noninjurious effect the objectors bear the burden of going forward with evidence of injury. Simpson v. Yale Invs., Inc., 886 P.2d 689 (Colo. 1994).

Augmentation plan for gravel pits which are "wells" must make provision for compensating for evaporative losses incident to reclamation use. Zigan Sand & Gravel v. Cache La Poudre, 758 P.2d 175 (Colo. 1988).

Since gravel pits are "wells", excavation of the pits that takes place during mining is part of the process of constructing the well. Therefore, water losses incurred during construction must be replaced. Zigan Sand & Gravel v. Cache La Poudre, 758 P.2d 175 (Colo. 1988).

Requirement that owners and operators who excavate pits after 1980 obtain well permits and augmentation plans while other owners and operators of sand and gravel pits are exempted does not violate equal protection or due process requirements. Act represents a rational effort of the general assembly to achieve the legitimate governmental purpose of developing a program of administration of sand and gravel pits. Central Colo. Water v. Simpson, 877 P.2d 335 (Colo. 1994).

Act requiring sand and gravel pit owners and operators who excavate pits after 1980 to obtain well permits and augmentation plans while exempting other owners and operators of sand and gravel pits does not constitute special legislation. The classes established by the general assembly are reasonable, are rationally related to a legitimate governmental interest, and reflect ap-appropriate accommodation of various interests in the administration of the state's appropriation system. Central Colo. Water v. Simpson, 877 P.2d 335 (Colo. 1994).

A permit is required for the extraction of methane from coal beds because such an oil and gas well has the effect of obtaining ground water for beneficial use, and is therefore a "well" as defined in this article notwithstanding the Colorado oil and gas commission's exclusive jurisdiction over oil and gas operations. Vance v. Wolfe, 205 P.3d 1165 (Colo. 2009).

The filing of a statement of beneficial use is evidence, not irrefutable proof, that water has been applied to a beneficial use; the touchstone to perfecting a well permit is actual beneficial use. Danielson v. Milne, 765 P.2d 572 (Colo. 1988).

The notice requirement contained in subsection (3)(c) cannot be applied retroactively to reinstate a well permit which expired prior to the enactment in 1977 of said subsection. Danielson v. Milne, 765 P.2d 572 (Colo. 1988).

Subsections (1), (2), and (4), when read together, provide the circumstances under which a well applicant may obtain a permit to construct a well on land the applicant does not own. Willows Water Dist. v. Mission Viejo Co., 854 P.2d 1246 (Colo. 1993).

For issuance of a permit to construct wells on land not owned by the applicant, the state engineer or the water court must determine: (1) Whether the landowner has contractually limited the consent such landowner has provided the applicant to construct wells on the overlying land, and (2) whether the construction of the well will materially injure the vested water rights of others. Willows Water Dist. v. Mission Viejo Co., 854 P.2d 1246 (Colo. 1993).

The statutory scheme of this section ensures that the consensual contractual arrangements of parties desiring to allocate nontributary ground water rights among themselves are given effect. Willows Water Dist. v. Mission Viejo Co., 854 P.2d 1246 (Colo. 1993).

For permits previously issued to a nonlandowner based on the consent of an overlying landowner, an application for an additional well permit requires review of the conditions under which the landowner originally consented to the nontributary ground water beneath the landowner's land. Willows Water Dist. v. Mission Viejo Co., 854 P.2d 1246 (Colo. 1993).

Landowners have an inchoate right to extract and use the nontributary water underneath their land in accordance with this section. Until the landowner takes steps to vest this right, the right to extract nontributary ground water is subject to legislative modification or termination. Chatfield East Well Co. v. Chatfield East Prop. Owners Ass'n, 956 P.2d 1260 (Colo. 1998).

The right to extract nontributary ground water not in a designated basin exists and may be transferred prior to actual water court adjudication of a right to nontributary water. Bayou Land Co. v. Talley, 924 P.2d 136 (Colo. 1996).

Because the right to withdraw nontributary ground water is integrally associated with and incident to ownership of land, such right is presumed to pass with the land either in a deed or a deed of trust unless explicitly excepted from the conveyance instrument. A party claiming that the right to withdraw nontributary ground water was not transferred with the land must prove that the grantor affirmatively did not intend to transfer such right. Bayou Land Co. v. Talley, 924 P.2d 136 (Colo. 1996); In re Smith, 924 P.2d 155 (Colo. 1996).

Source: L. 96: Entire section added, p. 1362, § 3, effective June 1. L. 98: (6) amended, p. 1072, § 2, effective June 1. L. 99: (1.5) added and (6) amended, p. 670, § 2, effective May 18.

Editor's note: Subsection (6) provided for the repeal of this section, effective July 1, 2001. (See L. 99, p. 670.)

37-90-138. Waste - violations - permits. (1) The state engineer in cooperation with the commission has power to regulate the drilling and construction of all wells in the state of Colorado to the extent necessary to prevent the waste of water and the injury to or destruction of other water resources and shall require well drillers and private drillers to file a log of each well drilled whether or not exempt by virtue of section 37-90-105. The state engineer shall adopt such rules and regulations as are necessary to accomplish the purposes of this section.

(2) If the state engineer finds any well to have been drilled or maintained in a manner or condition or to be withdrawing ground water contrary to this article or the rules issued under this article, the state engineer shall immediately notify the user in writing of the violation and give the user time as may reasonably be necessary, not to exceed sixty days, to correct deficiencies. If the user fails or refuses to correct the deficiencies within the allowed time, the state engineer is authorized to enter upon the user's land and do whatever is necessary in order that the user comply with this article or rules issued under this article. Prior to August 1, 2010, this subsection (2) does not apply to oil and gas wells. For an oil and gas well in existence on March 22, 2010, for which a well permit is required by this section, a well permit application shall be submitted to the state engineer on or before April 30, 2010. For an oil and gas well to be constructed between March 22, 2010, and August 1, 2010, for which a well permit is required by this section, a well permit application shall be submitted to the state engineer on or before June 15, 2010. All oil and gas wells to be constructed after August 1, 2010, for which a well permit is required by this section shall have a well permit prior to producing groundwater.

(3) No well construction contractor, pump installer, private pump installer, or private driller shall construct a new well or otherwise do work on any well requiring authority from the state engineer or commission until a permit with respect thereto has been secured for such work.

37-90-139. Existing beneficial uses not recorded - fee. Existing uses of ground water put to beneficial use prior to May 17, 1965, not of record in the office of the state engineer on April 21, 1967, may be recorded upon written application and payment of a filing fee of twenty-five dollars and shall retain the date of initiation when first put to beneficial use, but no such recording shall be accepted after December 31, 1968.

37-90-140. Inclusion of lands. (1) (a) The boundaries of any district organized under the provisions of this article may be changed in the manner prescribed in this section, but the change of boundaries of the district shall not impair or affect its organization or its rights in or to property or any of its rights and privileges whatsoever, nor shall it affect or impair or discharge any contract, obligation, lien, or charge for or upon which it might be liable or chargeable had any such change of boundaries not been made. An election for the inclusion of real property in the district may be initiated by a petition, in writing, filed with the secretary of the board.

(b) The petition shall describe the boundaries of the proposed additional territory with such certainty as to enable a property owner to determine whether or not his property is within the district and shall contain a prayer for the inclusion of such additional territory. Such petition shall be signed by not less than fifteen percent of the taxpaying electors within the territory sought to be included and acknowledged in the same manner that conveyances of land are required to be acknowledged.

(c) If lands proposed to be included within a district, duly organized under the provisions of this article, are located within the water basin or aquifer within which the district lies, as determined by the commission, such lands are eligible for inclusion within said district under the provisions of this article and not otherwise.

(d) Within twenty-one days after the filing of the petition, the board shall examine the petition, and, if it finds that it bears the requisite number of signatures and otherwise meets the stated requirements, it shall accept the petition and shall fix a time and place, not less than thirty-five days nor more than forty-two days after the date of such acceptance, for a hearing thereon. The secretary of the board shall publish a notice of such hearing by one publication in a newspaper of general circulation in every county in which any portion of the district and the proposed additional territory to be included in the district are located. The publication shall be at least fourteen days prior to the date of the hearing. Such notice shall state the nature of the petition, the description of the proposed additional territory, and that any person owning any interest in real property within the district or within the proposed additional territory to be included in the district may appear at the hearing and show cause in writing why the petition should not be granted.

(2) The board, at the time and place fixed, or at such times to which the hearing may be continued, shall proceed to hear the petition and all objections thereto presented in writing. The failure of any person to object in writing shall be deemed an assent on his part to the inclusion of the proposed additional territory in the district as prayed for in the petition. Upon completion of the hearing, the board may order changes in the boundaries of the proposed lands to be included in the district by the inclusion or exclusion of land therefrom upon finding that such change in boundaries would be hydrologically, geologically, and geographically sound. The board, in its discretion, and on conditions to be determined by the board and accepted by the petitioners, may grant the petition, deny it, or grant it as to part of the proposed additional territory and deny it as to the remaining portion. Unless the petitioners are the owners of all the territory proposed to be added to the district, the board shall submit the question of the inclusion of the additional territory as so determined, to the taxpaying electors within the territory to be included, in an election held for that purpose.

(3) The board shall appoint three taxpaying electors of the district, including two from the area sought to be included, as judges of the election. The secretary of the board shall have published a notice of the time and place of said election to be held in the territory proposed for inclusion in the district by one publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the territory proposed for inclusion in the district. Such election shall not be held less than twenty-one days after said publication of notice.

(4) Such elections shall be held and conducted as nearly as may be in the same manner for creating districts as set forth in section 37-90-124. At the election, the taxpaying electors in the territory proposed for inclusion in the district shall vote for or against such inclusion. The judges of election shall certify the returns of the election to the board. If a majority of the votes cast at such election are for the inclusion of the additional territory, the board shall make an order to that effect and file the same with the secretary of the board.

(5) Any action of the board with respect to the inclusion of territory within an existing district may be reviewed by the district court in appeal proceedings filed within fourteen days after the board's decision has been announced.

(6) If the district within which the lands are included has incurred any prior bonded indebtedness, outstanding at the time of such inclusion, such additional land area shall be liable for its proportionate share of such prior indebtedness of said district.

37-90-141. Exclusion of lands. (1) (a) The boundaries of any district organized under the provisions of this article may be changed in the manner prescribed in this section, but the change of boundaries of the district shall not impair or affect its organization or its rights in or to property or any of its rights and privileges whatsoever, nor shall it affect or impair or discharge any contract, obligation, lien, or charge for or upon which it might be liable or chargeable had any such change of boundaries not been made. An election for the exclusion of real property in the district may be initiated by a petition, in writing, filed with the secretary of the board.

(b) The petition shall describe the boundaries of the territory proposed for exclusion with such certainty as to enable a property owner to determine whether or not his property is within the district and shall contain a prayer for the exclusion of such territory. Such petition shall be signed by not less than fifteen percent of the taxpaying electors within the territory proposed for exclusion, and such petition must be acknowledged in the same manner that conveyances of land are required to be acknowledged.

(c) If lands proposed for exclusion from a district, duly organized under the provisions of this article, are located outside the water basin or aquifer within which the district lies, as determined by the commission, such lands are eligible to be excluded under the provisions of this article and not otherwise.

(d) Within twenty days after the filing of the petition, the board shall examine the petition, and, if it finds that it bears the requisite number of signatures and otherwise meets the stated requirements, it shall accept the petition and shall fix a time and place, not less than thirty days nor more than fifty days after the date of such acceptance, for a hearing thereon. The secretary of the board shall publish a notice of such hearing by one publication in a newspaper of general circulation in every county in which any portion of the district and the proposed territory for exclusion are located. Such notice shall state the nature of the petition, the description of the territories proposed for exclusion, and that any person owning any interest in real property within such territories or within the district encompassing such territories may appear at the hearing and show cause in writing why the petition should not be granted.

(2) The board, at the time and place fixed, or at such times to which the hearing may be continued, shall proceed to hear the petition and all objections thereto presented in writing. The failure of any person to object in writing shall be deemed an assent on his part to the exclusion of the lands as prayed for in the petition. Upon completion of the hearing, the board may order changes in the boundaries of the lands proposed for exclusion from the district by the inclusion or exclusion of land therefrom upon finding that such change in boundaries would be hydrologically, geologically, and geographically sound. The board, in its discretion, and on conditions to be determined by the board and accepted by the petitioners, may grant the petition, deny it, or grant it as to part of the proposed exclusion of territory and deny it as to the remaining portion.

(3) Any action of the board with respect to the exclusion of territory from an existing district may be reviewed by the district court in appeal proceedings filed within ten days after the board's decision has been announced.

(4) If the district within which lands are excluded has incurred any prior bonded indebtedness, outstanding at the time of such exclusion, such excluded lands shall continue to be liable for the proportionate share of any such bonded indebtedness which they were under obligation to pay at the time of exclusion.

37-90.5-103. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) “Direct use” means the utilization of geothermal resources for commercial, residential, agricultural, public facilities, or other energy needs other than the commercial production of electricity.

(1.5) “Geothermal by-products” means dissolved or entrained minerals and gases that may be obtained from the material medium, excluding hydrocarbon substances and carbon dioxide.

(2) “Geothermal fluid” means naturally occurring groundwater, brines, vapor, and steam associated with a geothermal resource.

(3) “Geothermal resource” means the natural heat of the earth and includes:

(a) The energy that may be extracted from that natural heat;

(b) The material medium used to extract the energy from a geothermal resource; and

(c) Geothermal by-products.

(4) “Hot dry rock” means a geothermal resource which lacks sufficient geothermal fluid to transport commercial amounts of energy to the surface and which is not in association with an economically useful groundwater resource.

(5) “Material medium” means geothermal fluid as well as any other substance used to transfer energy from a geothermal resource.

Source: L. 83: Entire article added, p. 1419, § 1, effective June 10. L. 2010: (1) amended and (1.5) added, (SB 10-174), ch. 189, p. 811, § 5, effective August 11.

37-90.5-104. Ownership declaration. (1) Where a geothermal resource is found in association with geothermal fluid which is tributary groundwater, such geothermal resource is declared to be a public resource to which usufructuary rights only may be established according to the procedures of this article. No correlative property right to such a geothermal resource in place is recognized as an incident of ownership of an estate in land.

(2) The property right to a hot dry rock resource is an incident of the ownership of the overlying surface, unless severed, reserved, or transferred with the subsurface estate expressly.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to derogate valid, existing property rights to geothermal resources which have vested prior to July 1, 1983. However, such property rights shall not be deemed vested absent the award of a decree for an application filed prior to June 10, 1983, pursuant to existing water law or the entering into of a geothermal lease prior to June 10, 1983, or unless utilizing facilities are actually in existence prior to July 1, 1983. A facility for utilization of geothermal resources shall be considered to be in existence if it is in actual operation or is undergoing significant construction activities prior to operation.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to derogate the rights of a landowner to nontributary groundwater.

37-90.5-105. Access - reasonable accommodation. (1) Geothermal leases may be awarded by the state board of land commissioners for lands under its jurisdiction through negotiation or by competitive bidding, but no such lease may be awarded prior to a public notice period of thirty-five days.

(2) Where the property right to a severable geothermal resource has been severed, reserved, or transferred with the subsurface estate, its owner may enter upon the overlying surface parcel at reasonable times and in a reasonable manner to prospect for and produce the energy from such resource, if adequate compensation is paid to the owner of the surface parcel for damages and disturbance in accordance with subsection (3) of this section. This right of entry shall not include the right to construct surface utilization facilities, and such facilities may be constructed only upon agreement with the surface owner in accordance with subsection (3) of this section.

(3) (a) (I) A developer of any type of geothermal resource shall develop the resource in a manner that accommodates the surface owner by minimizing intrusion upon and damage to the surface of the land.

(II) As used in this section, “minimizing intrusion upon and damage to the surface” means selecting alternative locations for wells, roads, pipelines, or heat exchange or generation facilities, or employing alternative means of operation, that prevent, reduce, or mitigate the impacts of the geothermal development on the surface, where such alternatives are technologically sound, economically practicable, and reasonably available to the developer.

(III) The standard of conduct set forth in this subsection (3) does not prevent a developer from entering upon and using that amount of the surface as is reasonable and necessary to explore for and develop the geothermal resource.

(IV) The standard of conduct set forth in this subsection (3) does not abrogate or impair a contractual provision that is binding on the parties and that expressly provides for the use of the surface for the development of geothermal resources or that releases the developer from liability for the use of the surface.

(b) A geothermal resource developer’s failure to meet the requirements set forth in this subsection (3) or, if applicable, subsection (2) of this section, gives rise to a cause of action by the surface owner. Upon a determination by the trier of fact that such failure has occurred, a surface owner may seek compensatory damages or such equitable relief as is consistent with paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) or, if applicable, subsection (2) of this section.

(c) (I) In any litigation or arbitration based upon subsection (2) of this section or paragraph (a) of this subsection (3), the surface owner shall present evidence that the developer's use of the surface materially interfered with the surface owner's use of the surface of the land. After such showing, the developer bears the burden of proof of showing that it met the standard set out in paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) and, if applicable, subsection (2) of this section. If a developer makes that showing, the surface owner may present rebuttal evidence.

(II) An operator may assert, as an affirmative defense, that it has conducted geothermal resource development in accordance with a regulatory requirement, contractual obligation, or land use plan provision that specifically applies to the alleged intrusion or damage.

(d) Nothing in this section:

(I) Precludes or impairs any person from obtaining any and all other remedies allowed by law;

(II) Prevents a developer and a surface owner from addressing the use of the surface for geothermal resource development in a lease, surface use agreement, or other written contract; or

(III) Establishes, alters, impairs, or negates the authority of local and county governments to regulate land use related to geothermal resource development.

37-90.5-106. Drilling permits - reinjection.

(1) (a) Repealed.

(b) Effective July 1, 2006, prior to constructing a geothermal resource exploration, production, or reinjection well, a permit shall be obtained from the state engineer. The state engineer shall adopt such rules as are necessary to protect the public health, safety, and welfare and the environment and to prevent the waste of any geothermal resource. The state engineer shall also adopt rules for the assessment of reasonable fees for the processing and granting of a permit under this section.

(2) The state engineer shall notify the Colorado water quality control commission of all applications for a reinjection permit under this section and shall consider its comments in deciding whether to issue a permit. The state engineer may incorporate such comments as conditions to a permit. The water quality control commission shall respond to the notice required by this subsection (2) within sixty days.

(3) Where the maintenance of underground pressures, the prevention of subsidence, or the disposal of brines is necessary, reinjection of geothermal fluid may be required by the state engineer.

(4) The state engineer shall notify the Colorado oil and gas conservation commission of all applications for a permit to construct a geothermal well which expects to encounter geothermal fluids having a temperature in excess of 212 degrees Fahrenheit or will be in excess of two thousand five hundred feet in depth. The state engineer shall consider the Colorado oil and gas conservation commission comments in deciding whether to issue a permit. The state engineer may incorporate such comments as conditions to a permit. The Colorado oil and gas conservation commission shall respond to the notice required by this subsection (4) within sixty days.

Editor's note: (1) Section 10 of chapter 7, Session Laws of Colorado 2003, provides for an effective date of March 1, 2003; however, the Governor did not sign the act until March 5, 2003.

(2) Subsection (1)(a)(II) provided for the repeal of subsection (1)(a), effective July 1, 2006. (See L. 2003, p. 47.)

Cross references: For the legislative declaration contained in the 2003 act amending subsection (1), see section 1 of chapter 7, Session Laws of Colorado 2003.

37-90.5-107. Relationship to water - when permit required. (1) The use of water as a material medium is recognized as a beneficial use of such water. All applications to appropriate groundwater in order to utilize its geothermal energy shall be considered an application to appropriate geothermal fluid.

(2) (a) Prior to the production of geothermal fluid from a well, other than for flow-testing purposes, a permit to appropriate shall be obtained from the state engineer. This requirement shall not apply to nondiversionary utilization methods; however, such exemption shall not prevent the developer of a geothermal resource from establishing a property right based on his actual utilization.

(b) The permit to appropriate required by this subsection (2) may be waived by the state engineer for a diversionary utilization method which is nonconsumptive and which will not impair valid, prior water rights.

(c) The permit to appropriate required by this subsection (2) may allow for nonconsumptive secondary uses of geothermal fluid, including the recovery of geothermal by-products, and may allow for consumptive secondary uses of geothermal fluid, including sale, which will not impair valid, prior water rights.

(3) The state engineer shall grant a permit to appropriate geothermal fluids within one hundred eighty-two days after the filing of an application upon a finding that:

(a) The proposed appropriation will not materially injure a valid, prior water or geothermal right;

(b) The applicant has acquired or purchased an option to acquire adequate water rights to offset any material injury; or

(c) The applicant has obtained and offered to provide to any affected party an equivalent amount of replacement water of comparable quality.

(4) The appropriation of a geothermal fluid that is nontributary groundwater shall be in accordance with section 37-90-137 (4).

(5) The essence of the water right granted by a permit to appropriate geothermal fluid is the ability to extract geothermal energy from such fluid. The beneficial use of such energy is the basis, measure, and limit of the right and requires that efficient application methods be utilized.

(6) The provisions of articles 90 and 92 of this title relating to notice, hearings, appeals, and the administration of water rights shall govern all matters arising under this section.

(7) Any application to appropriate a geothermal fluid pending on June 10, 1983, shall be processed and evaluated under existing law prior to June 10, 1983.

(8) For purposes of this section, "materially injure" and "material injury" include any diminution or alteration in the quantity, temperature, or quality of any valid, prior water or geothermal right; except that, with regard to a geothermal right, "materially injure" and "material injury" include a diminution or alteration in the temperature of water only if the diminution or alteration adversely affects the valid, prior geothermal right.

37-90.5-108. Geothermal management districts. (1) The state engineer may adopt procedures under which geothermal management districts may be established. In such districts, the state engineer has the authority to:

- (a) Control well-spacing and production rates;
- (b) Control the quantity of geothermal fluid extracted from geothermal resources by such methods and procedures as he deems appropriate, including requirements to reinject;
- (c) Adopt a comprehensive plan for the most efficient use of geothermal resources, guided by the principles of equitable apportionment, maximum economic recovery, and prevention of waste.

(2) The state engineer may delegate some or all of his authority under this section to a geothermal management district upon finding that the district has adequate organization and capability to administer an acceptable management plan.

37-91-101. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that:

(a) It has been established by scientific evidence that improperly constructed wells, improperly abandoned wells, and improperly installed pumping equipment can adversely affect groundwater resources and the public health, safety, and welfare; and

(b) Therefore, the proper location, construction, repair, and abandonment of wells, the proper installation and repair of pumping equipment, the licensing and regulation of persons engaging in the business of contracting either for the construction of wells or for the installation of pumping equipment, and the periodic inspection of well construction and pump installation are essential for the protection of the public health and the preservation of groundwater resources.

37-91-102. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) and (2) Repealed.

(3) "Board" means the state board of examiners of water well construction and pump installation contractors created by section 37-91-103.

(4) "Construction of wells" means any act undertaken at the well site for the establishment or modification of a well, including, without limitation, the location of the well and the excavation or fracturing thereof but not including surveying or other acts preparatory thereto, site preparation and modification or site modification, or the installation of pumping equipment.

(4.5) "Dewatering well" includes any excavation that is drilled, cored, bored, washed, fractured, driven, dug, jetted, or otherwise constructed when the intended use of such excavation is for temporary dewatering purposes for construction only.

(4.7) "Directly employed" means engaged in employment where the employer is responsible for and directly controls the performance of the employee, and, where applicable, the employee is covered by workers' compensation and unemployment compensation. "Directly employed" does not refer to independent contractors or subcontractors.

(5) and (6) Repealed.

(7) "Groundwater" means any water not visible on the surface of the ground under natural conditions.

(8) "Installation of pumping equipment" means the selection, placement, and preparation for operation of pumping equipment, including all construction involved in entering the well and establishing well seals and safeguards to protect groundwater from contamination.

(9) Repealed.

(10) "License" means the document issued by the board to qualified persons making application therefor, pursuant to section 37-91-105, authorizing such persons to engage in one or more methods of well construction or pump installation or any combination of such methods.

(10.5) "Monitoring and observation well" includes any excavation that is drilled, cored, bored, washed, fractured, driven, dug, jetted, or otherwise constructed when the intended use of such excavation is for locating such well, pumping equipment or aquifer testing, monitoring groundwater, or collection of water quality samples.

(11) Repealed.

(11.5) "Person" means an individual, a partnership, a corporation, a municipality, the state, the United States, or any other legal entity, public or private.

(12) "Private driller" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, political subdivision, or public agency that uses equipment owned by it to dig, drill, redrill, case, recase, deepen, or excavate a well entirely for its own use upon property owned by it.

(12.5) "Private pump installer" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, political subdivision, or public agency that uses equipment owned by it to install pumping equipment on a well entirely for its own use on property owned by it.

(13) "Pumping equipment" means any pump or related equipment used or intended for use in withdrawing or obtaining groundwater, including, but not limited to, well seals, pitless adapters, and other safeguards to protect the groundwater from contamination and any waterlines up to and including the pressure tank and any coupling appurtenant thereto.

(14) "Pump installation contractor" means any person licensed to install, remove, modify, or repair pumping equipment for compensation.

(15) "Repair" means any change, replacement, or other alteration of any well or pumping equipment which requires a breaking or opening of the well seal or any waterlines up to and including the pressure tank and any coupling appurtenant thereto.

(15.5) "Supervision" means personal and continuous on-the-site direction by a licensed well construction contractor or licensed pump installation contractor, unless the licensed contractor has applied for and received from the board an exemption from continuous on-the-site direction for a specific task.

(15.7) "Test hole" includes any excavation that is drilled, cored, bored, washed, fractured, driven, dug, jetted, or otherwise constructed when the intended use of such excavation is for geotechnical, geophysical, or geologic investigation or soil- or rock-sampling.

(16) (a) "Well" for the purpose of this article means any test hole or other excavation that is drilled, cored, bored, washed, fractured, driven, dug, jetted, or otherwise constructed for the purpose of location, monitoring, dewatering, observation, diversion, artificial recharge, or acquisition of groundwater for beneficial use or for conducting pumping equipment or aquifer tests.

(b) (I) "Well" does not include certain types of monitoring and observation wells, dewatering wells, and test holes that the board specifies in rules and regulations in order to allow for their construction, utilization, and abandonment by other than a well construction contractor, nor does such term include an excavation made for the purpose of obtaining or prospecting for minerals or those wells subject to the jurisdiction of the oil and gas conservation commission, as provided in article 60 of title 34, C.R.S., or those wells subject to the jurisdiction of the office of mined land reclamation, as provided in article 33 of title 34, C.R.S.

(II) "Well" does not include a naturally flowing spring or springs where the natural spring discharge is captured or concentrated by installation of a near-surface structure or device less than ten feet in depth located at or within fifty feet of the spring or springs' natural discharge point and the water is conveyed directly by gravity flow or into a separate sump or storage, if the owner obtains a water right for such structure or device as a spring pursuant to article 92 of this title.

(17) "Well construction contractor" means any person licensed pursuant to this article and responsible for the construction, test-pumping, or development of wells, either by contract or for hire or for any consideration whatsoever.

(18) "Well seal" means an approved arrangement or device used to cover a well or to establish and maintain a junction between the casing or curbing of a well and the piping or equipment installed therein, the purpose or function of which is to prevent contaminated water or other material from entering the well at the upper terminal.

37-91-103. State board of examiners of water well construction and pump installation contractors. (1) There is created, under the division of water resources in the department of natural resources, a state board of examiners of water well construction and pump installation contractors, consisting of five members and comprised of the following persons: The state engineer or a representative designated by him; a representative of the department of health designated by the executive director of the department; and three members appointed by the governor, two of whom shall be well construction contractors or pump installation contractors, each with a minimum of ten years' experience in the well construction or pump installation business preceding his appointment, and one of whom shall be an engineer or geologist with a minimum of ten years' experience in water supply and well construction preceding his appointment.

(2) All members shall be appointed for four-year terms, but no member shall be reappointed to or serve more than two consecutive four-year terms. Any vacancy occurring in the board membership of the governor's appointees, other than by expiration, shall be filled by the governor by appointment for the unexpired term. Members shall serve without compensation but shall be reimbursed for actual expenses necessarily incurred in their official business.

(3) The board shall meet at least once every three months and at such other times as it deems necessary or advisable. Special board meetings may be called at any time on order of the chairman or vice-chairman or any three members of the board. The board shall determine the time and place of all meetings, but at least one meeting every three months shall be held in Denver. Three members of the board shall constitute a quorum, and the affirmative vote of three members shall be required to pass any action or motion of the board. The board may adopt bylaws to govern its own procedure.

37-91-104. Duties of the board. (1) The board shall:

(a) Be responsible for the administration of this article and, with respect to such administration, shall enforce the provisions of this article and any rules adopted pursuant thereto and shall take such other actions as may be reasonably necessary to carry out the provisions of this article;

(b) Have general supervision and authority over the construction and abandonment of wells and the installation of pumping equipment, as provided by sections 37-91-109 and 37-91-110;

(c) Adopt, and from time to time revise, such rules, not inconsistent with law, as may be necessary to effectuate the provisions of this article, all such rules to be adopted in accordance with article 4 of title 24, C.R.S.;

(d) Employ, within funds available, personnel necessary for the proper performance of its work under this article;

(e) Examine for, deny, approve, revoke, suspend, and renew the licenses of applicants and licensees as provided in this article;

(f) Conduct hearings upon its own motion or upon receipt of written complaints with respect to any licensee under this article and with respect to the denial, revocation, or suspension of a license, all such hearings to be conducted in conformity with article 4 of title 24, C.R.S. The board may have such hearings conducted before a hearing officer or administrative law judge from the department of personnel designated by the board, who is technically qualified to conduct or assist in such hearings and who may be a member of the board.

(g) Repealed.

(h) Cause the prosecution and enjoinder of all persons violating this article;

(i) Disseminate information to pump installation contractors and well construction contractors in order to protect and preserve the groundwater resources of the state;

(j) Promulgate rules and regulations pursuant to article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., to allow certain types of monitoring and observation wells, dewatering wells, and test holes to be constructed, utilized, and abandoned by other than a well construction contractor;

(k) Adopt, and revise as necessary, such rules regarding the construction, use, and abandonment of monitoring and observation wells, dewatering wells, and test holes necessary to safeguard the public health of the people of Colorado. All such rules shall be adopted in accordance with article 4 of title 24, C.R.S. The board may require that such wells or holes be designed, constructed, used, or abandoned by a licensed professional engineer, professional geologist, licensed well construction contractor, or anyone directly employed by or under the supervision of one of these individuals.

(l) (I) Assure protection of groundwater resources and the public health by ordering the nondestructive investigation, abandonment, repair, drilling, redrilling, casing, recasing, deepening, or excavation of a well where it finds such action to be necessary to correct violations of this article or rules promulgated by the board with respect to this article or to protect groundwater resources and the public health.

(II) Existing wells that were constructed in compliance with the laws and regulations in effect at the time of their construction shall not be required to be repaired, redrilled, or otherwise modified to meet the current standards for well construction contained in this article or the rules adopted by the board. Any such wells that present an imminent threat to public health or groundwater contamination may be ordered to be repaired or abandoned. The remedial action required by the board for such wells shall be the minimum repair necessary to remove the threat to public health or of groundwater pollution. An order to abandon a well that is issued under this article is not a determination of intent to abandon any water right associated with the well.

(2) The board may delegate to the state engineer the authority to perform any of the duties of the board as set forth in this article, except those duties authorized in paragraphs (c), (e), (j), and (k) of subsection (1) of this section.

37-91-105. Licensing - registration of rigs. (1) Every person, before engaging in the business of contracting either for the construction of wells or for the installation of pumping equipment, shall obtain a license for one or more methods of well construction or pump installation from the board and shall secure a registration from the board for each well-drilling or pump-installing rig to be operated or leased by him or his employee.

(2) The board shall issue a license to each applicant who files an application upon a form and in such manner as the board prescribes, accompanied by such fees and bond as required by section 37-91-107, and who furnishes evidence satisfactory to the board that the applicant:

- (a) Is at least twenty-one years of age;
- (b) Is a citizen of the United States or has declared his intention to become a citizen;
- (c) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2003, p. 1678, § 5, effective May 14, 2003.)
- (d) Has had not less than two years' experience in the type of well construction work or pump installation work for which the applicant is initially applying for a license; however:

(I) Once a person is licensed in one or more methods of well construction, the person is eligible without further experience to take an examination to obtain a license for a different method of well construction;

(II) Once a person is licensed for installing one or more types of pumps, the person is eligible without further experience to take an examination to obtain a license for a different type of pump installation; and

(III) Education in an accredited program approved by the board may substitute for well construction or pump installation experience upon application to and acceptance by the board;

(e) Demonstrates professional competence by passing a written and oral examination prescribed by the board.

(2.5) The board shall issue a special license for the use of special equipment or limited procedures in well construction or pump installation to each applicant who files an application upon a form and in such manner as the board prescribes, accompanied by such fees and bond as are required by section 37-91-107, and who furnishes evidence satisfactory to the board that he meets the requirements established in subsection (2) of this section; except that a special licensee shall not be eligible to take an examination to obtain a license for a different method of well construction or pump installation unless said licensee has at least two years of experience in the method of well construction or pump installation for which the additional license is sought.

(3) Upon investigation of the application and other evidence submitted, the board shall, not less than thirty days prior to the examination, notify each applicant that the application and evidence submitted for licensing is satisfactory and accepted, or unsatisfactory and rejected; if rejected, said notice shall state the reasons for such rejection.

(4) The place of examination shall be designated in advance by the board and shall be given annually and at such other times as, in the opinion of the board, the number of applicants warrants.

(5) The examination shall consist of an oral and written examination and shall fairly test the applicant's knowledge and application thereof in the following subjects: Basics of drilling methods, specific drilling methods, basics of pump installation methods, specific pump installation methods, and basics of well construction and his knowledge and application of state laws and local ordinances concerning the construction of wells or the installation of pumping equipment, or both, and rules promulgated in connection therewith.

(6) If an applicant fails to receive a passing grade on the examination, the applicant may reapply for examination after forty-five days and shall pay a reexamination fee upon such reapplication.

(7) Each licensee shall complete eight hours of continuing education training as approved by the board every year in order to maintain or renew a license.

37-91-106. Persons previously licensed - exemptions.

(1) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2003, p. 1678, § 6, effective May 14, 2003.)

(2) A license shall not be required of any person who performs labor or services if he is directly employed by, or under the supervision of, a licensed well construction contractor or pump installation contractor.

(3) Private drillers and private pump installers are exempt from all license requirements under this article; except that such entities shall be required to comply with minimum construction standards as required by section 37-91-110 and the rules of the board.

(4) A license shall not be required of a professional engineer, professional geologist, or professional hydrologist or anyone directly employed by, or under the supervision of, a professional engineer, professional geologist, or professional hydrologist for the purpose of sampling, measuring, or test-pumping for scientific, engineering, or regulatory purposes. The board may promulgate rules governing such sampling, measuring, or test-pumping, and all such sampling, measuring, or test-pumping shall be done in compliance with such rules.

37-91-107. Fees and bonds - license renewal - continuing education. (1) All fees from applicants seeking a license under this article, and all renewal fees, shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the well inspection cash fund created in section 37-80-111.5. No fees shall be refunded. A license shall be nontransferable and unassignable.

(2) The board shall charge an application fee of twenty dollars to accompany each application from a resident of the state of Colorado and a further fee of fifty dollars upon successful completion of examination before issuance of a license. In addition, each successful resident applicant shall file and maintain with the board evidence of financial responsibility, in the form of a savings account, deposit, or certificate of deposit, in the amount of ten thousand dollars, meeting the requirements of section 11-35-101, C.R.S., or an irrevocable letter of credit for the amount of ten thousand dollars, meeting the requirements of section 11-35-101.5, C.R.S., or shall file and maintain with the board an approved compliance bond with a corporate surety authorized to do business in the state of Colorado, in the amount of ten thousand dollars, for the use and benefit of any person or the state of Colorado suffering loss or damage, conditioned that such licensee will comply with the laws of the state of Colorado in engaging in the business for which he receives a license and the rules of the board promulgated in the regulation of such business.

(3) The board shall charge an application fee of fifty dollars to accompany each application from a nonresident of the state of Colorado and a further nonresident fee of four hundred dollars upon successful completion of examination before issuance of a license. In addition, each successful nonresident applicant shall file and maintain with the board evidence of financial responsibility, in the form of a savings account, deposit, or certificate of deposit in the amount of twenty thousand dollars, meeting the requirements of section 11-35-101, C.R.S., or shall file and maintain with the board an approved compliance bond in the amount of twenty thousand dollars with a corporate surety authorized to do business in the state of Colorado for the use and benefit of any person or the state of Colorado suffering loss or damage, conditioned that such licensee will comply with the laws of the state in engaging in the business for which he receives a license and the rules of the board promulgated in compliance therewith.

(3.5) The board shall not set the application and license fees in subsections (2) and (3) of this section at amounts greater than becomes necessary to further the purposes of this article. Such amounts shall not exceed the direct and indirect costs of the board in administering the provisions of this article.

(3.7) The board is authorized to set the bond amounts in subsections (2) and (3) of this section at higher amounts if such an increase becomes necessary to further the purposes of this article.

(4) Every licensed well construction contractor and licensed pump installation contractor in this state shall pay to the board during the month of January of each year, beginning in the year immediately subsequent to his or her initial licensing, a renewal fee of fifty dollars, shall concurrently file and maintain a new bond or letter of credit if required pursuant to this section, and shall annually file a certificate of completion of continuing education as required pursuant to section 37-91-105 (7). The secretary shall thereupon issue a renewal license for one year. The license of any well construction contractor or pump installation contractor who fails to have his or her license renewed during the month of January in each year shall lapse. Any lapsed license may be renewed, without reexamination, within a period of one year after such lapse upon payment of all fees in arrears. Licensees may elect to renew their licenses and file and maintain a bond or letter of credit for a term of up to three years, paying fifty dollars for each year the license will be in effect.

(4.5) A licensee shall maintain the amount of financial responsibility required by subsections (2), (3), and (4) of this section for the life of the license for which the financial responsibility is required. The license of any well construction contractor or pump installation contractor who fails to maintain such financial responsibility shall lapse. A license that has so lapsed may be reinstated upon submission of current evidence of the required financial responsibility to the board and payment to the board of a one-hundred-dollar reinstatement fee.

(5) The board shall charge an annual registration fee of ten dollars for each well drilling or pump installation rig to be operated in the state of Colorado.

(6) The board shall, no later than January 7, 2007, develop a continuing education program in conjunction with the Colorado water well contractors association or any analogous or successor organization.

37-91-108. Denial, revocation, or suspension of license. (1) The board, by an affirmative vote of three of its five members, may withhold, deny, revoke, or suspend any license issued or applied for in accordance with the provisions of this article, upon proof that the licensee or applicant:

(a) Has used fraud or deception in applying for a license or in taking an examination provided for in this article;

(b) Has willfully or negligently violated any of the provisions of this article or of the "Colorado Ground Water Management Act";

(c) Has failed to comply with minimum standards prescribed by section 37-91-110 or the rules of the board promulgated with respect to this article;

(d) Has knowingly constructed a well or installed pumping equipment without a valid permit;

(e) Has knowingly filed with the division of water resources a document containing untrue statements;

(f) Has used fraud or deception in collecting fees from persons with whom he has contracted for well construction or pump installation;

(g) Has failed to submit a well completion report or a pump installation report pursuant to the requirement therefor in the rules and regulations of the board;

(h) Has authorized a person, not directly employed or directly supervised by the licensee, to construct wells or install pumping equipment under the authority of the licensee's license; or

(i) Has failed to complete the continuing education requirement established in section 37-91-107 within one year after the establishment of such requirement.

(2) No license shall be withheld, denied, revoked, or suspended except in conformity with article 4 of title 24, C.R.S.

(3) A hearing upon a complaint may be initiated only if the complaint was filed with the board within two years of the filing of the completion report for the well or pumping equipment, the construction or installation of which formed the basis of the complaint. If no completion report was filed, a hearing upon the complaint may be initiated only if the complaint was filed with the board within two years of the discovery of the violation or defect that constituted the grounds for the complaint.

(4) The board may order the nondestructive investigation, abandonment, repair, drilling, redrilling, casing, recasing, deepening, or excavation of a well to protect groundwater resources and the public health if the board finds such action to be necessary to correct violations of article 90 of this title, this article, or the rules promulgated by the board pursuant to this article.

(5) The board may assess fines of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for violations of article 90 of this title, this article, or the rules promulgated by the board pursuant to this article for each such violation. Such fines shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit them to the well inspection cash fund created in section 37-80-111.5.

37-91-109. Further scope of article - orders - penalties. (1) In addition to the licensing of well construction contractors and pump installation contractors as required by this article, no well shall be located, constructed, repaired, or abandoned and no pumping equipment shall be installed or repaired contrary to the provisions of this article and applicable rules of the board promulgated to effectuate the purposes of this article. The board may by order require any licensee, private driller, or private pump installer to remedy any such noncompliant installation, construction, or repair and may, pursuant to rules and after due notice and a hearing, impose penalties for such noncompliance. The provisions of this article shall apply to any well or any pumping equipment not otherwise subject to regulation under the laws of this state and to any distribution, observation, monitoring, or dewatering of water therefrom; but this article shall not apply to any distribution of water beyond the point of discharge from the pressure tank or to any distribution of water beyond the point of discharge from the pumping equipment if no pressure tank or an overhead pressure tank is employed.

(2) Only a licensed pump installation contractor may install a cistern or other water storage tank between the wellhead and the pressure tank or downstream of the wellhead if no pressure tank is utilized.

37-91-110. Basic principles and minimum standards. (1) The following basic principles, general in scope and fundamental in character, shall govern the construction, repair, or abandonment of any well and the installation or repair of any pumping equipment:

(a) Water wells shall be:

(I) Located in such manner that the well and its surroundings can be kept in a sanitary condition;

(II) Adequate in size to permit the installation of pumping equipment to produce the volume of water sought to be obtained in compliance with the well permit;

(III) Constructed or abandoned in such a manner as to maintain natural protection against pollution of water-bearing formations and to exclude known sources of contamination;

(b) The pumping equipment shall be:

(I) Located in such a manner that the pump and its surroundings can be kept in a sanitary condition;

(II) Selected, constructed, and installed: To meet the water yield and drawdown characteristic of the well; to be durable and reliable in character; of such material that no toxic or otherwise objectionable condition will be created in the water; in such a manner that continued operation without priming is assured at the time of installation; and to provide adequate protection against pollution of any character from any surface or subsurface source.

(2) The board shall adopt and may, from time to time, amend rules and regulations reasonably necessary to insure the proper construction or proper abandonment of wells and the proper installation of pumping equipment. The board has the authority to require the filing of information and reports relating to the construction or abandonment of wells and the installation of pumping equipment whenever it may deem such action to be necessary.

(3) All wells shall be constructed or abandoned and all pumping equipment shall be installed in compliance with this article and with the rules and regulations promulgated by the board.

37-91-111. Violations and penalties. (1) It is unlawful:

(a) For any person to represent himself as a well construction contractor or a pump installation contractor who is not licensed under this article or to so represent himself after his license has been suspended or revoked or has lapsed;

(b) For any person not licensed under this article to advertise or issue any sign, card, or other device which would indicate that he is a well construction contractor or a pump installation contractor;

(c) For any person not licensed or whose license is suspended to construct wells unless he is a private driller or directly employed by or under the supervision of a licensed well construction contractor;

(d) For any person not licensed or whose license is suspended to install pumping equipment unless he is a private pump installer or directly employed by or under the supervision of a licensed pump installation contractor, except as excluded pursuant to section 37-91-106 (4); or

(e) For any person to otherwise violate any of the provisions of this article.

(2) Any person who violates any provision of subsection (1) of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(3) Any person who violates any provision of subsection (1) of this section shall also be subject to a civil penalty assessed by the court of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars for each such violation. All civil penalties collected under this subsection (3) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the well inspection cash fund created in section 37-80-111.5.

37-91-112. Injunctive proceedings. (1) The board may, through the attorney general of the state of Colorado, apply for civil penalties and for an injunction to enjoin any person from committing any act declared to be unlawful by this article. Such application shall be heard in the district court in which the grounds for the injunction arose.

(2) Such injunctive proceedings shall be in addition to and not in lieu of any other penalty or remedy provided in this article.

(3) In such proceedings, if the court enters a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, or permanent injunction or awards civil penalties, the person against whom such injunctive order was entered or against whom such civil penalties were awarded shall pay the costs of the proceeding, including reasonable attorney fees.

37-91-113. Well inspection program. (1) The state engineer shall monitor compliance with this article, including by inspecting water well construction and pump installation, and may employ inspectors for such purpose. The costs of such monitoring and inspection shall be paid from the well inspection cash fund created by section 37-80-111.5.

(2) Inspectors shall have the following qualifications, but need not be licensed pursuant to this article:

(a) Knowledge of proper well construction and pump installation techniques and practices;

(b) Drill site experience;

(c) Computer skills;

(d) Interpersonal skills; and

(e) Knowledge of all applicable statutes and rules.

(3) Inspectors shall annually spend a majority of their time conducting field inspections and a minority of their time preparing and evaluating reports and related office work. Duties shall include the following:

(a) Well construction and pump installation inspection and observation;

(b) Complaint investigation;

(c) Education and outreach;

(d) Inspection and observation of geotechnical wells, observation and monitoring wells, dewatering wells, and test holes;

(e) Field inspections of existing wells and pumps;

(f) Field inspections of well and hole plugging and abandonment; and

(g) Staff support for the state engineer and board.

Provisions create conceptual framework for appropriation and administration of ground and tributary water. The Colorado Ground Water Management Act, §§ 37-90-101 et seq., and the Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969, §§ 37-92-101 et seq., create a conceptual framework which provides for the appropriation and administration of designated ground water under the management act, and the appropriation and administration of all tributary water, except that which may be included in the definition of "designated ground water", under the 1969 act. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

The Water Right Determination and Administration Act provides that the water judges shall make determinations of water rights and conditional water rights, approve plans for augmentation and, after a certain time, take jurisdiction of water adjudications pending at the time of passage of the act; places the responsibility for administration and distribution of water upon the state engineer and the division engineer; and provides that any injunction to enforce orders of the state engineer or the division engineer shall be issued by the water judge of the division involved. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

This act creates two levels of adversary involvement in a water adjudication involving a proposed plan for augmentation or a change of water right: (1) Permission to file a statement of opposition; and (2) standing to assert injury. The first is available to "any person" and allows such person to participate to the extent of holding the applicant to a standard of "strict proof". The second, however, requires the objector to show that he or she has a legally protected interest in a vested water right or conditional decree. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Article provides statutory framework for implementing constitutional right to divert unappropriated waters of any natural stream to beneficial uses. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

This article was enacted in an effort to revamp Colorado's legal procedures for determining claims to water within the state. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. United States, 424 U.S. 800, 96 S. Ct. 1236, 47 L. Ed.2d 483, reh'g denied, 426 U.S. 912, 96 S. Ct. 2239, 48 L. Ed.2d 839 (1976).

This article and article 90 deal with separate waters. This article and the ground water management act, article 90 of this title, deal with separate and mutually exclusive waters. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981).

Differences explained between determination and administration of water rights under this article and under article 90. E. Cherry Creek Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Rangeview Metro. Dist., 109 P.3d 154 (Colo. 2005).

The entire plan of the water adjudication act is based on the concept of "rivers and natural streams". Whitten v. Coit, 153 Colo. 157, 385 P.2d 131 (1963) (decided under repealed § 147-9-1, CRS 53).

Water right is a legal right to use water; often, it is characterized as a property right. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

37-92-102. Legislative declaration - basic tenets of Colorado water law. (1) (a) It is hereby declared to be the policy of the state of Colorado that all water in or tributary to natural surface streams, not including nontributary groundwater as that term is defined in section 37-90-103, originating in or flowing into this state have always been and are hereby declared to be the property of the public, dedicated to the use of the people of the state, subject to appropriation and use in accordance with sections 5 and 6 of article XVI of the state constitution and this article. As incident thereto, it is the policy of this state to integrate the appropriation, use, and administration of underground water tributary to a stream with the use of surface water in such a way as to maximize the beneficial use of all of the waters of this state.

(b) A stream system which arises as a natural surface stream and, as a natural or man-induced phenomenon, terminates within the state of Colorado through naturally occurring evaporation and transpiration of its waters, together with its underflow and tributary waters, is a natural surface stream subject to appropriation as provided in paragraph (a) of this subsection (1).

(2) Recognizing that previous and existing laws have given inadequate attention to the development and use of underground waters of the state, that the use of underground waters as an independent source or in conjunction with surface waters is necessary to the present and future welfare of the people of this state, and that the future welfare of the state depends upon a sound and flexible integrated use of all waters of the state, it is hereby declared to be the further policy of the state of Colorado that, in the determination of water rights, uses, and administration of water, the following principles shall apply:

(a) Water rights and uses vested prior to June 7, 1969, in any person by virtue of previous or existing laws, including an appropriation from a well, shall be protected subject to the provisions of this article.

(b) The existing use of groundwater, either independently or in conjunction with surface rights, shall be recognized to the fullest extent possible, subject to the preservation of other existing vested rights, but, at his own point of diversion on a natural watercourse, each diverter must establish some reasonable means of effectuating his diversion. He is not entitled to command the whole flow of the stream merely to facilitate his taking the fraction of the whole flow to which he is entitled.

(c) The use of groundwater may be considered as an alternate or supplemental source of supply for surface decrees entered prior to June 7, 1969, taking into consideration both previous usage and the necessity to protect the vested rights of others.

(d) No reduction of any lawful diversion because of the operation of the priority system shall be permitted unless such reduction would increase the amount of water available to and required by water rights having senior priorities.

(3) Further recognizing the need to correlate the activities of mankind with some reasonable preservation of the natural environment, the Colorado water conservation board is hereby vested with the exclusive authority, on behalf of the people of the state of Colorado, to appropriate in a manner consistent with sections 5 and 6 of article XVI of the state constitution, such waters of natural streams and lakes as the board determines may be required for minimum stream flows or for natural surface water levels or volumes for natural lakes to preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree. In the adjudication of water rights pursuant to this article and other applicable law, no other person or entity shall be granted a decree adjudicating a right to water or interests in water for instream flows in a stream channel between specific points, or for natural surface water levels or volumes for natural lakes, for any purpose whatsoever. The board also may acquire, by grant, purchase, donation, bequest, devise, lease, exchange, or other contractual agreement, from or with any person, including any governmental entity, such water, water rights, or interests in water that are not on the division engineer's abandonment list in such amount as the board determines is appropriate for stream flows or for natural surface water levels or volumes for natural lakes to preserve or improve the natural environment to a reasonable degree. At the request of any person, including any governmental entity, the board shall determine in a timely manner, not to exceed one hundred twenty days unless further time is granted by the requesting person or entity, what terms and conditions it will accept in a contract or agreement for such acquisition. Any contract or agreement executed between the board and any person or governmental entity that provides water, water rights, or interests in water to the board shall be enforceable by either party thereto as a water matter under this article, according to the terms of the contract or agreement. The board shall adopt criteria for evaluating proposed contracts or agreements for leases or loans of water, water rights, or interests in water under this subsection (3), including, but not limited to, criteria addressing public notice, the extent to which the leased or loaned water will benefit the natural environment to a reasonable degree, and calculation of the compensation paid to the lessor of the water based upon the use of the water after the term of the lease. As a condition of approval of a proposed contract or agreement for a lease or loan of water, water rights, or interests in water pursuant to this subsection (3), the board shall obtain confirmation from the division engineer that the proposal is administrable and is capable of meeting all applicable statutory requirements. All contracts or agreements entered into by the board for leases or loans of water, water rights, or interests in water pursuant to this subsection (3) shall require the board to maintain records of how much water the board uses under the contract or agreement each year it is in effect and to install any measuring devices deemed necessary by the division engineer to administer the contract or agreement and to measure and record how much water flows out of the reach after use by the board under the contract or agreement, unless a measuring device already exists on the stream that meets the division engineer's requirements. All contracts or agreements for water, water rights, or interests in water under this subsection (3) shall provide that, pursuant to the water court decree implementing the contract or agreement, the board or the lessor, lender, or donor of the water may bring about beneficial use of the historical consumptive use of the leased, loaned, or donated water right downstream of the instream flow reach as fully consumable reusable water. The board shall file a change of water right application or other application with the water court to obtain a decreed right to use water for instream flow purposes under a contract or agreement for a lease or loan of water, water rights, or interests in water pursuant to this subsection (3). The resulting water court decree shall quantify the historical consumptive use of the leased or loaned water right and determine the method by which the historical consumptive use should be quantified and credited during the term of the agreement for the lease or loan of the water right. Said method shall recognize the actual amount of consumptive use available under the leased or loaned water right and shall not result in a reduction of the historical consumptive use of that water right during the term of the lease or loan, except to the extent such reduction is based upon the actual amount of water available under said rights. All water rights under such decrees shall be administered in priority. The board may not accept a donation of water rights that either would require the removal of existing infrastructure without approval of the current owner of such infrastructure or that were acquired by condemnation. The board may use any funds available to it for acquisition of water rights and their conversion to instream flow rights. The board may initiate such applications as it determines are necessary or desirable for utilizing water, water rights, or interests in water appropriated, acquired, or held by the board, including applications for changes of water rights, exchanges, or augmentation plans. Prior to the initiation of any such appropriation or acquisition, the board shall request recommendations from the division of parks and wildlife. The board also shall request recommendations from the United States department of agriculture and the United States department of the interior. Nothing in this article shall be construed as authorizing any state agency to acquire water by eminent domain or to deprive the people of the state of Colorado of the beneficial use of those waters available by law and interstate compact. Nothing in this subsection (3) shall impact section 37-60-121 (2.5). Any appropriation made pursuant to this subsection (3) shall be subject to the following principles and limitations:

(a) Any such appropriation which is based upon water imported from one water division to another by some other appropriator shall not, as against the appropriator of such imported water or his successor in interest, constitute a claim, bar, or use for any purpose whatsoever.

(b) Any such appropriation shall be subject to the present uses or exchanges of water being made by other water users pursuant to appropriation or practices in existence on the date of such appropriation, whether or not previously confirmed by court order or decree.

(c) Before initiating a water rights filing, the board shall determine that the natural environment will be preserved to a reasonable degree by the water available for the appropriation to be made; that there is a natural environment that can be preserved to a reasonable degree with the board's water right, if granted; and that such environment can exist without material injury to water rights.

(c.5) Notwithstanding section 37-92-103 (6), as to any application filed by the board on or after July 1, 1994, the board may not acquire conditional water rights or change conditional water rights to instream flow uses.

(d) Nothing in this section is intended or shall be construed to allow condemnation by this state or any person of easements or rights-of-way across private lands to gain access to a segment of a stream or lake where a water right decree has been awarded to the Colorado water conservation board.

(e) All recommendations, including those of the United States, which are transmitted to the board for water to be retained in streams or lakes to preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree must be made with specificity and in writing in order that any appropriation made by the board may be integrated into the statewide system for the administration of water rights. Filings for appropriations by the board shall be consistent with other appropriations and with the requirements of this article.

(4) Any appropriation made pursuant to subsection (3) of this section shall also be subject to the following principles and limitations:

(a) Utilizing a public notice and comment procedure, the board, in its discretion, may determine whether or not to appropriate minimum stream flows or natural lake levels, or decrease such an appropriation, to preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree. The board may adopt conditions attached to an appropriation or decreased appropriation, may file or withdraw statements of opposition in water court cases, and enter into stipulations for decrees or other forms of contractual agreements, including enforcement agreements, that it determines will preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree. All contractual agreements and stipulations entered into by the board prior to May 23, 1996, regarding enforcement of its appropriations shall be given full force and effect. Any increase to an existing minimum stream flow or natural lake level appropriation or decree shall be made as a new appropriation.

(b) (I) Except as provided pursuant to paragraph (d) of this subsection (4), if the board determines that it is appropriate to consider decreasing an existing decreed appropriation, the board shall proceed through an adequate public notice and comment process to consider such decrease at a public meeting.

(II) For the purposes of this paragraph (b), "adequate public notice and comment process" shall include the following:

(A) Notice of the proposed decrease and the date of the public meeting at which it will first be considered shall be printed in the resume in the water court having jurisdiction over the decree that is the subject of the decrease. The first public meeting of the board at which the decrease is to be considered shall occur at least sixty-three days after the month in which the resume is published. Notice shall also be published in a newspaper of statewide distribution within thirty-five to forty-nine days prior to such first public meeting.

(B) If the board decides at such first public meeting to consider the proposed decrease, the board shall announce publicly the date of a subsequent public meeting for such purpose.

(C) On the written request of any person made within thirty-five days after the date of the first public meeting, the board shall delay the subsequent public meeting for up to one year to allow such person the opportunity for the collection of scientific data material to the proposed decrease. Such request may not be interposed solely for delay of the proceedings.

(D) On the written request of any person made within thirty-five days after the date of the first public meeting, the board shall, within sixty-three days after such request, establish fair and formal procedures for the subsequent public meeting, including the opportunity for reasonable disclosure, discovery, subpoenas, direct examination, and cross examination, and may promulgate rules that will assure orderly procedures. Subject to these rights and requirements, where a meeting will be expedited and the interests of the participants will not be substantially prejudiced thereby, the board may receive all or part of the evidence in written form.

(III) The board's final written determination regarding the decrease shall state its effective date, be mailed promptly to the persons who appeared by written or oral comment at the board's proceeding, and be filed promptly with the water court. Within thirty-five days after such effective date, any person who appeared by written or oral comment at the board's proceeding may file with the water court and serve the board a petition for judicial review of the board's determination that the decreed appropriation as decreased will preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree, based on the administrative record and utilizing the criteria of section 24-4-106 (6) and (7), C.R.S. Any such person may request a stay in accordance with the criteria of section 24-4-106 (5), C.R.S., pending the review proceeding. If no petition is filed, the court shall promptly enter an order decreasing the board's appropriation decree in accordance with the board's written determination. If a petition is filed, the court shall promptly order briefing and oral argument and render its decision to affirm or set aside the board's determination. If the board's determination is affirmed, the court shall promptly enter an order decreasing the board's appropriation decree in accordance with the board's written determination. If the board's determination is set aside, the court shall enter its order of relief under the provisions of section 24-4-106 (7), C.R.S. Appellate review of the court's order shall be as allowed in other water matters.

(c) The board's determinations regarding the matters to be determined by the board under paragraph (c) of subsection (3) of this section and paragraph (d) of this subsection (4) for new appropriations shall be subject to judicial review in the water court application and decree proceedings initiated by the board, based on the board's administrative record and utilizing the criteria of section 24-4-106 (6) and (7), C.R.S. The board may file applications for changes of water rights and augmentation plans, and the water court shall determine matters that are within the scope of section 37-92-305.

(d) The board may participate in the recovery implementation program for endangered fish species in the upper Colorado river basin and appropriate and obtain decrees for minimum instream flows or natural lake levels, including decree provisions for modification and enforcement, the implementation of which shall not be subject to paragraph (b) of this subsection (4), as it determines will preserve the natural environment of the Colorado river endangered fish within Colorado to a reasonable degree while protecting existing uses within Colorado and not depriving the people of the state of Colorado of the beneficial use of those waters available by law and interstate compact.

(e) Sub-subparagraphs (A) and (C) of subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (4) shall not apply to the board's consideration of any proposed decrease which was included in a meeting notice and agenda issued by the board prior to May 23, 1996, whether or not the board had scheduled or taken any action on the proposal by such date. Sub-subparagraph (D) of subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (4) shall not apply to such a proposal so long as the board establishes fair and formal procedures pursuant to such sub-subparagraph (D) at or before the first public meeting thereon for any subsequent public meeting, including the opportunity for reasonable disclosure, discovery, subpoenas, direct examination, and cross examination of witnesses. All other provisions in paragraph (b) of this subsection (4) shall apply to any decrease after May 23, 1996.

(5) Within thirty-five days after initiating any water rights filing for the adjudication of a recreational in-channel diversion, any county, municipality, city and county, water district, water and sanitation district, water conservation district, or water conservancy district shall submit a copy of the water rights application to the board for review.

(6) (a) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2006, p. 906, § 1, effective May 11, 2006.)

(b) The board, after deliberation in a public meeting, shall consider the following factors and make written findings as to each:

(I) Whether the adjudication and administration of the recreational in-channel diversion would materially impair the ability of Colorado to fully develop and place to consumptive beneficial use its compact entitlements;

(II) and (III) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2006, p. 906, § 1, effective May 11, 2006.)

(IV) Whether exercise of the recreational in-channel diversion would cause material injury to instream flow water rights appropriated pursuant to subsections (3) and (4) of this section; and

(V) Whether adjudication and administration of the recreational in-channel diversion would promote maximum utilization of waters of the state.

(VI) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2006, p. 906, § 1, effective May 11, 2006.)

(c) Within ninety days after the filing of statements of opposition, the board shall report its findings to the water court for review pursuant to section 37-92-305 (13). The board may fully participate in the water court proceedings.

(d) Nothing in subsection (5) of this section or this subsection (6) shall apply in any way to any application for a water right or conditional water right for recreational in-channel diversion purposes that was filed prior to January 1, 2001.

(e) Nothing in subsection (5) of this section or this subsection (6) shall apply in any way to any water right or conditional water right for recreational in-channel diversion purposes for which a decree was entered prior to June 5, 2001, including any proceeding concerning diligence on such conditional water right or any proceeding to make such conditional water right absolute.

Annotator's note. Although there is no section similar to § 37-92-102 in the former Colorado codes, relevant cases construing repealed § 148-9-7, C.R.S. 1963, and CSA, C. 90, § 189(24), have been included in the annotations to this section.

Not unconstitutional delegation of power to appropriate. The statutory language in this section and § 37-92-103 (4) empowering the Colorado water conservation board to appropriate such waters of natural streams and lakes as may be required to preserve the natural environment to reasonable degree is not unconstitutionally vague and, therefore, not an impermissible delegation of authority. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 197 Colo. 469, 594 P.2d 570 (1979).

Subsection (1)(b) is of general and uniform applicability and does not constitute unconstitutional special legislation. Am. Water Dev., Inc. v. City of Alamosa, 874 P.2d 352 (Colo. 1994).

The statement in subsection (1)(a) accords with the principle enunciated in many of our previous cases that the waters of our state are such a scarce and valuable resource that they must be administered in ways that effectuate the goal of "maximum utilization", including use of as much underground water as possible. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

One of the avowed purposes of this article is to afford some practicable degree of protection to water rights and uses vested prior to the effective date of these sections, June 7, 1969. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

In adopting the Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969, the general assembly expressly recognized the need to protect those who hold vested water rights and required that such rights be preserved under our current water system. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

Nontributary ground waters. Legislature has plenary power over the disposition of nontributary ground water outside of designated basins. Qualls, Inc. v. Berryman, 789 P.2d 1095 (Colo. 1990).

The exclusive authority granted to the Colorado water conservation board by this section to appropriate minimum stream flows does not detract from the right to divert and to put to beneficial use unappropriated waters by removal or control. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

In this semiarid region, a water right has long been recognized as a property right, often more valuable than the land upon which the water is applied. City of Colo. Springs v. Yost, 126 Colo. 289, 249 P.2d 151 (1952).

Value of property right in water is in its use, not its possession. The uncertain nature of the property right in water is evidence that its primary value is in its relative priority and the right to use the resource and not in the continuous tangible possession of the resource. Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

The right to appropriate and divert water is not absolute. City & County of Denver v. Bergland, 517 F. Supp. 155 (D. Colo. 1981), aff'd in part and rev'd on other grounds, 695 F. 2d 465 (10th Cir. 1982).

Board's right to appropriate waters is burdened by a fiduciary duty to appropriate the minimum amount necessary to preserve the natural environment for the people of the state. Aspen Wilderness Workshop, Inc. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 901 P.2d 1251 (Colo. 1995).

This section does not create in the board a blanket grant of authority as to its appropriation of instream flow waters. Aspen Wilderness Workshop, Inc. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 901 P.2d 1251 (Colo. 1995).

Board's appropriations are designated as the minimum stream flows necessary to preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree. Aspen Wilderness Workshop, Inc. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 901 P.2d 1251 (Colo. 1995).

Board's appropriations not plenary. As any other appropriator, the board may perfect its water rights by applying for and obtaining a decree from the water court. And once the water court issues a decree, that decree becomes controlling as to the right to appropriate water. Aspen Wilderness Workshop, Inc. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 901 P.2d 1251 (Colo. 1995).

This section does not grant the board the power to unilaterally modify lawful decrees of the water court. Aspen Wilderness Workshop, Inc. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 901 P.2d 1251 (Colo. 1995).

Board may modify a previous adjudication by petitioning the water court for changes to its decreed water rights. Aspen Wilderness Workshop, Inc. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 901 P.2d 1251 (Colo. 1995).

This section did not provide carte blanche authority to substitute water consumption and raise it to a preferential right. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Shelton Farms, Inc., 187 Colo. 181, 529 P.2d 1321 (1974).

There must be a balancing effect, and the elements of water and land must be used in harmony to the maximum feasible use of both. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Shelton Farms, Inc., 187 Colo. 181, 529 P.2d 1321 (1974).

Persons who cut down water-consuming vegetation along river banks did not have a right to equivalent amount of water for their own "beneficial use" free from the call of the river. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Shelton Farms, Inc., 187 Colo. 181, 529 P.2d 1321 (1974).

Water is available for appropriation if the taking thereof does not cause injury. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Maximum utilization of an aquifer is not license to get all the water from it, but rather the objective of "maximum use" administration is "optimum use" which can only be achieved with proper regard for all significant factors, including economic and environmental concerns. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

An argument to the effect that water withdrawn must be replaced 100 percent fell where senior users could show no injury by the diversion of water, even though the river involved was over-appropriated. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

An acceptable plan for augmentation does not require the addition of new water into the water system, such as the introduction of transmountain diverted water into the system. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

The fact that rivers involved are over-appropriated, rather than being an argument against the plans for augmentation, is the very reason for the valid exercise of ingenuity of persons seeking to maximize the use of water, whether they are present or future owners of land and wells, developers, or as characterized by the water court here, promoters, speculators, or nonusers. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

Plan of augmentation held valid. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Under subsection (3), Colorado water conservation board can make in-stream appropriation without diversion in the conventional sense. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 197 Colo. 469, 594 P.2d 570 (1979).

Appropriations pursuant to subsection (3) are to protect and preserve the natural habitat, and decrees confirming them award priorities which are superior to the rights of those who may later appropriate. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 197 Colo. 469, 594 P.2d 570 (1979).

When adjudicated priorities are not being filled as a result of pumping unappropriated ground water, it cannot be said that this ground water is unappropriated. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

This section does not require an owner of a surface decree to first apply his well water to that decree before making the call upon junior appropriators, be they surface or underground, for this section states that use of ground water may be considered as an alternate or supplemental source of supply for surface decrees heretofore entered, taking into consideration both previous usage and necessity to protect the vested rights of others. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Decree of abandonment terminates the water right and divests the owner of any interest in it, thereby rendering the water once again subject to appropriation by the public under § 5 of art. XVI, Colo. Const. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

The water court is not required to consider environmental factors to determine whether to grant conditional water right decree. Matter of Bd. of County Comm'rs, 891 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1995).

In addition to the dual focus on maximum beneficial use and the protection of water rights, water judges must give consideration to the potential impact of the utilization of water on other resources. Maximum utilization must be implemented so as to ensure that water resources are utilized in harmony with the protection of other valuable state resources. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Water which is appropriated by a structure or device which controls water within its natural watercourse is not an appropriation of a minimum stream flow. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

The legislature expressed a clear intent to prohibit private parties from adjudicating instream flow rights. The general assembly vested exclusive authority in the Colorado water conservation board. The judiciary is without authority to decree an instream flow right to any private entity. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The district's application was not an impermissible application for an instream flow right where the beneficial use of the water was effectuated by a structure and the water right sought would be used to improve fishery and other recreational uses throughout the year. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 838 P.2d 840 (Colo. 1992).

Applied in In re Water Rights in Water Dist. No. 19, 194 Colo. 510, 574 P.2d 83 (1978); Kuiper v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry., 195 Colo. 557, 581 P.2d 293 (1978); State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L. Ed.2d 474 (1984).

II. FEDERAL WATER RIGHTS AND DETERMINATION.

A. Federal Reserved Water Rights.

The federal government has the authority both before and after a state is admitted into the union to reserve waters for the use and benefit of federally reserved lands, which include any federal enclave. United States v. District Court, 401 U.S. 520, 91 S. Ct. 998, 28 L. Ed.2d 278 (1971).

The United States often has reserved water rights based on withdrawals from the public domain. United States v. District Court, 401 U.S. 520, 91 S. Ct. 998, 28 L. Ed.2d 278 (1971).

The reservation of waters by the United States may be only implied and the amount will reflect the nature of the federal enclave. United States v. District Court, 401 U.S. 520, 91 S. Ct. 998, 28 L. Ed.2d 278 (1971).

Federal reserved water rights. The United States possesses reserved rights for its federal reservations in Colorado in waters unappropriated upon the date of reservation of the federal lands from the public domain, and in the amount necessary to achieve the primary purposes of the reservations. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982); Park Center Water Dist. v. United States, 781 P.2d 90 (Colo. 1989).

Reserved rights determined by Colorado law. Colorado law governing the determination of water rights is properly applied as the rule of decision by which the courts will determine the contours of the reserved rights asserted by the United States. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982); Park Center Water Dist. v. United States, 781 P.2d 90 (Colo. 1989).

Seniority of federal reserved rights. The federal government's position is similar to the holder of a conditional senior water right who can step ahead of junior appropriators causing a diminution of the amount of water available for diversion. Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

For extent of federal reserved water rights on different categories of public lands, see United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

For effect of federal reserved water rights, see Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

Applied in United States v. District Court, 169 Colo. 555, 458 P.2d 760 (1969), aff'd, 401 U.S. 520, 91 S. Ct. 998, 28 L. Ed.2d 278 (1971).

B. Equitable Apportionment.

Equitable apportionment governs water disputes between states. Equitable apportionment is the doctrine of federal common law that governs disputes between states concerning their rights to use the water of an interstate stream. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982).

To be settled by U.S. supreme court. Each state through which rivers pass has a right to the benefit of the water but it is for the United States supreme court, as a matter of discretion, to measure their relative rights and obligations and to apportion the available water equitably. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982)(specially concurring opinion).

Equitable apportionment is a flexible doctrine which calls for the exercise of an informed judgment on a consideration of many factors to secure a just and equitable allocation. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982).

Such apportionment weighs harms and benefits to competing states. In an equitable apportionment of interstate waters, it is proper to weigh the harm and benefits to competing states. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982).

In addition to rule of priority. In the determination of an equitable apportionment between Colorado and New Mexico, the rule of priority is not the sole criterion. While the equities supporting the protection of established, senior uses are substantial, it is also appropriate to consider additional factors relevant to a just apportionment, such as the conservation measures available to both states and the balance of harm and benefit that might result from the diversion sought. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982).

Equitable apportionment will not protect wasteful or inefficient uses. Equitable apportionment will protect only those rights to water that are reasonably acquired and applied. Wasteful or inefficient uses will not be protected. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982).

Doctrine of equitable apportionment applies to diversion for future uses. The flexible doctrine of equitable apportionment clearly extends to a state's claim to divert water for future uses. Colo. v. New Mexico, 459 U.S. 176, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed.2d 348 (1982).

III. RECREATIONAL IN-CHANNEL DIVERSIONS.

Nothing in the statute allows the Colorado water conservation board to look beyond the stream flow claimed or the recreation experience intended by an applicant when reviewing a recreational in-channel diversion application; rather, the board functions as a narrowly-constrained factfinding and advisory body when it reviews such applications, which it must analyze purely as submitted instead of determining what recreation experience would be reasonable or what minimum stream flow would meet that recreational need. Colo. Water Conservation Bd. v. Upper Gunnison Water Conservancy Dist., 109 P.3d 585 (Colo. 2005).

37-92-103. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Abandonment of a conditional water right" means the termination of a conditional water right as a result of the failure to develop with reasonable diligence the proposed appropriation upon which such water right is to be based.

(2) "Abandonment of a water right" means the termination of a water right in whole or in part as a result of the intent of the owner thereof to discontinue permanently the use of all or part of the water available thereunder. Any period of nonuse of any portion of a water right shall be tolled, and no intent to discontinue permanent use shall be found for purposes of determining an abandonment of a water right for the duration that:

(a) The land on which the water right has been historically applied is enrolled under a federal land conservation program; or

(b) The nonuse of a water right by its owner is a result of participation in:

(I) A water conservation program approved by a state agency, a water conservation district, or a water conservancy district;

(II) A water conservation program established through formal written action or ordinance by a municipality or its municipal water supplier;

(III) An approved land fallowing program as provided by law in order to conserve water;

(IV) A water banking program as provided by law;

(V) A loan of water to the Colorado water conservation board for instream flow use under section 37-83-105 (2); or

(VI) Any contract or agreement with the Colorado water conservation board that allows the board to use all or a part of a water right to preserve or improve the natural environment to a reasonable degree under section 37-92-102 (3).

(3) (a) "Appropriation" means the application of a specified portion of the waters of the state to a beneficial use pursuant to the procedures prescribed by law; but no appropriation of water, either absolute or conditional, shall be held to occur when the proposed appropriation is based upon the speculative sale or transfer of the appropriative rights to persons not parties to the proposed appropriation, as evidenced by either of the following:

(I) The purported appropriator of record does not have either a legally vested interest or a reasonable expectation of procuring such interest in the lands or facilities to be served by such appropriation, unless such appropriator is a governmental agency or an agent in fact for the persons proposed to be benefited by such appropriation.

(II) The purported appropriator of record does not have a specific plan and intent to divert, store, or otherwise capture, possess, and control a specific quantity of water for specific beneficial uses.

(b) Nothing in this subsection (3) shall affect appropriations by the state of Colorado for minimum streamflows as described in subsection (4) of this section.

(4) "Beneficial use" is the use of that amount of water that is reasonable and appropriate under reasonably efficient practices to accomplish without waste the purpose for which the appropriation is lawfully made and, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, includes the impoundment of water for recreational purposes, including fishery or wildlife, and also includes the diversion of water by a county, municipality, city and county, water district, water and sanitation district, water conservation district, or water conservancy district for recreational in-channel diversion purposes. For the benefit and enjoyment of present and future generations, "beneficial use" shall also include the appropriation by the state of Colorado in the manner prescribed by law of such minimum flows between specific points or levels for and on natural streams and lakes as are required to preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree.

(5) "Change of water right" means a change in the type, place, or time of use, a change in the point of diversion, a change from a fixed point of diversion to alternate or supplemental points of diversion, a change from alternate or supplemental points of diversion to a fixed point of diversion, a change in the means of diversion, a change in the place of storage, a change from direct application to storage and subsequent application, a change from storage and subsequent application to direct application, a change from a fixed place of storage to alternate places of storage, a change from alternate places of storage to a fixed place of storage, or any combination of such changes. The term "change of water right" includes changes of conditional water rights as well as changes of water rights.

(5.5) "Coal bed methane well" means a well permitted by the Colorado oil and gas conservation commission or a well authorized by a federal or tribal entity and constructed for the primary purpose of producing methane gas from a coal bed.

(6.3) "Control structure" means a structure consisting of durable man-made or natural materials that has been placed with the intent to divert, capture, possess, and control water in its natural course for an appropriator's intended and specified recreational in-channel diversion. The control structure and its efficiency shall be designed by a professional engineer, as that term is defined in section 12-25-102, C.R.S., or under the direct supervision of a professional engineer, and constructed so that it will operate efficiently and without waste to produce the intended and specified reasonable recreation experience. Concentration of river flow by a control structure constitutes control of water for a recreational in-channel diversion.

(6.7) "County" means any county and any city and county established under Colorado law.

(7) "Diversion" or "divert" means removing water from its natural course or location, or controlling water in its natural course or location, by means of a control structure, ditch, canal, flume, reservoir, bypass, pipeline, conduit, well, pump, or other structure or device; except that, on and after January 1, 2001, only a county, municipality, city and county, water district, water and sanitation district, water conservation district, or water conservancy district may file an application to control water in its natural course or location by means of a control structure for recreational in-channel diversions.

(8) "Person" means an individual, a partnership, a corporation, a municipality, the state of Colorado, the United States, or any other legal entity, public or private.

(9) "Plan for augmentation" means a detailed program, which may be either temporary or perpetual in duration, to increase the supply of water available for beneficial use in a division or portion thereof by the development of new or alternate means or points of diversion, by a pooling of water resources, by water exchange projects, by providing substitute supplies of water, by the development of new sources of water, or by any other appropriate means. "Plan for augmentation" does not include the salvage of tributary waters by the eradication of phreatophytes, nor does it include the use of tributary water collected from land surfaces that have been made impermeable, thereby increasing the runoff but not adding to the existing supply of tributary water.

(10) "Priority" means the seniority by date as of which a water right is entitled to use or conditional water right will be entitled to use and the relative seniority of a water right or a conditional water right in relation to other water rights and conditional water rights deriving their supply from a common source.

(10.1) "Reasonable recreation experience" means the use of a recreational in-channel diversion for, and limited to, nonmotorized boating. Other recreational activities may occur but may not serve as evidence of a reasonable recreation experience.

(10.3) "Recreational in-channel diversion" means the minimum amount of stream flow as it is diverted, captured, controlled, and placed to beneficial use between specific points defined by control structures pursuant to an application filed by a county, municipality, city and county, water district, water and sanitation district, water conservation district, or water conservancy district for a reasonable recreation experience in and on the water from April 1 to Labor Day of each year unless the applicant can demonstrate that there will be demand for the reasonable recreation experience on additional days. The recreational in-channel diversion shall be limited to one specified flow rate for each time period claimed by the applicant. Individual time periods shall not be shorter than fourteen days unless the applicant can demonstrate a need for a shorter time period. There shall be a presumption that there will not be material injury to a recreational in-channel diversion water right from subsequent appropriations or changes of water rights if the effect on the recreational in-channel diversion caused by such appropriations or changes does not exceed one-tenth of one percent of the lowest decreed rate of flow for the recreational in-channel diversion as measured at the recreational in-channel diversion and the cumulative effects on the recreational in-channel diversion caused by such appropriations or changes do not exceed two percent of the lowest decreed rate of flow for the recreational in-channel diversion measured at the recreational in-channel diversion. The owner of a water right for a recreational in-channel diversion may not call for water that has been lawfully stored by another appropriator.

(10.4) "Removal of water" means a change in the type and place of use of an absolute decreed agricultural water right from irrigated agricultural use in one county to a use not primarily related to agriculture in another county.

(10.5) "Revegetation" means the establishment of a ground cover of plant life demonstrated to be, without irrigation, reasonably capable of sustaining itself under the climatic conditions, soils, precipitation, and terrain prevailing for the lands from which irrigation water is removed. Grasses or other plants used for the purpose of revegetation shall not be noxious as such plants are defined under the provisions of the "Colorado Noxious Weed Act", article 5.5 of title 35, C.R.S.

(10.6) "Rotational crop management contract" means a written contract in which the owner or groups of owners of irrigation water rights agree to implement a change of the rights to a new use by foregoing irrigation of a portion of the lands historically irrigated and that provides that the water rights owner or groups of owners may rotate the lands that will not be irrigated as long as there is no injurious effect as specified in section 37-92-305 (3). The contract shall also provide that in the change of water right proceeding the water rights owner or groups of owners shall seek water court approval to rotate the lands that will not be irrigated as long as there is no injurious effect as specified in section 37-92-305 (3).

(10.7) "Significant water development activity" means any removal of water that results in the transfer of more than one thousand acre-feet of consumptive use of water per year by a single applicant or an applicant's agents.

(10.8) "Storage" or "store" means the impoundment, possession, and control of water by means of a dam. Waters in underground aquifers are not in storage or stored except to the extent waters in such aquifers are placed there by other than natural means with water to which the person placing such water in the underground aquifer has a conditional or decreed right.

(11) "Underground water", as applied in this article for the purpose of defining the waters of a natural stream, means that water in the unconsolidated alluvial aquifer of sand, gravel, and other sedimentary materials and all other waters hydraulically connected thereto which can influence the rate or direction of movement of the water in that alluvial aquifer or natural stream. Such “underground water” is considered different from “designated groundwater” as defined in section 37-90-103 (6).

(12) “Water right” means a right to use in accordance with its priority a certain portion of the waters of the state by reason of the appropriation of the same.

(13) “Waters of the state” means all surface and underground water in or tributary to all natural streams within the state of Colorado, except waters referred to in section 37-90-103 (6).

(14) (a) “Well” means any structure or device used for the purpose or with the effect of obtaining groundwater for beneficial use from an aquifer. “Well” includes an augmentation well that diverts groundwater tributary to the South Platte river and delivers it to a surface stream, ditch, canal, reservoir or recharge facility to replace out-of-priority stream depletions, or to meet South Platte river compact obligations, either directly or by recharge accretions, as part of a plan for augmentation approved by the water judge for water division 1 or a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to section 37-92-308.

(b) “Well” does not include a naturally flowing spring or springs where the natural spring discharge is captured or concentrated by installation of a near-surface structure or device less than ten feet in depth located at or within fifty feet of the spring or springs’ natural discharge point and the water is conveyed directly by gravity flow or into a separate sump or storage, if the owner obtains a water right for such structure or device as a spring pursuant to article 92 of this title.

Annotator's note. Since § 37-92-103 is similar to repealed § 148-9-1, C.R.S. 1963, § 147-9-1, CRS 53, and CSA, C. 90, § 189 (1), relevant cases construing these provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

The statute is not applicable to designated ground water basins as defined and established by the Colorado ground water management act. Larrick v. District Court, 177 Colo. 237, 493 P.2d 647 (1972).

This act is quite specific in giving mandates by using the word "must", and in making matters permissive by using the word "may". Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

The conditional versus the absolute status of a water right cannot provide a ground for distinguishing between rights that arise from the same intent and overt acts initiating an appropriation. An absolute water right is not a right separate and distinct from the conditional right from which it originates, rather, a conditional right matures into an absolute right. Purgatoire River Water Conservancy v. Witte, 859 P.2d 825 (Colo. 1993).

The water court is not required to consider environmental factors to determine whether to grant conditional water right decree. Matter of Bd. of County Comm'rs, 891 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1995).

Any regulation of well pumping and determination of the effect thereof upon a surface stream must be predicated upon hydrologic projections. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

An argument to the effect that water withdrawn must be replaced 100 percent fell where senior users could show no injury by the diversion of water, even though the river involved was over-appropriated. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Where not more than half of the water adjudicated to priority was ever applied to beneficial use, such adjudication could only afford protection to the extent that such water, or fraction thereof, was actually applied to beneficial use. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

A "storage water right" is defined to mean "the right of impounding water for future beneficial use", and there is nothing in the statutes which limits the beneficial use of water for adjudication purposes to the particular year in which it was diverted and stored, and if it is applied to a beneficial use within a reasonable time such use is sufficient to meet the requirements of the law. North Sterling Irrigation Dist. v. Riverside Reservoir & Land Co., 119 Colo. 50, 200 P.2d 933 (1948).

Stream administration. Streams independently appropriated remain independent under the doctrine of prior appropriation unless the water of those streams becomes subject to equitable apportionment by compact, in which case the streams must be administered as mandated by the compact or statutory provisions for priority administration of water rights. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Developed water implies new waters not previously part of the river system. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Shelton Farms, Inc., 187 Colo. 181, 529 P.2d 1321 (1974).

State engineer's authority to apply compact tributary rule. A compact requiring administration of the Rio Grande mainstem and Conejos river according to delivery schedules that did not include the contributions of three creeks as significant to the delivery obligation did away with the state engineer's authority to apply the tributary rule of the compact to the three creeks. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Reduction of consumptive use of tributary water cannot provide basis for water right that is independent of the system of priorities on the stream. R.J.A., Inc. v. Water Users Ass'n of Dist. 6, 690 P.2d 823 (Colo. 1984).

Water proposed to be saved by removing trees and replacing them with nonirrigated grasses is tributary ground water and thus, subject to water priority system. Giffen v. State, 690 P.2d 1244 (Colo. 1984).

Nontributary ground water is that ground water not in or tributary to a natural stream within the meaning of subsection (13). State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L.Ed.2d 474 (1984).

"Underground water" is water that could influence rate or direction of movement of a stream for over a century. Kuiper v. Lundvall, 187 Colo. 40, 529 P.2d 1328 (1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 996, 95 S. Ct. 2391, 44 L.Ed.2d 663 (1975).

Mutual ditch company not entitled to reuse or successive uses of water obtained by diversion from river tributary. Mutual ditch company which had many differing ideas for reuse or successive use of water but which had no fixed purpose to pursue any particular idea lacked intent to appropriate and, therefore, was not entitled to reuse or successive uses of such water after first beneficial use, and, thus, returning liquids to be stored in reservoir under conditional water storage rights were "waters of the state" subject to diversion and use to supply existing and future appropriations on stream. Water Supply and Storage Co. v. Curtis, 733 P.2d 680 (Colo. 1987).

Where the issue is abandonment, the effect of such abandonment on any other water right diverting from the same source of supply is not the subject of the inquiry. Denver v. Middle Park Water Conservancy Dist., 925 P.2d 283 (Colo. 1996).

Applied in Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co. v. City of Aspen, 192 Colo. 209, 568 P.2d 45 (1977); In re Bohn v. Kuiper, 195 Colo. 17, 575 P.2d 402 (1978); *Broyles v. ## II. ABANDONMENT.

Abandonment of water rights occurs when there is nonuse coupled with an intention to abandon. In re CF&I Steel Corp., 183 Colo. 135, 515 P.2d 456 (1973); Masters Inv. Co. v. Irrigationists Ass'n, 702 P.2d 268 (Colo. 1985); People v. City of Thornton, 775 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1989); Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990); Consol. Home Supply v. Town of Berthoud, 896 P.2d 260 (Colo. 1995).

Nonuse for an unreasonable period creates a rebuttable presumption that there was an intention to abandon water rights. In re CF&I Steel Corp., 183 Colo. 135, 515 P.2d 456 (1973); Masters Inv. Co. v. Irrigationists Ass'n, 702 P.2d 268 (Colo. 1985); People v. City of Thornton, 775 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1989); Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990).

Requisite intent for abandonment may be inferred from all circumstances rather than proven directly. Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990).

To rebut the presumption of abandonment of water rights arising from a long period of nonuse, there must be established not merely expressions of desire or hope or intent, but some fact or condition excusing such long nonuse. In re CF&I Steel Corp., 183 Colo. 135, 515 P.2d 456 (1973); Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990); SRJ I Venture v. Smith Cattle, Inc., 820 P.2d 341 (Colo. 1991).

Amount of time considered unreasonable varies with facts of each case. Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990).

Fifty-four years of nonuse was an unreasonable period and created a rebuttable presumption that there was an intention to abandon water rights. In re CF&I Steel Corp., 183 Colo. 135, 515 P.2d 456 (1973).

A presumption of abandonment may be rebutted by evidence of justifiable excuse for nonuse. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Twin Lakes Assocs., Inc., 770 P.2d 1231 (Colo. 1989); Consol. Home Supply v. Town of Berthoud, 896 P.2d 260 (Colo. 1995).

Statements of intent by owner of water rights insufficient to rebut presumption of abandonment without other supporting evidence. Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990); Consol. Home Supply v. Town of Berthoud, 896 P.2d 260 (Colo. 1995).

Diligent efforts to sell water rights show an intent not to abandon such rights. Denver v.

Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990).

Abandonment of water right must be shown by preponderance of evidence. Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990).

Abandonment is a factual question determined by weighing all of the evidence and assessing the credibility of the witnesses. Water Rights of Masters Inv. Co., Inc. v. Irrigationists Ass'n, 702 P.2d 268 (Colo. 1985); Consol. Home Supply v. Town of Berthoud, 896 P.2d 260 (Colo. 1995).

Water court's decision regarding question of abandonment of water right will not be disturbed on appeal unless the evidence is wholly insufficient to support the decision. Denver v. Snake River Water Dist., 788 P.2d 772 (Colo. 1990); Consol. Home Supply v. Town of Berthoud, 896 P.2d 260 (Colo. 1995).

An asserted water right which never comes into being cannot be "abandoned". Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

If the former user of water has abandoned the water originally decreed to it, then there would be no valid or existing appropriation of water which could be made the subject matter of a petition by the former user to change the point of diversion. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. White River Elec. Ass'n, 151 Colo. 45, 376 P.2d 158 (1962).

If in fact the original decreed water rights have been abandoned, the water originally decreed belongs to the stream and is available for subsequent appropriators who would otherwise have been junior in point of time. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. White River Elec. Ass'n, 151 Colo. 45, 376 P.2d 158 (1962).

Different tests for abandonment of conditional and absolute water rights. The general assembly clearly intended different tests to be applied in determining when a conditional water right is abandoned and when an absolute water right is abandoned. The difference is the element of intent, which must be shown before an abandonment of an absolute water right can be decreed, but which is not necessary in establishing the abandonment of a conditional water right. The test applicable to determining whether a conditional water right has been abandoned is whether there has been a "failure to develop with reasonable diligence". Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980); Municipal Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

III. APPROPRIATION.

An appropriation is the intent to take accompanied by some open physical demonstration of the intent. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

The appropriation is, in legal contemplation, made when the act evidencing the intent is performed. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

When the individual, by some open, physical demonstration, indicates an intent to take, for a valuable or beneficial use, and through such demonstration ultimately succeeds in applying the water to the use designated, there is an appropriation. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

An effective appropriation requires the actual diversion of a definite quantity of water with intent to apply that water to a beneficial use. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Amity Mut. Irr. Co., 688 P.2d 1110 (Colo. 1984).

To be effective, an appropriation must divert a definite quantity of water with the intent of applying such water to a beneficial use. Whether the requirements of diversion and intent have been established is a factual question and the water court's determination of such question will not be reversed unless it is clearly unsupported by the evidence. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 838 P.2d 840 (Colo. 1992).

An application for a conditional water right turns in part on the existence of a claimant's intent to appropriate water. Thus, the issue of claimant's intent directly affects the outcome of the case and should not be determined on a motion for summary judgment. Dominguez Reservoir Corp. v. Feil, 854 P.2d 791 (Colo. 1993).

Under the "intent" prong of the first step test necessary to appropriate a conditional water right, an applicant must establish an intent to appropriate water for application to beneficial use. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

A city may appropriate water for its future needs without violating the "anti-speculation" doctrine so long as the amount of the appropriation is in line with the city's "reasonably anticipated requirements" based on substantiated projections of future growth as determined by the water court. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Trial court may impose volumetric limitation on the yield of a project if the limitation conforms to the amount of water available that the applicant has established a need and future intent and ability to use or that the limitation is specifically found by the court to be necessary to prevent injury to other water users. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

A conditional water right is limited to the amount of water available for appropriation and for which the applicant can establish a non-speculative intent to put to beneficial use while satisfying the “can and will” requirements. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

In quantifying the permissible yield of a conditional water right, the water court is not imposing an independent limitation, it is merely formalizing in the decree the scope of the conditional water right as it has been established by the applicant. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

A governmental water entity has the burden of demonstrating three elements in regard to its intent to make a nonspeculative conditional appropriation of unappropriated water: (1) What is a reasonable water supply planning period; (2) what are the substantiated population projections based on a normal rate of growth for that period; and (3) what amount of available unappropriated water is reasonably necessary to serve the reasonably anticipated needs of the governmental agency for the planning period above its current water supply. Pagosa Area Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Trout Unlimited, 170 P.3d 307 (Colo. 2007).

In the water court’s application of the third element, there are four non-exclusive considerations relevant to determining the amount of the conditional water right: (1) Implementation of reasonable water conservation measures during the planning period; (2) reasonably expected land use mixes during the planning period; (3) reasonably attainable per capita usage projections for indoor and outdoor use based on the land use mixes during the planning period; and (4) the amount of consumptive use reasonably necessary to serve the increased population. Pagosa Area Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Trout Unlimited, 170 P.3d 307 (Colo. 2007).

The governmental agency exception to the anti-speculation doctrine allows some freedom from anti-speculation limitations to allow them to plan for future water needs of constituents. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The governmental agency exception to the anti-speculation doctrine should be narrowly construed, and where the water court did not make specific findings that a 100-year water supply planning period was reasonable or that the applicant’s population projections were substantiated, the judgment must be reversed and remanded. A planning period in excess of 50 years should be closely scrutinized. Pagosa Area Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Trout Unlimited, 170 P.3d 307 (Colo. 2007).

A 50-year planning period, to 2055, is reasonable in this case, particularly given the length of time needed for land acquisition, environmental compliance and permitting, financing, and construction of a substantial new reservoir and the fact that the population projection period for the water conservation board’s statewide water supply study has been extended to 2050. Pagosa Area Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Trout Unlimited, 219 P.3d 774 (Colo. 2009).

Even though the court decreed conditional rights to Thornton pursuant to the governmental agency exception to the anti-speculation doctrine, the potential for a decree in excess of its needs still exists, as the water court must make its determinations of the city’s reasonably anticipated requirements based on projections that cannot be verified at the time the decree is entered. Therefore, the court’s imposition of specific diligence requirements was within its authority to ensure that Thornton show its continuing need for the volumetric amount of the water claimed. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Anti-speculation doctrine applies to diligence proceedings. Municipal Subdist., Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. OXY USA, Inc., 990 P.2d 701 (Colo. 1999).

The anti-speculation requirement of subsection (3)(a) applies in a change proceeding; accordingly, the applicant must show a legally vested interest in the place to be served by the change of use and a specific plan and intent to use the water for specific purposes. The proposed change, to any of over 50 proposed uses in any of 28 counties without a single agreement with any end user of the water, was properly dismissed. High Plains A & M, Inc. v. S.E. Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 120 P.3d 710 (Colo. 2005); ISG, LLC v. Arkansas Valley Ditch Ass’n, 120 P.3d 724 (Colo. 2005).

Water is available for appropriation if the taking thereof does not cause injury. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass’n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Although legislature cannot prohibit appropriation or diversion of unappropriated water for useful purposes, it may regulate manner in which appropriation or diversion is effected. Fox v. Div. Eng. for Water Div. 5, 810 P.2d 644 (Colo. 1991).

If water court erred and decreed a private in-stream flow right, this would simply constitute legal error vulnerable to reversal upon appeal, but would not constitute an overstepping of jurisdictional authority. Bd. of County Comm’rs v. Collard, 827 P.2d 546 (Colo. 1992).

Controlling water within its natural course or location by some structure or device, such as a dam, for a beneficial use may result in a valid appropriation. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

A boat chute or a fish ladder may qualify as a “structure or device” which controls water in its natural course or location. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Once the collected water in the drainage canal is turned into a natural watercourse, it becomes a part of the supply of that stream and is subject to public appropriation and use.

Quirico v. Hickory Jackson Ditch Co., 130 Colo. 481, 276 P.2d 746 (1954).

Reclamation plan which includes filling gravel pits with water obtained from an aquifer constitutes an "appropriation". Three Bells Ranch v. Cache La Poudre, 758 P.2d 164 (Colo. 1988).

IV. BENEFICIAL USE.

Not unconstitutional delegation of power to appropriate. The statutory language in § 37-92-102 and subsection (4) empowering the Colorado water conservation board to appropriate such waters of natural streams and lakes as may be required to preserve the natural environment to a reasonable degree is not unconstitutionally vague and, therefore, not an impermissible delegation of authority. Colo. River Water Conservancy Dist. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 197 Colo. 469, 594 P.2d 570 (1979).

Appropriations for piscatorial purposes without diversion intended. The general assembly in the enactment of the second sentence in subsection (4) and § 37-46-107 (1) (j) intended to have appropriations for piscatorial purposes without diversion. Colo. River Water Conservancy Dist. v. Colo. Water Conservation Bd., 197 Colo. 469, 594 P.2d 570 (1979).

Capture and storage of flood waters may be a "beneficial use" underlying an appropriation of water. Pueblo West Metro. Dist. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 689 P.2d 594 (Colo. 1984).

Hydroelectric power and flood control are both recognized as beneficial uses in Colorado. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Crystal Creek Homeowner's Ass'n, 14 P.3d 325 (Colo. 2000).

The extraction of ground water to facilitate the production of coal bed methane is a beneficial use because the oil and gas operator relies on the presence of ground water to keep the gas in place until the well is drilled and relies on the extraction of the ground water to release the gas. Therefore, absent rebuttal of the presumption that the ground water is nontributary, coal bed methane wells are subject to administration and capable of being adjudicated. If such wells cannot operate based on their own priority, they must be curtailed absent an adequate substitute water supply plan or plan of augmentation. Vance v. Wolfe, 205 P.3d 1165 (Colo. 2009).

Persons who cut down water-consuming vegetation along river banks did not have a right to equivalent amount of water for their own "beneficial use" free from the call of the river. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Shelton Farms, Inc., 187 Colo. 181, 529 P.2d 1321 (1974).

Salvaged water implies waters in the river or its tributaries, including the aquifer, which ordinarily would go to waste, but somehow are made available for beneficial use. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Shelton Farms, Inc., 187 Colo. 181, 529 P.2d 1321 (1974).

The volume of water applied to beneficial use is the full measure of the water right acquired. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Where not more than half of the water adjudicated to priority was ever applied to beneficial use, such adjudication could only afford protection to the extent that such water, or fraction thereof, was actually applied to beneficial use. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

A "storage water right" is defined to mean, "the right of impounding water for future beneficial use", and there is nothing in the statutes which limits the beneficial use of water for adjudication purposes to the particular year in which it was diverted and stored, and if it is applied to a beneficial use within a reasonable time, such use is sufficient to meet the requirements of the law. North Sterling Irrigation Dist. v. Riverside Reservoir & Land Co., 119 Colo. 50, 200 P.2d 933 (1948).

Storage of water is not a beneficial use, at least where flood control and fire or drought protection are not the stated uses of the water. To perfect a conditional storage right, the water must be released from storage and put to beneficial use. Upper Yampa Water Conservancy Dist. v. Wolfe, 255 P.3d 1108 (Colo. 2011).

V. CHANGE OF WATER RIGHT.

Right to change point of diversion is limited in quantity by historical use. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Definition of "change of water right". It is clear that both a change in the place of storage and a change from direct flow to storage are included within the definition "change of water right". S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co., 720 P.2d 133 (Colo. 1986).

Change in point of diversion of water right constitutes "change of water right". A change in the point of diversion of a water right is included in the term "change of water right", and it is, therefore, subject to all of the provisions of this article. Town of Breckenridge v. City & County of Denver, 620 P.2d 1048 (Colo. 1980).

Application for alternate places of storage for a previously decreed conditional right to store a certain amount of water constitutes a change of water right as defined in subsection (5). City of Thornton v. Clear Creek Water Users Alliance, 859 P.2d 1348 (Colo. 1993).

Proposed water exchange involving foreign water and addressed by section concerning right to reuse of imported water does not fit criteria for general change of water right. City of Florence v. Bd. of Waterworks, 793 P.2d 148 (Colo. 1990).

In order to use an alternate point of diversion to make absolute a conditional water right at another location, there must first be a decree establishing the new source as an alternate point of diversion. This process provides notice to interested persons of a proposed new diversion point and allows for the establishment of terms and conditions that will protect other water rights. Northern Colo. Water v. Three Peaks Water, 859 P.2d 836 (Colo. 1993).

VI. CONDITIONAL WATER RIGHT.

Purpose of a conditional water decree has always been to allow an ultimate appropriation of water to relate back to the time of the "first step" toward that appropriation. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982); Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

Conditional water decrees are designed to establish that the first step toward the appropriation of water has been taken and to recognize the relation back of the ultimate appropriation to the date of that first step. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

A conditional water decree requires an intent to appropriate and an overt, physical act constituting the first step toward diversion and application to a beneficial use. Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski. Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986); Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 838 P.2d 840 (Colo. 1992).

To show the first step toward appropriation of water, the applicant must show the concurrence of intent and overt acts. The date on which the first step is taken determines the date of the appropriation. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Applicant who had negotiated for three years for the purpose of ensuring water would be used to improve fishery and recreational and irrigational purposes and had entered into a contract and paid fees for such purpose showed sufficient overt acts to demonstrate its intent to appropriate. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 838 P.2d 840 (Colo. 1992).

Intent to abandon was clearly shown, and presumption of abandonment arising from over 10 years' non-use was not rebutted, where city purchased senior downstream irrigation rights, never diverted or applied them, did not protest their inclusion on the decennial abandonment list, and made all subsequent diversions under junior priorities. Denver v. Middle Park Water Conservancy Dist., 925 P.2d 283 (Colo. 1996).

The overt acts required under the first step test must perform the following three functions: (1) Manifest the necessary intent to appropriate water to beneficial use; (2) Demonstrate the taking of a substantial step toward the application of water to beneficial use; and (3) Give notice to interested parties of the nature and extent of the proposed demand upon the water supply. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992); City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Acts which demonstrate a substantial step toward application of water to a beneficial use and acts which constitute notice to third parties of the proposed demand upon the water supply may precede the formation of the intent to appropriate and an act manifesting such intent. However, the appropriation date of a conditional water right cannot be set prior to the formation of the necessary intent to appropriate and completion of an act manifesting such intent. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Filing of an application for a conditional water right may be evidence of an act manifesting the intent to appropriate and it may be deemed to constitute notice to third parties of the proposed demand upon the water supply, but it is doubtful that filing of an application is, by itself, a substantial step toward application of water to a beneficial use. Other overt acts would normally be required. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Establishment of conditional water right requires concurrence of an intent to appropriate water for a beneficial use and the performance of overt acts in furtherance of such intent. Concurrence of such intent and overt acts qualifies as the first step toward appropriation of water and the date the first step is taken determines the date of appropriation. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

Conditional decree of water rights which would injure senior appropriators cannot be granted without plan for augmentation which would assure sufficient water to exercise right. Fox v. Div. Eng'r for Water Div. 5, 810 P.2d 644 (Colo. 1991).

Owner or user of conditional decree of water rights must comply with §§ 37-92-301(4) and 37-92-601, and the failure to do so results in the loss of his conditional water rights. Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980).

Appropriation and development with reasonable diligence required for conditional decree. Subsection (6) requires that an applicant for a conditional water right demonstrate that an appropriation has been made and that the appropriation has been developed with reasonable diligence before the conditional decree will issue. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 642 P.2d 510 (Colo. 1982).

Finding of reasonable diligence equal to development with reasonable diligence. In considering § 37-92-301 (4) in juxtaposition with subsection (1), it is evident that the general assembly was drawing a clear connecting line between "failure to develop with reasonable diligence" and the requirement that the owner or user of a conditional water right obtain a finding of reasonable diligence. In effect, the general assembly equated a failure to obtain a finding of reasonable diligence with a failure to develop with reasonable diligence. Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P. 2d 48 (1980).

Reasonable diligence in the development of conditional water rights is demonstrated when conditional water rights remain part of an integrated water project and the diligent work performed on the project as a whole is properly attributed to such conditional water rights. Vail Valley Consolidated Water District v. City of Aurora, 731 P.2d 665 (Colo. 1987).

Site-specific work to develop each individual conditional water right is not a precondition to finding of a reasonable diligence in the development of water rights which are part of an integrated project. Vail Valley Consol. Water Dist. v. City of Aurora, 731 P.2d 665 (Colo. 1987).

Prospective appropriator shall be deemed to have made a "diversion" of water by "controlling water in its natural course". Such control may be accomplished by the construction of a boat chute and fish ladder to control water and put it to recreational uses or uses benefiting wildlife. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

A court can complete an adjudication proceeding involving a conditional water right if: (1) Prior to the designation and creation of the designated ground water basin, the claim for a conditional water right has been filed in the court adjudication proceedings; and (2) either before or after the designation and creation of the designated ground water basin, proof is introduced showing that the applicant was entitled to a conditional decree prior to the time of the designation and creation of the basin. Sweetwater Dev. Corp. v. Schubert Ranches, Inc., 188 Colo. 379, 535 P.2d 215 (1975).

An application for a conditional water right turns in part on the existence of a claimant's intent to appropriate water. Thus, the issue of claimant's intent directly affects the outcome of the case and should not be determined on a motion for summary judgment. Dominguez Reservoir Corp. v. Feil, 854 P.2d 791 (Colo. 1993).

To establish a "conditional water right", an applicant must show in general that a "first step" toward the appropriation of a cer- tain amount of water has been taken, that the applicant's intent to appropriate is not based upon the speculative sale or transfer of the appropriative rights, and that there is a substantial probability that the applicant "can and will" complete the appropriation with diligence. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Whether the relevant act or acts were sufficiently "overt" is a mixed question of law and fact, the resolution of which must be made by the court through the application of a legal standard to the facts of the case. The applicant bears the burden of proving that an overt act or acts have fulfilled the necessary functions and that the first step has been accomplished on a particular date. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The inquiry notice required of the overt acts context is more than mere notice of an unrefined intent to appropriate by something less than a detailed summary of exact diversion specifications. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Thornton's activities of formal acts taken by city officials, posting the signs, and surveying the general points of diversion were insufficient "overt acts". City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The formal acts taken by Thornton, such as the passing of a resolution by its utilities board, were insufficiently publicized to the extent necessary to charge potentially interested parties with inquiry notice. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The signs were sufficient to provide notice of general intent to appropriate; however, they were insufficient as "inquiry notice" because interested parties would have to wait until the publication of the resume to know the nature and extent of the proposed demand upon the water supply. Therefore, the date of the filing of Thornton's application is the appropriation date. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Surveying general points of diversion were not sufficiently public or informative, either in isolation or in combination with the posted signs to put interested parties on inquiry notice of the extensive nature of the proposed diversion. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Under the "intent" prong of the first step test necessary to appropriate a conditional water right, an applicant must establish an intent to appropriate water for application to beneficial use. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

A city may appropriate water for its future needs without violating the "anti-speculation" doctrine so long as the amount of the appropriation is in line with the city's "reasonably anticipated requirements" based on substantiated projections of future growth as determined by the water court. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Trial court may impose volumetric limitation on the yield of a project if the limitation conforms to the amount of water available that the applicant has established a need and future intent and ability to use or that the limitation is specifically found by the court to be necessary to prevent injury to other water users. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

A conditional water right is limited to the amount of water available for appropriation and for which the applicant can establish a nonspeculative intent to put to beneficial use while satisfying the "can and will" requirements. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

In quantifying the permissible yield of a conditional water right, the water court is not imposing an independent limitation, it is merely formalizing in the decree the scope of the conditional water right as it has been established by the applicant. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The governmental agency exception to the anti-speculation doctrine allows some freedom from anti-speculation limitations to allow them to plan for future water needs of constituents. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Even though the court decreed conditional rights to Thornton pursuant to the governmental agency exception to the anti-speculation doctrine, the potential for a decree in excess of its needs still exists, as the water court must make its determinations of the city's reasonably anticipated requirements based on projections that cannot be verified at the time the decree is entered. Therefore, the court's imposition of specific diligence requirements was within its authority to ensure that Thornton show its continuing need for the volumetric amount of the water claimed. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

VII. PLAN FOR AUGMENTATION.

An acceptable plan for augmentation does not require the addition of new water into the water system, such as the introduction of transmountain diverted water into the system. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

An exchange plan is not part of a plan for augmentation where the exchange is not part of a detailed program to increase the supply of water available for beneficial use in a division. City of Florence v. Bd. of Waterworks, 793 P.2d 148 (Colo. 1990).

It would contravene the purpose of subsection (9) to allow stream depletions to be offset by anticipated increases in runoff with the result of circumventing the applicants' obligations to compensate holders of water rights for injuries that would otherwise occur, and the district court erred when it considered this factor in concluding that applicants' withdrawals will not result in such injury. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

In amending subsection (9) to prevent runoff water collected from land surfaces that have been made impermeable from serving as a source of augmentation, the legislature intended to remove the incentive for persons to attempt to increase water supplies by replacing natural land conditions with impermeable surfaces. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

Allowing the applicants credit for runoff water collected from land surfaces that have been made impermeable, thereby eliminating their obligation under § 37-90-137 (9)(c) to compensate holders of senior rights for injuries that may otherwise result from their withdrawals, would clearly undermine the purpose of the legislature's amendment to the definition of a plan for augmentation contained in subsection (9). State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

A tributary aquifer that would be used as a reservoir is not analogous to an unlined gravel pit or an on-stream reservoir and, thus, is not exempt from the prohibition against crediting a plan of augmentation for reductions in evapotranspiration. However, the claim is not frivolous as it is a good-faith attempt to extend existing law. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005).

Reduction in consumptive use of tributary water cannot be considered development of new sources of water as part of a plan for augmentation. Therefore, such reductions cannot provide the basis for a water right that is independent of water priority system, and revision in definition of "augmentation" did not provide that such reduction can be the basis for a water right independent of the water priority system. Giffen v. State, 690 P.2d 1244 (Colo. 1984).

The fact that rivers involved are over-appropriated, rather than being an argument against the plans for augmentation, is the very reason for the valid exercise of ingenuity of persons seeking to maximize the use of water, whether they are present or future owners of land and wells, developers, or as characterized by the water court here, promoters, speculators, or nonusers. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

VIII. PRIORITY.

Although an appropriation is not complete until actual diversion and use, still, the right may relate back to the time when the first open step was taken giving notice of intent to secure it. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. White River Elec. Ass'n, 151 Colo. 45, 376 P.2d 158 (1962).

What constitutes the "first step" required to establish a priority date, or date of first appropriation in a water rights matter is not the same in every proposed diversion because the facts must be taken into consideration in each case on an ad hoc basis; and although there are no precise standards, general guidelines have been established. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

The required "first step" must consist of open work "on the land" in order that notice can be given to others of the intention of the appropriators. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

"On the land" test disavowed in favor of test which determines whether the acts performed might have been substantial enough to provide notice, manifest intent, and demonstrate a serious step toward application of water to beneficial use. City of Aspen v. Colo. River Conservation Dist., 696 P.2d 758 (Colo. 1985).

The "first step" may include, when the appropriator is a public entity, a resolution passed or other official action taken by the entity but the adoption of a land use policy by the entity would not be sufficient because it would not give notice to interested parties of the intent to appropriate water. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

For discussion of what constitutes the "first step" required to establish a priority date in a conditional water rights matter, see Bar 70 Enters., Inc. v. Tosco Corp., 703 P.2d 1297 (Colo. 1985).

The requisite intent to appropriate does not have to precede or be contemporaneous with the acts which constitute the work on the land; what is required is that at some point in time the two requirements — the open physical demonstration and the requisite intent to appropriate — coexist, with the priority date to be set not earlier than the date on which both elements are present. Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

IX. WATER RIGHT.

Water right is a property right. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); People v. City of Thornton, 775 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1989).

Water right definitionally does not include a right to use "designated ground water", as defined in § 37-90-103 (6). State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

There is absolutely no question that a decreed water right is valuable property; that it may be used, its use changed, its point of diversion relocated; and that a municipal corporation is not precluded from purchasing water rights previously used for agricultural purposes and thereafter devoting them to municipal uses, provided that no adverse effect be suffered by other users from the same stream, particularly those holding junior priorities. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Value of water right is in its relative priority and its use. The uncertain nature of the property right in water is evidence that its primary value is in its relative priority and the right to use the resource and not in the continuous tangible possession of the resource. Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

When the application of water to beneficial use is effected by some structure or device, the resulting appropriation is by a diversion as defined in subsection (7). City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

X. UNDERGROUND WATER.

Junior appropriators with vested rights in underground water tributary to a natural stream are entitled to protection against injury resulting from another water user's change of rights. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Aquifer storage and augmentation claims based on the natural percolation of irrigation run-off and precipitation are frivolous when the water has not been placed there by other than natural means. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005).

WATER DIVISIONS - COURTS

37-92-201. Water divisions. (1) For the purposes of this article, the following water divisions are hereby established:

(a) Division 1: Division 1 consists of all lands in the state of Colorado in the drainage basins of the South Platte river, the Big Laramie river, the Arikaree river, the north and south forks of the Republican river, the Smokey Hill river, Sandy and Frenchman creeks, and streams tributary to said rivers and creeks.

(b) Division 2: Division 2 consists of all lands in the state of Colorado in the drainage basins of the Arkansas river and the Dry Cimarron river, and streams tributary to said rivers.

(c) Division 3: Division 3 consists of all lands in the state of Colorado in the drainage basin of the Rio Grande and all of its tributaries, and all lands in the drainage basins of the San Luis creek, Saguache creek, Tuttle creek, Carnero creek, La Garita creek, Sand or Medano creek, Big Spring creek, Little Spring creek, Mosca creek, Sierra Blanca creek, and all of their tributaries, and all lands in the drainage basins of all other creeks between Trinchera creek and Sand or Medano creek, and lands in the drainage basins of all other creeks which have their sources of water supply in the La Garita mountains and flow eastward into the San Luis valley.

(d) Division 4: Division 4 consists of all lands in the state of Colorado in the drainage basins of the Gunnison river and all of its tributaries, the Little Dolores river, the San Miguel river, and that portion of the Dolores river and its tributaries north of the north township line of Township 45 North, New Mexico Principal Meridian.

(e) Division 5: Division 5 consists of all lands in the state of Colorado in the drainage basins of the Colorado river and all of its tributaries arising within Colorado, with the exception of the Gunnison river.

(f) Division 6: Division 6 consists of all lands in the state of Colorado in the drainage basins of the White river, the Yampa or Bear river, the Green river, the North Platte river, and all of their tributaries.

(g) Division 7: Division 7 consists of all lands located in the southwest corner of the state of Colorado and in the drainage basins of the San Juan river, Rio Piedra, Rio Las Animas, Los Pinos river, La Plata river, Rio Mancos and streams tributary to said rivers and creeks as well as that portion of the Dolores river and its tributaries lying south of the north line of Township 45 North, New Mexico Principal Meridian.

Annotator's note. Since § 37-92-201 is similar to repealed laws antecedent to CSA, C. 90, § 249, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

Water districts did not in each instance embrace the entire drainage of a main stream, and naturally when a stream and its tributaries were included in two or more districts, water was not always distributed in accordance with the rights of appropriators in the several districts, irrigation divisions (now water divisions) were created which practically embrace all the drainage of a given stream to obviate the difficulties resulting from these conditions. Comstock v. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 60 Colo. 101, 151 P. 929 (1915).

A county was not embraced within a water division unless it appeared that there were lands in such county irrigated from some of the streams mentioned in the statute creating the division; and if there were no such lands, it could not be held liable for any portion of the compensation due to the superintendent of irrigation, and it was not sufficient to impose such liability that the lands within a county should lie within the watershed of any one or more of the streams mentioned in the statute. Chew v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 18 Colo. App. 162, 70 P. 764 (1902); Chapman v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 17 Colo. App. 236, 68 P. 134 (1902); Ballard v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 18 Colo. App. 68, 70 P. 1130 (1902).

All of the counties which contained lands that were irrigated by water taken from any one or more of the streams mentioned in the act creating the water division were embraced within the division, and were each liable for their respective shares of the compensation earned by the superintendent of irrigation for that division. Chew v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 18 Colo. App. 162, 70 P. 764 (1902).

In dividing the state up into water divisions, the general assembly in using the words “tributary to a natural stream” did not intend their use in a restricted sense, that is that the tributaries themselves should be natural continuous running streams, but as therein used it indicates that the word “tributaries” is used to include all sources of supply which go to make up the natural stream and which properly belong thereto. In re German Ditch & Reservoir Co., 56 Colo. 252, 139 P. 2 (1914).

37-92-202. Division engineers. (1) (a) The state engineer, with the approval of the executive director of the department of natural resources, shall appoint one division engineer for each division. Each division engineer shall be a licensed professional engineer and shall have such additional qualifications as may be specified from time to time by the state engineer. The state engineer, with the approval of said executive director, may employ such assistants and staff members as are necessary to enable each division engineer to carry out his or her duties.

(b) Each division engineer shall reside in his division, and the offices of the various division engineers shall be maintained in the following locations:

Division 1	Greeley
Division 2	Pueblo
Division 3	Alamosa
Division 4	Montrose
Division 5	Glenwood Springs
Division 6	Steamboat Springs
Division 7	Durango

(2) The division engineers shall perform such functions as are specified in this article and other laws and such functions as may be specified in written instructions and orders issued to them or to any one of them from time to time by the state engineer.

(3) With the approval of the state engineer, each division engineer may establish one or more field offices within his division and may appoint as a member of his staff a water commissioner for each such office.

(4) The expenses of the offices and staffs of the division engineers shall be provided for out of state funds.

(5) To the extent required by the constitution and laws of Colorado, appointments under this section shall be subject and pursuant to the state personnel system.

ANNOTATION

Annotator’s note. Since § 37-92-202 is similar to repealed laws antecedent to CSA, C. 90, §§ 224, 241, and 242, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

The office of division engineer is within the classified civil service. People v. Chew, 67 Colo. 394, 179 P. 812 (1919).

The division engineer is vested with control over the commissioners in his division. Comstock v. Fort Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 60 Colo. 101, 151 P. 929 (1915).

Since it is the duty of the division engineer to make inter-district distribution of water in his division, and this was accomplished by directions to the commissioners under his control, it follows that when he directed a commissioner in his division to cease supplying water, to priorities post-dating a specified date, it was the duty of the commissioner receiving such order to obey it. Comstock v. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 60 Colo. 101, 151 P. 929 (1915).

The division engineer is required to prepare the register and tabulated statement of priorities. Comstock v. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 60 Colo. 101, 151 P. 929 (1915); Weiland v. Reorganized Catlin Consol. Canal Co., 61 Colo. 125, 156 P. 596 (1916).

The law presumed that public officials discharge their duties in conformity with the statutes, and the burden of showing to the contrary rested with him who relies thereon. McLean v. Farmers’ High Line Canal & Reservoir Co., 44 Colo. 148, 98 P. 16 (1908).

Water officials had to distribute water according to decreed priorities, and a court had no power to direct them to do that which the duties of their office did not require of them. Ft.

Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. McCune, 71 Colo. 256, 206 P. 393 (1922).

Water officials have no concern with unappropriated waters. Ft. Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. McCune, 71 Colo. 256, 206 P. 393 (1922).

The former laws of 1887 made it the duty of the superintendent of irrigation to see that the water of the division was distributed according to the priorities as established by the decrees in the districts. O'Neill v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 56 Colo. 545, 139 P. 536 (1914); Comstock v. Larimer & Weld Reservoir Co., 58 Colo. 186, 145 P. 700 (1914).

A river with its tributaries had to be administered by the water officials as a whole, and all the decrees and appropriations of the water division of which water district three was a part, were collated, tabulated and combined for the purposes of such administration according to priorities. Comstock v. Larimer & Weld Reservoir Co., 58 Colo. 186, 145 P. 700 (1914).

Several decrees of the water districts within a division were to be treated as one, and the water distributed accordingly. McLean v. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co., 44 Colo. 184, 98 P. 16 (1908); Comstock v. Fort Morgan Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 60 Colo. 101, 151 P. 929 (1915).

The trial court exceeded its authority when it decreed that the state engineer petition the court to have Thornton pay the cost of administrative assistance from the state engineer's office for the administration of the northern project. This statute merely authorized the state engineer and division engineer to utilize private funds that may be available to them, not to impose obligations on private parties to provide such funds. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

37-92-203. Water judges - jurisdiction. (1) There is established in each water division the position of water judge of the district courts of all counties situated entirely or partly within the division. Said district courts collectively acting through the water judge have exclusive jurisdiction of water matters within the division, and no judge other than the one designated as a water judge shall act with respect to water matters in that division. Water matters shall include only those matters which this article and any other law shall specify to be heard by the water judge of the district courts. Water matters include determinations of rights to nontributary groundwater outside of designated groundwater basins. Judgments and decrees entered prior to July 1, 1985, in accordance with the procedures of sections 37-92-302 to 37-92-305 with respect to such groundwater shall be given full effect and enforced according to the terms of such decrees.

(2) On or before January 10 of each year, the supreme court shall designate or redesignate a water judge for each division to hear all pending and new water matters in that division for the year in which the designation is made, and any vacancy that occurs during such year shall be filled by designation of the supreme court. The services of the water judge shall be in addition to his regular duties as a district judge but shall take priority over such regular duties, and the schedules of the judges in the various divisions shall be arranged and adjusted so that the water judge shall be free to hear water matters. If it becomes necessary during any year for the proper handling of water matters in any division, the supreme court shall designate one or more additional water judges of the district courts in that division, and the term "water judge", as used in this article, refers to all water judges acting in a division. The water judge for a particular division shall be selected from among the judges of the district courts of the counties situated entirely or partly within the division; except that the chief justice may make temporary assignments of other judges.

(3) The water judge of a division shall normally sit in the county where the water clerk is located, but, at the discretion of the judge for convenience of parties, he may sit in other counties in the state, and he shall conduct hearings in other counties as specified in section 37-92-304 (4). Should the functions of the water judge require separate or additional facilities, the same shall be provided for by the state from funds appropriated to the supreme court.

(4) For the purpose of making investigations required by section 37-92-302 (4) and rulings required by section 37-92-303, the water judge of each division shall appoint such referees as may be necessary for that division. The term "referee", as used in this article, refers to all referees acting in a particular division.

(5) Each water referee authorized by this section shall be appointed by the water judge of the water division from a list of not less than three qualified persons to be submitted to the water judge by the executive director of the department of natural resources; but, in any water division, the water judge may elect to perform the functions which by this article would otherwise be vested in the water referee. When and if an extraordinary work load exists in any water division, additional referees may be appointed.

(6) Persons appointed as water referees shall possess such training and experience as to qualify them to render expert opinions and decisions on the complex matters of water rights and administration. The persons may, as the situation requires, be either full-time, part-time, or contractual court employees of the state of Colorado. All expenses in connection with the performance of the functions of water referees, including salaries and other compensation, office space, and clerical and technical assistance shall be paid from funds appropriated to the supreme court. Each water referee shall execute such oath of office as may be prescribed by the supreme court.

(7) The water judge of each division by order shall refer promptly to a referee of that division all applications filed pursuant to section 37-92-302, and the water clerk of that division shall transmit promptly to such referee the order of referral and the duplicate application and thereafter shall transmit promptly to such referee duplicates of any statements of opposition that are filed.

District courts in the several counties had general jurisdiction to determine disputes involving the use of water which could arise between residents of any community, but one was not required to resort to the particular court authorized to conduct a general adjudication proceeding in the several water districts in order to secure redress in an action involving an alleged infringement of a right to the use of water. Town of Genoa v. Westfall, 141 Colo. 533, 349 P.2d 370 (1960).

Where water court's decree did not modify or impair an earlier federal district court's water rights decree, the water court had jurisdiction to issue a decree granting a city application for reservoir refill rights. Even though the federal district court retained exclusive continuing jurisdiction concerning the federal decree, the city was seeking a new water right not addressed by the federal court that was junior to all appropriations adjudicated in the federal decree. City of Grand Junction v. Denver, 960 P.2d 675 (Colo. 1998).

Because the substance of the complaint addressed primarily the use of water rights rather than their ownership, the complaint related to a water matter and should have been filed in a water court. Abandonment of a water right is a water matter within the jurisdiction of the water court. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

The state engineer has jurisdiction to resolve a petition to revoke a groundwater permit notwithstanding the fact that the issue is a water matter because § 37-90-137 specifically delegates the issuance of groundwater permits to the state engineer's jurisdiction. V Bar Ranch LLC v. Cotten, 233 P.3d 1200 (Colo. 2010).

Water judges have exclusive jurisdiction of determining the validity of the rules and regulations of the state engineer, for it would be illogical, in fact nearly unthinkable, to set up a system for the determination of "water matters" and to provide for the selection of judges skilled in this field of law to preside as water judges, and then turn the determination to a non-water judge of a subject that goes to the very heart of the administration of water. Kuiper

v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

It is not within the jurisdiction of water judges to review rules or regulations promulgated to implement the Water Right Act. Eagle Peak Farms v. Ground Water Comm'n, 870 P.2d 539 (Colo. App. 1993), rev'd on other grounds, 919 P.2d 212 (Colo. 1996).

Jurisdiction to determine effect of prior contract or priorities awarded. It is inconceivable that the general assembly intended to grant the water judge jurisdiction with respect to priorities but to bar him from determining the effect of a prior contract upon the priorities awarded. This jurisdiction is implied in the state constitution and this section. In re Application for Water Rights of Fort Lyon Canal Co., 184 Colo. 219, 519 P.2d 954 (1974); Oliver v. District Court, 190 Colo. 524, 549 P.2d 770 (1976).

The water court has ancillary jurisdiction to resolve matters that would directly affect the outcome of matters over which it has exclusive jurisdiction. Crystal Lakes Water and Sew. v. Backlund, 908 P.2d 534 (Colo. 1995).

Where a hearing before a court does not involve beneficial application of water nor matters of priorities of appropriation, but with the manner in which water was allowed to run off the land after irrigation, a district court as a court of general jurisdiction has power to prevent negligent or deliberate damage, by whatever means, to property and to enforce court orders designed to prevent irreparable injury. Baumgartner v. Stremel, 178 Colo. 209, 496 P.2d 705 (1972).

Water court judge could not make an order concerning appropriation and diversion, where the diversion takes place in a different water division than that in which adjudication is sought. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

Ancillary suit transferrable to water court for determination. Where a covenant in a deed required the grantee to maintain a certain reservoir level; the covenant was the subject of a suit for injunctive relief in the district court; and the covenant would affect the outcome of a suit pending in the water court, the district court suit was ancillary to that in the water court and could be transferred to the water court for determination. Oliver v. District Court, 190 Colo. 524, 549 P.2d 770 (1976).

Although the water court has jurisdiction to hear ancillary matters, such jurisdiction does not extend to an adjudication of interests in land which are only tangentially related to the water dispute. FWS Land and Cattle Co., v.

State Div. of Wildlife 795 P.2d 837 (Colo. 1990).

Water judge may be conferred extraordinary jurisdiction over applications for water rights filed by various applicants in different water divisions. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Huston, 197 Colo. 365, 593 P.2d 1347 (1979).

No jurisdiction over nontributary water not designated ground water. Where nontributary water has not been designated ground water, this type of water is included within the term "water matters", and a water judge does not have jurisdiction. In re Application for Water Rights of Fort Lyon Canal Co., 184 Colo. 219, 519 P.2d 954 (1974); Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Huston, 197 Colo. 365, 593 P.2d 1347 (1979).

Relief involving taking ground water sought first under ground water provisions. It is appropriate, as a matter of policy, and is consistent with legislative intent, to require that any relief sought which involves the taking of ground water in a designated ground water basin must be sought first through the administrative and judicial channels, as appropriate, prescribed for resolution of questions arising under article 90 of this title. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Vickroy decision not retrospectively applied. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy (627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981)) should not be retrospectively applied to those decrees involving well permits in designated ground water basins issued prior to the Vickroy decision. Ground Water Comm'n v. Shanks, 658 P.2d 847 (Colo. 1983).

Applications for appropriating designated ground water committed to commission's jurisdiction. Applications for the appropriation of designated ground water to beneficial use are committed to the jurisdiction of the ground water commission. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Even where water not within definition of "designated ground water". An application for an initial appropriation of ground water, even if not within the definition of "designated ground water", in a designated ground water basin must be addressed to the ground water commission. State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Same presumption of correctness attaches to judgment of water court as to that of a court of general jurisdiction. Michel v. Front Range Land & Livestock Co., 638 P.2d 74 (Colo. 1981).

Authority of water referee is derivative from, and not greater than, water judge. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Applications under § 37-92-302 referred to water referee. The water judge must refer all applications and statements of opposition filed under § 37-92-302 to a water referee. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Statements opposing water right application may be based on abandonment theory. The statutory delegation in § 37-92-301 (2) of authority to water referees to make determinations of abandonment is merely a recognition that statements of opposition to an application may be based on the theory of abandonment as an affirmative defense to the application. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Water right definitionally does not include a right to use "designated ground water", as defined in § 37-90-103 (6). State ex rel. Danielson v. Vickroy, 627 P.2d 752 (Colo. 1981).

Easement to diversion point not required before conditional water right decreed absolute. No useful purpose would be served by requiring that a conditional water right cannot be decreed to be absolute until an easement to the point of diversion has been obtained by condemnation. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

Trespass onto property upon which diversion point located no defense to application. Under the circumstances of the case, trespass by a person with a conditional water right onto property upon which the point of diversion for the water right was located was not a defense to an application to make a conditional water right absolute. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

Landowners bound by conditional water decree where no protest filed, nor correction sought. Where the landowners of the property upon which the point of diversion for a conditional water right was located had notice of an application for the water right by reason of the publication of the summary in the resume, but they did not file a statement of opposition to the application, did not file a protest to the ruling of the referee, and did not seek correction of any substantive errors in the judgment and decree of the water court within three years after it was entered, and they took no action until the water had been applied to beneficial use and an application had been filed to make the conditional decree absolute, the time for challenging the conditional decree has expired and the landowners were bound by the decree. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980); United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

37-92-204. Water clerks - duties. (1) (a) There is established in each water division the office of water clerk, who shall be an associate clerk of the district court and shall be appointed in the same manner as clerks of the various district courts. The water clerk may be a part-time employee, or an existing clerk of the district court may be assigned additional duties as water clerk. Any reference in this article to a filing with the water clerk means a filing in the district court where such clerk serves.

(b) The water clerk shall maintain his office in the offices of the clerk of the district court of the county in each division as follows:

Division 1	Weld
Division 2	Pueblo
Division 3	Alamosa
Division 4	Montrose
Division 5	Garfield
Division 6	Routt
Division 7	La Plata

(2) The water clerk shall maintain the records of all proceedings related to appropriations, determinations of water rights and conditional water rights and the amount and priority thereof, changes of water rights, plans for augmentation, abandonment of water rights and conditional water rights, and the records of all proceedings of the water judge and of all rulings and actions of the referee required by this article to be filed with the water clerk. The clerks of the various district courts in each division, if requested by the water clerk of that division, shall transfer to the water clerk duplicate copies of any of the files, or parts thereof, of cases relating to water rights. The water clerk shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the water judge or the supreme court.

(3) Subject to the approval of the water judge, the water clerk in each division shall employ such assistants and deputies as may be necessary for him to carry out his duties. The water clerk, assistants, and deputies shall execute such oath of office and such bond as may be prescribed by the supreme court.

(4) The expense of the office and staff of the water clerk shall be provided for out of state funds appropriated to the supreme court, and each county in which a water clerk's office is located shall be reimbursed for the cost thereof to the county.

PART 3

DETERMINATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF WATER RIGHTS

Cross references: For the appointments and functions of water division engineers, see § 37-92-202.

37-92-301. Administration and distribution of waters. (1) The state engineer shall be responsible for the administration and distribution of the waters of the state, and, in each division, such administration and distribution shall be accomplished through the offices of the division engineer as specified in this article.

(2) In accordance with procedures specified in this article, the referee in each division shall in the first instance have the authority and duty to rule upon determinations of water rights and conditional water rights and the amount and priority thereof, including a determination that a conditional water right has become a water right by reason of completion of the appropriation, determinations with respect to changes of water rights, plans for augmentation, approvals of reasonable diligence in the development of appropriations under conditional water rights, and determinations of abandonment of a water rights or a conditional water rights; and he may include in any ruling for a determination of water right or conditional water right any use or combination of uses, any diversion or combination of points or methods of diversion, and any place or alternate places of storage and may approve any change of water right as defined in this article.

(3) In the distribution of water, the division engineer in each division and the state engineer shall be governed by the priorities for water rights and conditional water rights established by adjudication decrees entered in proceedings concluded or pending on June 7, 1969, and by the priorities for water rights and conditional water rights determined pursuant to the provisions of this article. All such priorities shall take precedence in their appropriate order over other diversions of waters of the state. Subject to section 37-92-502 (2), in determining and administering the use of water, judicial and administrative officers shall be governed by the following:

(a) In every case in which the owner of an appropriative right to divert water supplies his water needs by the use of a well, the water diverted by that well may be charged to its own appropriation; or it may be used to divert water under the provisions set forth in paragraph (b) of this subsection (3). This statutory statement is intended as a legislative acknowledgment of the long-held practice in Colorado under which various water rights may be carried through the same physical structure.

(b) In any case in which the owner of an appropriative right to divert water at the surface of a stream or to have water so diverted delivered for his use or benefit has a well so situated as to draw water from the same stream system, that owner may secure the right to have such well, or more than one if he has more than one such well, made an alternate point of diversion to said surface right by procedures provided in this article for securing alternate points of diversion.

(c) Until July 1, 1972, all diversions by well to supply a water use for which there is a surface decree may be charged against and be considered as part of the exercise of said surface decree even if the owner has not secured the right to an alternate point of diversion at the well, but nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent regulation of the well in accordance with law and within the system of priorities established for regulation of diversions of water in Colorado.

(d) In authorizing alternate points of diversion for wells, the widest possible discretion to permit the use of wells shall prevail. In administering the waters of a watercourse, the withdrawal of water which will lower the water table shall be permitted but not to such a degree as will prevent the water source to be recharged or replenished under all predictable circumstances to the extent necessary to prevent injury to senior appropriators in the order of their priorities, and with due regard for daily, seasonal, and longer demands on the water supply.

(4) (a) (I) In every sixth calendar year after the calendar year in which a water right is conditionally decreed, or in which a finding of reasonable diligence has been decreed, the owner or user thereof, if such owner or user desires to maintain the same, shall file an application for a finding of reasonable diligence, or said conditional water right shall be considered abandoned.

(II) If a conditional underground water right requires construction of a well, the expiration of the permit issued for the construction of such well by the state engineer pursuant to section 37-90-137 (1) shall not be the sole basis for a determination of abandonment pursuant to subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a).

(III) The judgment and decree of the court shall specify the month and calendar year in which a subsequent application for a finding of reasonable diligence shall be filed with the water clerk pursuant to section 37-92-302 (1). A subsequent application shall be filed during the same month as the previous decree was entered every six years after such entry of the decree until the right is made absolute or otherwise disposed of.

(IV) The provisions of this paragraph (a) shall supersede any contrary provision or requirement of a previous conditional decree or determination of reasonable diligence.

(b) The measure of reasonable diligence is the steady application of effort to complete the appropriation in a reasonably expedient and efficient manner under all the facts and circumstances. When a project or integrated system is comprised of several features, work on one feature of the project or system shall be considered in finding that reasonable diligence has been shown in the development of water rights for all features of the entire project or system.

(c) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (b) of this subsection (4), neither current economic conditions beyond the control of the applicant which adversely affect the feasibility of perfecting a conditional water right or the proposed use of water from a conditional water right nor the fact that one or more governmental permits or approvals have not been obtained shall be considered sufficient to deny a diligence application, so long as other facts and circumstances which show diligence are present.

(5) In all proceedings for a change of water right and for approval of reasonable diligence with respect to a conditional water right, it is appropriate for the referee and the courts to consider abandonment of all or any part of such water right or conditional water right; except that no conditional underground water right requiring the construction of a well shall be declared abandoned pursuant to this subsection (5) solely upon the ground that the permit issued for the construction of such well by the state engineer pursuant to section 37-90-137 (1) has expired.

The state engineer does not have statutory authority to place and dig any wells. Kuiper v.

Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

State engineer's authority to apply compact tributary rule. A compact requiring administration of the Rio Grande mainstem and Conejos river according to delivery schedules that did not include the contributions of three creeks as significant to the delivery obligation did away with the state engineer's authority to apply the tributary rule of the compact to the three creeks. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Stream administration. Streams independently appropriated remain independent under the doctrine of prior appropriation unless the water of those streams becomes subject to equitable apportionment by compact, in which case the streams must be administered as mandated by the compact or statutory provisions for priority administration of water rights. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Water rights governed by water deed. Where a landowner's rights were determined by the terms of a water deed through and on which his claim for water is based, he had a right to use water at such times, manner, and place as is provided in the water deed, and his rights were governed by the water deed and not by § 37-92-305 (3). Merrick v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 621 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1981).

Administration of water rights is accomplished pursuant to water court decrees, not stipulations among the parties. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Bar Forty Seven Co., 195 Colo. 478, 579 P.2d 636 (1978).

Right to change point of diversion is limited in quantity by historical use. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Diversions made pursuant to water right considered historical use where not ordered discontinued. Where the water commissioner was aware of the landowners' diversions of water and had never ordered them to be discontinued or limited the diversions made pursuant to a water right, though not in priority, such diversions could be considered as establishing an historical use for the purpose of the change of water right. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Out-of-priority undetected diversions made by appropriator's predecessor in interest should not be considered in establishment of historical use of water right. Pueblo West Metro. Dist. v. S.E. Colo. Water Cons. Dist., 717 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1986).

Automatic cessation of diversions by junior appropriator not contemplated. Sections 37-92-501 and 37-92-502 do not contemplate automatic cessation of diversions by a junior appropriator in response to a river call. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Division engineer must evaluate each junior appropriator's diversion to determine material injury caused. The statutory plan in §§ 37-92-501 and 37-92-502 contemplates that the division engineer will evaluate each junior appropriator's diversion to determine whether it is causing material injury to water rights having senior priorities before ordering the discontinuance of the diversion by the junior appropriator. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Statements opposing water right application may be based on abandonment theory. The statutory delegation in subsection (2) of authority to water referees to make determinations of abandonment is merely a recognition that statements of opposition to an application may be based on the theory of abandonment as an affirmative defense to the application. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Different tests for abandonment of conditional and absolute water rights. The general assembly clearly intended different tests to be applied in determining when a conditional water right is abandoned and when an absolute water right is abandoned. The difference is the element of intent, which must be shown before an abandonment of an absolute water right can be decreed, but which is not necessary in establishing the abandonment of a conditional water right. The test applicable to determining whether a conditional water right has been abandoned is whether there has been a "failure to develop with reasonable diligence". Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980).

Every six years after the issuance of a conditional water right decree, the owner or user must obtain, from the water court, a finding of reasonable diligence in the development of the proposed appropriation or the conditional water right will be considered abandoned. City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

Purpose of subsection (4) is to prevent the accumulation of conditional water rights without diligent efforts to complete the projects to the detriment of those needing and seeking to make immediate beneficial use of the same water. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 640 P.2d 1139 (Colo. 1982); Trans-County Water v. Central Colo. Water Conservancy District, 727 P.2d 60 (Colo. 1986); City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

Conditional water rights may be lost by failure to timely file. The general assembly demonstrated in this section that it intends that conditional water rights could be lost because of failure to timely file. Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980); In re Simineo v. Kelling, 199 Colo. 225, 607 P.2d 1289 (1980); Municipal Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986); Purgatoire River Water Conservancy v. Witte, 859 P.2d 825 (Colo. 1993).

A conditional water right may not be perfected and may be terminated for lack of diligence or by abandonment. Matter of Bd. of County Comm'rs, 891 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1995).

Subsection (4) can be considered as a statute of limitations, and a failure to file the necessary application within the period of limitation mandates cancellation of the conditional water right. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 695 P.2d 1136 (Colo. 1985); Fort Lyon Canal v. Purgatoire River, 818 P.2d 747 (Colo. 1991).

Under the 1990 amendments to subsection (4), the controlling date for the six-year filing period for reasonable diligence reports is the date on which the last finding of reasonable diligence was made. Darby v. All J Land and Rental Co., 821 P.2d 297 (Colo. 1991).

Water court erred in applying the 1990 statute to its diligence determination where general assembly did not express any intention that the new standards apply to diligence determinations initiated prior to the 1990 statute's effective date. Upper Gunnison River v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 841 P.2d 1061 (Colo. 1992).

Failure to file due diligence application pursuant to subsection (4) after receiving notice that failure to file would result in cancellation or expiration of conditional water right constitutes abandonment of such right. Bar 70 Enterprises, Inc. v. Highland Ditch Ass'n, 694 P.2d 1253 (Colo. 1985); Municipal Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

But failure to file a timely due diligence application pursuant to subsection (4) of this section does not result in the cancellation of a conditional water right if the water court does not provide notice of cancellation to the owner pursuant to § 37-92-305 (7). Double RL Co. v. Telluray Ranch Props., 54 P.3d 908 (Colo. 2002).

Failure to obtain quadrennial finding of reasonable diligence in the development of proposed appropriation results in abandonment and terminates a conditional water right. Application of Talco, Ltd., 769 P.2d 468 (Colo. 1989).

A conditional decree is a vested property right, subject to forfeiture if the holder fails to pursue his conditional water rights with reasonable diligence. Mooney v. Kuiper, 194 Colo. 477, 573 P.2d 538 (1978); Trans-County Water v. Central Colo. Water Conservancy District, 727 P.2d 60 (Colo. 1986); Application of Talco, Ltd., 769 P.2d 468 (Colo. 1989).

Diligence determination made only on case-by-case basis. A judicial determination of diligence can only be made on a case-by-case basis after considering all of the facts and circumstances relating to the development of each particular project. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 640 P.2d 1139 (Colo. 1982); Municipal Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986); Trans-County Water v. Central Colo. Water Conservancy District, 727 P.2d 60 (Colo. 1986); Application of Talco, Ltd., 769 P.2d 468 (Colo. 1989); Northern Colo. Water v. Three Peaks Water, 859 P.2d 836 (Colo. 1993); City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

Factors considered in diligence determination. A court in making a diligence determination must look at all factors which can be considered as important in determining whether an appropriator is satisfying the terms of a conditional water decree by developing it for a beneficial use in the most expedient and efficient fashion possible under the circumstances. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 640 P.2d 1139 (Colo. 1982); Municipal Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

To obtain a finding of reasonable diligence, the holder of the right must prove continuous, project-specific effort directed toward the development of the conditional right commensurate with his capabilities, as well as evidence of reasonable progress in the development of the conditional appropriation in the most expedient and efficient manner. Trans-County Water v. Central Colo. Water Conservancy District, 727 P.2d 60 (Colo. 1986).

Consideration by the court to determine a finding of due diligence include, but are not necessarily limited to: (1) Economic feasibility; (2) status of requisite permit applications and other required governmental approvals; (3) expenditures made to develop the appropriation; (4) ongoing conduct of engineering and environmental studies; (5) design and construction of facilities; and (6) nature and extent of land holdings and contracts demonstrating the water demand and beneficial uses which the conditional right is to serve when perfected. Dallas Creek Water Co. v. Huey, 933 P.2d 27 (Colo. 1997); City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

Under subsection (4)(c), water project's current economic unfeasibility and the diligence applicant's consequent decision to not build project facilities during the diligence period do not justify denial of a finding of reasonable diligence, where water court's findings of other factors relevant to diligence are supported by competent evidence. Municipal Subdistrict v. Chevron Shale Oil Co., 986 P.2d 918 (Colo. 1999).

Party seeking to establish reasonable diligence with respect to a conditional water right does not have the burden of proof regarding the economic feasibility of a particular project; rather, such economic feasibility is one factor to be considered in a finding of reasonable diligence. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Blue River Irr., 782 P.2d 792 (Colo. 1989).

If no other facts and circumstances that show diligence are present, the lack of governmental approvals and permits supports the water court's determination that the applicant failed to satisfy the can and will test, and a final denial of such approvals or permits is not required. Natural Energy Res. Co. v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 142 P.3d 1265 (Colo. 2006).

The existence of current economic factors beyond a diligence applicant's control that made a water project infeasible does not preclude a finding of diligence. Municipal Subdist., Northern Colo. Water Conservancy District v. OXY USA, Inc., 990 P.2d 701 (Colo. 1999).

Work performed on a water project that was not part of a common system with the rights at issue can be considered in determining diligence if the work is complementary to the rights at issue. Municipal Subdist., N. Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Getty Oil Exploration Co., 997 P.2d 557 (Colo. 2000).

Nonproject efforts insufficient for finding of reasonable diligence. Nonproject-related efforts and activities to protect or promote the future development of a conditional water right, standing alone, will not be sufficient to support a finding of reasonable diligence. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 640 P.2d 1139 (Colo. 1982); Application of Talco, Ltd., 769 P.2d 468 (Colo. 1989).

Finding of reasonable diligence equal to development with reasonable diligence. In considering subsection (4) in juxtaposition with § 37-92-103(1), it is evident that the general assembly was drawing a clear connecting line between "failure to develop with reasonable diligence" and the requirement that the owner or user of a conditional water right obtain a finding of reasonable diligence. In effect, the general assembly equated a failure to obtain a finding of reasonable diligence with a failure to develop with reasonable diligence. Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980).

Test well, which diverted underground waters in violation of court order granting conditional water right, was not sufficiently related to original appropriation of conditional water right holder as to constitute reasonable diligence in the development of the conditional water right. Application of Talco, Ltd., 769 P.2d 468 (Colo. 1989).

Third parties are entitled to notice and hearing in a change of water right proceeding under this section. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981).

Applied in Purgatoire River Water Conservancy Dist. v. Kuiper, 197 Colo. 200, 593 P.2d 333 (1979); Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981); Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 642 P.2d 510 (Colo. 1982); United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

II. FEDERAL RESERVED WATER RIGHTS.

Law reviews. For note, "Adjudication of Federal Reserved Water Rights", see 42 U. Colo. L. Rev. 161 (1970). For article, "Adjudication of Indian and Federal Water Rights in the Federal Courts", see 46 U. Colo. L. Rev. 555 (1974-75). For comment on determining the priority of federal reserved rights relative to the water rights of state appropriators, see 48 U. Colo. L. Rev. 547 (1977).

Federal reserved water rights. The United States possesses reserved rights for its federal reservations in Colorado in waters unappropriated upon the date of reservation of the federal lands from the public domain, and in the amount necessary to achieve the primary purposes of the reservations. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Reserved rights to be determined by Colorado law. Colorado law governing the determination of water rights is properly applied as the rule of decision by which the courts will determine the contours of the reserved rights asserted by the United States. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Seniority of federal reserved rights. The federal government's position is similar to the holder of a conditional senior water right who can step ahead of junior appropriators causing a diminution of the amount of water available for diversion. Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

Immunity from nonuse requirement. Federal reserved water rights are immune from Colorado's nonuse requirement to the extent necessary to fulfill the purposes of the reservation. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Federal right is outside of state appropriation system. Once the federal right has been quantified, that amount is then outside the state appropriation system. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Federal reserved water rights subject to state administration. Federal reserved water rights ultimately adjudicated to the United States are subject to administration by the state engineer. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

For extent of federal reserved water rights on different categories of public lands, see United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

For effect of federal reserved water rights, see Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

37-92-302. Applications for water rights or changes of such rights - plans for augmentation. (1) (a) Any person who desires a determination of a water right or a conditional water right and the amount and priority thereof, including a determination that a conditional water right has become a water right by reason of the completion of the appropriation, a determination with respect to a change of a water right, approval of a plan for augmentation, finding of reasonable diligence, approval of a proposed or existing exchange of water under section 37-80-120 or 37-83-104, or approval to use water outside the state pursuant to section 37-81-101 shall file with the water clerk a verified application setting forth facts supporting the ruling sought, a copy of which shall be sent by the water clerk to the state engineer and the division engineer. The term "determination of a water right or conditional water right" includes any plan or change in plan under the provisions of section 37-45-118 (1) (b) (II) that is or has been incorporated into a decree.

(b) Any person, including the state engineer, who wishes to oppose the application may file with the water clerk a verified statement of opposition setting forth facts as to why the application should not be granted or why it should be granted only in part or on certain conditions. The statement of opposition may be filed on behalf of all owners of water rights who, by affixing their signatures to the statement of opposition, in person or by attorney, consent to being included in the statement and who may be detrimentally affected by granting of the application. The water clerk shall send a copy of the statement of opposition to the state engineer and the division engineer.

(c) Such statement of opposition must be filed by the last day of the second month following the month in which the application is filed.

(d) (I) The fee for filing an application, complaint, petition, or any other pleading initiating a water matter shall be the same as that for filing a civil complaint in district court, as provided in section 13-32-101, C.R.S.; except that, for any application seeking a determination of a change of water right or approval of a plan for augmentation, the filing fee shall be twice as much. For filing a statement of opposition, the fee shall be the same as that for filing an answer to a civil action in district court. A tax of one dollar must be included with every application, pursuant to section 2-5-119, C.R.S. No fee or tax shall be assessed to the state of Colorado or any agency of its executive department under this subsection (1) or subsection (3) of this section, but no other person or entity shall be exempt from such fee or tax.

(II) All fees collected under this paragraph (d) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and be divided as provided in section 13-32-101, C.R.S.

(2) (a) The water judges of the various divisions shall jointly prepare and supply to the water clerks standard forms which shall be used for such applications and statements of opposition. These forms shall designate the information to be supplied and may be modified from time to time. Supplemental material may be submitted with any form. In the case of applications for a determination of a water right or a conditional water right, the forms shall require, among other things, a legal description of the diversion or proposed diversion, a description of the source of the water, the date of the initiation of the appropriation or proposed appropriation, the amount of water claimed, and the use or proposed use of the water. In the case of applications for approval of a change of water right or plan for augmentation, the forms shall require a complete statement of such change or plan, including a description of all water rights to be established or changed by the plan, a map showing the approximate location of historic use of the rights, and records or summaries of records of actual diversions of each right the applicant intends to rely on to the extent such records exist. In the case of applications that will require construction of a well, other than applications for determinations of rights to groundwater from wells described in section 37-90-137 (4), no application shall be heard on its merits by the referee or water judge until a written consultation report, as required by subsection (4) of this section, has been submitted and considered. The consultation report shall be submitted within four months after the filing of the application and shall include findings as to whether the construction and use of any well proposed in the application will injuriously affect the owner of, or persons entitled to use, water under a vested water right or decreed conditional water right. In the case of applications for determinations of rights to groundwater from wells described in section 37-90-137 (4), the application shall be supplemented by evidence that the state engineer has issued or failed to issue, within four months of the filing of the application in water court, a determination as to the facts of such application. Such state engineer's determination shall be made by the state engineer upon receipt from the water clerk of a copy of the application, and no separate filing or docketing with the state engineer shall be required.

(b) The application shall be supplemented by evidence that the applicant has, within fourteen days after filing the application, given notice of the application by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to:

(I) In the case of applications for determinations of rights to groundwater from wells described in section 37-90-137 (4), every record owner of the overlying land and to every person who has a lien or mortgage on, or deed of trust to, the overlying land recorded in the county in which the overlying land is located, and, for purposes of such notice, the term "person" shall have the same meaning as is set forth in section 37-90-137 (4) (b.5); and

(II) The owner of the land upon which any new diversion or storage structure or modification to any existing diversion or storage structure or existing storage pool is or will be constructed or upon which water is or will be stored. In determining the owner of potentially affected land for purposes of such notice, the applicant may rely upon the real estate records of the county assessor for the county or counties in which the land is located.

(c) The provisions of paragraph (b) of this subsection (2) do not apply to political subdivisions of the state of Colorado, special districts, municipalities, or quasi-municipal districts that have obtained consent to withdraw groundwater pursuant to section 37-90-137 (8) or by deed, assignment, or other written evidence of consent where the application concerns only such groundwater and, at the time of application, the overlying land is within the water service area of such entity.

(3) (a) Not later than the fifteenth day of each month, the water clerk shall prepare a resume of all applications in the water division which have been filed in his office during the preceding month. The resume shall give the name and address of the applicant, a description of the water right or conditional water right involved, and a description of the ruling sought. The resume may be provided by the applicant at the time of filing the application or at the time of any republication pursuant to paragraph (b) of this subsection (3), or, if no resume is provided, the water clerk shall prepare the resume for publication. The water clerk shall promptly submit to each applicant a bill for costs incurred by the water court in publishing the resume of the application. No ruling or decree shall be entered prior to payment of the charges.

(b) Not later than the end of such month, the water clerk shall cause such publication to be made of each resume or portion thereof in a newspaper or newspapers as is necessary to obtain general circulation once in every county affected, as determined by the water judge. If, at the request of or as the result of amendments made by an applicant, the resume of an application is republished, the applicant shall pay the cost of such republication. A newspaper in which the resume is published or republished shall directly bill the applicant rather than the water clerk for the costs of publication.

(c) (I) (A) to (C) Repealed.

(D) On and after January 1, 2006, not later than the end of each month, the water clerk shall post a copy of the resume on the water court's web site. Not later than the end of such month, the referee or the water clerk shall send a copy of such resume by mail or electronic mail to any person who the referee has reason to believe would be affected. The water clerk shall notify each person who has requested a copy of the resume by submitting his or her name and electronic mail address to the water clerk of the availability of the resume on such web site. The water clerk shall maintain an electronic mailing list of such names and addresses, and a person desiring to have his or her name and address retained on the list shall resubmit the information by January 5. A person who has not so resubmitted the information shall not be retained on the list, but such person may submit his or her name and electronic mail address at any time thereafter for inclusion on the list subject to the requirements of this section. In order to obtain an electronic mail notification of the availability of the resume for a particular month, a person's name and address shall be received not later than the fifth day of the month of publication of the resume. A copy of the resume shall be furnished without charge to the state engineer and the appropriate division engineer.

(E) The water clerk shall provide a paper copy of the resume to a person upon payment of the fee required in section 13-32-104 (1) (a), C.R.S.

(II) Repealed.

(d) All publications provided for in paragraph (b) of this subsection (3) may be augmented, in the discretion of the water judge, by notices broadcast over any or all standard radio, FM radio, TV stations, and cable television. Such broadcast notices shall make reference to locations or publications wherein details of the subject matter of the notices are located.

(3.5) In addition to the resume notice required to be given by subsection (3) of this section, any notice of an application for a change of irrigation water rights that constitutes a significant water development activity shall include evidence that the applicant has given notice of the contents of such application by mail within ten days after filing to the:

(a) Board of county commissioners of the county from which the water is being removed;

(b) Board of the school district that encompasses the land from which the water is being removed;

(c) Offices of every water conservancy and water conservation district from which the water is to be removed;

(d) Secretary of every ditch company whose water is involved in the significant water development activity; and

(e) Governing body of every city, city and county, and town that encompasses land from which the water is being removed.

(4) The referee, without conducting a formal hearing, shall make such investigations as are necessary to determine whether or not the statements in the application and statements of opposition are true and to become fully advised with respect to the subject matter of the applications and statements of opposition. The referee shall consult with the appropriate division engineer or the state engineer or both. The engineer consulted shall file a report in writing within thirty-five days, unless such time is extended by the referee, which original report shall be filed in the proceedings, and a copy shall be sent by the division engineer to the applicant or the applicant's attorney, who shall then send copies to all parties of record if they have not otherwise been served and so certify before any ruling shall be entered or become effective. A water judge who is acting as a referee in the water judge's division shall have the same authority as provided for the referee in this subsection (4). If the application is rereferred to the water judge by the referee prior to consultation, the division engineer shall file a written recommendation in the proceedings within thirty-five days of rereferral, unless such time is extended by the court, and shall send a copy thereof to the applicant or the applicant's attorney, who shall send copies to the other parties, if they have not otherwise been served, before any decree shall be entered or become effective. The water judge may request such written report from the state engineer if the water judge desires.

(5) Persons alone or in concert may initiate and implement plans for augmentation including water exchange projects. Water conservancy districts, irrigation districts, mutual or public ditch and reservoir companies, municipalities, or other entities which are governed by a board of directors or similar body may initiate and implement plans for augmentation for the benefit of all water users within their boundaries.

(6) The general assembly hereby recognizes the authority of the Colorado supreme court to adopt rules for filing and service of documents and other case management procedures in water court proceedings. Any such rules that are adopted shall supplement the procedures set forth in this section.

5, Colo. 1971) 401 U.S. 527, 91 S. Ct. 1003, the United States supreme court held that the United States had consented under federal statute, 43 U.S.C. sec. 666, to adjudication of its reserved rights in supplemental adjudication proceedings under former section 148-9-7, C.R.S. 1963, and in monthly proceedings under this section, both of which were held to be general adjudications within the meaning of the federal statute.

(2) Subsection (3)(c)(I)(C) provided for the repeal of subsections (3)(c)(I)(A), (3)(c)(I)(B), (3)(c)(I)(C), and (3)(c)(II), effective January 1, 2006. (See L. 2005, p. 121.)

(3) Section 173 of chapter 208, Session Laws of Colorado 2012, provides that the act amending the introductory portion to subsection (2)(b) and subsection (4) applies to specified time intervals. For more information, see page 896 of Session Laws of Colorado 2012.

Annotator's note. Since § 37-92-302 is similar to repealed CSA, C. 90, § 195, and laws antecedent thereto, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

The conditional versus the absolute status of a water right cannot provide a ground for distinguishing between rights that arise from the same intent and overt acts initiating an appropriation. An absolute water right is not a right separate and distinct from the conditional right from which it originates, rather, a conditional right matures into an absolute right. Purgatoire River Water Conservancy v. Witte, 859 P.2d 825 (Colo. 1993).

Water rights vest upon appropriation, not adjudication. Adjudication of water rights does not vest those rights, but rather establishes a priority date that can be enforced against other users. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Water rights are generally unenforceable within the priority administration system without an adjudication under the Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969. City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

A decree does not confer but rather confirms a pre-existing water right. City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

Owners of unadjudicated, exempt "602" wells have vested water rights and may assert injury to their water rights in water court once they have filed for adjudication of those rights. However, the priority of such a right is not enforceable until an application for adjudication has been filed. Once the exempt well owner files, he or she has a statutorily guaranteed expectation of the original priority date of the well regardless of the date of application. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Actual entry of a decree is not a condition precedent to an appearance by an exempt well owner in an augmentation proceeding. Once the exempt well owner has filed for adjudication, any uncertainty in the award of a priority date is statutorily resolved. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Findings by the state engineer were held not to be a condition precedent to a water court ruling in the context of an augmentation proceeding where objectors were not permitted to assert injury to their exempt wells. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

State engineer must take into account injury to all existing wells, whether exempt or nonexempt, in reviewing permit applications for nonexempt wells. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Out-of-priority diverters pursuant to an unadjudicated substitute supply plan do not have standing to assert the futility call or enlargement doctrines against a downstream decreed senior appropriator. Empire Lodge Homeowners' Ass'n v. Moyer, 39 P.3d 1139 (Colo. 2001).

Applied in Benson v. Burgess, 192 Colo. 556, 561 P.2d 11 (1977); Ground Water Comm'n v. Shanks, 658 P.2d 847 (Colo. 1983); Lionelle v. S. E. Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 676 P.2d 1162 (Colo. 1984); Great Western Sugar v. Jackson Lake Reservoir, 681 P.2d 484 (Colo. 1984).

II. APPLICATIONS.

A. Procedural Requirements.

The Water Right Determination and Administration Act creates two levels of adversary involvement in a water adjudication involving a proposed plan for augmentation or a change of water right: (1) Permission to file a statement of opposition; and (2) standing to assert injury. The first is available to "any person" and allows such person to participate to the extent of holding the applicant to a standard of "strict proof". The second, however, requires the objector to show that he or she has a legally protected interest in a vested water right or conditional decree. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

A homeowners association has standing to hold the applicant to a standard of strict proof because the association itself is a "person", its members have standing, the interests the association seeks to protect are germane to the association's purpose, and the litigation does not require the participation of the individual homeowners. Buffalo Park Dev. Co. v. Mtn. Mut. Reservoir Co., 195 P.3d 674 (Colo. 2008).

C.R.C.P. 15 applies to proceedings under Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969. United States v. Bell, 724 P.2d 631 (Colo. 1986).

Traditional service of process not required. Proceedings commenced under subsection (1)(a) are not subject to the service of process requirements of C.R.C.P. 4, but rather are handled through the unique resume-notice provisions of subsection (3). Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980); Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987).

Claim under C.R.C.P. 19 not applicable. Shareholders of mutual ditch company in which division of wildlife owned water rights, having been given an opportunity to object and either actual or publication notice of the division's request for a change of storage rights and augmentation plan, were not indispensable parties to the water court action. S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co., 720 P.2d 133 (Colo. 1986).

Joinder under C.R.C.P. 20 and 21 is applicable when a non-party principle becomes liable for attorney fees due to its agent's frivolous claim. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005) (distinguishing S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Ft. Lyons Canal Co., 720 P.2d 133 (Colo. 1986)).

Publication and notice provisions applicable to decree modifications. The publication and notice provisions of this section are applicable to a request for modification of a decree involving a change of water right. Town of Breckenridge v. City & County of Denver, 620 P.2d 1048 (Colo. 1980).

Subsection (3)(a) does not expand types of applications that may be filed. The provisions of paragraph (a) of subsection (3), which direct the water clerk to include in the resume all applications filed under paragraph (a) of subsection (1), does not expand the types of applications that may be filed under the resume-notice procedures. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Under the plain meaning of this section, an application to determine whether previously decreed water rights included rights for year-round stockwatering and domestic use incidental to agricultural purposes is a "determination of a water right". Therefore, publication of resume notice was the proper means for the court to obtain jurisdiction, and the water court did not abuse its discretion in disallowing an untimely-filed statement of opposition and denying a motion to intervene, particularly when the moving party had actual notice of the application and the division engineer had already filed a report. Personal service was not required despite the moving party's argument that the application was for a declaratory judgment. S. Ute Indian Tribe v. King Consol. Ditch, 250 P.3d 1226 (Colo. 2011).

Lack of verification of an application is a technical defect in an application, and the statutory requirement of verification should not be strictly construed. The water court did not abuse its discretion in holding that a verification filed after the application was filed related back to the date of the original filing. S. Ute Indian Tribe v. King Consol. Ditch, 250 P.3d 1226 (Colo. 2011).

Where application erroneously failed to list adjoining landowner as the owner of the land upon which the water subject to the application was used, the water court abused its discretion in summarily dismissing a petition for reconsideration for failure to show excusable neglect. SL Group, LLC v. Go West Indus., Inc., 42 P.3d 637 (Colo. 2002).

Trial court's findings involving factual issues binding. Where application for finding of reasonable diligence concerning conditional water decree involves factual issues, it is fundamental that a trial court's findings are binding upon the appellate court and will not be overturned if the evidence is sufficient to sustain them. Orchard Mesa Irrigation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 182 Colo. 59, 511 P.2d 25 (1973).

Effect of abandonment on an applicant's ability to establish a new right does not differ depending on whether the abandoned right was conditional or absolute. An abandonment of a conditional right effectively augments the stream by making water available for appropriation in the same manner as abandonment of an absolute water right. Purgatoire River Water Conservancy v. Witte, 859 P.2d 825 (Colo. 1993).

Any person who has filed opposition to an application for adjudication of water rights has standing to challenge on appeal the adequacy of the published notice. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Resume not in substantial compliance with subsection (3)(a). Where resume did not mention the nontributary character of the water right, it did not substantially comply with the provision of subsection (3)(a). Stonewall Estates v. CF & I Steel Corp., 197 Colo. 255, 592 P.2d 1318 (1979).

Whether resume was sufficient notice is applied in Pueblo West Metro. Dist. v. South-eastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 689 P.2d 594 (Colo. 1984).

The resume notice procedures are calculated to alert all water users on the stream system whose rights may be affected by the application and to participate in the proceeding and to oppose the application. It is designed to put interested parties to the extent reasonably possible on "inquiry notice" of the nature, scope, and impact of the proposed diversion. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Inquiry notice requires sufficient facts to attract the attention of interested persons and prompt a reasonable person to inquire further. Once the applicant satisfies the initial burden of providing information that would alert a reasonable person to investigate claims further, the potential objector bears the burden of conducting a reasonably diligent inquiry and is charged with all notice that such an inquiry would produce. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Details such as identity of end user and place of use need not be included. In re Water Rights of Columbine Assocs., 993 P.2d 483 (Colo. 2000).

A description of the ruling sought and the conditional water right involved, as required under subsection (3)(a), are sufficient to put interested parties on inquiry notice of the nature, scope, and impact of the proposed diversion. In re Water Rights of Columbine Assocs., 993 P.2d 483 (Colo. 2000).

The potential objector must be viewed as a "reasonably prudent party" and cannot establish the lack of adequate notice if, on the basis of the published resume, the objector should have anticipated that the disputed rights might be at issue. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Inquiry notice evaluation requires consideration of the facts surrounding each individual application and resume. Here, Thornton's reference in its applications and resumes to use of its proposed exchanges and diversions "by storage" was sufficient to trigger an inquiry by objectors into the extent of the storage rights claimed by Thornton. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

A claim or issue adjudicated without proper notice can be collaterally attacked. A prior decree is not res judicata in regard to the issue of whether water beneath a subdivision is nontributary if there is a lack of resume notice. Chatfield East Well Co. v. Chatfield East Prop. Owners Ass'n, 956 P.2d 1260 (Colo. 1998).

Formerly, the statement of claim to be filed was somewhat similar to a pleading in other actions. It required the setting forth of the respective claims of the parties, and no evidence would be received upon behalf of any claimant until such statement had been filed. New Mercer Ditch Co. v. Armstrong, 21 Colo. 357, 40 P. 989 (1895); Fort Collins Milling & Elevator Co. v.

Larimer & Weld Irrigation Co., 61 Colo. 45, 156 P. 140 (1916); H. H. Ditch Co. v. Big Stick Ditch Co., 62 Colo. 313, 162 P. 149 (1916).

Objectors had standing to challenge application. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976); FWS Land and Cattle Co. v. State Div. of Wildlife, 795 P.2d 837 (Colo. 1990).

Under this section, only owners of a decreed water right have standing to obtain a change in such water right. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 838 P.2d 840 (Colo. 1992).

Applicant did not have standing to request a change in the water right although the owner of such right had agreed by contract not to oppose applicant's request. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Upper Gunnison River Water Conservancy Dist., 838 P.2d 840 (Colo. 1992).

Any person who seeks a determination of a conditional water right must file a verified application in accordance with this section showing a substantial probability that the water can and will be diverted, stored, or otherwise captured, possessed, and controlled and will be beneficially used and that the project can and will be completed with diligence and within a reasonable time. City of Lafayette v. New Anderson Ditch Co., 962 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1998).

B. Action by Water Referee.

Applications under section referred to water referee. The water judge must refer all applications and statements of opposition filed under this section to a water referee. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Authority of water referee is derivative from, and not greater than, authority of water judge. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Jurisdiction of court. Matters of jurisdiction and sufficiency of process are questions of law for the court based upon uncontested or properly determined jurisdictional facts. Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987).

It is axiomatic that a court must have jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter of the case if its judgment is to be valid. Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987).

To invoke the jurisdiction of a water court, a person seeking a determination of a water right must file an application with the water clerk setting forth facts supporting the ruling sought and a legal description of the diversion or proposed diversion, a description of the source of the water, the date of the initiation of the appropriation or proposed appropriation, the amount of water claimed, and the use or proposed use of the water. Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987).

Sufficiency of an application turns on the facts of each case and must be determined on an ad hoc basis in light of the circumstances and facts before the water court. Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981); Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservancy Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982).

Water judge determines applications expressly authorized to be filed. Under this article, the types of applications the water judge may determine under the resume-notice procedure of subsection (3) are those applications expressly authorized to be filed under subsection (1)(a). Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Proper venue for proceedings to change transmountain water rights is in the basin of use, not the basin of origin, therefore water court had jurisdiction to approve Thornton's application for a change in use of transmountain water. Once an application is filed, the responsibility for publishing notice shifts to the water court. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

C. Determination of Water Right.

In order to initiate an appropriation, there must be an intent and purpose by the appropriator actually to take the water and to put it to beneficial use. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

To initiate an appropriation, two elements — an intent and an act — must coexist. Colo. River Water Conservancy Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 642 P.2d 510 (Colo. 1982).

An appropriation is the intent to take accompanied by some open, physical demonstration of the intent, and for some valuable use. Central Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 189 Colo. 272, 539 P.2d 1270 (1975).

An applicant for a conditional water right must establish that he has taken the first step toward the appropriation of water; that is, he must show an intent to appropriate and some open, physical demonstration of that intent. Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981).

An appropriation must be made in connection with some land area. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Intent to appropriate ordinarily precedes an open, physical manifestation of this intent. Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981).

Surveys and filing of plats alone constitute no evidence of intent to appropriate water from a natural stream. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

Mere filing of the preliminary maps prepared by the bureau of reclamation does not suffice, without more, to complete the first step to constitute appropriation. Central Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 189 Colo. 272, 539 P.2d 1270 (1975).

Reports and studies made by the bureau of reclamation, where there is no privity between the bureau and the person seeking to base an appropriation on the bureau work, do not constitute a basis for such person's claim to a water right unless there has been an assignment or other conveyance of the bureau's rights to him. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Filing of map and statement does not establish appropriation. The filing of the map and statement of claim did not of itself establish an appropriation for water rights. Michel v. Front Range Land & Livestock Co., 200 Colo. 104, 612 P.2d 1128 (1980).

Map and statement filed with the state engineer are not incorporated by reference into the statement of claim and therefore could not satisfy the requirement that the applicant name the sources of water sought to be appropriated. City & County of Denver v. Vail Valley, 751 P.2d 68 (Colo. 1988) (statement of claim at issue was filed under the Adjudication Act of 1943 which was repealed in 1969).

Where water court's decree did not modify or impair an earlier federal district court's water rights decree, the water court had jurisdiction to issue a decree granting a city application for reservoir refill rights. Even though the federal district court retained exclusive continuing jurisdiction concerning the federal decree, the city was seeking a new water right not addressed by the federal court that was junior to all appropriations adjudicated in the federal decree. City of Grand Junction v. Denver, 960 P.2d 675 (Colo. 1998).

Priority measured from "first step" in appropriation. Although an appropriation is not complete until actual diversion and use, the right may relate back to a valid "first step", and the priority measured from that time. Central Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 189 Colo. 272, 539 P.2d 1270 (1975); In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

A valid "first step" is established when an intent to take water is formed, together with an open, overt action on the land giving notice of the intent to apply the water to a beneficial use. Central Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 189 Colo. 272, 539 P.2d 1270 (1975); In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre

Certainly the first step demanded is nothing short of an open and notorious physical demonstration, conclusively indicating a fixed purpose to diligently pursue and, within a reasonable time, ultimately acquire a right to the use of water, and as its primary function is to give notice to those subsequently desiring to initiate similar rights, it must necessarily be of such character that they may fairly be said to be thereby charged with at least such notice as would reasonably be calculated to put them on inquiry of the prospective extent of the proposed use and consequent demand upon the water supply involved. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

The "first step" consists of two prongs: The formation of an intent to appropriate a definite quantity of water for a beneficial use, and an overt manifestation of that intent through physical acts sufficient to constitute notice to third parties. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982).

The first prong of the first step, intent to take, was unquestionably satisfied by the filing of maps, which constituted prima facie evidence of an intent to take water. Central Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 189 Colo. 272, 539 P.2d 1270 (1975).

The filing of an application for adjudication of a water right may itself be evidence of an intent to appropriate. Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981).

Appellant may not claim, as a basis for his first step, work completed while an employee of the bureau of reclamation. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Whether a first step has been taken must turn on the facts of each case. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Sufficiency of the overt acts necessary for "first step" discussed in City and County of Denver v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 696 P.2d 730 (Colo. 1985).

Water is available for appropriation if the taking thereof does not cause injury. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

No one is entitled to have a priority adjudged for more water than he has actually appropriated, nor for more than he actually needs; priority of right is limited by each of these considerations. Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

It seems clear that the source of supply shall be determined, in fact, such a determination is an indispensable prerequisite to the determination of priorities, for the term "priority" connotes two appropriations from the same source of supply, and if a decree were not res judicata as to the source of supply of a ditch, neither could it be res judicata as to the priority of that ditch as related to other ditches drawing upon the same source of supply. In re Nix, 96 Colo. 540, 45 P.2d 176 (1935).

There are two classes of appropriations for irrigation, one for ditches diverting water to be used directly from the stream, and one for the storage of water to be used subsequently. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 27 P.2d 992 (1954).

The same irrigating ditch may have two or more priorities belonging to the same party, or to different parties. Thomas v. Guiraud, 6 Colo. 530 (1883); Rominger v. Squires, 9 Colo. 327, 12 P. 213 (1886); Fuller v. Swan River Placer Mining Co., 12 Colo. 12, 19 P. 836 (1888); Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Southworth, 13 Colo. 111, 21 P. 1028, 4 L.R.A. 767 (1889); Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893); Park v. Park, 45 Colo. 347, 101 P. 403 (1909).

An appropriation of water for irrigation purposes may be changed to a use for storage, but such change cannot be made to the detriment of other appropriators whose rights are subsequent to the appropriation for irrigation, but prior to the appropriation for storage. Further, when the water in the stream is needed by the subsequent appropriators, the diversion of the prior appropriator for storage purposes would be limited to what he was entitled to divert for irrigation purposes, both as to amount and time of diversion. The state general assembly has given statutory recognition of this rule by providing for such a change if no injury will result or if conditions can be imposed to prevent injury. Ackerman v. City of Walsenburg, 171 Colo. 304, 467 P.2d 267 (1970).

Notice requirement. The appropriator must provide interested persons with notice of such a character that they may fairly be said to be thereby charged with at least such notice as would reasonably be calculated to put them on inquiry of the prospective extent of the proposed use and consequent demand upon the water supply involved. Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987); State Eng'r v. Smith Cattle, Inc., 780 P.2d 546 (Colo. 1989); In re Water Rights of Columbine Assocs., 993 P.2d 483 (Colo. 2000).

A would-be appropriator need not determine the exact amount of water to be diverted at a precisely located point of diversion before that appropriator can form the necessary intent to appropriate or provide sufficient notice to others. Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987).

The determination must always be made on an ad hoc basis, taking into account whether the particular facts of each case satisfy the purposes underlying the requirements of the first step test. Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987).

Change of diversion point is water matter. Application for a change in point of diversion is a water matter. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Catlin Canal Co., 642 P.2d 501 (Colo. 1982).

A change in a water right includes a change in the point of diversion. Orr v. Arapahoe Water and Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Prior to the water court granting an application for a change in the point of diversion, the applicant must demonstrate that the proposed change will not injuriously affect the vested rights of other water users. Orr v. Arapahoe Water and Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

An appropriation consists of an actual diversion of water from a natural stream, followed within a reasonable time thereafter by an application thereof to some beneficial use. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

Water can be actually diverted only by taking it from the stream, and the amount so diverted is necessarily limited to the capacity of the ditch or tunnel through which diversion is made. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

Right to change point of diversion is limited in quantity by historical use. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981); Orr v. Arapahoe Water and Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Automatic cessation of diversions by junior appropriator not contemplated. Sections 37-92-501 and 37-92-502 do not contemplate automatic cessation of diversions by junior appropriator in response to a river call. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Division engineer evaluates each junior appropriator's diversion to determine material injury caused. The statutory plan in §§ 37-92-501 and 37-92-502 contemplates that the division engineer will evaluate each junior appropriator's diversion to determine whether it is causing material injury to water rights having senior priorities before ordering the discontinuance of the diversion by the junior appropriator. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Diversions made pursuant to water right considered historical use where not ordered discontinued. Where the water commissioner was aware of the landowners' diversions of water and had never ordered them to be discontinued or limited, the diversions made pursuant to a water right, though not in priority, could be considered as establishing an historical use for the purpose of the change of water right. South-eastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

An argument to the effect that water withdrawn must be replaced 100 % fell where senior users could show no injury by the diversion of water, even though the river involved was over-appropriated. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

For the doctrine of relation back to apply, there must have been on the part of claimant both an intention to appropriate the particular water and also an open physical demonstration of that intention to put the water to some valuable use. In re Burger v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Filing application to protect priority date while well application pending. In securing a determination of water rights in tributary ground water, although subsection (2) provides that the water court shall not enter a decision on an application for determination of a water right requiring the construction of a well until the claimant supplements the application with a permit to construct a well, issued by the state engineer under § 37-90-137, or evidence of its denial or of failure of the state engineer to grant or deny the permit within six months, this section does not require the applicant to obtain the well permit prior to filing an application in water court. The claimant may file in the water court to protect his priority date while an application to construct a well is pending before the state engineer. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L.Ed.2d 474 (1984).

An appropriator has a reasonable time in which to effect his originally intended use as well as to complete his originally intended means of diversion. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

Nontributary ground water rights excluded. The water right determination proceedings authorized by subsection (1)(a) do not extend to rights in nontributary ground water. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation Dist., 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L.Ed.2d 474 (1984) (decided prior to 1983 amendment).

A motion to enjoin diversions pursuant to operation of a temporary substitute water supply plan is outside of the scope of an application for determination of a water right; therefore, the water court was correct in denying the motion. Groundwater Appropriators of the S. Platte River Basin, Inc. v. City of Boulder, 73 P.3d 22 (Colo. 2003).

An inverse condemnation action based on the state engineer's well curtailment order is a water matter because a court must first determine whether the well owner had a right to use the wells without interference from the state, and the determination of the right to use water is, quintessentially, a water matter. Kobobel v. State, 249 P.3d 1127 (Colo. 2011).

D. Determination of Conditional Water Right.

Application for a conditional water right involves a "water matter" over which the water court has exclusive jurisdiction. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

A conditional water decree requires an intent to appropriate and an overt, physical act constituting the first step toward diversion and application to a beneficial use. Municipal Sub-district v. Rifle Ski. Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

To prove due diligence to utilize water granted by conditional water decree, there must be shown an intention to use the water, coupled with concrete action amounting to diligent efforts to finalize the intended appropriation. Orchard Mesa Irrigation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 182 Colo. 59, 511 P.2d 25 (1973).

Showing necessary to substantiate need for claimed water. A claimant of a conditional water right must substantiate a need for the claimed water by showing, at the least, a contractual or an agency relationship with those who are to put the water to a beneficial use. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982).

Limited relevance of evidentiary matters. In an application for a conditional water right, evidentiary matters have relevance only as they relate to whether the applicant has taken a first step toward appropriation of water. Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981).

Speculative future beneficial use insufficient basis for conditional decree. Conditional decrees will not be granted to those who cannot show more than a speculative or conjectural future beneficial use. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982).

Hope to use water coupled with inaction insufficient. Support of a claim of due diligence to utilize water granted by conditional water decree by the applicant must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence, and a record which shows only a hope someday to use the water, but with admitted prior years of inaction, will not support the claim. Orchard Mesa Irri- gation Dist. v. City & County of Denver, 182 Colo. 59, 511 P.2d 25 (1973).

Landowners bound by conditional water decree where no protest filed, nor correction sought. Where the landowners of property upon which the point of diversion for a conditional water right was located had notice of an application for the water right by reason of the publication of the summary in the resume, but they did not file a statement of opposition to the application, did not file a protest to the ruling of the referee, and did not seek correction of any substantive errors in the judgment and decree of the water court within three years after it was entered, and they took no action until the water had been applied to beneficial use and an application had been filed to make the conditional decree absolute, the time for challenging the conditional decree has expired and the landowners were bound by the decree. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

Award of right for already existing wells. A decree for a conditional water right may be awarded for wells already in existence, even though the priority date attached to the conditional water right cannot be set earlier than the date on which the applicant formed the actual intent to appropriate. Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981).

Unexpired permit to drill well for tributary ground water is a prerequisite to a hearing on the merits of an application for a conditional water right under the Water Right Determination and Administration Act of 1969. Kenneth M. Good Irrevocable Trust v. Bell, 759 P.2d 48 (Colo. 1988).

Easement to diversion point not required before conditional water right decreed absolute. No useful purpose would be served by requiring that a conditional water right cannot be decreed to be absolute until an easement to the point of diversion has been obtained by condemnation. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

Trespass onto property upon which diversion point located no defense to application. Under the circumstances of the case, trespass by a person with a conditional water right onto property upon which the point of diversion for the water right was located was not a defense to an application to make a conditional water right absolute. Bubb v. Christensen, 200 Colo. 21, 610 P.2d 1343 (1980).

An application for conditional appropriate rights of exchange should be treated as an application for a conditional water right, rather than as a proposed augmentation plan. Centennial Water & Sanitation Dist. v. City & County of Broomfield, 256 P.3d 677 (Colo. 2011).

E. Determination of Change of Water Right.

Water right is a legal right to use water; often, it is characterized as a property right. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Change of water rights requires judicial approval. Changes of water rights cannot be effected in any manner other than through judicial approval, following statutorily authorized procedures. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Catlin Canal Co., 642 P.2d 501 (Colo. 1982).

Diverting water from a natural stream at a point other than one decreed to an existing water right constitutes an out-of-priority diversion, justifying an order to cease further diversion in the absence of a change of water rights for the protection of existing adjudicated rights and to prevent enlargement of the water right. Trail's End Ranch, L.L.C. v. Colo. Div. of Water Res., 91 P.3d 1058 (Colo. 2004).

The owner of a water right may apply to the water court for a determination with respect to a change of the water right. Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Appropriate court for determining change of use of water right. Where the proposed change of use of a water right does not in any respect affect water in the division of diversion, the appropriate court for the determination of the requested change is the water court in the division of use. State Dept. of Natural Res. v. Ogburn, 194 Colo. 60, 570 P.2d 4 (1977).

Application for alternate places for storage for a previously decreed conditional right to store a certain amount of water constitutes a change of water right. City of Thornton v. Clear Creek Water Users Alliance, 859 P.2d 1348 (Colo. 1993).

F. Approval of Plan for Augmentation.

Action by state engineer not condition precedent to approval of plan of augmentation. This section does not require action by the state engineer upon application for well permit as a condition precedent to consideration and approval of a plan for augmentation. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

The purpose and intent of this section is to permit the court first to approve or disapprove a plan for augmentation, and if it approves of the plan, let the issuance of well permits follow. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

The state engineer was not required to fix an appropriation date of each well for which a permit is issued where one of the fundamentals of the plan for augmentation was that there would be equal priorities between well owners. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier

View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

An acceptable plan for augmentation does not require the addition of new water into the water system, such as the introduction of transmountain diverted water into the system. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

The fact that rivers involved are over-appropriated, rather than being an argument against the plans for augmentation, is the very reason for the valid exercise of ingenuity of persons seeking to maximize the use of water, whether they are present or future owners of land and wells, developers, or as characterized by the water court here, promoters, speculators, or nonusers. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

The burden is upon the proponent of a proposed plan for augmentation to prove the amount of return flow from in-house use of water withdrawn from wells on the property. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

All wells involved in a plan for augmentation must be treated as if they were nonexempt. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

Under a plan for augmentation, wells, which might be exempt otherwise, must be treated as nonexempt. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Under the act, an exempt well, standing alone, was and is free from regulation by either a water court or the state engineer. When, however, one studies this section, relating to a plan for augmentation, the conclusion is inescapable that all wells involved in a plan for augmentation must be treated as if they were nonexempt. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Of necessity, the issuance of well permits, the adjudication of a plan for augmentation involving wells, and the enforcement of that plan and regulations involving wells must relate to wells which are subject to administration. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Plan of augmentation held valid. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Res judicata bars consideration of a claim where the subject matter of historical usage under the certain water rights had been litigated and the claimant could have raised its claim at that time. Concerning Application for Water Rights, 938 P. 2d 515 (Colo. 1997).

G. Determination of Abandonment.

Publication and notice provisions not applicable to abandonment determination. Paragraph (a) of subsection (1) excludes applications for determination of abandonment from the resume-notice provisions of subsection (3). Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Determination of abandonment not permitted under subsection (3). This article does not permit the water judge to make a determination of abandonment under subsection (1)(a), when the application has been filed in accordance only with the resume-notice procedures outlined in subsection (3). Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Exclusion of abandonment determination from subsection (3) procedures purposeful decision. The exclusion of applications for the determination of abandonment from the resume-notice procedure of subsection (3) was a purposeful legislative decision. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Exclusion of abandonment determination reasonable to require applicant to utilize notice procedures likely to apprise owners. Where an applicant for a determination of abandonment takes under the same source as the putative abandoned interest, or where the applicant's position in relation to unknown owners or their successors in interest is such that the applicant's water right will be enhanced by the decree, it is reasonable to require that the applicant utilize notice procedures more likely to apprise the water right owners or their successors in interest of the pending action than the resume-notice provisions of subsection (3). Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Applicant may apply for abandonment determination under pertinent provisions of C.R.C.P. 4 and 19. When an application for a determination of abandonment is filed, the water judge may require the applicant to make reasonable efforts to determine the identity and location of the owner or the successor in interest, and, if those efforts are successful, to proceed under the pertinent provisions of C.R.C.P. 4 and 19. But if the efforts to determine the identity and location of the owner or the successor in interest are unsuccessful, then the applicant may still proceed under the service by publication provision of C.R.C.P. 4(h). Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Statements opposing water right application may be based on abandonment theory. The statutory delegation in § 37-92-301 (2) of authority to water referees to make determinations of abandonment is merely a recognition that statements of opposition to an application may be based on the theory of abandonment as an affirmative defense to the application. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

Decree of abandonment terminates the water right and divests the owner of any interest in it, thereby rendering the water once again subject to appropriation by the public under § 5 of art. XVI, Colo. Const. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

A subsequent owner's removal of water rights from the abandonment list and inclusion of water right in warranty deeds does not rebut the presumption of the previous owner's intent to abandon, which arose when the water rights were not used and the ditches for the water rights were unusable for at least 22 years. Haystack Ranch, LLC v. Fazzio, 997 P.2d 548 (Colo. 2000).

III. FEDERAL RESERVED WATER RIGHTS.

Federal reserved water rights. The United States possesses reserved rights for its federal reservations in Colorado in waters unappropriated upon the date of reservation of the federal lands from the public domain, and in the amount necessary to achieve the primary purposes of the reservations. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982); Park Center Water Dist. v. United States, 781 P.2d 546 (Colo. 1989).

Reserved rights determined by Colorado law. Colorado law governing the determination of water rights is properly applied as the rule of decision by which the courts will determine the contours of the reserved rights asserted by the United States. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982); Park Center Water Dist. v. United States, 781 P.2d 90 (Colo. 1989).

For extent of federal reserved water rights on different categories of public lands, see United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

United States' claim to mainstem Colorado River water in 1983 does not relate back to its original application in 1971. U.S. v. Bell, 724 P.2d 631 (Colo. 1986).

37-92-303. Rulings by the referee. (1) Within sixty-three days after the last day on which statements of opposition may be filed with respect to a particular application, unless such time is extended by the water judge for good cause shown, the referee shall make a ruling on the application unless the referee determines to rerefer the matter to the water judge as specified in subsection (2) of this section. The ruling may disapprove the application in whole or in part in the discretion of the referee even though no statements of opposition have been filed. The ruling of the referee shall give the names of the applicants with respect to each water right or conditional water right involved, the location of the point of diversion or place of storage, the means of diversion, the type of use, the amount and priority, and other pertinent information. In the case of a plan for augmentation, such ruling shall include a complete statement of such plan as approved or disapproved. The ruling shall be filed with the water clerk, subject to judicial review. A copy of the ruling shall be sent by the water clerk by regular or electronic mail to the applicant, to each person who has filed a statement of opposition, to the state engineer, and to the division engineer.

(2) The referee may determine not to make a ruling as specified in subsection (1) of this section and to rerefer the matter to the water judge for a decision as provided in this article. Such rereferral shall be accomplished by order of the referee, which shall be entered within sixty-three days following the last month in which statements of opposition may be filed with respect to the particular application, unless such time is extended by the water judge for good cause shown. The referee shall rerefer the matter to the water judge at any time before the referee's hearing upon a motion to rerefer by the applicant or any opposer certifying that party's intent to protest an adverse ruling of the referee. A motion to rerefer shall not be a prerequisite to a protest of the ruling of the referee. A copy of the order shall be sent by the water clerk to the applicant and to each person who has filed a statement of opposition and to the state engineer and the division engineer by regular or electronic mail.

Editor's note: Section 173 of chapter 208, Session Laws of Colorado 2012, provides that the act amending this section applies to specified time intervals. For more information, see page 896 of Session Laws of Colorado 2012.

37-92-304. Proceedings by the water judge. (1) On the first Tuesday of March and September in division 1, the second Tuesday of March and September in division 2, the third Tuesday of March and September in division 3, the fourth Tuesday of March and September in division 4, the first Tuesday of April and October in division 5, the second Tuesday of April and October in division 6, and the third Tuesday of April and October in division 7, the water judge for the particular division may set for hearing matters in which protests have been filed or orders of rereferral entered by the referee during the preceding six calendar months. Such matters shall generally be considered by the water judge in chronological order; however, the dates and times of hearings shall be adjusted by the water judge at his discretion for the convenience of persons involved or for other reasonable cause.

(2) Within twenty-one days after the date of mailing thereof, any person, including the state engineer, who wishes to protest or support a ruling of the referee shall file in writing a pleading in quadruplicate with the water clerk and shall mail or deliver a copy to all parties and so certify. Such pleading shall clearly identify the matter and shall state the factual and legal grounds therefor. Upon filing of such a pleading, the party, except for the state engineer who shall pay no filing fee, shall pay a filing fee equal to that for filing an answer to a civil action in district court, as provided in section 13-32-101, C.R.S. No person who is already a party in the matter may be required to file any additional pleading or to pay any additional filing fee to maintain a party status in the case. All fees collected pursuant to this subsection (2) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and be divided as provided in section 13-32-101, C.R.S.

(3) As to the rulings with respect to which a pleading has been filed and as to matters which have been rereferred to the water judge by the referee, there shall be de novo hearings. The court shall not be bound by findings of the referee. The division engineer shall appear to furnish pertinent information and may be examined by any party, and, if requested by the division engineer, the attorney general shall represent the division engineer. The applicant shall appear either in person or by counsel and shall have the burden of sustaining the application, whether it has been granted or denied by the ruling or has been rereferred by the referee, and in the case of a change of water right or a plan for augmentation the burden of showing absence of any injurious effect. All parties of record shall remain parties in the proceedings before the water judge. Any person may move to intervene in proceedings before the water court upon payment of a fee, equal to that for filing an answer to a civil action in district court, except for the state engineer who shall pay no fee, and upon a showing of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect or to support a referee's ruling. The water court shall grant the motion to intervene only if intervention is sought no less than thirty-five days before any pretrial conference or due date for trial data certificates and if intervention will not unduly delay or prejudice the adjudication of the rights of the original parties. Service of copies of applications, written pleadings, or any other documents is not necessary for jurisdictional purposes, but the water judge may order service of copies of any documents on any persons and in any manner which he or she deems appropriate.

(3.5) In connection with a water adjudication proceeding to change the place of use of a water right from a mutual agricultural ditch or mutual agricultural ditch system or mutual agricultural reservoir company, the remaining owners of water rights in such ditch or ditch system or reservoir company, in the discretion of the court and where material injury has been demonstrated by the objector, may be awarded payment of their reasonable attorney fees and costs, including reasonable engineering and expert witness fees and the cost of any structures or measures necessary within the ditch or reservoir system to ensure the continuation of such owners' historically available surface water supply, under the remaining water rights which such owners continue to own, without injury or any increase in cost, unless the applicant seeking such change of water right shall have sought such change based on limitations, conditions, and structural changes necessary to prevent material injury to the exercise of such owners' water right. In cases where the objector fails to demonstrate material injury or the applicant has incorporated sufficient limitations, conditions, and structural changes to prevent material injury and such opposition has been maintained frivolously or for purposes of harassment, the applicant, in the discretion of the court, may be awarded payment of his reasonable attorney fees and costs, including reasonable engineering and expert witness fees. The provisions of this subsection (3.5) shall not apply to decrees which have been entered prior to May 17, 1988, or decrees pending before the referee as of May 17, 1988, and which are concluded before the referee without being protested to the water judge.

(3.6) Any decree entered for a water right requiring a well to be constructed on lands owned by other than the applicant shall specify that no person shall construct a well on property owned by another unless the right to construct such a well is obtained by consent of the landowner or the exercise of the power of eminent domain by a person having the power of eminent domain under law.

(4) If an applicant, a person who has filed a statement of opposition, or a protestant requests, the hearing shall be conducted by the water judge in the district court of the county in which is located the point of diversion of the water right or conditional water right involved. In case the hearing involves points of diversion located in more than one county, the hearing shall be conducted by the water judge in the district court of that county in which is located the major part, as determined by the water judge, of the diversions or proposed diversions involved.

(5) A decision of the water judge with respect to a protested ruling of the referee shall either confirm, modify, reverse, or reverse and remand such ruling, and, in the case of the modification of a ruling, the decision may grant a different priority than that granted by the referee and may specify its own terms and conditions with respect to a change of water right or plan for augmentation. A decision of the water judge in regard to a matter which has been rereferred by the referee shall dispose fully of such matter and may contain such provisions as the water judge deems appropriate. The water judge shall confirm and approve by judgment and decree a ruling of the referee with respect to which no protest was filed, but the water judge may reverse, or reverse and remand, any such ruling which he deems to be contrary to law.

(6) Any decision of the water judge as specified in subsection (5) of this section dealing with a change of water right, implementation of a rotational crop management contract, or a plan for augmentation shall include the condition that the approval of such change, contract, or plan shall be subject to reconsideration by the water judge on the question of injury to the vested rights of others for such period after the entry of such decision as is necessary or desirable to preclude or remedy any such injury. Such condition setting forth the period allowed for reconsideration shall be determined by the water judge after making specific findings and conclusions including, when applicable, the historical use to which the water rights involved were put, if any, and the proposed future use of the water rights involved. The water judge shall specify such period in the decision, but the period may be extended upon further decision by the water judge that the nonoccurrence of injury shall not have been conclusively established. Any decision may contain any other provision that the water judge deems proper in determining the rights and interests of the persons involved. All decisions of the water judge, including decisions as to the period of reconsideration and extension thereof, shall become a judgment and decree as specified in this article and be appealable upon entry, notwithstanding conditions subjecting the decisions to reconsideration on the question of injury to the vested rights of others as provided in this subsection (6).

(6.5) Any decision of a water judge concerning a significant water development activity shall include, as a condition of the decree approving the change application, a provision in the decree for retained jurisdiction to ensure payment of any fees imposed pursuant to section 37-92-305 (4.5).

(7) Judgments and decrees shall be entered promptly with respect to matters that have been heard and matters in which no protest has been filed or order of rereferral entered. A judgment and decree may be confined to one matter or may include more than one matter at the discretion of the water judge. The judgment and decree shall give the names of the applicants with respect to each water right or conditional water right involved, the location of the point of diversion or place of storage, the means of diversion, the type of use, the amount and priority, and other pertinent information. In the case of a plan for augmentation, the judgment and decree shall contain a complete statement of the plan. In the case of applications for determination of water rights or conditional water rights, the judgment and decree shall state the date of the filing of the application.

(8) A copy of such judgment and decree shall be filed with the state engineer and the division engineer, and a copy thereof shall be provided by the water clerk to any other person requesting same upon payment of a fee of seventy-five cents per page; except that the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of the fee if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of the fee is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of the fee as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S. Promptly after receiving a judgment and decree, the division engineer and the state engineer shall enter in their records the determinations therein made as to priority, location, and use of the water rights and conditional water rights, and they shall regulate the distribution of water accordingly.

(9) Appellate review shall be allowed to the judgment and decree, or any part thereof, as in other civil actions, but no appellate review shall be allowed with respect to that part of the judgment or decree which confirms a ruling with respect to which no protest was filed.

(10) Clerical mistakes in said judgment and decree may be corrected by the water judge on his own initiative or on the petition of any person, and substantive errors therein may be corrected by the water judge on the petition of any person whose rights have been adversely affected thereby and a showing satisfactory to the water judge that such person, due to mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect, failed to file a protest with the water clerk within the time specified in this section. Any petition referred to in the preceding sentence shall be filed with the water clerk within three years after the date of the entry of said judgment and decree. The water judge may order such notice of any such correction proceedings as he determines to be appropriate. Any order of the water judge making such corrections shall be subject to appellate review as in other civil actions.

(11) Repealed.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "Adjudication of Indian and Federal Water Rights in the Federal Courts", see 46 U. Colo. L. Rev. 555 (1974-75). For article, "Recent Developments in Colorado Groundwater Law", see 58 Den. L.J. 801 (1981). For comment, "Water Use Efficiency and Appropriation in Colorado: Salvaging Incentives for Maximum Beneficial Use", see 58 U. Colo. L. Rev. 657 (1988). For article, "Colorado's Law of 'Underground Water': A Look at the South Platte Basin and Beyond", see 59 U. Colo. L. Rev. 579 (1988).

Annotator's note. Since § 37-92-304 is similar to repealed §§ 148-9-8 and 148-9-10, C.R.S. 1963, § 147-9-10, CRS 53, CSA, C. 90, § 195, and laws antecedent thereto, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to § 37-92-304.

The supreme court has determined that "one who holds the legal title" is "the real party in interest in adjudication water rights". Elk-Rifle Water Co. v. Templeton, 173 Colo. 438, 484 P.2d 1211 (1971).

Where a proceeding is conducted pursuant to statutory direction, all users of water affected by said proceeding are, in effect, parties, and have full right to protect their rights had they so desired. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

One of the objects of this section was to put a stop to a multiplicity of actions and not to allow such changes to be made until all persons who might be affected thereby are notified and given an opportunity to be heard. Lower Latham Ditch Co. v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 41 Colo. 212, 93 P. 483 (1907).

A municipal corporation has no different status from that of an individual or any other party to the proceeding. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

The state is a party in interest. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Wolff, 23 Colo. App. 570, 131 P. 291 (1913).

United States is not an indispensable party to a suit against the secretary of the interior for interfering with water rights in operating a reclamation project. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

All persons who may be affected by the desired change of a water right must be notified of the proceeding, and given an opportunity to be heard before the court is authorized to enter an order allowing such change. New Cache La Poudre Irrigation Co. v. Water Supply & Storage Co., 29 Colo. 469, 68 P. 781 (1902); Fluke v. Ford, 35 Colo. 112, 84 P. 469 (1905); New Cache La Poudre Irrigating Co. v. Arthur Irrigation Co., 37 Colo. 350, 87 P. 799 (1906).

It is the duty of the courts to require that all persons who may be affected by the desired change shall be notified of the proceeding and given an opportunity to be heard. New Cache La Poudre Irrigation Co. v. Water Supply & Storage Co. 29 Colo. 469, 68 P. 781 (1902); Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Wolff, 23 Colo. App. 570, 131 P. 291 (1913).

Where plaintiffs did not enter appearances in the diversion proceeding, but as interested parties and owners of water rights, they were duly served with notice of the proceeding. They were parties to that proceeding for change of point of diversion and are bound by the decree. City of Westminster v. Church, 167 Colo. 1, 445 P.2d 52 (1968).

The water court did not abuse its discretion in denying a motion to intervene when the water court properly obtained jurisdiction pursuant to publication of the water resume, the moving party had actual notice of the application, and the division engineer had already filed a report. The party failed to show excusable neglect and granting the motion would create undue delay. S. Ute Indian Tribe v. King Consol. Ditch, 250 P.3d 1226 (Colo. 2011).

There is no provision in this section for extension of the time limit for filing, no reference whatsoever to amended filings, no language allowing waiver of the mandatory filing fee, and nothing from which it can be inferred that late filings may relate back to a previous defective protest. In re Oxley, 182 Colo. 206, 513 P.2d 1062 (1973).

Hearing requirement held satisfied. Hearings on motions for summary judgment, together with the depositions in each of the respective water courts, satisfied the requirement of the 1969 water act that a hearing be held. In re Bunger v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Rights to water for reservoirs may be adjudicated. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Hider, 47 Colo. 443, 107 P. 1068 (1910); Windsor Reservoir & Canal Co. v. Lake Supply Ditch Co., 44 Colo. 214, 98 P. 727 (1908).

Before a decree in favor of any reservoir was entered, it should have been made to appear, inter alia, that thereby an appropriation of a certain quantity of water had been made. Windsor Reservoir & Canal Co., v. Lake Supply Ditch Co., 44 Colo. 214, 98 P. 729 (1908).

Water court which adopts conclusions from report describing historic use should expressly incorporate the report into and make it a physical part of the decree in order to guide the resolution of future questions relating to the decree's effect. Matter of Application for Water Rights, 688 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1984).

Decree void if no substantial compliance with notice requirements. Where there was not substantial compliance with statutory notice requirement, water rights decree was entered without jurisdiction and was void. Stonewall Estates v. CF & I Steel Corp., 197 Colo. 255, 592 P.2d 1318 (1979).

A proposed or existing water exchange is not subject to the retained jurisdiction provision of subsection (6) unless it is part of a plan for augmentation, because it is an independent claim. City of Florence v. Bd. of Waterworks, 793 P.2d 148 (Colo. 1990).

Applied in Kuiper v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry., 195 Colo. 557, 581 P.2d 293 (1978); Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); Harvey Land & Cattle Co. v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 631 P.2d 1111 (Colo. 1981); Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981); Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982); Bd. of County Commissioners v. Collard, 827 P.2d 546 (Colo. 1992).

II. ADJUDICATION OF PRIORITIES.

Ownership of water right may be deemed ownership of real property for purposes of adverse possession claims. Matter of Water Rights of V-Heart Ranch, 690 P.2d 1271 (Colo. 1984).

Continuous and exclusive scheduled use by claimant of water right claimed by adverse possession may satisfy the burden of proof of ownership of water right even if all the disputed water is at times used by others, and question is whether, under all surrounding circumstances, such practice is consistent or inconsistent with the claim of adverse use. Matter of Water Rights of V-Heart Ranch, 690 P.2d 1271 (Colo. 1984).

An adjudication of priorities will not, without due process of law, deprive a person of his constitutional or vested rights, such as prior rights to the use of water; nor will such rights be affected by the lapse of time so long as they are not actually denied, abridged, or interfered with by the enforcement of the decree entered in such proceedings. Nichols v. McIntosh, 19 Colo. 22, 34 P. 278 (1893).

Adjudication proceedings and appropriation decrees are essentially statutory, and a water decree is a determination of a specific issue presented to the court in the specific manner prescribed by statute. The statement of claim presents the issue, and the decree is limited by the issue it resolves. Orchard City Irrigation Dist. v. Whitten, 146 Colo. 127, 361 P.2d 130 (1961).

An adjudication of priorities is the judicial determination of the claims of different parties to the use of water for irrigation. Combs v. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co., 38 Colo. 420, 88 P. 396 (1906).

A decree in a water adjudication is only confirmatory of preexisting rights; the decree does not create or grant any rights; it serves as evidence of rights previously acquired. Cline v. Whitten, 144 Colo. 126, 355 P.2d 306 (1960).

The contention that only adjudicated water right can be protected from interference is without merit, because adjudication only confirms preexisting rights. Cline v. Whitten, 144 Colo. 126, 355 P.2d 306 (1960).

An adjudication of priorities for ditches drawing water for irrigation from the same stream or its tributaries within the same water districts is provided for. Lamson v. Vailles, 27 Colo. 201, 61 P. 231 (1900); Kibbee v. Kostelic, 87 Colo. 215, 287 P. 652 (1930).

In a proceeding involving the adjudication of water rights, where the interests of beneficiaries are not represented or protected by their trustees, the beneficiaries become proper and necessary parties, with the right to appear and present their case. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

In a proceeding to adjudicate the priorities to use of water for irrigating purposes, the determination by the court of the carrying capacity of a ditch was res judicata and could not be attacked in a collateral proceeding after the statutory time for reformation or review in the court of original jurisdiction had expired and the time for appeal had elapsed. A mistake of the court in computing the carrying capacity could be corrected in such proceeding. Water Supply & Storage Co. v. Larimer & Weld Irrigation Co., 24 Colo. 322, 51 P. 496 (1897).

III. PROTESTS AND APPEALS.

The intent is manifest in this article that only the protest to the referee's ruling need be filed in order to obtain appellate review by right. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Rocky Mt. Power Co., 174 Colo. 309, 486 P.2d 438 (1971), cert. denied, 405 U.S. 996, 92 S. Ct. 1245, 31 L.Ed.2d 465 (1972).

The state is a "person" entitled to protest a referee's ruling and to participate in a hearing thereunder. In re Wadsworth, 193 Colo. 95, 562 P.2d 1114 (1977).

The general assembly intended that persons, including the state, might file a protest to the ruling of a referee even though they had not filed a statement of opposition to the application. In re Wadsworth, 193 Colo. 95, 562 P.2d 1114 (1977).

Absent a claim of surprise or prejudice, the state was a proper party based on its entry of appearance in one of two consolidated proceedings, even though it has not filed a statement of opposition in either of the two consolidated actions. Masters Inv. Co. v. Irrigationists Ass'n, 702 P.2d 268 (Colo. 1985).

The state engineer has standing to file a protest to a water referee's ruling even though he had not filed a statement in opposition. In re Wadsworth, 193 Colo. 95, 562 P.2d 1114 (1977).

"Interested persons" in subsection (3) of this section can only reasonably be interpreted to refer to the "persons" whose capacity to protest or object is generally described elsewhere in the act. In re Bunger v. Uncompahgre

Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Any person who qualifies under other sections, e.g., § 37-92-302 (1)(b) or § 37-92-304 (2) and (4), is not barred from participating in the hearing mandated by his action. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

The expansion by the 1969 act of the class of persons who may object in a water adjudication is not limited to the filing of objections and supporting documents. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

A plaintiff is not a proper protestant under this section. Where in no manner, either in his own claim for new storage rights or as a holder of senior decrees, does he allege, offer to show, or show that he is injuriously affected. In re Water Dist. No. 11, Water Div. No. 2, 178 Colo. 160, 496 P.2d 311 (1972).

When a technically defective motion to intervene is filed, the existing parties may waive their right to object to the intervention by failing to make timely objections. Pub. Serv. Co., v. Blue River Irrigation Co., 753 P.2d 737 (Colo. 1988).

Subsection (3) construed with C.R.C.P. 1(a). Subsection (3)'s mandatory language that hearings shall be held where a protest has been filed and on cases of rereferral by a water referee to a water judge must be construed together with C.R.C.P. 1(a), which provides for liberal construction of the rules of civil procedure. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Letter not following statutory procedure not proper protest. Letter written by applicant for water rights, whose application was denied, merely stating that he was protesting the ruling of the water referee, was not considered a proper protest where letter did not comply with the statutory procedure for filing a protest. In re Oxley, 182 Colo. 206, 513 P.2d 1062 (1973).

All decisions of water referee are subject to review by water judge. Gardner v. State, 200 Colo. 221, 614 P.2d 357 (1980).

However, timely protest of water referee's ruling is a jurisdictional prerequisite to appellate review. Monaghan Farms v. City & County of Denver, 807 P.2d 9 (Colo. 1991).

For discussion of parties with standing to appeal under previous version of subsection (3), see Bar 70 Enterprises, Inc. v. Tosco Corp., 703 P.2d 1297 (Colo. 1985).

The volume of the priority awarded a ditch in adjudication proceedings was res adjudicata, and the facts upon which such award was based could not be inquired into in a collateral proceeding. Rogers v. Nevada Canal Co., 60 Colo. 59, 151 P. 923, 1917C Ann. Cas. 669 (1915).

IV. EVIDENCE OF MATERIAL INJURY.

A prima facie case of material injury to senior water rights is established by a preponderance of the evidence that material injury will be caused to senior appropriators generally, rather than to a particular senior user. Fellhauer v. People, 167 P.2d 320, 447 P.2d 986 (1967); Hall v. Kuiper, 181 Colo. 130, 510 P.2d 329 (1973); Danielson v. Jones, 698 P.2d 240 (Colo. 1985).

State engineer's findings on material injury should be accepted as presumptively valid by a water judge adjudicating a water right involving the use of a well when the applicant has not appealed the state engineer's denial of the well permit pursuant to § 37-90-115, and applicant should bear the burden of proving no material injury. Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981); State of Colo. v. Southwestern Colo. Water Conservation District, 671 P.2d 1294 (Colo. 1983), cert. denied, 466 U.S. 944, 104 S. Ct. 1929, 80 L.Ed.2d 474 (1984); Danielson v. Jones, 698 P.2d 240 (Colo. 1985).

Where findings of state engineer on original application are not presumptive of material injury to senior water rights from the application as amended, such findings are nevertheless sufficient to raise an inference of adverse effect from increased production on the well, and when trial evidence establishes a prima facie case of material injury, the applicant must rebut by presenting evidence which would reasonably support a finding of no material injury. Danielson v. Jones, 698 P.2d 240 (Colo. 1985).

Subsection (3) requires an applicant to sustain the allegations upon which the claimed rights are based. In re Bunker v. Uncompahgre Valley Water Users Ass'n, 192 Colo. 159, 557 P.2d 389 (1976).

Retention of jurisdiction by court pursuant to subsection (6) valid so court could review determination of whether lack of injury is conclusive within such time. City of Thornton v. Clear Creek Water Users Alliance, 859 P.2d 1348 (Colo. 1993).

The critical issue for the water court to decide in determining whether to reconsider injury under its retained jurisdiction is whether operational experience obtained after entry of the decree indicates that the water rights may not be sufficiently protected to preclude or remedy injury under the decree, not whether replacement releases under the plan have occurred or whether actual injury has already occurred. If the court finds that insufficient operational experience exists to permit it to resolve the question of injury, it should extend the period of retained jurisdiction. Here, the water court erred in failing to invoke its retained jurisdiction when the petitioners alleged sufficient facts to support their claim that injury had occurred or was likely to occur. In re Upper Eagle Reg'l Water Auth., 230 P.3d 1203 (Colo. 2010).

A water court does not have a duty to reconsider injury through retained jurisdiction until after the water court approves an applicant's augmentation plan based upon the no-injury analysis, because the purpose of retained jurisdiction is to reconsider injury once an augmentation plan is operating, not to prove depletions or prove injury for the first time. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005).

Water quality problems associated with the actual operation of an augmentation plan can justify invocation of a court's retained jurisdiction; hence, it was error for the water judge to refuse a senior appropriator's petition to either make a finding of injury or extend the period of retained jurisdiction without holding a hearing. City of Thornton v. City & County of Denver, 44 P.3d 1019 (Colo. 2002).

Historic consumptive use determinations are not susceptible to redetermination under the retained jurisdiction provision, which is intended to address injurious effects that result from placing the change of water right or augmentation plan into operation. Farmers Reservoir and Irrig. Co. v. Consolidated Mut. Water Co., 33 P.3d 799 (Colo. 2001).

A ditch-wide analysis of historic consumptive use of one portion of a mutual ditch company's rights does not amount to an improper reconsideration under subsection (6) when a previous change decree erroneously awarded the applicant more than its pro rata share of a different portion of the ditch's rights based on a parcel-by-parcel determination of historic consumptive use. Central Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. City of Greeley, 147 P.3d 9 (Colo. 2006).

V. CLERICAL MISTAKES.

Express addition in the decretal portion of amended decree making appropriation one out of a different creek was indeed a substantive matter, not a correction of a mere clerical mistake. Benson v. Burgess, 192 Colo. 556, 561 P.2d 11 (1977).

The owner of a ditch and the water adjudicated thereto was adversely affected by an amended decree making another appropriation one out of a different creek so that his ditch was not entitled to priority over the other ditch's water, and since the resume of the application for the other ditch which was published in the newspaper in August, 1971, gave no inkling of the other owner's position and the first owner did not have knowledge of the position until action by the water official in the summer of 1974 with regard to the priority of his ditch over the other one, the court's finding that failure to protest was due to mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect was entirely correct. Benson v. Burgess, 192 Colo. 566, 561 P.2d 11 (1977).

When amendment of referee's ruling mandated. Subsection (10) mandates that the amendment of a water referee's ruling with respect to certain conditional water rights, when, through inadvertence, the ruling omitted three conditional rights which were properly before the referee for his consideration and which the referee had intended to include within the purview of his ruling. Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980).

When omission of finding of reasonable diligence not clerical error. To characterize as "clerical error", as that term is used in subsection (10), the omission of a finding of reasonable diligence with respect to a conditional water right never mentioned in the application and never considered by the court would be to expand the definition of clerical error beyond the bounds of precedent and of reason. Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980).

City's failure to include certain creek in statement of claim cannot be remedied as a clerical error because the creek which the city sought to include in the decree was not "tributary drainage lying between" creeks specifically named in the statement of claim and because the water court may decree rights no more extensive than those sought in an applicant's statement of claim. City & County of Denver v. Vail Valley, 751 P.2d 68 (Colo. 1988).

A municipal corporation has no different status from that of an individual or any other party to the proceeding. City & County of Denver v. Northern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 130 Colo. 375, 276 P.2d 992 (1954).

Subsection (10) not applied retroactively. Meyring Livestock Co. v. Wamsley Cattle Co., 687 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1984).

VI. SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS.

If a resume notice is adequate, the water court has subject matter jurisdiction over the water matter and there can be no collateral attack on the resulting decree based on an alleged substantive error such as a failure to require republication unless a petition is filed within three years of entry of the decree. In re Water Rights of Columbine Assocs., 993 P.2d 483 (Colo. 2000).

Where petition alleged that a landowner was unaware of the published resume of the application and further alleged facts sufficient to demonstrate that it was entitled to identification in a water adjudication application and a mailed copy of the resume from the clerk, the water court abused its discretion in summarily dismissing the petition for reconsideration for failure to show excusable neglect. SL Group, LLC v. Go West Indus., Inc., 42 P.3d 637 (Colo. 2002).

VII. FEDERAL RESERVED WATER RIGHTS.

Federal reserved water rights. The United States possesses reserved rights for its federal reservations in Colorado in waters unappropriated upon the date of reservation of the federal lands from the public domain, and in the amount necessary to achieve the primary purposes of the reservations. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Reserved rights determined by Colorado law. Colorado law governing the determination of water rights is properly applied as the rule of decision by which the courts will determine the contours of the reserved rights asserted by the United States. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

For extent of federal reserved water rights on different categories of public lands, see United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

37-92-305. Standards with respect to rulings of the referee and decisions of the water judge. (1) In the determination of a water right the priority date awarded shall be that date on which the appropriation was initiated if the appropriation was completed with reasonable diligence. If the appropriation was not completed with reasonable diligence following the initiation thereof, then the priority date thereof shall be that date from which the appropriation was completed with reasonable diligence.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this article, a particular means or point of diversion of a water right may also serve as a point or means of diversion for another water right.

(3) (a) A change of water right, implementation of a rotational crop management contract, or plan for augmentation, including water exchange project, shall be approved if such change, contract, or plan will not injuriously affect the owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or a decreed conditional water right. In cases in which a statement of opposition has been filed, the applicant shall provide to the referee or to the water judge, as the case may be, a proposed ruling or decree to prevent such injurious effect in advance of any hearing on the merits of the application, and notice of such proposed ruling or decree shall be provided to all parties who have entered the proceedings. If it is determined that the proposed change, contract, or plan as presented in the application and the proposed ruling or decree would cause such injurious effect, the referee or the water judge, as the case may be, shall afford the applicant or any person opposed to the application an opportunity to propose terms or conditions that would prevent such injurious effect.

(b) Decrees for changes of water rights that implement a contract or agreement for a lease, loan, or donation of water, water rights, or interests in water to the Colorado water conservation board for instream flow use under section 37-92-102 (3) (b) shall provide that the board or the lessor, lender, or donor of the water may bring about beneficial use of the historical consumptive use of the changed water right downstream of the instream flow reach as fully consumable reusable water, subject to such terms and conditions as the water court deems necessary to prevent injury to vested water rights or decreed conditional water rights.

(3.5) Applications for a simple change in a surface point of diversion. (a) For purposes of this subsection (3.5):

(I) "Intervening surface diversion point or inflow" means any ditch diversion or other point of diversion for a decreed surface water right, point of replacement or point of diversion by exchange that is part of an existing decreed exchange, well or well field that is decreed to operate as a surface diversion, or point of inflow from a tributary surface stream.

(II) "Simple change in a surface point of diversion" means a change in the point of diversion from a decreed surface diversion point to a new surface diversion point that is not combined with and does not include any other type of change of water right and for which there is no intervening surface diversion point or inflow between the new point of diversion and the diversion point from which a change is being made. "Simple change in a surface point of diversion" does not include a change of point of diversion from below or within a stream reach for which there is an intervening surface diversion point or inflow or decreed in-stream flow right to an upstream location within or above that reach.

(b) (I) An application for a simple change in a surface point of diversion is subject to all provisions of this article, including sections 37-92-302 to 37-92-305, except as specifically modified by this subsection (3.5).

(II) The procedures in this subsection (3.5) apply only to a simple change in a surface point of diversion and do not change the procedures or legal standards applicable to any other change of water right.

(III) An application for a simple change in a surface point of diversion may:

(A) Be made with respect to a change of point of diversion that has already been physically accomplished or with respect to a requested future change of point of diversion;

(B) Be made with respect to an absolute water right or a conditional water right; and

(C) Include one or more water rights that are to be diverted at the new point of diversion. The application must not include or be consolidated or joined with an action by the applicant seeking any other type of change of water right or diligence proceeding or application to make absolute with respect to the water right or rights included in the application.

(c) The applicant bears the initial burden in an application for a simple change in a surface point of diversion to prove, through the imposition of terms and conditions if necessary, that the simple change in a surface point of diversion will not:

(I) Result in diversion of a greater flow rate or amount of water than has been decreed to the water right and, without requantifying the water right, is physically and legally available at the diversion point from which a change is being made; or

(II) Injuriiously affect the owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or a decreed conditional water right.

(d) If the applicant makes a prima facie showing with respect to the matters in paragraph (c) of this subsection (3.5), the case proceeds as a simple change in a surface point of diversion, the applicant has the burden of persuasion with respect to the elements of its case, including the matters in paragraph (c) of this subsection (3.5), and the standards of paragraph (e) of this subsection (3.5) apply. If the applicant does not make such a prima facie showing, the referee or water judge shall dismiss the application without prejudice to the applicant's filing an application for a change of water right that is not a simple change in a surface point of diversion.

(e) The following standards apply to a simple change in a surface point of diversion:

(I) There is a rebuttable presumption that a simple change in a surface point of diversion will not cause an enlargement of the historical use associated with the water rights being changed.

(II) The decree must not requantify the water rights for which the point of diversion is being changed.

(III) The applicant, in prosecuting the simple change in a surface point of diversion, is not required to:

(A) Prove that the water diverted at the new point of diversion can and will be diverted and put to use within a reasonable period of time;

(B) Prove compliance with the anti-speculation doctrine; or

(C) Provide or make a showing of future need imposed by the cases of Pagosa Area Water and Sanitation District v. Trout Unlimited, 219 P.3d 774 (Colo. 2009) or City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996); except that nothing in this subsection (3.5) relieves the applicant or its successors in any pending or future diligence application from any of the requirements for demonstrating diligence in the development of a conditional water right changed pursuant to this subsection (3.5).

(4) (a) Terms and conditions to prevent injury as specified in subsection (3) of this section may include:

(I) A limitation on the use of the water that is subject to the change, taking into consideration the historical use and the flexibility required by annual climatic differences;

(II) The relinquishment of part of the decree for which the change is sought or the relinquishment of other decrees owned by the applicant that are used by the applicant in conjunction with the decree for which the change has been requested, if necessary to prevent an enlargement upon the historical use or diminution of return flow to the detriment of other appropriators;

(III) A time limitation on the diversion of water for which the change is sought in terms of months per year;

(IV) If the application is for the implementation of a rotational crop management contract, separate annual historical consumptive use limits for the parcels to be rotated according to the historical consumptive use of such lands. To the extent that some or all of the water that is the subject of the contract is not utilized at a new place of use in a given year, such water may be utilized on the originally irrigated lands if so provided in the decree and contract and if the election to irrigate is made prior to the beginning of the irrigation season and applies to the entire irrigation season. A failure of a party to a rotational crop management contract who is not the owner of the irrigation water rights that are subject to the contract to put to beneficial use the full amount of water that was decreed pursuant to the application for approval of the contract shall not be deemed to reduce the amount of historical consumptive use that the owner of the water rights has made of the rights.

(V) A term or condition that addresses decreases in water quality caused by a change in the type of use and permanent removal from irrigation of more than one thousand acre-feet of consumptive use per year that includes a change in the point of diversion, if the change would cause an exceedance or contribute to an existing exceedance of water quality standards established by the water quality control commission pursuant to section 25-8-204, C.R.S., in effect at the time of the application, or, if ordered by the court, subsequently adopted by the commission prior to the entry of the decree, for the stream segment at the original point of diversion. Under any such term or condition, the applicant shall be responsible for only that portion of the exceedance attributable to the proposed change. Any such term or condition and any activity to be taken in fulfillment thereof shall not be inconsistent with the "Colorado Water Quality Control Act", article 8 of title 25, C.R.S., and rules promulgated pursuant to said act, and implementation of section 303 (d) of the "Federal Water Pollution Control Act" by the water quality control division. This subparagraph (V) shall not be interpreted to confer standing on any person to assert injury who would not otherwise have such standing.

(VI) Such other conditions as may be necessary to protect the vested rights of others.

(b) If the water judge approves the implementation of a rotational crop management contract, the rotational crop management contract shall be recorded with the clerk and recorder of the county in which the historically irrigated lands are located, and the water judge shall make affirmative findings that the implementation of the rotational crop management contract:

(I) Is capable of administration by the state and division engineers. In order to satisfy the requirement of this subparagraph (I), the water judge may require the applicant to provide signage and mapping of the lands not irrigated on an annual basis.

(II) Will neither expand the historical use of the original water rights nor change the return flow pattern from the historically irrigated land in a manner that will result in an injurious effect as specified in subsection (3) of this section; and

(III) Will comply with paragraph (a) of subsection (4.5) of this section with regard to potential soil erosion, revegetation, and weed management.

(4.5) (a) The terms and conditions applicable to changes of use of water rights from agricultural irrigation purposes to other beneficial uses shall include reasonable provisions designed to accomplish the revegetation and noxious weed management of lands from which irrigation water is removed. The applicant may, at any time, request a final determination under the court's retained jurisdiction that no further application of water will be necessary in order to satisfy the revegetation provisions. Dry land agriculture may not be subject to revegetation order of the court.

(b) (I) If article 65.1 of title 24, C.R.S., is not applicable to a significant water development activity, the court may utilize the methods specified in this section to mitigate certain potential effects of such activity. Subject to the provisions of this article, a court may impose the following mitigation payments upon any person who files an application for removal of water as part of a significant water development activity:

(A) Transition mitigation payment. A transition mitigation payment shall equal the amount of the reduction in property tax revenues for property that is subject to taxation by an entity listed in section 37-92-302 (3.5) that is attributable to a significant water development activity. Such payment shall be made on an annual basis in accordance with the repayment schedule established by the court unless the applicant and the taxing entities mutually agree on an alternate payment schedule. The county shall certify, as appropriate, to the change applicant each year the amount of mitigation payment due under this subparagraph (I). Any moneys collected pursuant to this sub-subparagraph (A) shall be distributed by the board of county commissioners of the county from which water is removed among the entities in the county in proportion to the percentage of their share of the total of property taxes for nonbonded indebtedness purposes.

(B) Bonded indebtedness payment. A bonded indebtedness payment shall be made on an annual basis in the same manner as mitigation payments and shall be based on the bonded indebtedness on the property that is to be removed from irrigation at the time the decree is entered. The bonded indebtedness payment shall be equal to the reduction in bond repayment revenues that is attributable to the removal of water as part of a significant water development activity. The court may identify such mitigation payment as part of the decree. Whenever an application for determination with respect to a change of water rights requires a payment pursuant to this sub-subparagraph (B), the board of county commissioners of the county from which water is removed shall distribute any moneys collected among the entities in the county having bonded indebtedness in proportion to the percentage of their share of the total of such indebtedness.

(II) Unless the court determines that a greater or lesser period of time would be appropriate based upon the evidence of record, the amount of the transition mitigation and bonded indebtedness payments shall be equal to the total reduction in revenues for a period of thirty years commencing upon the date of initial reductions in such revenues as a consequence of the removal of water associated with the significant water development activity.

(III) To the extent that there is an increase in the property tax or bonded indebtedness revenues after the date of the commencement of the payment obligations identified under sub-subparagraphs (A) and (B) of subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b) as a consequence of a change in land use and accompanying modification of the assessed valuation of the land, such payment obligations shall be correspondingly reduced.

(IV) When determining the amount to be paid pursuant to this paragraph (b), if any, the court shall take into consideration any evidence of a beneficial impact to the county from which the water is to be diverted and shall adjust the amount of the payment accordingly.

(c) Paragraph (b) of this subsection (4.5) shall not apply to:

(I) Any removal of water involving water rights owned by the applicant prior to August 6, 2003; any removal of water that was accomplished prior to August 6, 2003; any removal of water for which an application for a change of water rights was pending in the water court on such date; or any removal of water for which a decree has been entered that continues to be subject to the water court's retained jurisdiction;

(II) Any removal of water when:

(A) Such change is undertaken by a water conservancy district, water conservation district, special district, ditch company, other ditch organization, or municipality;

(B) The water was beneficially used within the boundaries or service area of such entity before the removal; and

(C) The water will continue to be beneficially used within such entity's boundaries or service area after the removal; or

(III) Any removal of water where the new place of use is within a twenty-mile radius of the historic place of use, even though such new place is located within a different county. For purposes of this subparagraph (III), the distance between the historic place of use and the proposed new place of use shall be measured between the most proximate points in the respective areas.

(5) In the case of plans for augmentation including exchange, the supplier may take an equivalent amount of water at his point of diversion or storage if such water is available without impairing the rights of others. Any substituted water shall be of a quality and quantity so as to meet the requirements for which the water of the senior appropriator has normally been used, and such substituted water shall be accepted by the senior appropriator in substitution for water derived by the exercise of his decreed rights.

(6) (a) In the case of an application for determination of a water right or a conditional water right, a determination with respect to a change of a water right or approval of a plan for augmentation, which requires construction of a well, other than a well described in section 37-90-137 (4), the referee or the water judge, as the case may be, shall consider the findings of the state engineer, made pursuant to section 37-90-137, which granted or denied the well permit and the consultation report of the state engineer or division engineer submitted pursuant to section 37-92-302 (2) (a). The referee or water judge may thereupon grant a final or conditional decree if the construction and use of any well proposed in the application will not injuriously affect the owner of, or persons entitled to use, water under a vested water right or decreed conditional water right. If the court grants a final or conditional decree, the state engineer shall issue a well permit. Except in cases in which the state engineer or division engineer is a party, all findings of fact contained in the consultation report concerning the presence or absence of injurious effect shall be presumptive as to such facts, subject to rebuttal by any party.

(b) In the case of wells described in section 37-90-137 (4), the referee or water judge shall consider the state engineer's determination as to such groundwater as described in section 37-92-302 (2) in lieu of findings made pursuant to section 37-90-137, and shall require evidence of compliance with the provisions of section 37-92-302 (2) regarding notice to persons with recorded interests in the overlying land. The state engineer's findings of fact contained within such determination shall be presumptive as to such facts, subject to rebuttal by any party.

(c) Any application in water division 3 that involves new withdrawals of groundwater that will affect the rate or direction of movement of water in the confined aquifer system referred to in section 37-90-102 (3) shall be permitted pursuant to a plan of augmentation that, in addition to all other lawful requirements for such plans, shall recognize that unappropriated water is not made available and injury is not prevented as a result of the reduction of water consumption by nonirrigated native vegetation. In any such augmentation plan decree, the court shall also retain jurisdiction for the purpose of revising such decree to comply with the rules and regulations promulgated by the state engineer pursuant to section 37-90-137 (12) (b) (I).

(7) Prior to the cancellation or expiration of a conditional water right granted pursuant to a conditional decree, the court wherein such decree was granted shall give notice, within not less than sixty-three days nor more than ninety-one days, by certified or registered mail to all persons to whom such conditional right was granted, at the last-known address appearing on the records of such court.

(8) (a) Except as specified in paragraph (b) of this subsection (8), in reviewing a proposed plan for augmentation and in considering terms and conditions that may be necessary to avoid injury, the referee or the water judge shall consider the depletions from an applicant's use or proposed use of water, in quantity and in time, the amount and timing of augmentation water that would be provided by the applicant, and the existence, if any, of injury to any owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or a decreed conditional water right.

(b) As to decrees for plans for augmentation entered in water division 1 on or after August 5, 2009, the plan shall not require the replacement of out-of-priority depletions currently affecting the river caused by pumping that occurred prior to March 15, 1974. In the case of an amended plan for augmentation applied for pursuant to this paragraph (b), the water judge may review all of the terms and conditions of the plan.

(c) A plan for augmentation shall be sufficient to permit the continuation of diversions when curtailment would otherwise be required to meet a valid senior call for water, to the extent that the applicant shall provide replacement water necessary to meet the lawful requirements of a senior diverter at the time and location and to the extent the senior would be deprived of his or her lawful entitlement by the applicant's diversion. A proposed plan for augmentation that relies upon a supply of augmentation water that, by contract or otherwise, is limited in duration shall not be denied solely upon the ground that the supply of augmentation water is limited in duration, if the terms and conditions of the plan prevent injury to vested water rights. Said terms and conditions shall require replacement of out-of-priority depletions that occur after any groundwater diversions cease. Decrees approving plans for augmentation shall require that the state engineer curtail all out-of-priority diversions, the depletions from which are not so replaced as to prevent injury to vested water rights. A plan for augmentation may provide procedures to allow additional or alternative sources of replacement water, including water leased on a yearly or less frequent basis, to be used in the plan after the initial decree is entered if the use of said additional or alternative sources is part of a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to section 37-92-308 or if such sources are decreed for such use.

(9) (a) No claim for a water right may be recognized or a decree therefor granted except to the extent that the waters have been diverted, stored, or otherwise captured, possessed, and controlled and have been applied to a beneficial use, but nothing in this section shall affect appropriations by the state of Colorado for minimum streamflows as described in section 37-92-103 (4).

(b) No claim for a conditional water right may be recognized or a decree therefor granted except to the extent that it is established that the waters can be and will be diverted, stored, or otherwise captured, possessed, and controlled and will be beneficially used and that the project can and will be completed with diligence and within a reasonable time.

(c) No water right or conditional water right for the storage of water in underground aquifers shall be recognized or decreed except to the extent water in such an aquifer has been placed there by other than natural means by a person having a conditional or decreed right to such water.

(10) If an application filed under section 37-92-302 for approval of an existing exchange of water is approved, the original priority date or priority dates of the exchange shall be recognized and preserved unless such recognition or preservation would be contrary to the manner in which such exchange has been administered.

(11) Nontributary groundwater shall not be administered in accordance with priority of appropriation, and determinations of rights to nontributary groundwater need not include a date of initiation of the withdrawal project. Such determinations shall not require subsequent showings or findings of reasonable diligence, and such determinations entered prior to July 1, 1985, which require such showings or findings shall not be enforced to the extent of such diligence requirements on or after said date. The water judge shall retain jurisdiction as to determinations of groundwater from wells described in section 37-90-137 (4) as necessary to provide for the adjustment of the annual amount of withdrawal allowed to conform to actual local aquifer characteristics from adequate information obtained from well drilling or test holes. Such decree shall then control the determination of the quantity of annual withdrawal allowed in the well permit as provided in section 37-90-137 (4). Rights to the use of groundwater from wells described in section 37-90-137 (4) pursuant to all such determinations shall be deemed to be vested property rights; except that nothing in this section shall preclude the general assembly from authorizing or imposing limitations on the exercise of such rights for preventing waste, promoting beneficial use, and requiring reasonable conservation of such groundwater.

(12) (a) In determining the quantity of water required in an augmentation plan to replace evaporation from groundwater exposed to the atmosphere in connection with the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining as defined in section 34-32-103 (9), C.R.S., there shall be no requirement to replace the amount of historic natural depletion to the waters of the state, if any, caused by the preexisting natural vegetative cover on the surface of the area which will be, or which has been, permanently replaced by an open water surface. The applicant shall bear the burden of proving the historic natural depletion.

(b) No person who obtains or operates a plan for augmentation or plan of substitute supply prior to July 1, 1989, shall be required to make replacement for the depletions from evaporation exempted in this subsection (12) or otherwise replace water for increased calls which may result therefrom.

(c) In determining the quantity of water required in an augmentation plan to replace stream depletions in connection with any mining operation as defined in section 34-32-103 (8), C.R.S., for which a reclamation permit has been obtained as set forth in section 34-32-109, C.R.S., there is no requirement to replace the amount of historic natural depletion to the waters of the state, if any, caused by the preexisting natural vegetative cover and evaporation on the surface of the area that will be, or that has been, eliminated or made impermeable as part of the permitted mining operation. The applicant bears the burden of proving the historic natural depletion.

(13) (a) The water court shall consider the findings of fact made by the Colorado water conservation board pursuant to section 37-92-102 (6) (b) regarding a recreational in-channel diversion, which findings shall be presumptive as to such facts, subject to rebuttal by any party. In addition, the water court shall consider evidence and make affirmative findings that the recreational in-channel diversion will:

(I) Not materially impair the ability of Colorado to fully develop and place to consumptive beneficial use its compact entitlements;

(II) Promote maximum utilization of waters of the state;

(III) Include only that reach of stream that is appropriate for the intended use;

(IV) Be accessible to the public for the recreational in-channel use proposed; and

(V) Not cause material injury to instream flow water rights appropriated pursuant to section 37-92-102 (3) and (4).

(b) In determining whether the intended recreation experience is reasonable and the claimed amount is the appropriate flow for any period, the water court shall consider all of the factors that bear on the reasonableness of the claim, including the flow needed to accomplish the claimed recreational use, benefits to the community, the intent of the appropriator, stream size and characteristics, and total streamflow available at the control structures during the period or any subperiods for which the application is made.

(c) If a water court determines that a proposed recreational in-channel diversion would materially impair the ability of Colorado to fully develop and place to consumptive beneficial use its compact entitlements, the court shall deny the application.

(d) In addition to determining the minimum amount of stream flow to serve the applicant's intended and specified reasonable recreation experience, the water court shall make a finding in the decree as to the flow rate below which there is no longer any beneficial use of the water at the control structures for the decreed purposes.

(e) If the other elements of the appropriation are satisfied, the decree shall specify the total volume of water represented by the flow rates decreed for the recreational in-channel diversion. For purposes of this subsection (13), the "total volume of water represented by the flow rates decreed for the recreational in-channel diversion" means the sum of the flow rates claimed in cubic feet per second for each day on which a claim is made multiplied by 1.98.

(f) If the court determines that the total volume of water represented by the flow rates decreed for the recreational in-channel diversion exceeds fifty percent of the sum of the total average historical volume of water for the stream segment where the recreational in-channel diversion is located for each day on which a claim is made, the decree shall:

(I) Specify that the state engineer shall not administer a call for the recreational in-channel diversion unless the call would result in at least eighty-five percent of the decreed flow rate for the applicable time period;

(II) Limit the recreational in-channel diversion to no more than three time periods; and

(III) Specify that each time period is limited to one flow rate.

(14) No decree shall be entered adjudicating a change of conditional water rights to a recreational in-channel diversion.

(15) Water rights for recreational in-channel diversions, when held by a municipality or others, shall not constitute a use of water for domestic purposes as described in section 6 of article XVI of the state constitution.

(16) In the case of an application for recreational in-channel diversions filed by a county, municipality, city and county, water district, water and sanitation district, water conservation district, or water conservancy district filed on or after January 1, 2001, the applicant shall retain its original priority date for such a right, but shall submit a copy of the application to the Colorado water conservation board for review and recommendation as provided in section 37-92-102 (6). The board's recommendation shall become a part of the record to be considered by the water court as provided in subsection (13) of this section.

(17) (a) Applicants for approval of a rotational crop management contract shall pay the state engineer the following fees:

(I) An application fee of one thousand seven hundred thirty-four dollars;

(II) A fee of six hundred seventeen dollars that is due annually beginning one year after submittal of the application until the application has been decreed by the water judge pursuant to section 37-92-308 (4); and

(III) An annual fee of three hundred dollars per year after the application has been decreed.

(b) The state engineer shall transmit the fees to the state treasurer, who shall deposit them in the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

(4) Section 2 of chapter 54, Session Laws of Colorado 2012, provides that the act adding subsection (3.5) applies to applications for simple changes in a surface point of diversion filed on or after March 22, 2012.

(5) Section 13 of chapter 197, Session Laws of Colorado 2012, provides that the act amending subsection (17)(b) applies to revenues credited on or after July 1, 2012.

(6) Section 3 of chapter 15, Session Laws of Colorado 2012, provides that the act adding subsection (12)(c) applies to substitute supply plans approved and augmentation plans decreed on or after August 8, 2012.

Annotator's note. Since § 37-92-305 is similar to repealed §§ 148-9-10 and 148-9-22, C.R.S. 1963, §§ 147-9-22, 147-9-25, and 147-10-8, CRS 53, CSA. C. 90, §§ 189(22) and 190, and laws antecedent to CSA, C. 90, § 104, relevant cases construing those provisions have been included in the annotations to this section.

Decree in water adjudication confirms that steps have been completed to effect appropriation. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

The Water Right Determination and Administration Act creates two levels of adversary involvement in a water adjudication involving a proposed plan for augmentation or a change of water right: (1) Permission to file a statement of opposition; and (2) standing to assert injury. The first is available to "any person" and allows such person to participate to the extent of holding the applicant to a standard of "strict proof". The second, however, requires the objector to show that he or she has a legally protected interest in a vested water right or conditional decree. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Exempt "602" wells are "vested water rights" for purposes of subsection (3). Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

A homeowners association has standing to challenge the adequacy of an applicant's augmentation plan to protect its members' vested ground water rights against injury because the association itself is a "person", its members have standing and some of them filed for adjudication of their domestic exempt wells, the interests the association seeks to protect are germane to the association's purpose, and the litigation does not require the participation of the individual homeowners. Buffalo Park Dev. Co. v. Mtn. Mut. Reservoir Co., 195 P.3d 674 (Colo. 2008).

Where an applicant's augmentation plan relied on precipitation recharge to avoid injury to well users, the record showed declining aquifer levels and that the opposers had redrilled their wells to greater depths, and the applicant's own expert witness testified that if precipitation recharge was sufficient to exceed withdrawals then the aquifer level should not be falling, the record supported the water court's determination that the augmentation plan failed to prevent injury. Buffalo Park Dev. Co. v. Mtn. Mut. Reservoir Co., 195 P.3d 674 (Colo. 2008).

In adjudication and change of water rights, court applies subsection (3) standards. There is a strong public interest in adjudication and change of water rights, and in such proceedings the court must apply the standards of subsection (3). Town of Breckenridge v. City & County of Denver, 620 P.2d 1048 (Colo. 1980).

Court cannot reopen decree on predetermined "equitable" terms. A trial court is not free to reopen a water decree on terms which the complainant itself predetermines to be "equitable". Town of Breckenridge v. City & County of Denver, 620 P.2d 1048 (Colo. 1980).

While a decree that erroneously determined that the source of water was nontributary or independent of other priorities is protected by res judicata as long as the water right is operated in conformity with the decree, an application for a change of water right reopens the prior decree for determina- tion of the true nature of the source of the water. The applicant failed both to demonstrate that the water was developed rather than salvaged water and to quantify the historic consumptive use of the water, and so the application was properly dismissed. Ready Mixed Concrete Co. v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 115 P.2d 638 (Colo. 2005).

All appropriations of water, and all decrees determining the respective rights of users, regardless of whether specific mention be made therein, are subject to all constitutional and statutory provisions and restrictions designed for the protection of junior appropriators from the same stream. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

A junior appropriator may not divert the water to which he is entitled to any method or means the result of which will be to diminish or interfere with the right of a senior appropriator to full use of this appropriation. City of Colo. Springs v. Bender, 148 Colo. 458, 366 P.2d 552 (1961).

Junior appropriators with vested rights in underground water tributary to a natural stream are entitled to protection against injury resulting in another water user's change of rights. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

In considering whether it is necessary for applicants to compensate vested rights for stream impacts, a court must evaluate whether, in light of the proposed withdrawals, holders of other water rights will be protected from injury with respect to the amount of water they are entitled to receive and the location and time at which they are to receive it. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

Detailed findings of injury required. Water court erred in failing to enter specific, detailed findings of injury to other appropriators, if any, caused by diminished return flows due to either a change in direct-flow or storage rights, and in failing to enter the additional modifications and conditions in the final decrees to prevent or compensate such injuries to other users. S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co., 720 P.2d 133 (Colo. 1986).

District court's failure to consider that because of the fluctuating and unpredictable nature of urban runoff, water may not be available at the times that senior users are affected by the depletions, rendered inadequate its conclusion that the applicants' pumping of their decreed amounts of water from the aquifer will not be injurious after their withdrawals cease. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

Case remanded to the district court to consider whether holders of water rights will be injuriously affected by post-withdrawal stream depletions, since existence of injury cannot be determined as a matter of law and the issue of injurious effect is inherently fact specific and requires factual findings. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

State engineer's argument that the stream depletions caused by the applicants' withdrawals would be injurious as a matter of law rejected since this is a question involving facts that must be determined by the district court. State Eng'r v. Castle Meadows, Inc., 856 P.2d 496 (Colo. 1993).

Burden of applicant to establish historical use. Where expansion of a water use is the injury asserted, establishment of historical use is the burden of the applicant. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

The legal principles are the same whether appropriations are for underground or surface water. City of Colo. Springs v. Bender, 148 Colo. 458, 366 P.2d 552 (1961).

Foreign water is exempt from the restrictions of subsection (3). Approval of the change of use of foreign water does not require compliance with the "no-injury" requirement. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

To ensure the protection of vested water rights or a decreed conditional water right, the parties may suggest and the water court may impose conditions on the change in use of a water right, including the dry-up of previously irrigated lands. However, the dry-up is required only to the extent that it is necessary to prevent injury to water rights. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Given the factual nature of the injury inquiry, the water court's factual determinations and conclusions based thereon cannot be disturbed on appeal if they are based on the record. Accordingly, the appeals court affirmed the trial court's determination and declined to require any additional dry-up conditions. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Prior to the enactment of subsection (4.5), which provides that the terms and conditions applicable to changes of use of water rights from agricultural irrigation to other beneficial uses include reasonable provisions be made to accomplish the revegetation of lands from which irrigation water is removed, the water courts had the discretion to require revegetation. Subsection (4.5) was intended to codify and institutionalize the use of revegetation conditions and did not represent the creation of a new form of condition on changes in use of water rights. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

In addition to the dual focus on maximum beneficial use and the protection of water rights, water judges must give consideration to the potential impact of the utilization of water on other resources. Maximum utilization must be implemented so as to ensure that water resources are utilized in harmony with the protection of other valuable state resources. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

An applicant must bear the initial burden of showing absence of injurious effect from a changed water right. Only if the applicant can make a prima facie showing of no injury does the burden of going forward shift to objectors to show evidence of potential injury. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

All vested water rights affected by the proposed change in use must be protected against injury. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Water quality regulation that affects water rights without causing material injury or impairment is not necessarily prohibited. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Priority date of ultimate appropriation relates back to date of "first step" only if appropriation has been completed with reasonable diligence. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Amity Mut. Irr. Co., 688 P.2d 1110 (Colo. 1984); Closed Basin Landowners Ass'n v. Rio Grande, 734 P.2d 627 (Colo. 1987); Bd. of Comm'rs v. Crystal Creek Homeowner's Ass'n, 14 P.3d 325 (Colo. 2000).

The priority date for an application for a 4.1 c.f.s. exchange cannot relate back to a date when the exchange was operated at 0.24 c.f.s. Because of the discrepancy between 0.24 c.f.s. and 4.1 c.f.s., the previous operation is contrary to the manner in which the exchange has been administered, and the operation failed to sufficiently notify third parties of the intent to appropriate. Colo. Water Conservation Bd. v. City of Central, 125 P.3d 424 (Colo. 2005).

Where changes in projected reservoir enlargement program are dictated for most part by finances and required engineering changes, changes are permissible providing overall plan is not drastically altered or abandoned; priority date is not affected by such changes. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co., 181 Colo. 53, 506 P.2d 1226 (1973).

Historical reservoir releases, rather than a pro rata share of a full reservoir fill, are the proper measure for changes of storage rights. Burlington Ditch, Reservoir & Land Co. v. Englewood, 256 P.3d 645 (Colo. 2011).

Where evidence shows and court finds that applicant demonstrated its intent to enlarge reservoir by its survey in 1930 and that intent was never abandoned, applicant's failure to include any mention of intent to enlarge in 1935 adjudication when it obtained absolute decree for diversion system did not indicate that its intent to complete enlargement of reservoir was nonexistent at that time. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co., 181 Colo. 53, 506 P.2d 1226 (1973).

Water right is a property right. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

Water rights governed by water deed. Where a landowner's rights were determined by the terms of a water deed through and on which his claim for water is based, he had a right to use water at such times, manner, and place as is provided in the water deed, and his rights were governed by the water deed and not by subsection (3). Merrick v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 621 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1981).

Effect of arguing pollution would be harmful to future lot owners. Where the argument was that the pollution from a plan for augmentation would be harmful to the now unknown future owners of lots in the subdivisions, this issue did not affect the present parties and therefore did not come within the court's contemplation. Kelly Ranch v. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 191 Colo. 65, 550 P.2d 297 (1976).

Presumption regarding historic use. Applicants for a change of water rights are entitled to a presumption that water was historically used by shareholders on the basis to which they were legally entitled to use such water. Matter of Application for Water Rights, 688 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1984).

Applied in Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co. v. City of Aspen, 192 Colo. 209, 568 P.2d 45 (1977); Kuiper v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry., 195 Colo. 557, 581 P.2d 293 (1978); Town of De Beque v. Enewold, 199 Colo. 110, 606 P.2d 48 (1980); Broyles v. Fort Lyon Canal Co., 638 P.2d 244 (Colo. 1981); Great Western Sugar v. Jackson Lake Reservoir, 681 P.2d 484 (Colo. 1984); FWS Land & Cattle Co. v. State Div. of Wildlife, 795 P.2d 837 (Colo. 1990).

II. CONDITIONAL WATER RIGHTS.

Conditional water rights in nontributary ground water. Language of subsection (11) authorizes water courts to limit the exercise of conditional water right decrees in nontributary ground water entered before July 1, 1985, by making the doctrine of prior appropriation inapplicable to such conditional water rights, as well as those entered thereafter, removing the reasonable diligence requirement associated with prior appropriation for such water rights, and allowing the water courts to retain jurisdiction over such rights to adjust withdrawal determinations based on local aquifer characteristics. The application of this subsection to conditional water rights entered prior to July 1, 1985, operates as a reasonable limitation on the exercise of a conditional water right and does not operate retrospectively in violation of article II, section 11, of the Colorado Constitution. Qualls, Inc. v. Berryman, 789 P.2d 1095 (Colo. 1990).

Although legislature cannot prohibit appropriation or diversion of unappropriated water for useful purposes, it may regulate manner in which appropriation or diversion is effected. Fox v. Division Eng. for Water Div. 5, 810 P.2d 644 (Colo. 1991).

Consent decree requiring approval of secretary of interior as condition precedent to adjudication of exchange rights did not violate Colorado water law. Application of City & County of Denver, 935 F.2d 1143 (10th Cir. 1991).

Purpose of a conditional water decree has always been to allow an ultimate appropriation of water to relate back to the time of the "first step" toward that appropriation. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 646 P.2d 383 (Colo. 1982); Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

Conditional water decrees are designed to establish that the "first step" toward appropriation of certain amount of water has been taken and to allow the relation back to the ultimate appropriation to the date of that "first step". Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Amity Mut. Irr. Co., 688 P.2d 1110 (Colo. 1984); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

Section plainly indicates legislative intent to require demonstration that decreed conditional appropriation is being pursued, such as would justify a continued reservation of the antedated priority. Dallas Creek Water Co. v. Huey, 933 P.2d 27 (Colo. 1997).

A conditional water decree requires an intent to appropriate and an overt, physical act constituting the first step toward diversion and application to a beneficial use. Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

The "first step" for relation back of conditional water decree requires intent to appropriate a definite quantity for beneficial use and an overt manifestation of intent through physical acts constituting notice to third parties. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Amity Mut. Irr. Co., 688 P.2d 1110 (Colo. 1984); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

To show the first step toward appropriation of water, the applicant must show the concurrence of intent and overt acts. The date on which the first step is taken determines the date of the appropriation. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

The overt acts required under the first step test must perform the following three functions: (1) Manifest the necessary intent to appropriate water to beneficial use; (2) Demonstrate the taking of a substantial step toward the application of water to beneficial use; and (3)

Give notice to interested parties of the nature and extent of the proposed demand upon the water supply. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Acts which demonstrate a substantial step toward application of water to a beneficial use and acts which constitute notice to third parties of the proposed demand upon the water supply may precede the formation of the intent to appropriate and an act manifesting such intent. However, the appropriation date of a conditional water right cannot be set prior to the formation of the necessary intent to appropriate and completion of an act manifesting such intent. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Filing of an application of a conditional water right may be evidence of an act manifesting the intent to appropriate and it may be deemed to constitute notice to third parties of the proposed demand upon the water supply, but it is doubtful that filing of an application is, by itself, a substantial step toward application of water to a beneficial use. Other overt acts would normally be required. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

Relevant measures toward the application of water to beneficial use need not be physical acts. Such measures could be formal acts which perform one or more of the required functions. Formal acts would include planning which is focused on appropriation of water, studies, expenditures of human and financial capital, applying for various water permits, other related legal or quasi-legal filings apart from the conditional water rights application, or passage of resolutions if the applicant is a public entity. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

"First step" toward a perfect appropriation not found where there is a lack of privity between irrigation company and dam builder. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Amity Mut. Irr. Co., 688 P.2d 1110 (Colo. 1984).

Making of a survey constitutes a sufficient first step in a major diversion project for the award of a conditional decree. Oak Creek Power Co. v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 182 Colo. 389, 514 P.2d 323 (1973).

One who has taken the necessary first step to initiate an appropriation of waters and subsequent thereto has proceeded with diligence to finance and construct the works necessary to make an application of water to beneficial use, is entitled to a conditional decree defining his rights as of the date of the first step taken. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. White River Elec. Ass'n, 151 Colo. 45, 376 P.2d 158 (1962).

In order to establish that water is to be diverted for beneficial use, applicant for conditional water rights must show that "first step" has been taken to apply water to a beneficial use and such first step may be taken by a physical act or a formal act such as planning or study. City of Thornton v. City of Fort Collins, 830 P.2d 915 (Colo. 1992).

A project in which large amounts of water are proposed to be diverted and transported over long distances will require a greater demonstration of sufficient activity to demonstrate the “first step” than a small project tapping a very limited water supply. Thus, in light of the limited scale of a proposed appropriation, where a decree for conditional water rights is sought for 0.01 cubic feet per second, the actions of digging around a spring and installing pipes and a barrel constitutes a first substantial act taken towards placing water to beneficial use. Vought v. Stucker Mesa Domestic Pipeline Co., 76 P.3d 906 (Colo. 2003).

A second visit to the site of a proposed diversion and the use of a global positioning system to locate the point of a proposed diversion is not sufficient to place other appropriators on inquiry notice of the nature and scope of the proposed appropriation, thus the requisite inquiry notice required to show the “first step” was not provided until the time of filing the water court application. Vought v. Stucker Mesa Domestic Pipeline Co., 76 P.3d 906 (Colo. 2003).

Municipal use of water has always been deemed a beneficial use and is given priority over other competing beneficial uses by the general assembly. Matter of Bd. of County Comm’rs, 891 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1995).

One who is entitled to a conditional decree defining his rights to water for future application to use has a vested right which he may protect in case of any action by others to destroy or injure that right. Rocky Mt. Power Co. v. White River Elec. Ass’n, 151 Colo. 45, 376 P.2d 158 (1962).

A conditional surface decree will not result in injury to senior appropriators if it does not authorize diversions out of priority, but such decree should not issue without a plan for augmentation. Southeastern Colo. Water v. City of Florence, 688 P.2d 715 (Colo. 1984).

Finding that an application for a change of water right was noninjurious where the application applied to same amount of water as was previously decreed in conditional water right was proper under this section. City of Thornton v. Clear Creek Water Users Alliance, 859 P.2d 1348 (Colo. 1993).

Where record established that injury would result from proposed enlargement of reservoir, a plan for augmentation for approval or evidence that the appellants had joined an organization which had an approved plan for augmentation must be submitted prior to an award of a conditional water storage right. Lionelle v. S. E. Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 676 P.2d 1162 (Colo. 1984).

No showing of diversion and application to a beneficial use was necessary prior to the entry of conditional decrees. Taussig v. Moffat Tunnel Water & Dev. Co., 106 Colo. 384, 106 P.2d 363 (1940).

Subsection (9)(b) requires proof that water will be diverted and that the project will be completed with diligence before a decree of conditional right is issued. Southeastern Colo. Water v. City of Florence, 688 P.2d 715 (Colo. 1984); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

By enacting the “can and will” requirement of subsection (9)(b), the general assembly intended to reduce speculation associated with claims for conditional decrees and to increase the certainty of the administration of water rights in Colorado. In re Gibbs, 856 P.2d 798 (Colo. 1993); Matter of Bd. of County Comm’rs, 891 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1995); City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

An applicant may rely on the potential right of private condemnation in satisfying the “can and will” requirement unless the record clearly indicates that there are no circumstances under which the applicant may obtain access to the property necessary to finalize the conditionally approved right. In re Gibbs, 856 P.2d 798 (Colo. 1993).

A city council’s adoption of a non-binding general resolution to deny third parties access to the city’s real estate for water projects in which the city did not participate is not a final denial of access to a particular reservoir site with regard to a specific project, and an applicant’s lack of current access to a reservoir site is not typically dispositive of whether the “can and will” test is satisfied. City of Black Hawk v. City of Central, 97 P.3d 951 (Colo. 2004).

Where a third party had successfully decreed conditional water rights for three reservoir sites that significantly overlapped an applicant’s proposed reservoirs and the third party held a 99-year lease on the sites that left the lessor with no meaningful discretion to refuse to grant the third party a right of way for the reservoirs, the water court properly dismissed the application for failure to satisfy the “can and will” test. Even though the third party’s lease was nonexclusive, the lessee had the right to control the stored water, which precluded the lessor from granting the applicant a lease for the storage sites because doing so would unreasonably interfere with the lessee’s rights. Lack of access to a reservoir site is not a technical ground in a rigid application of the can and will test; it is, rather, a substantial impediment. City of Aurora v. ACJ P’ship, 209 P.3d 1076 (Colo. 2009).

Subsection (9)(b) requires proof that water will be diverted and that project will be completed with diligence prior to issuance of conditional decree for water right, and decree was properly denied due to lack of plan for augmentation which would have established such proof. Fox v. Div. Eng'r for Water Div. 5, 810 P.2d 644 (Colo. 1991).

Court properly dismissed application for conditional exchange decree upon finding that applicants had no present intent to build reservoir which was key to the exchange plan and, therefore, applicants did not satisfy "can and will" requirements of subsection (9)(b). Such finding is neither inconsistent with nor does it constitute a collateral attack on a 1987 storage decree obtained by applicants, as finding in 1987 that applicants had necessary intent when the storage decree was secured did not speak to applicants' subsequent actions and intent. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

An applicant for conditional appropriative rights of exchange need not currently own or control all sources of substitute water supply at the time the decree was entered, and whether the applicant took the required first step toward acquiring control and whether it can and will acquire such control must be determined on a source-by-source rather than a project-wide basis. Centennial Water & Sanitation Dist. v. City & County of Broomfield, 256 P.3d 677 (Colo. 2011).

The "can and will" requirement should be construed to require an applicant to show a substantive probability that the facility will be completed with due diligence. Matter of Bd. of County Comm'rs, 891 P.2d 952 (Colo. 1995).

"Can and will" test applies until a right matures into an absolute decree, and thus the test must be met by an applicant for a finding of reasonable diligence. Municipal Subdist., Northern Colo. Water Conservancy District v. OXY USA, Inc., 990 P.2d 701 (Colo. 1999).

"Can and will" provision of the statute requires the applicant to establish a substantial probability that, within a reasonable time the facilities necessary to effect the appropriation can and will be completed with diligence, and that as a result, waters will be applied to a beneficial use. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996); W. Elk Ranch v. United States, 65 P.3d 479 (Colo. 2002).

Thornton established a nonspeculative intent to put the northern project water to beneficial use and, through its substantial investment in the project, showed a commitment to completing the appropriations by application of water to a beneficial use. Thornton's evidence of factors supporting the substantial probability of future completion is sufficient to outweigh the presence of future contingencies. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The water court improperly approved speculative appropriations of both direct flow and storage rights to address potential future federal bypass flow requirements, recreational in-channel diversions, and instream flow rights where such potential is purely hypothetical. On remand, the district will also need to introduce additional evidence, including an analysis of projected land uses, to support its population projections and corresponding water demand assessment, which greatly exceed those in the Colorado water conservation board's statewide water supply study. Pagosa Area Water & Sanitation Dist. v. Trout Unlimited, 219 P.3d 774 (Colo. 2009).

Firm contractual commitments to supply water are insufficient, in and of themselves, to support an application for a conditional water right even for a governmental applicant where delivery of the water pursuant to the contracts has never been sought, there has been no showing of any specific plan to put the water to beneficial use, and the applicant already has sufficient water for its reasonably anticipated needs. Upper Yampa Water Conserv. v. Dequine Family, 249 P.3d 794 (Colo. 2011).

Water court properly found that the county failed to prove that it "can and will" complete the Union Park project where it failed to prove that the United States would grant a permit for a pumping plant because its proposed use would disrupt decreed rights and would require a major operational change of the Taylor Park reservoir to continue meeting its designed purposes. Bd. of Comm'rs v. Crystal Creek Homeowner's Ass'n, 14 P.3d 325 (Colo. 2000).

To meet the water availability prong of the "can and will" test, a junior in-basin appropriator in the Gunnison basin upstream from the Aspinall Unit need not prove a subordination contract with the federal bureau of reclamation, but rather must merely show that a sufficient portion of the original 60,000 acre-foot depletion allowance associated with the Aspinall Unit remains unused. Mount Emmons Mining Co. v. Town of Crested Butte, 40 P.3d 1255 (Colo. 2002).

Where an applicant establishes that its system design can accommodate, through storage or other means, any differences between decreed flow rates and lesser carrying capacity at points of ultimate delivery, the record does not establish a shortfall in the entire water system capacity and therefore does not act as a barrier to a finding that Thornton can and will divert at the decreed rate. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The "reality checks" imposed by the court on Thornton with regard to its existing water rights were correct because Thornton's conduct with regard to its existing water rights may be indicative of the reality of the need for the newly decreed rights. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Actual good faith work on the overall facilities necessary to consummate the ultimate goal is a part of the diligence required to continue a conditional decree and to have it ripen into an absolute decree. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

Work in one drainage basin cannot provide the necessary notice to initiate an appropriation of water out of a wholly separate drainage basin, no matter how integrated the proposed projects may be in theory and ultimate development. Denver v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 696 P.2d 730 (Colo. 1985).

A statutory diligence determination is made solely on the basis of factual issues as presented by the evidence, and where factual issues are involved, a trial court's findings are binding upon the appellate court if there is any competent evidence in the record to support that finding. Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

Applicant has the burden of proving reasonable diligence by a preponderance of the evidence. Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

Party seeking to establish reasonable diligence with respect to a conditional water right does not have the burden of proof regarding the economic feasibility of a particular project; rather such economic feasibility is one factor to be considered in a finding of reasonable diligence. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Blue River Irr., 782 P.2d 792 (Colo. 1989); Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bd. of Water Works, 831 P.2d 470 (Colo. 1992).

The statutory requisite of due diligence is met, during the period of the pendency of adjudication proceedings and until a conditional decree is awarded, by diligent action of the claimant in seeking to have his claim allowed and opposing in good faith the allowance of other claims which would, if allowed, be senior in point of time. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

Whether future work will satisfy future diligence is a matter to be determined in the future at hearings provided for in this section. Metro. Sub. Water Users Ass'n v. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist., 148 Colo. 173, 365 P.2d 273 (1961).

Question of diligence must be determined in light of all factors present in particular case, including size and complexity of project; extent of construction season; availability of materials, labor, and equipment; economic ability of claimant; and intervention of outside delaying factors such as wars, strikes, and litigation. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co., 181 Colo. 53, 506 P.2d 1226 (1973); Mun. Subdistrict v. Rifle Ski Corp., 726 P.2d 635 (Colo. 1986).

Where survey includes reservoir enlargement in question, it constitutes sufficient first step for award of conditional decree. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co., 181 Colo. 53, 506 P.2d 1226 (1973).

As long as water system as whole is being completed with due diligence, fact that small part of it is slow to progress is inconsequential. Colo. River Water Conservation Dist. v. Twin Lakes Reservoir & Canal Co., 181 Colo. 53, 506 P.2d 1226 (1973).

Filing deadlines of § 37-92-301 (4) are not modified by this section. Bar 70 Enters. Inc. v. Highland Ditch Ass'n, 694 P.2d 1253 (Colo. 1985).

A water court's failure to give notice of a cancellation of a conditional water right pursuant to subsection (7) of this section, when the holder of the right fails to file a due diligence application pursuant to § 37-92-301(4), extends the time period in which the due diligence application may be filed and does not result in the cancellation of such right. Double RL Co. v. Telluray Ranch Props., 54 P.3d 908 (Colo. 2002).

Applicant not entitled to notice pursuant to subsection (7) when a stipulated decree provides a deadline for a filing to perfect conditional water rights and the remedy for failure to file is abandonment. Cherokee Metro. Dist. v. Upper Black Squirrel Creek Designated Ground Water Mgmt. Dist., 247 P.3d 567 (Colo. 2011).

III. CHANGING POINT OF DIVERSION.

It is recognized that water is a property right, subject to sale and conveyance, and that under proper conditions not only may the point of diversion be changed, but likewise the manner of use. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Language of this section encourages productive use of decreed rights. If a holder of a decreed water right can put the water to better use by obtaining an amendment to the decree, such conduct should be encouraged if the proposed change will cause no injury to other users or owners of water rights. Application for Water Rights, 799 P.2d 33 (Colo. 1990).

The water court may grant an application for a change in the point of diversion only upon the applicant demonstrating that the proposed change will not injuriously affect the vested rights of other water users. Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Applicant has burden to show injury will not result. It is the burden of the applicant desiring to change the point of diversion or place of use of a water right to show that injury will not result from a proposed change. Weibert

v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

The burden of showing absence of injurious effect is upon the applicant. In re Rominiecki v. McIntyre Livestock Corp., 633 P.2d 1064 (Colo. 1981); S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981); S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co., 720 P.2d 133 (Colo. 1986).

Burden of proof. Burden on applicants for a change in water rights to establish the lack of injurious results from proposed change, but once a prima facie case of no injury is made, burden shifts to objectors to show evidence of potential injury. Matter of Application for Water Rights, 688 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1984).

If injury will result from application, applicant may propose terms to prevent. If the water judge determines that injury will result from a proposed change in the point of diversion or place of use of a water right, the applicant and the persons opposed to the application must be given an opportunity to propose terms or conditions which would prevent the injurious effect. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

"Duty of water" limits right to change point of diversion. The right to change a point of diversion or type of use with respect to water rights decreed for irrigation purposes is limited to the "duty of water" with respect to the decreed place of use. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

One of incidents of water right is right to change point of diversion or place of use. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

Junior appropriators have a vested right to the continuation of stream conditions as they existed at the time of their appropriations, with the result that an application for a change in the point of diversion is always subject to the limitation that such change not injure the rights of junior appropriators. Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

City has a right to change its point of diversion if it can do so without injury to others or if reasonable conditions can be attached to prevent such an effect. Boulder & White Rock Ditch & Reservoir Co. v. City of Boulder, 157 Colo. 197, 402 P.2d 71 (1965).

Change in water rights should be permitted where proposed conditions to request for a change will serve to prevent injury to the water rights of other parties. Matter of Application for Water Rights, 688 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1984).

Change of right without injurious effect should be permitted. If a proposed condition will permit a change of water right to be accomplished without injuriously affecting the owner of or persons entitled to use water under a vested water right or decreed conditional water right, the change should be permitted on that condition. In re Rominiecki v. McIntyre Livestock Corp., 633 P.2d 1064 (Colo. 1981).

A change in the place of use of a water right may be allowed only when the change will not cause unreasonable harm to a prior appropriator. Danielson v. Kerbs AG., Inc., 646 P.2d 363 (Colo. 1982).

The right to have the change depends upon, and must be controlled by, the facts of each particular case. Vogel v. Minnesota Canal & Reservoir Co., 47 Colo. 534, 107 P. 1108 (1910); New Cache La Poudre Irrigating Co. v. Water Supply & Storage Co., 49 Colo. 1, 111 P. 610 (1910); Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. Town of Lafayette, 93 Colo. 173, 24 P.2d 756 (1933); Flasche v. Westcolo Co., 112 Colo. 387, 149 P.2d 817 (1944).

The question what will be the effect of the change, whether injurious or harmless, is the ultimate fact to be determined from evidence of the conditions which have previously prevailed and the conditions which will ensue if the change is permitted. The opinions of witnesses not based upon any facts or conditions in evidence will not satisfy the rule nor make a prima facie case. Monte Vista Canal Co. v. Centennial Irrigating Ditch Co., 24 Colo. App. 496, 135 P. 981 (1913).

It is not error to permit a change of the point of diversion, in an original proceeding for the adjudication of the water rights upon a particular stream, all parties in interest being present, and no prejudice to those complaining being shown. Phillips Inv. Co. v. Cole, 27 Colo. App. 540, 150 P. 331 (1915).

An appropriator may not change his point of diversion except upon conditions which eliminate injury to other appropriators. Metro. Denver Sewage Disposal Dist. No. 1 v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 179 Colo. 36, 499 P.2d 1190 (1972).

The cases contemplate a relative evaluation of rights with a view to protection of vested junior rights. Hallenbeck v. Granby Ditch & Reservoir Co., 144 Colo. 485, 357 P.2d 358 (1960).

Junior appropriators have vested rights in the continuation of stream conditions as they existed at the time of their respective appropriations, and that subsequent to such appropriations they may successfully resist all proposed changes in points of diversion and use of water from that source which in any way materially injures or adversely affects their rights. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Junior appropriator has a right to assume that these are fixed conditions and will so remain, at least without substantial change, unless it appears that a proposed change will not work harm to his vested rights. Shawcroft v. Terrace Irrigation Co., 138 Colo. 343, 333 P.2d 1043 (1958).

A third party's contractual agreement not to place a call is not a change of a water right, and so a junior has no right to maintain stream conditions created by the historical use of the call, nor does a presumption of injury attach to an agreement not to place a call. City of Englewood v. Burlington Ditch, Reservoir & Land Co., 235 P.3d 1061 (Colo. 2010).

Automatic cessation of diversions by junior appropriator not contemplated. Sections 37-92-501 and 37-92-502 do not contemplate automatic cessation of diversions by a junior appropriator in response to a river call. S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Division engineer evaluates each junior appropriator's diversion to determine material injury caused. The statutory plan in §§ 37-92-501 and 37-92-502 contemplates that the division engineer will evaluate each junior appropriator's diversion to determine whether it is causing material injury to water rights having senior priorities before ordering the discontinuance of the diversion by the junior appropriator. S.E. Colo. Water Cons. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Except on streams in which the appropriations have not exceeded the constant supply, few instances arise in which the change of place of diversion of large quantities of water, for a long distance, can be made without substantial injury to juniors, and the utmost care and scrutiny should be exercised to guard against such injury. Shawcroft v. Terrace Irrigation Co., 138 Colo. 343, 333 P.2d 1043 (1958).

The inherent right to change the point of diversion includes not only the right to change without condition, if such change can be made without substantial injury to the vested rights of others, but also the right to change subject to conditions, if injury to rights of others may thereby be avoided, and if such injury appear, the court shall decree the change only upon such terms and conditions as may be necessary to prevent such injurious effects; and, if impossible to make such terms and conditions, the application must be denied. The statute affirms that right. City of Colo. Springs v. Yust, 126 Colo. 289, 249 P.2d 151 (1952); Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Where a trial court finds that if a change in the point of diversion of a water right be granted, the vested rights of others will be injured, it has a duty, under this section, to also find that such injury cannot be prevented by the imposition of terms and conditions. Means v. Pratt, 138 Colo. 214, 331 P.2d 805 (1958).

Where the trial court found that change of the point of diversion of petitioner's appropriation would result in some injury to junior appropriators, it was incumbent upon that court to devise a method whereby such junior rights could be fully compensated for injuries suffered, and if such relief could not be afforded, to deny the petition. DeHerrera v. Manassa Land & Irrigation Co., 151 Colo. 528, 379 P.2d 405 (1963).

One who asserts the right to a change in the place of diversion has the burden of proving that the change will not injuriously affect the vested rights of others, although this may involve the proof of a negative. New Cache La Poudre Irrigating Co. v. Water Supply & Storage Co., 49 Colo. 1, 111 P. 610 (1908); Vogel v. Minnesota Canal & Reservoir Co., 47 Colo. 534, 107 P. 1108 (1910); Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. v. Wolff, 23 Colo. App. 570, 131 P. 291 (1913); Monte Vista Canal Co. v. Centennial Irrigating Ditch Co., 24 Colo. App. 496, 135 P. 981 (1913); Baca Ditch Co. v. Coulson, 70 Colo. 192, 198 P. 272 (1921); Hoehne Ditch Co. v. Martinez, 71 Colo. 428, 207 P. 859 (1922); San Luis Valley Irrigation Dist. v. Carr, 79 Colo. 340, 245 P. 705 (1926); Trinchera Ranch Co. v. Trinchera Irrigation Dist., 83 Colo. 451, 266 P. 204 (1928); In re Priority of Rights to Use of Water in Water Dist. No. 20, 92 Colo. 407, 21 P.2d 177 (1933); Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. Town of Lafayette, 93 Colo. 173, 24 P.2d 756 (1933); Shawcroft v. Terrace Irrigation Co., 138 Colo. 343, 333 P.2d 1043 (1958).

In a proceeding by a water user to change the point of diversion and where protests have been made, the burden rests upon the petitioner to meet the grounds of injury asserted by the protestants and produce evidence from which the court will be satisfied that injury to protestants can be avoided by the imposition of terms. Terliamis v. Cerise, 133 Colo. 329, 295 P.2d 224 (1956).

Burden of proof on petitioner in a proceeding for change of point of diversion requires him to meet only the grounds of injury to protestants asserted by them. City of Colo. Springs v. Yust, 126 Colo. 289, 249 P.2d 151 (1952).

Actual impairment of irreparable injury to the rights of the junior appropriator must be demonstrated by evidential facts and not by potentialities. Cline v. McDowell, 132 Colo. 37, 284 P.2d 1056 (1955).

At his own point of diversion on a natural watercourse, each diverter must establish some reasonable means of effectuating his diversion; he is not entitled to command the whole or a substantial flow of the stream merely to facilitate his taking the fraction of the whole flow to which he is entitled. City of Colo. Springs v. Bender, 148 Colo. 458, 366 P.2d 552 (1961).

Priority of appropriation does not give a right to an inefficient means of diversion. City of Colo. Springs v. Bender, 148 Colo. 458, 366 P.2d 552 (1961).

Once it is established that injury will result from change in the point of diversion, then the burden is upon petitioner to present a plan or program whereby junior appropriators would be fully compensated for their injuries. DeHerrera v. Manassa Land & Irrigation Co., 151 Colo. 528, 379 P.2d 405 (1963).

Presentation of a plan for the protection of the vested rights of junior appropriators. Hallenbeck v. Granby Ditch & Reservoir Co., 144 Colo. 485, 357 P.2d 358 (1960).

Where petitioner fails to show its proposed change with particularity, the trial court is not in a position to determine whether junior rights would be prejudiced, because the court has no gauge before it upon which to form a basis for a judgment; theorization with reference to hypothetical conditions could not serve to protect the rights of junior appropriators. Hallenbeck v. Granby Ditch & Reservoir Co., 144 Colo. 485, 357 P.2d 358 (1960).

The anti-speculation requirement of § 37-92-103 (3)(a) applies in a change proceeding; accordingly, the applicant must show a legally vested interest in the place to be served by the change of use and a specific plan and intent to use the water for specific purposes. The proposed change, to any of over 50 proposed uses in any of 28 counties without a single agreement with any end user of the water, was properly dismissed. High Plains A & M, Inc. v. S.E. Colo. Water Conservancy Dist., 120 P.3d 710 (Colo. 2005); ISG, LLC v. Arkansas Valley Ditch Ass'n, 120 P.3d 724 (Colo. 2005).

Changes of points of return of waste water are not governed by the same rules as changes of points of diversion. Metro. Denver Sewage Disposal Dist. No. 1 v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 179 Colo. 36, 499 P.2d 1190 (1972).

A decree giving a reservoir company a free hand to move its priorities, junior and senior, from one reservoir to another, without regard to the rights of junior appropriators, violates the basic and fundamental requirement of this section that a new point of diversion be specifically set forth. Hallenbeck v. Granby Ditch & Reservoir Co., 144 Colo. 485, 357 P.2d 358 (1960).

The moving of priorities in a system from one reservoir to another resulting in less flow downstream, could result in prejudice to junior appropriators by delay in overflow and time of use. Hallenbeck v. Granby Ditch & Reservoir Co., 144 Colo. 485, 357 P.2d 358 (1960).

An order permitting a change in point of diversion does not, and cannot, in any way, enlarge the right of its recipient by conferring upon him the power to divert a greater quantity of water from the stream than he theretofore took, nor permit him to use it for a longer length of time than he was previously entitled to. Larimer County Canal No. 2 Irrigating Co. v.

Poudre Valley Reservoir Co., 23 Colo. App. 249, 129 P. 248 (1913).

Where a decree is sought for change of point of diversion, it is not a question of whether the amount of water decreed was adequate, but whether it was excessive. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Diversions limited to those sufficient for purposes for which water appropriation made. There is read into every decree awarding priorities in water rights the implied limitation that diversions are limited to those sufficient for the purposes for which the appropriation was made, regardless of the fact that such limitation may be less than the decreed rate of diversion. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); In re Rominiecki v. McIntyre Livestock Corp., 633 P.2d 1064 (Colo. 1981); Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Water right owner has no right to waste water. The owner of a water right has no right as against a junior appropriator to waste water, i.e., to divert more than can be used beneficially. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); In re Rominiecki v. McIntyre Livestock Corp., 633 P.2d 1064 (Colo. 1981).

Water right owner may not extend time of diversion. The owner of a water right may not extend the time of diversion to enable him to irrigate lands in addition to those for which the water was appropriated. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); In re Rominiecki v. McIntyre Livestock Corp., 633 P.2d 1064 (Colo. 1981); Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation District, 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Doctrine that it is entirely within the right of an appropriator of water to enlarge upon his use, even on behalf of an original appropriator, may be applied only to the extent of use contemplated at the time of appropriation. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Where a decree is sought for change of point of diversion or use, the right is strictly limited to the extent of former actual usage. Green v. Chaffee Ditch Co., 150 Colo. 91, 371 P.2d 775 (1962).

Historical use limits right to change point of diversion. The right to change a point of diversion or place of use is limited in quantity and time by historical use. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Right to change point of diversion is limited in quantity by historical use. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981); Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Where an applicant sought to change the point of diversion of a well but failed to separately quantify the historic use of the well from the historic use of a surface water right on the same land, the applicant failed to carry his burden of proving the feasibility of changing the point of diversion without injury to other vested users. State Eng'r v. Bradley, 53 P.3d 1165 (Colo. 2002).

Diversions for undecreed uses cannot be the basis for a quantification of historical use for purposes of a change application, regardless of whether the water commissioner knew of the diversions or failed to curtail them. Santa Fe Ranches Prop. Owners Ass'n v. Simpson, 990 P.2d 46 (Colo. 1999).

"Historical use" defined. "Historical use", as a limitation on the right to change a point of diversion, is considered to be an application of the principle that junior appropriators have vested rights in the continuation of stream conditions as they existed at the time of their respective appropriations. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980); Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Res judicata does not prohibit the water court from considering and determining the actual extent of historical use at the original decreed points of diversion in order to properly determine the nature and extent of the applicants' water rights under an earlier decree which modified the points of diversion from ditches to wells and which contained the implied limitation that the quantity of water to be used at the new points of diversion would not exceed the amount of water decreed to and historically used at the original decreed points of diversion. Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

But claim preclusion does not prevent the water court from determining historical consumptive use when such has not been determined in a previous proceeding. Farmers High Line Canal and Reservoir Co. v. City of Golden, 975 P.2d 189 (Colo. 1999); Burlington Ditch, Reservoir & Land Co. v. Englewood, 256 P.3d 645 (Colo. 2011).

To avoid an injurious enlargement of a direct flow right, in its analysis of historic consumptive use, the water court correctly interpreted an irrigation decree as applying only to 12,000 acres between a ditch headgate and a reservoir where the decree did not describe the land on which the water was to be beneficially used but incorporated the referee's findings that described both the 12,000 acres and an "unlimited" amount of land lying below the reservoir. Further, the court correctly determined that the amount of water that could be changed in points of diversion, storage, and use should be reduced from the decreed amount of 350 cubic feet per second to 200 cubic feet per second, as that was the amount of water that the structures could actually transmit for 24 years after entry of the original decree. The water court also correctly excluded diversions made from previously undecreed points of diversion, including reservoir and ditch seepage and a diversion that was larger than the decreed point of diversion, and used appropriate study periods in the calculation of historic consumptive use. Burlington Ditch, Reservoir & Land Co. v. Englewood, 256 P.3d 645 (Colo. 2011).

A senior appropriator is not entitled to enlarge the historical use of a water right by changing the point of diversion and then diverting from the new location the full amount of water decreed to the original point of diversion, even though the historical use at the original point of diversion might have been less than the decreed rate of diversion. Orr v. Arapahoe Water & Sanitation Dist., 753 P.2d 1217 (Colo. 1988).

Additional limitations in mutual ditch company bylaw enforceable. A mutual ditch company bylaw imposing reasonable limitations, additional to those contained in this section, upon the right of a stockholder to obtain a change in the point of diversion, can be enforced. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Catlin Canal Co., 642 P.2d 501 (Colo. 1982); Matter of Water Rights of Ft. Lyon Canal, 762 P.2d 1375 (Colo. 1988).

An application for change of point of diversion of water having been judicially determined, may not again be litigated as to its injurious effects on the rights of others. City of Colo. Springs v. Yust, 126 Colo. 289, 249 P.2d 151 (1952).

Decree allowing a change in the point of diversion was reviewable by writ of error. Ft. Collins Mining & Elevator Co. v. Larimer & Weld Irrigation Co., 58 Colo. 183, 143 P. 1091 (1914).

A statutory proceeding for change of point of diversion has a limited scope and an extraneous issue cannot be litigated therein. Otto Lumber Co. v. Water Supply & Storage Co., 106 Colo. 546, 104 P.2d 605 (1940).

The construction of a channel within a stream bed to conduct the water to a headgate did not require any proceeding under the statute to authorize the change of point of diversion, and did not constitute a change of point of diversion, because plaintiffs' right to divert and use the water from the stream at the headgate of their ditch included the right to make and change the necessary dams, channels, or other diversion works within the stream bed which might be necessary to enable them to continue the diversion of water at their headgate, provided no additional burden was made upon defendants' lands thereby, and no claim is here asserted of any additional burden by virtue of the channel excavated in the stream bed, and, in any event, such claim would not be valid here, for the reason that defendants with knowledge permitted plaintiffs to construct the channel without objection. Downing v. Copeland, 126 Colo. 373, 249 P.2d 539 (1952).

In order to use an alternate point of diversion to make absolute a conditional water right at another location, there must first be a decree establishing the new source as an alternate point of diversion. This process provides notice to interested persons of a proposed new diversion point and allows for the establishment of terms and conditions that will protect other water rights. Northern Colo. Water v. Three Peaks Water, 859 P.2d 836 (Colo. 1993).

IV. FEDERAL RESERVED WATER RIGHTS.

Federal rights defined. The United States possesses reserved rights for its federal reservations in Colorado in waters unappropriated upon the date of reservation of the federal lands from the public domain, and in the amount necessary to achieve the primary purposes of the reservations. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Federal rights to be determined by Colorado law. Colorado law governing the determination of water rights is properly applied as the rule of decision by which the courts will determine the contours of the reserved rights asserted by the United States. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Federal reserved water rights take a priority equivalent to the date of the reservation. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

For extent of federal reserved water rights on different categories of public lands, see United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

V. RECREATIONAL IN-CHANNEL DIVERSIONS.

A beneficial use of water is defined to include recreational in-channel diversions, but only those recreational in-channel diversions that are limited to the minimum stream flow for a reasonable recreation experience in and on the water. The "minimum stream flow" means the least necessary stream flow to accomplish a given reasonable recreation experience in and on the water. The definition of a "reasonable recreation experience in and on the water" is ambiguous. Accordingly, the water court first must make a case-by-case determination of whether the appropriation sought by the applicant, viewed objectively, is for a reasonable recreation experience in and on the water and whether the requested flow amounts are reasonable on the particular stream. The water court then must determine the minimum amount of stream flow necessary to accomplish that intended recreation experience; an applicant is not entitled to a decree merely upon a showing of water availability. Colo. Water Conservation Bd. v. Upper Gunnison Water Conservancy Dist., 109 P.3d 585 (Colo. 2005).

Only the findings of fact of the Colorado water conservation board regarding an application for a recreational in-channel diversion are to be given presumptive effect, not the board's recommendation regarding whether the application ought to be granted, granted with conditions, or denied. The presumption creates a burden of production, which can be rebutted by the introduction of evidence. The water court then must weigh the preponderance of the evidence in evaluating the statutory factors. Colo. Water Conservation Bd. v. Upper Gunnison Water Conservancy Dist., 109 P.3d 585 (Colo. 2005).

VI. PLANS FOR AUGMENTATION.

Where an applicant's augmentation plan relied on precipitation recharge to avoid injury to well users, the record showed declining aquifer levels and that the opposers had redrilled their wells to greater depths, and the applicant's own expert witness testified that if precipitation recharge was sufficient to exceed withdrawals then the aquifer level should not be falling, the record supported the water court's determination that the augmentation plan failed to prevent injury. Buffalo Park Dev. Co. v. Mtn. Mut. Reservoir Co., 195 P.3d 674 (Colo. 2008).

Augmentation plan evaluation involves same criterion as application for changing water right. A plan for augmentation is to be approved by the water judge based on the same criterion involved in evaluating an application for a change of water right. Weibert v. Rothe Bros., 200 Colo. 310, 618 P.2d 1367 (1980).

Uncertainties are not fatal to a plan for augmentation. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 550 P.2d 288 (Colo. 1976); Kelly Ranch v. Se. Colo. Conservancy Dist., 550 P.2d 297 (Colo. 1976); Pub. Serv. Co., v. Willows Water Dist., 856 P.2d 829 (Colo. 1993).

Application for a change in use and plan of augmentation is denied when the proposal would injure vested rights of other appropriators. Matter of May, 756 P.2d 362 (Colo. 1988).

The legislative water quality scheme is not designed to protect against quality impacts unrelated to discharges or substitute water and specifically prohibits the water court from imposing the protective measures necessary to remedy depletive impacts of upstream appropriations on a downstream appropriator who is concerned that decreased water quantity caused by city's upstream appropriation will result in water quality problem. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

When actual operation of an augmentation plan supports a prima facie case that substituted water is not of a quality necessary to meet the requirements for which the water has normally been used, it was error for a water judge to refuse a senior appropriator's petition to either make a finding of injury or extend the period of retained jurisdiction without holding a hearing. City of Thornton v. City & County of Denver, 44 P.3d 1019 (Colo. 2002).

There was sufficient evidence to support the water court's decision to authorize a water district's augmentation plan to reuse water delivered to its customers for irrigation purposes. Sufficient evidence supported the water court's finding that a water district demonstrated that the water it intended to recapture was its non-tributary ground water and not water from the natural stream, and thereby proving non-injury to other holders of water rights. Despite questionable methods used by the water district to measure the water return flows, the challenging public service company did not demonstrate that the water district failed to produce sufficient evidence. Pub. Serv. Co. v. Willows Water Dist., 856 P.2d 829 (Colo. 1993).

When a decreed plan for augmentation is required under this section, the state engineer does not have statutory authority to approve a substitute supply plan for out-of-priority diversions under § 37-80-120, which section merely gives the state engineer enforcement discretion, and an injunction against such diversions absent a decree is proper. Empire Lodge Homeowners' Ass'n v. Moyer, 39 P.3d 1139 (Colo. 2001).

A plan of augmentation for a tributary aquifer that would be used as a reservoir does not qualify for the exemption from the prohibition against crediting reductions in evapotranspiration, because the aquifer is not analogous to an unlined gravel pit, and exemptions should be narrowly construed. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005).

Before an applicant for a plan of augmentation can establish an absence of injury to satisfy its prima facie case, it must first establish the timing and location of depletions and the availability of replacement to prevent injury from those depletions. Here, because the applicant's surface and groundwater models could not reliably predict the issue of injury, the applicant failed to establish its prima facie case, and the case was properly dismissed. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005).

Determination of the timing and location of depletions is integral to and is intended as an aid to the determination of injury, not an independent query that can defeat the proposed augmentation plan. Upper Eagle Reg'l Water Auth. v. Simpson, 167 P.3d 729 (Colo. 2007).

A plan for augmentation must include terms and conditions to protect a junior instream flow water right against injury caused by all out-of-priority diversions. An adjudicated in-stream flow water right, just like any other junior water right, entitles its holder to preserve the stream conditions existing at the time of the appropriation. Any other result would frustrate the clear legislative intent to protect and preserve the natural habitat through minimum stream flows. Colo. Water Conservation Bd. v. City of Central, 125 P.3d 424 (Colo. 2005).

Plan for augmentation must replace all injurious depletions made by water rights covered by the plan, not merely the depletion caused by groundwater pumping that occurs after the filing of the application. Well Augmentation Subdist. v. City of Aurora, 221 P.3d 399 (Colo. 2009).

Replacement obligations must be determined based on surface water conditions that would exist absent groundwater pumping, and an applicant cannot avoid these obligations by presenting evidence that groundwater is nontributary due to artificial conditions such as groundwater pumping. Well Augmentation Subdist. v. City of Aurora, 221 P.3d 399 (Colo. 2009).

37-92-306. Priorities junior to prior awards - when. With respect to each division described in section 37-92-201, the priority date awarded for water rights or conditional water rights adjudged and decreed on applications for a determination of the amount and priority thereof filed in such division during each calendar year shall establish the relative priority among other water rights or conditional water rights awarded on such applications filed in that calendar year; but such water rights or conditional water rights shall be junior to all water rights or conditional water rights awarded on such applications filed in any previous calendar year and shall also be junior to all priorities awarded in decrees entered prior to June 7, 1969, or decrees entered in proceedings which were pending on such date; except that, with respect to water rights which are diverted by means of wells, the priorities for which have not been established or sought in any such decree or proceeding, if the person claiming such a water right files an application for determination of water right and priority not later than July 1, 1972, and such application is approved and confirmed, such water right, subject to the provisions of section 37-92-305 (1), shall be given a priority date as of the date of actual appropriation and shall not be junior to other priorities by reason of the foregoing provision.

Postponement doctrine provides that water rights adjudicated in a previous decree are senior to water rights adjudicated in a subsequent decree on the same stream, regardless of their dates of appropriation. Because the North and South Forks of the South Platte River are separated by a high mountain range, there can be no conflict between the North and South

Fork users, and therefore it would be improper to use the postponement doctrine to treat a 1913 adjudication of North Fork rights as supplemental to an 1889 adjudication of South Fork water rights. (b) The subsequent application was made within sixty days of the prior application.

37-92-308. Substitute water supply plans - special procedures for review - water adjudication cash fund - legislative declaration - repeal. (1) The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that:

(a) There are certain circumstances under which the time required to go through the water court adjudication process can be problematic for some water users. Prior to January 1, 2002, substitute water supply plans had come into common usage for a number of water users, and based on this precedent, it appears desirable to establish some additional authority for the state engineer to approve substitute water supply plans.

(b) Prior to January 1, 2002, the general assembly gave the state engineer certain authority to approve exchanges and substitute water supply plans, including substitute water supply plans involving sand and gravel mines approved pursuant to sections 37-90-137 (11) and 37-80-120 (5); exchanges pursuant to sections 37-80-120, 37-83-104, and 37-83-106, and other statutes authorizing exchanges; and water uses that are part of the Arkansas river water bank pilot program approved pursuant to article 80.5 of this title; and this section shall not apply to such plans and exchanges.

(c) (I) Prior to January 1, 2003, the general assembly gave the state engineer administrative authority to regulate wells upon promulgation of rules for a river basin or aquifer, subject to the review of the water judge as provided in section 37-92-501 (3). The general assembly hereby ratifies the amended rules governing the diversion and use of tributary groundwater in the Arkansas river basin of Colorado, as approved by the water judge for water division 2, that became effective on June 1, 1996.

(II) On and after January 1, 2003, the state engineer shall have the authority in water division 2 to promulgate and amend well administration rules pursuant to sections 37-80-104 and 37-92-501 that include the authority to approve replacement plans that allow the continuing operation of wells causing out-of-priority depletions without requiring a plan for augmentation approved by the water judge.

(III) On and after January 1, 2003, the state engineer shall not have any authority in water division 1 to approve plans for, or to otherwise allow, the operation of wells, including augmentation wells, that cause out-of-priority depletions unless the wells are operated in accordance with plans for augmentation approved by the water judge or as allowed in this section.

(2) In addition to the authority previously granted to the state engineer, listed in subsection (1) of this section, the state engineer is authorized to review and approve substitute water supply plans only under the circumstances and pursuant to the procedures set forth in this section.

(3) (a) To provide sufficient time to fully integrate certain wells into the water court adjudication process for augmentation plans, during 2003, 2004, and 2005, the state engineer may approve annual substitute water supply plans for wells operating in the South Platte river basin that have been operating pursuant to substitute water supply plans approved before 2003, or for augmentation wells, using the procedures and standards set forth in this subsection (3). After December 31, 2005, all such wells shall comply with the provisions of subsection (4) of this section in order to continue operation under a substitute water supply plan. The general assembly finds that this three-year period is a sufficient amount of time to develop augmentation plan applications for these wells, and there shall be no subsequent extensions of this deadline. Beginning January 1, 2006, groundwater diversions from all such wells shall be continuously curtailed unless the wells are included in a plan for augmentation approved by the water judge for water division 1, are included in a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to subsection (4) of this section, or can be operated under their own priorities without augmentation.

(b) Beginning January 1, 2003, the state engineer may approve the operation of a well described in paragraph (a) of this subsection (3) under a substitute water supply plan if the following conditions are met:

(I) The well is tributary to the South Platte river, has been included in a substitute water supply plan previously approved by the state engineer or is an augmentation well, and is included in a new written request for approval of a substitute water supply plan filed with the state engineer after January 1 of each calendar year from 2003 to 2005. The written request shall be signed by a person with legal authority to represent all of the owners of the wells subject to the request and shall contain acknowledgments that the operation of all wells in the substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (3) shall cease no later than December 31, 2005, and that the wells shall be included in an application for approval of a plan for augmentation filed in the district court for water division 1 no later than December 31, 2005, in order to continue subsequent pumping, unless the wells can be operated under their own priorities without augmentation. The request shall also identify for each well, including any augmentation wells: The permit number and location; the projected use and volume of pumping; for all wells using the modified Blaney-Criddle method to determine consumptive use, the projected number of acres and crops to be irrigated; the anticipated stream depletions that affect the river after October 31, 2002, until eighteen months after the date of the request in time, location, and amount, including a detailed description of how such depletions were calculated, and shall list the identity, priority, location, and amount of all replacement water sources to be used to replace stream depletions, including both accretions and depletions attributable to any augmentation wells. Upon the request of any party who has subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for water division 1, the applicant for a substitute water supply plan shall also provide the model used to calculate stream depletions and the assumptions, input data, and output data used by the applicant in such model.

(II) The applicant has provided written notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for water division 1, and proof of such notice is filed with the state engineer. The applicant shall also provide a complete copy of the request and all accompanying information by e-mail to all parties that have provided e-mail addresses for said notification list.

(III) The state engineer has given the owners of water rights and decreed conditional water rights thirty-five days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the substitute water supply plan. Such comments shall include any claim of injury, any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the plan to prevent injury to a party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights, and any other information the opposer wishes the state engineer to consider in reviewing the substitute water supply plan request.

(IV) The state engineer, after consideration of the comments, has determined that the operation and administration of such plan will replace all out-of-priority stream depletions in time, location, and amount in a manner that will prevent injury to other water rights and decreed conditional water rights, including water quality and continuity to meet the requirements of use to which the senior appropriation has normally been put pursuant to section 37-80-120 (3), and will not impair compliance with the South Platte river compact. The state engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met. In making the determinations specified in this subparagraph (IV), the state engineer shall hold a public hearing to address the issues. The public hearing shall be held no sooner than thirty-five days and no later than forty-nine days after the date of mailing of notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan. Notice of the time and place of the hearing shall be provided no later than twenty-one days prior to the hearing to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for water division 1. At the hearing, every party shall be allotted a reasonable amount of time by the state engineer to present its case or defense by oral and documentary evidence and to conduct cross examination. At its own expense, any party may cause the hearing to be recorded by a court reporter or by an electronic recording device. Additionally, in making the determinations specified in this subparagraph (IV), the state engineer shall use the standards listed in paragraph (c) of this subsection (3) for evaluating such plans. It is the legislative intent that the adoption of these standards is only an interim compromise, to give greater certainty to senior surface water users in Colorado than past practices of the state engineer have given, until augmentation plans for these wells have been approved by the water judge for water division 1 and final determinations about the methodologies for calculating the amount and timing of stream depletions have been made by the water judge. These interim standards shall not create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any application for approval of a plan for augmentation.

(c) (I) For those irrigation wells where diversions are actually measured using water meters or verified power conversion measurements, the presumed amount of consumptive use from wells used for flood irrigation shall not be less than fifty percent of diversions, and the presumed amount of consumptive use from wells used for sprinkler irrigation shall not be less than seventy-five percent of diversions. For those irrigation wells where diversions are not actually measured, the state engineer shall determine the amount of stream depletions using actual data for the crops grown, acres irrigated, surface water deliveries, and the modified Blaney-Criddle method.

(II) The state engineer shall determine the timing of all stream depletions caused by pumping wells included in the plan using the United States geological survey stream depletion factor method for all areas covered by such factors. In other areas, the state engineer shall use appropriate groundwater models or other methods acceptable to the state engineer, based on the location of the well, the rate of pumping, the use being made of the groundwater, and the aquifer characteristics.

(III) A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (3) shall require replacement of the following out-of-priority stream depletions that result from the pumping of wells in the plan: Out-of-priority stream depletions that affect the river after October 31, 2002, from pumping that took place after January 1, 1974, but before the date of the request; and those out-of-priority stream depletions that will affect the river for the eighteen months after the date of the request; except that out-of-priority stream depletions affecting the river from November 1, 2002, through June 15, 2003, may be remedied pursuant to agreements with all injured parties that are noticed in the request and approved as a part of the substitute water supply plan or an amendment thereto. The amount of such depletions shall be separately set forth in any plan approval issued by the state engineer. A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (3) shall require that the state engineer curtail all diversions, the out-of-priority depletions from which are not replaced as required by the plan.

(IV) Existing surface water rights may be used as a replacement water source in plans requested pursuant to this subsection (3), even if such rights have not been decreed for such use, but the substitute water supply plan shall prevent expanded use of such rights by imposing appropriate limitations, including, where appropriate, volumetric limitations on direct flow rights and shall require replacement of the historical return flows, including ditch seepage losses, from the use of such surface water rights in the time, location, and amount in which they occurred so that other water rights will not be injured. A request seeking to use existing surface water rights that have not been decreed for augmentation use shall include a calculation of the historical diversions and return flows, including estimated ditch seepage losses, attributable to such rights. The presumed amount of on-farm consumptive use from irrigation water rights shall not be more than fifty percent of the amount delivered to the farms; except that if a water court application has been filed and the proposed change of water right is approved as a separate substitute water supply plan pursuant to this section, such water rights shall be used in accordance with their own substitute water supply plan.

(V) Replacement water deliveries required by the substitute water supply plan shall be provided at the time and location necessary to satisfy the lawful requirements of a senior diverter. In determining the adequacy of the substitute water supply plan to prevent injury to water rights and decreed conditional water rights, the state engineer shall determine the amount of replacement water required for and available to the plan based upon current and projected hydrologic conditions.

(VI) If a substitute water supply plan covers wells, including augmentation wells, that are also covered by a decreed plan for augmentation or a separate substitute water supply plan, the accounting methodologies required by the decree or the separate plan shall control.

(VII) Substitute water supply plans that include or allow the use of augmentation wells shall include the terms and conditions needed to account for and replace all out-of-priority stream depletions that will result from their use, including post-pumping depletions. Beginning January 1, 2006, groundwater diversions from all such augmentation wells shall be continuously curtailed unless the wells are included in a plan for augmentation approved by the water judge for water division 1, a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to subsection (4) of this section, or can be operated under their own priorities without augmentation.

(VIII) If amendments, including but not limited to the addition of more wells or the addition of different replacement water sources, are proposed to a substitute water supply plan after the initial written notice of the plan was given, the notice, comment, and hearing process described in this paragraph (c) shall be repeated for such amendments. If, in the opinion of the state engineer, an amendment is necessary to prevent immediate injury to other water rights that will occur prior to the expiration of the thirty-five-day comment period provided in subparagraph (III) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (3), the thirty-five-day comment period shall be shortened to fourteen days, the public hearing shall be held no later than twenty-eight days after the date of the mailing of notice of the request for the amendment, and the amendment may be implemented before the comment deadline and the public hearing. For amendments implemented prior to a public hearing, the state engineer shall issue a decision approving or denying the amendment no later than seven days after the conclusion of the public hearing. The state engineer may revoke or further condition the approval of any amendment after the comment and hearing process.

(IX) A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (3) shall include a requirement for monthly accounting to be compiled for every month of each year. Such accounting shall state the amount and location of the calculated depletions from all wells included in the plan, the amount, location, and source of all replacement water actually provided, and shall describe any other plan operations for that month. After the end of the water year, and no later than December 31 of each calendar year of plan operation, an annual accounting of all actual plan operations for the previous water year shall be compiled. Copies of both the monthly and annual accounting shall be provided to all parties that filed written comments concerning the plan pursuant to subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (3).

(d) A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (3) shall not be approved for a period of more than one year; except that an applicant may request the renewal of a plan by repeating the application process described in this subsection (3); except that in no case shall a plan approved pursuant to this subsection (3) be renewed beyond December 31, 2005.

(e) When the state engineer approves or denies a substitute water supply plan, the state engineer shall serve a copy of the decision on all parties to the application by first-class mail or, if such parties have so elected, by electronic mail. Every decision of the state engineer shall provide a detailed statement of the basis and rationale for the decision, including a complete explanation of how all stream depletions were calculated, the location where they occur, how all replacement water sources were quantified, and what terms and conditions were imposed to prevent injury to other water rights and why they were imposed. The decision shall also include a description of the consideration given to any written comments that were filed by other parties. Neither the approval nor the denial by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any legal action that may be initiated concerning the substitute water supply plan. Any appeal of a decision made by the state engineer concerning a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (3) shall be made to the water judge in water division 1 within thirty-five days after the date of service of the decision. The water judge shall hear and determine such appeal using the procedures and standards set forth in sections 37-92-304 and 37-92-305 for determination of matters rereferred to the water judge by the referee. The proponent of the substitute water supply plan shall be deemed to be the applicant for purposes of application of such procedures and standards. The filing fee for the appeal shall be two hundred seventy-one dollars for the proponent of the substitute water supply plan and seventy dollars for any other party to the appeal. Moneys from such fee shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and deposited in the water adjudication cash fund, which fund is hereby created in the state treasury. The general assembly shall appropriate moneys in the fund for the judicial department's adjudications pursuant to this subsection (3).

(f) The state engineer may accept for filing and consideration a written request for approval of a substitute water supply plan prior to April 30, 2003, subject to such request meeting all requirements of this subsection (3) prior to the date of approval. No approval of such request may be issued prior to April 30, 2003.

(g) Repealed.

(4) (a) Beginning January 1, 2002, if an application for approval of a plan for augmentation, rotational crop management contract, or change of water right has been filed with a water court and the court has not issued a decree, the state engineer may approve the temporary operation of such plan, contract, or change of water right as a substitute water supply plan if the following conditions are met:

(I) The water court applicant has filed a request for approval of the substitute water supply plan with the state engineer;

(II) The applicant has provided written notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties who have filed a statement of opposition to the plan in water court and proof of such notice is filed with the state engineer, or, if the deadline for filing a statement of opposition has not passed, the applicant has provided written notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for the water division in which the proposed plan is located and proof of such notice is filed with the state engineer;

(III) The state engineer has given those to whom notice was provided thirty days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the substitute water supply plan. Such comments shall include any claim of injury, any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the plan to prevent injury to an opposer's water rights or decreed conditional water rights, and any other information an opposer wishes the state engineer to consider in reviewing the substitute water supply plan request.

(IV) The state engineer, after consideration of the comments received, has determined that the operation and administration of such plan will replace all out-of-priority depletions in time, location, and amount and will otherwise prevent injury to other water rights and decreed conditional water rights, including water quality and continuity to meet the requirements of use to which the senior appropriation has normally been put, pursuant to section 37-80-120 (3), and will not impair compliance with any interstate compacts. Notwithstanding any limitations regarding phreatophytes or impermeable surfaces that would otherwise apply pursuant to section 37-92-103 (9) or 37-92-501 (4) (b) (III), for any precipitation harvesting pilot project selected pursuant to section 37-60-115 (6) that has filed an application for a permanent augmentation plan in water court, the out-of-priority depletions shall be the net depletion as defined in section 37-60-115 (6) (c) (II) (B). As a condition of approving a substitute water supply plan for a pilot project pursuant to this subsection (4), the state engineer shall have the authority to require the project sponsor to replace any ongoing delayed depletions after the water use plan associated with a precipitation harvesting pilot project has ceased. The state engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met. In making such determinations, the state engineer shall not be required to hold any formal hearings or conduct any other formal proceedings, but may conduct a hearing or formal proceeding if the state engineer finds it necessary to address the issues.

(b) A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (4) shall not be approved for a period of more than one year; except that an applicant may request the renewal of a plan by repeating the application process described in this subsection (4). If an applicant requests a renewal of a plan that would extend the plan past three years from the initial date of approval, the applicant shall demonstrate to the state engineer that the delay in obtaining a water court decree is justifiable and that not being able to continue operating under a substitute water supply plan until a decree is entered will cause undue hardship to the applicant. A project sponsor for a precipitation harvesting pilot project selected pursuant to section 37-60-115 (6) shall demonstrate to the state engineer that an additional year of operation under the plan is necessary to obtain sufficient data to meet the Colorado water conservation board's criteria for evaluating the pilot project. If an applicant requests renewal of a plan that would extend the plan past five years from the initial date of approval, the applicant shall demonstrate to the water judge in the applicable water division that the delay in obtaining a decree has been justifiable and that not being able to continue operating under a substitute water supply plan until a decree is entered will cause undue hardship to the applicant. Approval of a plan pursuant to subsection (5) of this section shall be deemed to be approval under this subsection (4) for purposes of calculating the number of years since the initial date of approval.

(c) When the state engineer approves or denies a substitute water supply plan, the state engineer shall serve a copy of the decision on all parties to the pending water court application by first-class mail. Neither the approval nor the denial by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in the pending water court case or any other legal action that may be initiated concerning the substitute water supply plan. Any appeal of a decision made by the state engineer concerning a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (4) shall be to the water judge of the applicable water division within thirty days and shall be consolidated with the application for approval of the plan for augmentation.

(5) (a) Beginning January 1, 2002, for new water use plans involving out-of-priority diversions or a change of water right, if no application for approval of a plan for augmentation or a change of water right has been filed with a water court and the water use plan or change proposed and the depletions associated with such water use plan or change will be for a limited duration not to exceed five years, except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (5), the state engineer may approve such plan or change as a substitute water supply plan if the following conditions are met:

(I) The applicant has filed a request for approval of the substitute water supply plan with the state engineer;

(II) The applicant has provided written notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for the water division in which the proposed plan is located and proof of such notice is filed with the state engineer;

(III) The state engineer has given the owners of water rights and decreed conditional water rights thirty-five days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the substitute water supply plan. Such comments shall include any claim of injury or any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the plan to prevent injury to a party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights and any other information the opposer wishes the state engineer to consider in reviewing the substitute water supply plan request.

(IV) The state engineer, after consideration of the comments received, has determined that the operation and administration of such plan will replace all out-of-priority depletions in time, location, and amount and will otherwise prevent injury to other water rights and decreed conditional water rights, including water quality and continuity to meet the requirements of use to which the senior appropriation has normally been put, pursuant to section 37-80-120 (3) and will not impair compliance with any interstate compacts. The state engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met. In making the determinations specified in this subparagraph (IV), the state engineer shall not be required to hold any formal hearings or conduct any other formal proceedings, but may conduct a hearing or formal proceeding if the state engineer finds it necessary to address the issues.

(b) (I) Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b), a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (5) shall not be approved for a period of more than one year; except that an applicant may request the renewal of a plan by repeating the application process described in this subsection (5). However, in no event shall any plan approved pursuant to this subsection (5) or any water use included in such plan be approved or renewed for more than five years.

(II) A project sponsor for a precipitation harvesting pilot project selected pursuant to section 37-60-115 (6) may request renewal of a plan that would extend the plan past five years from the initial date of approval if the project sponsor demonstrates to the state engineer that an additional year of operation under the plan is necessary to obtain sufficient data to meet the Colorado water conservation board's criteria for evaluating the pilot project or an application for a permanent augmentation plan is pending before the water court. As a condition of approving a substitute water supply plan for a pilot project pursuant to this subsection (5), the state engineer shall have the authority to require the project sponsor to replace any ongoing delayed depletions after the water use plan associated with a precipitation harvesting pilot project has ceased.

(c) When the state engineer approves or denies a substitute water supply plan, the state engineer shall serve a copy of the decision on all parties to the application by first-class mail or, if such parties have so elected, by electronic mail. Neither the approval nor the denial by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any legal action that may be initiated concerning the substitute water supply plan. Any appeal of a decision made by the state engineer concerning a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (5) shall be made to the water judge in the applicable water division within thirty days, who shall hear such appeal on an expedited basis.

(6) The state engineer shall establish a substitute water supply plan notification list for each water division for the purposes of notifying interested parties pursuant to subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of subsection (3) of this section and subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of subsection (5) of this section. Beginning in July 2002, and in January of each year thereafter, in order to establish such notification list, the water clerks in each division shall include in the water court resume an invitation to be included on such notification list for the applicable water division. Persons on the substitute water supply plan notification list shall receive notice of all substitute water supply plans filed in that water division pursuant to subsections (3) and (5) of this section by either first-class mail or, if a person so requests, by electronic mail. Persons may be required to pay a fee, not to exceed twelve dollars per year, to be placed on the notification list.

(7) Beginning January 1, 2002, the state engineer may approve a substitute water supply plan if the state engineer determines such plan is needed to address an emergency situation and that the plan will not cause injury to the vested water rights or decreed conditional water rights of others or impair compliance with any interstate compact. Such plan shall not be implemented for more than ninety-one days. For purposes of this section, "emergency situation" means a situation affecting public health or safety where a substitute water supply plan needs to be implemented more quickly than the other procedures set forth in this section allow. For 2003, an "emergency situation" may also mean an immediate need for the use of augmentation wells necessitated by extreme drought conditions if such augmentation wells are also included in a request filed previously, or filed simultaneously with a request under this subsection (7), for approval of a substitute water supply plan under subsection (3) or (4) of this section. Approval pursuant to this section of the use of augmentation wells shall include the terms and conditions needed to account for and replace all out-of-priority stream depletions that will result from such use, including post-pumping depletions. Within seven days after the date of approval of the use of an augmentation well under this subsection (7), the state engineer shall give notice of the approval to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for water division 1. In all other situations, notice to other water users shall not be required. Neither the approval nor the denial by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or be a defense in any legal action that may be initiated concerning an emergency substitute water supply plan or in any proceedings under subsection (3) or (4) of this section.

(8) After July 1, 2002, water users requesting approval of a new plan or a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this section shall pay a fee of three hundred dollars. The state engineer shall collect the fees and transmit them to the state treasurer, who shall deposit them in the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

(9) If an entity pays for repairs, maintenance, dredging, or other improvements, including capital improvements, that are necessary and effective in removing a storage restriction imposed by the state engineer pursuant to section 37-87-107 on a dam or reservoir owned by a third party, such entity may apply to the state engineer pursuant to subsection (5) of this section for approval of the use of some or all of such newly unrestricted storage as a substitute water supply plan, if the entity has a written agreement concerning such use with all the owners of the dam or reservoir and the associated water rights.

(10) (a) Beginning July 1, 2009, for plans for augmentation that are the subject of a final decree entered by the water court in water division 1, the state engineer may approve annual substitute water supply plans solely for the purpose of allowing the use of water supplies not identified as augmentation supplies in the decreed augmentation plan, not previously decreed for augmentation or replacement uses, and not included in a pending water court application for approval of a change of water right to augmentation and replacement uses to be used in the decreed augmentation plan for the replacement of out-of-priority depletions caused by pre-January 1, 2003, diversions from wells included in the decreed augmentation plan, subject to and in accordance with the terms and conditions of the decreed augmentation plan. No water supplies for which substitute water supply plan approval is requested pursuant to this subsection (10) shall be used by an applicant for augmentation purposes prior to the date on which the state engineer approves the substitute water supply plan or the date on which any appeal to the water court of the substitute water supply plan is finally decided in accordance with paragraph (d) of this subsection (10), whichever occurs later. The state engineer may approve a substitute water supply plan under this subsection (10) if the following conditions are met:

(I) The applicant has filed a request for approval of the substitute water supply plan with the state engineer, which request shall include, at a minimum, the following information:

(A) The name of the water rights to be used for augmentation in the decreed augmentation plan under the substitute water supply plan and a list of decrees associated with such rights;

(B) A copy of every agreement or other document that evidences the applicant's right to use the water rights for augmentation;

(C) For use of existing South Platte river basin surface water rights, an analysis of the historical use of the water rights, which analysis shall include, at a minimum, the location and number of acres historically irrigated by the rights, identification of the crops historically irrigated by the rights, a calculation of the historical diversions and return flows associated with historical use of the rights, a summary of average annual diversions and average and maximum monthly diversions and consumptive use associated with historical use of the rights, the field irrigation efficiency used in the historical use analysis, which shall not exceed fifty percent, and the identity of all other water rights used to irrigate the land historically irrigated by the water rights;

(D) The amount of water available from the water rights for replacement uses under the substitute water supply plan;

(E) The amount of return flows, if any, associated with the historical use of the water rights, including the amount and timing of such return flows that would occur after the end of the one-year substitute water supply plan approved under this subsection (10);

(F) The amount of depletions from pre-January 1, 2003, diversions to be replaced using the water rights;

(G) The source of water to be used to make required return flow replacements, which source shall not include water pumped from augmentation wells;

(H) The manner in which the applicant will incorporate the accounting for use of the water rights for augmentation uses into the accounting required by the augmentation plan decree and make any required return flow replacements under the substitute water supply plan; and

(I) For use of existing South Platte river basin surface water rights, an affidavit signed by the record owner of the water rights stating that, during the term of the substitute water supply plan, the land historically irrigated by the water rights shall not be irrigated except with nontributary groundwater or potable water supplied by a municipality or water district;

(II) The applicant has provided written notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan and has made available the information required in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (a), by first-class mail or electronic mail, to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for water division 1 and all parties to the water court case in which the plan for augmentation was decreed, and proof of such notice is filed with the state engineer;

(III) The state engineer has given the owners of water rights and decreed conditional water rights and the parties to the water court case in which the plan for augmentation was decreed thirty days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the substitute water supply plan. Such comments shall include any claim of injury or any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the plan to prevent injury to a party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights and any other information the opposer wishes the state engineer to consider in reviewing the substitute water supply plan request.

(IV) The state engineer, after consideration of the comments received, has determined that the operation and administration of such plan will, when combined with replacements under the decreed augmentation plan, replace all out-of-priority depletions caused by the pre-January 1, 2003, diversions from wells included in the decreed augmentation plan in time, location, and amount required by the decree, and will otherwise prevent injury to other water rights and decreed conditional water rights, including water quality and continuity to meet the requirements of use to which the senior appropriation has normally been put pursuant to section 37-80-120 (3), and will not impair compliance with any interstate compacts. The state engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met, including, but not limited to, the terms and conditions required by paragraph (b) of this subsection (10). In making the determinations specified in this subparagraph (IV), the state engineer shall not be required to hold any formal hearings or conduct any other formal proceedings, but may conduct a hearing or formal proceeding if the state engineer finds it necessary to address the issues.

(b) The following terms and conditions shall be included in any substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (10):

(I) For use of existing South Platte river basin surface water rights, the land historically irrigated by such water rights shall not be irrigated during the term of the substitute water supply plan except with nontributary groundwater or potable water supplied by a municipality or water district. Where the historically irrigated crop is alfalfa, an appropriate reduction in the allowable consumptive use credit shall be imposed if the alfalfa has not been completely removed from the historically irrigated land during the term of the substitute water supply plan.

(II) For use of existing South Platte river basin surface water rights, an annual volumetric limit on diversions and a monthly volumetric limit on diversions, which shall not be greater than the average annual and maximum monthly historical diversions of the water rights.

(III) For use of existing South Platte river basin surface water rights, all return flows that would have accrued to the stream from the historical use of the water rights shall be replaced, including the return flows that would have occurred after the end of the one-year substitute water supply plan. All such return flows shall be deemed to be an obligation of the applicant for the substitute water supply plan and shall be included as a replacement obligation in any projection required by the augmentation plan decree in which such water is proposed to be used, and after the end of any approved substitute water supply plan, all continuing return flow obligations shall be enforceable in the same manner as all other terms and conditions of the augmentation plan decree under which the water rights in the substitute water supply plan were used.

(IV) For use of existing South Platte river basin surface water rights, no water pumped from augmentation wells, as such wells are defined in section 37-90-103 (21) (a), shall be used to replace return flows that would have accrued to the stream from the historical use of the water rights.

(V) The amount of water made available under the approved substitute water supply plan shall not be included as a source of water for replacement of depletions in any projection required by the augmentation plan decree in which such water is proposed to be used until the substitute water supply plan is approved, and then only for the term of the approved substitute water supply plan or the term of the agreement or other document which evidences the applicant's right to use the water rights for augmentation, whichever is shorter.

(VI) The accounting for the approved substitute water supply plan shall be incorporated into the accounting for the augmentation plan decree in which such water is proposed to be used and shall be shown in the accounting in separate line items. Such accounting and all supporting documents for such accounting shall be provided by the applicant to any party requesting such accounting and supporting documents in writing and upon payment of reasonable reproduction costs.

(VII) If any term or condition of the approved substitute water supply plan conflicts with any of the terms and conditions of the augmentation plan decree, the terms and conditions of the augmentation plan decree shall control.

(c) A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (10) shall not be approved for a period of more than one year; except that an applicant may request the renewal of a plan by repeating the application process described in this subsection (10). However, in no event shall an individual water right or source of water native to the South Platte river basin, including the pro rata portion of a water right represented by shares in a mutual ditch company, be approved for use in a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (10) for a total of more than five years.

(d) When the state engineer approves or denies a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (10), the state engineer shall serve a copy of the decision on all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for water division 1 and all parties to the water court case in which the plan for augmentation was decreed by first-class mail or, if such parties have so elected, by electronic mail. Neither the approval nor the denial by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any legal action involving the substitute water supply plan. Any appeal of a decision made by the state engineer concerning a substitute water supply plan approved or denied pursuant to this subsection (10) shall be made within thirty-five days after the date of service of the decision. Any such appeal shall be filed under the same case number as the decreed plan for augmentation and shall be heard under the retained jurisdiction of the water judge, using the procedures and standards set forth in sections 37-92-304 and 37-92-305, for determination of matters rereferred to the water judge by the referee. The water judge shall hear and determine any such appeal on an expedited basis. The applicant for the substitute water supply plan shall not use the proposed substitute water supply in the decreed plan for augmentation until any appeal under this paragraph (d) is decided by the water court. Following the determination on appeal by the water court, the applicant's use of water under the substitute water supply plan shall be governed by such water court determination, unless the terms of the augmentation plan decree provide otherwise.

(e) Nothing in this subsection (10) shall authorize or facilitate additional transbasin diversion of water from the Colorado river.

(f) (I) This subsection (10) is repealed, effective July 1, 2018.

(II) All approvals of substitute water supply plans under this subsection (10) shall expire on or before July 1, 2018.

(11) (a) (I) To provide sufficient time to integrate coal bed methane wells into the water court adjudication process for augmentation plans, during 2010, 2011, and 2012 the state engineer may approve annual substitute water supply plans for such wells using the procedures and standards set forth in this subsection (11). Until July 31, 2010, coal bed methane wells may continue to operate without a substitute water supply plan if the oil and gas operator submits a request for approval of a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (11) by April 30, 2010. Beginning August 1, 2010, and ending December 31, 2012, no coal bed methane well that withdraws tributary groundwater and impacts an over-appropriated stream shall operate unless:

- (A) Operation of the well is authorized pursuant to this section;
- (B) The well is included in a plan for augmentation approved by a water judge; or
- (C) The well is included in a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to subsection (4) of this section.

(II) Beginning January 1, 2013, any coal bed methane well that withdraws tributary groundwater from a geologic formation in conjunction with the mining of minerals shall be continuously curtailed unless the well:

- (A) Is included in a plan for augmentation approved by a water judge;
- (B) Is included in a substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to subsection (4) of this section; or
- (C) Can be operated in priority without augmentation.

(III) The general assembly finds that the time period established in subparagraph (II) of paragraph (b) of this subsection (11) is sufficient to develop augmentation plan applications for these wells, and there shall be no subsequent extensions of this deadline.

(b) For a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (11), the state engineer may approve the temporary operation of a coal bed methane well that withdraws tributary groundwater only if the following conditions are met:

(I) The applicant has provided written notice of the request for approval of the substitute water supply plan by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for the water division in which the proposed plan is located and proof of such notice is filed with the state engineer;

(II) All parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list for the water division in which the proposed plan is located have thirty-five days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the substitute water supply plan. Such comments shall include any claim of injury, any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the plan to prevent injury to a party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights, and any other information a party wishes the state engineer to consider in reviewing the substitute water supply plan request; and

(III) The state engineer, after consideration of the comments received, has determined that the operation and administration of such plan will: Replace all out-of-priority depletions occurring on or after June 2, 2009, in time, location, and amount, including delayed out-of-priority depletions that affect the stream system after expiration of the plan; otherwise prevent injury occurring on or after June 2, 2009, to other water rights and decreed conditional water rights, including water quality and continuity to meet the requirements of use to which the senior appropriation has normally been put pursuant to section 37-80-120 (3); and not impair compliance with any interstate compacts. The state engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met, which may include terms and conditions that remain in effect after expiration of the plan so as to require the proponent of the plan to replace delayed out-of-priority depletions occurring on or after June 2, 2009. In making such determinations, the state engineer shall not be required to hold any formal hearings or conduct any other formal proceedings, but may conduct a hearing or formal proceeding if the state engineer finds it necessary to address the issues.

(c) A substitute water supply plan approved pursuant to this subsection (11) shall not be approved for a period of more than one year; except that an applicant may request the renewal of a plan by repeating the application process described in this subsection (11). In no case shall a plan approved pursuant to this subsection (11) be renewed beyond December 31, 2012.

(d) When the state engineer approves or denies a substitute water supply plan, the state engineer shall serve a copy of the decision on all parties to the substitute water supply plan notification list for the water division in which the proposed plan is located by first-class mail or by electronic mail. Every decision of the state engineer shall provide a detailed statement of how all stream depletions were calculated, the location where they occur, how all replacement water sources were quantified, and what terms and conditions were imposed to prevent injury to other water rights and why they were imposed.

(e) Neither the approval nor the denial by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any legal action that may be initiated concerning the substitute water supply plan. Any appeal of a decision made by the state engineer concerning a substitute water supply plan pursuant to this subsection (11) shall be to the water judge of the applicable water division within thirty-five days after the date of service of the decision. The water judge shall hear and determine such appeal on an expedited basis using the procedures and standards set forth in sections 37-92-304 and 37-92-305 for determination of matters referred to the water judge by the referee.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Substitute Supply Plans: Recent Water Law Developments", see 31 Colo. Law. 67 (August 2002).

State engineer's authority under this section is limited. Legislative history demonstrates that the general assembly intended approval of all out-of-priority uses of water involving replacement water to be the sole province of the water courts, with the exception of the limited circumstances provided for in subsections (3), (4), (5), and (7) of this section and in §§ 37-80-120 (5) and 37-90-137 (11)(b). Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

"Replacement plan" defined. A "replacement plan", as used in this section and the state engineer's proposed rules, is the functional equivalent of a "substitute supply plan" and refers to the source of water that a junior or undecreed well user makes available to a senior appropriator to offset any injury caused to the senior by the junior's or undecreed well user's out-of-priority depletions. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

Augmentation plan defined. An augmentation plan is the functional equivalent of a substitute supply plan or "replacement plan" but, significantly, has been sanctioned by court decree and thereby renders the out-of-priority diversion no longer susceptible to curtailment by the state engineer pursuant to §§ 37-92-501 (1) and 37-92-502 (2)(a), so long as the replacement water is supplied to avert injury to senior rights. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

Limitations in this section apply to rules adopted by the state engineer pursuant to the compact rule power granted by § 37-80-104, as well as to those adopted pursuant to the water rule power granted by § 37-92-501. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

Standard of review for state engineer's determination of a substitute water supply plan application pursuant to subsection (4)(c) is that established in the Colorado Administrative Procedure Act, not de novo review as is specified for appeals of plans pursuant to subsections (3) and (11). Well Augmentation Subdist. v. City of Aurora, 221 P.3d 399 (Colo. 2009).

37-92-309. Interruptible water supply agreements - special review procedures - rules - water adjudication cash fund - legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that there are certain circumstances under which administrative approval of the use of interruptible water supply agreements can maximize the beneficial use of Colorado water resources without the need for an adjudication and without injury to vested water rights or decreed conditional water rights. This section is intended to enable water users to transfer the historical consumptive use of an absolute water right for application to another type or place of use on a temporary basis without permanently changing the water right.

(2) For purposes of this section, "interruptible water supply agreement" means an option agreement between two or more water right owners whereby:

(a) The loaning water right owner agrees that, during the term of such agreement, it will stop its use of the loaned water right for a specified length of time if the option is exercised by the borrowing water right owner in accordance with the agreement; and

(b) The borrowing water right owner may divert the loaned water right for such owner's purposes, subject to the priority system and subject to temporary approval by the state engineer in accordance with this section.

(3) The state engineer is authorized to approve and administer interruptible water supply agreements that permit a temporary change in the point of diversion, location of use, and type of use of an absolute water right without the need for an adjudication pursuant to this article, subject to the following:

(a) The applicant for approval of an interruptible water supply agreement shall provide written notice of the application by first-class mail or electronic mail to all parties who have subscribed to the substitute water supply plan notification list, as described in section 37-92-308 (6), for the division or divisions in which the water right is located and in which it will be used, and proof of such notice shall be filed with the state engineer. The application shall be accompanied by a detailed written report, prepared by a professional engineer or other professional acceptable to the state engineer, that evaluates the historical consumptive use, return flows, and the potential for material injury to other water rights relating to the interruptible water supply agreement and that proposes conditions to prevent such injury. The state engineer shall give the owners of water rights thirty-five days after the date of mailing of such notice to file comments on the operation of the interruptible water supply agreement. Such comments shall include any claim of injury or any terms and conditions that should be imposed upon the agreement so that it will not cause injury to a party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights, if such conditional rights will be exercised during operation of the interruptible water supply agreement, and any other information the party wishes the state engineer to consider in reviewing the application.

(b) The state engineer, after consideration of the comments from any party submitting comments, shall make a determination of the operation and administration of the interruptible water supply agreement to assure that such operation and administration will effect only a temporary change in the historical consumptive use of the water right in a manner that will not cause injury to other water rights and decreed conditional water rights, if such conditional rights will be exercised during operation of the interruptible water supply agreement, and will not impair compliance with any interstate compact. The interruptible water supply agreement shall include, but shall not be limited to, a quantification of the historical consumptive use of the water right, an accurate description of the land where the water is decreed for use, and, if the loaned water right is being used for irrigation, a plan to prevent erosion and blowing soils and a description of compliance with local county noxious weed regulations and other land use provisions. The state engineer shall impose such terms and conditions as are necessary to ensure that these standards are met. In making the determinations specified in this paragraph (b), the state engineer shall not be required to hold any formal hearing or conduct any other formal proceedings, but may conduct a hearing or formal proceeding if the state engineer finds it necessary to address the issues.

(c) An interruptible water supply agreement approved pursuant to this section shall not be exercised for more than three years in a ten-year period for which only a single approval is required. The ten-year period shall begin with the granting of such approval. A water right subject to the agreement under this section may not use section 37-92-308 (5). An interruptible water supply agreement approved pursuant to this subsection (3) shall not be approved for another ten-year period; except that, if such agreement has not been exercised during the term of the agreement, an applicant may reapply one time by repeating the application process pursuant to this subsection (3).

(d) The applicant shall give notice by March 1 of any year that the option is to be exercised to all parties who filed comments with the state engineer pursuant to this section, unless earlier required in the agreement; except that the option may be exercised at any time during 2003.

(4) (a) When the state engineer approves or denies an interruptible water supply agreement, the state engineer shall serve a copy of the decision upon all parties to the application by first-class mail or, if such parties have so elected, by electronic mail. Neither the approval nor the denial of the agreement by the state engineer shall create any presumptions, shift the burden of proof, or serve as a defense in any legal action that may be initiated concerning the interruptible water supply agreement. Any appeal of a decision made by the state engineer concerning the operation of an interruptible water supply agreement pursuant to this section shall be expedited, shall be limited to the issue of injury, and shall be made within thirty-five days after mailing of the decision to the water judge in the applicable water division. All parties to the appeal shall pay to the water clerk a fee to cover the direct costs associated with the expedited appeal. The water judge shall hear and determine such appeal using the procedures and standards set forth in sections 37-92-304 and 37-92-305 for determination of matters rereferred to the water judge by the referee; except that the water judge shall not deem any failure to appeal all or any part of the decision of the state engineer or failure to state any grounds for appeal to preclude any party from raising any claims of injury in a future proceeding before the water judge. The proponent of the interruptible water supply agreement shall be deemed to be the applicant for purposes of application of such procedures and standards. Moneys from such fee shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and deposited in the water adjudication cash fund, which fund is hereby created in the state treasury. The general assembly shall appropriate moneys in the fund for the judicial department's expedited adjudications pursuant to this section.

(b) A party to the original application may file comments concerning potential injury to such party's water rights or decreed conditional water rights due to the operation of the interruptible water supply agreement with the state engineer by January 1 of the year following the first year that the interruptible water supply agreement has been exercised. The procedures of subsection (3) of this section regarding notice, opportunity to comment, and the state engineer's decision, and the procedures of this subsection (4) regarding an appeal of such decision, shall again be followed with regard to such party's comments.

(5) Applicants for approval of an interruptible water supply agreement pursuant to this section shall pay a fee established by the state engineer, pursuant to rules promulgated by the state engineer. The state engineer shall collect the fees and transmit them to the state treasurer, who shall deposit them in the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

PART 4

PUBLICATION OF WATER RIGHTS PRIORITIES

Cross references: For the appointments and functions of water division engineers, see § 37-92-202.

37-92-401. Biennial tabulations of priorities and decennial abandonment lists.

(1) (a) No later than July 1, 1988, and each fourth anniversary thereafter, the division engineer of each division with the approval of the state engineer shall prepare a quadrennial tabulation in order of seniority of all decreed water rights and conditional water rights in his division; except that a tabulation shall be prepared no later than July 1, 1994, and July 1 of every second year thereafter. Such biennial tabulations shall describe each water right and conditional water right by some appropriate means and shall set forth the priority and amount thereof as established by court decrees. In making such biennial tabulations, the division engineer may use such system of numbering and listing water rights and conditional water rights in order of seniority as is suited to the administrative needs of the particular division or portion thereof. He shall prepare separate priority lists so that only those water rights and conditional water rights which take or will take water from the same source and are in a position to affect one another will be on the same priority list. He shall also prepare decennially, no later than July 1, 1990, and each tenth anniversary thereafter, a separate abandonment list comprising all absolute water rights which he has determined to have been abandoned in whole or in part and which previously have not been adjudged to have been abandoned.

(a.5) The biennial tabulations required by this section shall reflect judgments and decrees determining, changing, or otherwise affecting water rights and conditional water rights, which judgments and decrees have been entered subsequent to those reflected in the immediately preceding tabulation authorized, as the case may be, by this section or by section 37-92-402. The biennial tabulations shall also reflect, as appropriate, any changes in earlier abandonment lists as have been ordered by the water judge or by the supreme court. Except as specified in this paragraph (a.5), the biennial tabulations shall make no changes in the listings from those reflected in the respective immediately preceding tabulation authorized, as the case may be, by this section or by section 37-92-402, other than changes to correct clerical errors.

(b) In determining the priority of a water right in relation to other water rights deriving their supply from the same common source, the following procedures and definitions shall apply:

(I) A common source means and includes all of those waters in a water division, either surface or underground, which if left in their natural state would join together to form a single natural watercourse prior to exit from the water division.

(II) As among water rights decreed in the same water district in the same adjudication suit, the historic date of initiation of appropriation shall determine the relative priorities, beginning with the earliest right.

(III) As among water rights decreed in the same water district in different adjudication suits, all water rights decreed in an adjudication suit shall be senior to all water rights decreed in any subsequent adjudication suit.

(IV) As among water rights decreed in the various original adjudication suits in the various water districts of the same water division, the decreed date of initiation of appropriation shall determine the relative priorities in numbered sequence, beginning with the earliest right.

(V) As among water rights decreed in the various supplemental adjudication suits in the various water districts of the same water division, the actual priority date of any decree in any district shall not extend back further than the day following the entry of the final decree in the preceding adjudication suit in such district.

(VI) If, in the preparation of the tabulations provided for in this section, the application of the preceding principles would cause in any particular case a substantial change in the priority of a particular water right to the extent theretofore lawfully enjoyed for a period of not less than eighteen years, then the division engineer shall designate the priority for that water right in accordance with historic practice. In no event shall the provisions of this subparagraph (VI) entitle a water right to a priority senior to its actual date of initial appropriation or to freedom from regulation and administration in the priority system.

(c) In making his determinations with respect to abandonment, the division engineer shall investigate the circumstances relating to each water right for which the available water has not been fully applied to a beneficial use and in such cases shall be guided by the criteria set out in section 37-92-402 (11). The decennial abandonment list, when concluded by judgment and decree as provided in this section, shall be conclusive as to absolute water rights or portions thereof determined to have been abandoned.

(2) (a) No later than August 31, 1988, and every second anniversary thereafter, the water clerk, in cooperation with the division engineer, shall cause notice of the availability of the biennial tabulation to be included in the resume described in section 37-92-302 (3) of cases filed in the respective water divisions during the month of July. In addition, the water clerk shall cause such publication of the notice as is necessary to obtain general circulation once in each county or portion thereof in the division. A copy of such biennial tabulation shall be available for inspection in the offices of the state and respective division engineers and the respective water commissioners and water clerks at any time during regular office hours and shall be available for purchase from the office of the state engineer and respective division engineer by any person specifically requesting same upon the payment of a fee of ten dollars.

(b) No later than July 31, 1990, and every tenth anniversary thereafter, the division engineer shall mail a copy of the respective decennial abandonment list by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the owner or last-known owner or claimant, if known, of every absolute water right which the division engineer has found to have been abandoned in whole or in part. The division engineer shall make such examination as is reasonably appropriate to determine the owner or claimant of such absolute water rights. He shall also cause publication to be made of the respective portion of the decennial abandonment list in each county in which the points of diversion of any absolute water rights on the list are located. Such publication shall be made for four successive weeks and shall be published, if possible, in a newspaper published in the county where the decreed point of diversion of the water right is located. The publication and mailing requirements of this paragraph (b) shall apply only to absolute water rights or portions thereof which previously have not been adjudged to have been abandoned.

(3) Not later than July 1, 1989, and every second anniversary thereafter, any person wishing to object to the manner in which a water right or conditional water right is listed in the biennial tabulation or to the omission of a water right or conditional water right from such biennial tabulation, and not later than July 1, 1991, and every tenth anniversary thereafter, any person wishing to object to the inclusion of any absolute water right or portion thereof in the decennial abandonment list shall file a statement of objection in writing with the division engineer. A fee of ten dollars shall be paid with such filing; except that no fee shall be required for any such filing to correct any clerical error.

(4) (a) Not later than December 31, 1991, and every tenth anniversary thereafter, the division engineer shall make such revisions, if any, as he deems proper to the decennial abandonment list. In considering the matters raised by statements of objection, the division engineer may consult with any interested persons. The division engineer shall consult with the state engineer and shall make any revisions in the decennial abandonment list determined by the state engineer to be necessary or advisable.

(b) Repealed.

(c) The decennial abandonment list, together with any revisions, signed by the division engineer and the state engineer or his duly authorized deputy, shall be filed with the water clerk as promptly as possible, but not later than December 31, 1991, and every tenth anniversary thereafter. A copy of such decennial abandonment list, together with any revisions, shall be available in the office of each respective division engineer and the offices of each water commissioner, the state engineer, and the respective water clerk for inspection at any time during regular office hours, and the division engineer shall furnish or mail a copy to anyone requesting same upon payment of a fee of ten dollars.

(d) If the decennial abandonment list is revised, the water clerk, in cooperation with the division engineer, not later than January 31, 1992, and every tenth anniversary thereafter, shall cause notice of the availability of such revision to be included in the resume described in section 37-92-302 (3) of cases filed in the respective water divisions during said month of December stating that the revision may be inspected or a copy thereof obtained as specified in paragraph (c) of this subsection (4). In addition, the water clerk shall cause such publication of the notice as is necessary to obtain general circulation once in each county or portion thereof which is in the division.

(5) (a) Any person who wishes to protest the inclusion of any water right in a decennial abandonment list after its revision by the division engineer shall file a written protest with the water clerk and with the division engineer. All such protests to the decennial abandonment list shall be filed not later than June 30, 1992, or the respective tenth anniversary thereafter. Such protest shall set forth in detail the factual and legal basis therefor. Service of a copy of the protest or any other documents is not necessary for jurisdictional purposes, but the water judge may order service of a copy of the protest or any other document on any person and in any manner which he or she may deem appropriate. The fee for filing such protest with the water clerk shall be forty-five dollars.

(b) Fees collected pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (5) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer and divided as follows:

(I) Twenty dollars shall be deposited in the general fund;

(II) Fifteen dollars shall be deposited in the judicial stabilization cash fund created in section 13-32-101 (6), C.R.S.; and

(III) Ten dollars shall be deposited in the justice center cash fund created in section 13-32-101 (7) (a), C.R.S.

(6) Commencing on the September or October term-day of 1992, as provided in section 37-92-304 (1), and every tenth anniversary thereafter, and continuing for as long as may be necessary, the water judge of each division shall conduct hearings on the decennial abandonment list filed by the division engineer and any protests that have been filed with respect thereto. The hearings shall be conducted in accordance with the Colorado rules of civil procedure, the Colorado rules of evidence, and any applicable local rules of court; except that no pleadings other than the protest shall be required. The protestant shall appear either in person or by counsel in support of the protest. The division engineer shall appear in support of the decennial abandonment list, and, if requested by the division engineer, the attorney general shall represent the division engineer. The water judges of the various divisions shall arrange their hearings, if necessary in their discretion, to accommodate counsel and other persons who may be involved in hearings in more than one division. Any person who may be affected by the subject matter of a protest or by any ruling thereon shall be permitted to participate in the hearings, either in person or by counsel, upon timely entry of appearance. Such entry of appearance shall identify the portion of the decennial abandonment list with respect to which the appearance is being made. The water judge may continue the hearings as required to insure that all parties may be heard and their interests adequately protected, and, in this connection, the water judge shall permit such additional protests and order such service of notice and such additional publication of the decennial abandonment list or portions thereof as will serve the ends of justice, it being the intent of the general assembly that the water judge shall have wide discretion in the conduct of such hearings so that the owners of water rights will be protected. After the hearings are concluded, the water judge shall enter a judgment and decree which shall either incorporate the abandonment list of the division engineer as filed or incorporate such list with such modifications and conditions as the water judge may determine proper after the hearings.

(7) If no protests have been filed, then promptly after July 1, 1992, and every tenth anniversary thereafter, the water judge shall enter a judgment and decree incorporating and confirming the decennial abandonment list of the division engineer without modification.

(8) A copy of the judgment and decree entered under subsection (6) or (7) of this section shall be filed with the state engineer and the division engineer and shall be provided by the water clerk to any other person requesting same upon payment of a fee of seventy-five cents per page. Promptly after receiving such judgment and decree, the division engineer and the state engineer shall enter in their records the determinations therein made as to the absolute water rights or portions thereof adjudged to have been abandoned and shall regulate the distribution of water accordingly.

(9) Appellate review shall be allowed to the judgment and decree entered under subsection (6) or (7) of this section or any part thereof as in other water matters, but no appellate review shall be allowed with respect to that part of such judgment or decree which confirms a portion of the decennial abandonment list with respect to which no protest was filed.

(10) Clerical mistakes in the judgment and decree entered under subsection (6) or (7) of this section may be corrected by the water judge on his own initiative or on the petition of any person, and substantive errors therein may be corrected by the water judge on the petition of any person whose rights have been adversely affected thereby and a showing satisfactory to the water judge that such person, due to mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect, failed to file a protest to the decennial abandonment list with the water clerk within the time specified in this section. Any such petition under this subsection (10) shall be filed with the water clerk within four years after the date of the entry of such judgment and decree. The water judge shall order such notice of any such correction proceedings as he determines to be appropriate to advise all persons who may be affected thereby. Any order of the water judge making such corrections shall be subject to appellate review as specified in subsection (9) of this section.

(11) The tabulations provided for in this part 4, and any revisions thereto, may be used by the division engineers, the state engineer, and their staffs for administrative purposes. The listing of the water rights in a tabulation shall not create any presumption against abandonment, and the relative listing of water rights in a tabulation shall not create any presumption of seniority. A tabulation shall not be construed to modify special provisions of court decrees adjudicating, changing, or otherwise affecting such water rights or to modify contractual arrangements governing the interrelationship of such water rights. For the purpose of identification and description only, the tabulation may include additional information regarding the water rights listed, but this additional information shall be neither conclusive nor presumptive of the truth or accuracy of the matters contained therein. Nothing in this section or in section 37-92-402, other than those specific provisions relating to the abandonment lists of the division engineers, shall ever be construed to have enhanced or diminished any cause of action or defense which might otherwise exist concerning the administration of water rights in any water division.

(12) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in this section, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Use of Colorado Water Rights In Secured Transactions", see 18 Colo. Law. 2307 (1989).

Stream administration. Streams independently appropriated remain independent under the doctrine of prior appropriation unless the water of those streams becomes subject to equitable apportionment by compact, in which case the streams must be administered as mandated by the compact or statutory provisions for priority administration of water rights. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Diversions made pursuant to water right considered historical use where not ordered discontinued. Where the water commissioner was aware of the landowners' diversions of water and had never ordered them to be discontinued or limited, the diversions made pursuant to a water right, though not in priority, could be considered as establishing an historical use for the purpose of the change of water right. South-eastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Effect of failure to comply with § 37-92-301(4). The water court is not estopped from cancelling an 1889 conditional decree because that decree was included in a 1974 tabulation of water rights priorities prepared by the division engineer, if owners of the decree fail to comply with § 37-92-301(4). In re Simineo v. Kelling, 199 Colo. 225, 607 P.2d 1289 (1980).

State engineer's authority to apply compact tributary rule. A compact requiring administration of the Rio Grande mainstem and Conejos river according to delivery schedules that did not include the contributions of three creeks as significant to the delivery obligation did away with the state engineer's authority to apply the tributary rule of the compact to the three creeks. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Removal of water rights from the abandonment list alone is insufficient to rebut a presumption of an intent to abandon that is based upon substantial evidence; rather, the list is simply evidence that the water court may consider and does not constitute a definitive decree or judgment on the water rights in question. Haystack Ranch, LLC v. Fazzio, 997 P.2d 548 (Colo. 2000).

Applied in Kuiper v. Atchison, T&SF Ry., 195 Colo. 557, 581 P.2d 293 (1978); Consolidated Home Supply v. Town of Berthoud, 896 P.2d 260 (Colo. 1995).

37-92-402. Special procedures for the 1978 tabulation and abandonment list.

(1) (a) No later than July 1, 1978, the division engineer, with the approval of the state engineer, shall prepare a new tabulation of all water rights and conditional water rights in his division. The 1978 tabulation shall reflect any changes in the 1974 tabulation previously authorized by statute which the division engineer and the state engineer determine to be advisable based on the principles set forth in section 37-92-401 (1) to reflect correctly the priority of water rights. The 1978 tabulation shall reflect judgments and decrees determining, changing, or otherwise affecting water rights and conditional water rights, which judgments and decrees have been entered subsequent to those reflected in the 1974 tabulation and prior to January 1, 1978, shall modify any water rights or conditional water rights which the division engineer determines to have been abandoned in part, and shall omit any water rights or conditional water rights which the division engineer determines have been totally abandoned. Except as specified in the preceding sentence, the tabulation pursuant to this section shall make no changes in the listings in the 1974 tabulation other than changes to correct clerical errors. The division engineer shall prepare a separate list tabulating the water rights which he determines to have been abandoned in whole or in part. In making his determination with respect to abandonment, the division engineer shall investigate the circumstances relating to each water right, the water available under which has not been fully applied to a beneficial use, and in such cases shall be guided by the criteria set forth in subsection (11) of this section. In making such 1978 tabulation, the division engineer shall apply the criteria set forth in section 37-92-401 (1).

(b) The abandonment list provided for in this section, when concluded by judgment and decree, shall be conclusive as to water rights determined to have been abandoned. The listing of the water rights in the 1978 tabulation shall not create any presumption against abandonment, and the relative listing of water rights in the 1978 tabulation shall not create any presumption of seniority. The tabulation shall not be construed to modify special provisions of court decrees adjudicating, changing, or otherwise affecting such water rights or to modify contractual arrangements governing the interrelationship of such water rights. For the purpose of identification and description only, the tabulation may include additional information regarding the water rights listed, but this additional information shall neither be conclusive nor be presumptive of the truth or accuracy of the matters contained therein.

(2) No later than July 10, 1978, the division engineer shall publish a notice that the 1978 tabulation has been made and that such tabulation may be inspected or a copy obtained as specified in this subsection (2), and the division engineer shall mail a copy of such tabulation to each person whose name is on the list specified in section 37-92-302 (3) (c) and shall mail a copy of such tabulation by registered mail to the owner or last-known owner or claimant, if known, of every water right or conditional water right which the division engineer has found to have been abandoned in whole or in part or which has been changed adversely and shall publish the 1978 abandonment list. The division engineer shall make such examination as is reasonably appropriate to determine the owner or claimant of such water rights. The aforementioned publication shall be such as is necessary to obtain general circulation once in each county or portion thereof which is in the division by means of one or more newspapers which, if possible, are published in the division. A copy of such 1978 tabulation and abandonment list, together with any revisions, shall be available in the office of each division engineer and the offices of each water commissioner and each county clerk and recorder for inspection at any time during regular office hours, and the division engineer shall furnish or mail a copy to anyone requesting the same upon payment of a fee of five dollars.

(3) Not later than July 1, 1980, any person who wishes to object to the manner in which a water right or conditional water right is listed in the 1978 tabulation or abandonment list or to the omission of a water right or conditional water right from such tabulation shall file a statement of objection in writing with the division engineer. A fee of ten dollars shall be paid with such filing; except that no fee shall be required for any such filing to correct any clerical error.

(4) On or before July 1, 1984, the division engineer shall make such revisions, if any, as he deems proper in the 1978 tabulation and abandonment list. In considering the matters raised by statements of objections, the division engineer may consult with interested persons. The division engineer shall consult with the state engineer and shall make any revisions in the 1978 tabulation and abandonment list determined by the state engineer to be necessary or advisable. If the division engineer determines such to be advisable or if requested by the objector in the statement of objection, the division engineer shall hold an informal hearing on the subject matter contained in said statement of objection. The revised 1978 tabulation and abandonment list or, if there are no revisions, the original 1978 tabulation and abandonment list, signed by the division engineer and by the state engineer, shall be filed on or before July 1, 1984, with the water clerk. A copy of such 1978 tabulation and such abandonment list, together with any revisions, shall be available in the office of each division engineer and the offices of each water commissioner and each county clerk and recorder for inspection at any time during regular office hours, and the division engineer shall furnish or mail a copy to anyone requesting the same upon payment of a fee of five dollars. If the 1978 tabulation or the abandonment list is revised, the division engineer, on or before August 31, 1984, shall cause notice of such revisions to be included in the resume described in section 37-92-302 (3) of cases filed in the respective water divisions during the month of July, 1984, specifying that the revisions may be inspected or a copy thereof obtained as specified in this subsection (4). Such publication shall be made as is necessary to obtain general circulation once in each county or portion thereof which is in the division.

(5) The division engineer shall mail a copy of the abandonment list and any revisions thereto by registered mail to the owner or last-known owner or claimant, if known, of every water right which the division engineer has found to have been abandoned in whole or in part. The division engineer shall make such examination as is reasonably appropriate to determine the owner or claimant of such water rights. He shall also cause publication to be made of the abandonment list and any revisions thereto in each county in which water rights on the list are located. Such publication shall be made for four successive weeks and shall be published, if possible, in a newspaper published in the county where the water right is located. Any person who wishes to protest the inclusion of any water right on the abandonment list and any revisions thereto shall file a written protest in accordance with the procedures of section 37-92-401 (5); except that such protests shall be filed with the water clerk not later than December 31, 1984.

(6) Commencing on the March or April term-day of 1985, as the case may be in the respective divisions, pursuant to section 37-92-304 (1), and continuing for as long as may be necessary, the water judge of each division shall conduct hearings on the abandonment list and any revisions thereto filed by the division engineer and any protests that have been filed with respect thereto. The hearings shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of section 37-92-401 (6).

(7) If no protests have been filed, then not later than July 1, 1985, the water judge shall enter a judgment and decree incorporating and confirming the abandonment list and any revisions thereto of the division engineer without modification.

(8) A copy of the judgment and decree entered pursuant to subsection (6) or (7) of this section shall be filed with the state engineer and the division engineer and shall be provided by the water clerk to any other person requesting same upon payment of a fee of seventy-five cents per page. Promptly after receiving such judgment and decree, the division engineer and the state engineer shall enter in their records the determinations therein made as to date of priority, date of adjudication, and volume and amount of the water rights and conditional water rights adjudged to have been abandoned and shall regulate the distribution of water accordingly.

(9) Appellate review shall be allowed to the judgment and decree entered pursuant to subsection (6) or (7) of this section or any part thereof as in other water matters, but no appellate review shall be allowed with respect to that part of such judgment or decree which confirms a portion of the abandonment list and any revisions thereto with respect to which no protest was filed.

(10) Clerical mistakes in the judgment and decree entered pursuant to subsection (6) or (7) of this section may be corrected by the water judge on his own initiative or on the petition of any person, and substantive errors therein may be corrected by the water judge on the petition of any person whose rights have been adversely affected thereby and a showing satisfactory to the water judge that such person, due to mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect, failed to file a protest to the abandonment list and any revisions thereto with the water clerk within the time specified in this section. Any petition referred to in the preceding sentence shall be filed with the water clerk within four years after the date of the entry of said judgment and decree. The water judge shall order such notice of any such correction proceedings as he determines to be appropriate to advise all persons who may be affected thereby. Any order of the water judge making such corrections shall be subject to appellate review as specified in subsection (9) of this section.

(11) For the purpose of procedures under this section, failure for a period of ten years or more to apply to a beneficial use the water available under a water right when needed by the person entitled to use same shall create a rebuttable presumption of abandonment of a water right with respect to the amount of such available water which has not been so used; except that such presumption may be waived by the division engineer or the state engineer if special circumstances negate an intent to abandon.

(12) No proceeding previously initiated before the water judge pertaining to the 1974 tabulation referred to in previous statutes shall be maintained; except that the dismissal of any such proceeding shall be without prejudice with respect to any substantive matters alleged therein.

(13) The use and effect of the 1978 tabulation, as distinguished from the abandonment list, shall be governed by the provisions of section 37-92-401 (11).

(14) The provisions of this section shall apply only to the 1978 tabulation and abandonment list authorized by this section.

(15) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in this section, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

"Unreasonable" period of nonuse is prima facie case of abandonment. Upon a showing that there has been an "unreasonable" period of nonuse, a prima facie case of abandonment is made, which in turn shifts the burden of going forward to the water rights' owner, who may then introduce evidence sufficient to rebut the presumption established by nonuse. *Beaver Park Water, Inc. v. As long as an appropriator continues the use of his rights without an unreasonable period of voluntary cessation, abandonment will not be presumed against him. Saunders v. Spina, 140 Colo. 317, 344 P.2d 469 (1959).

Nonuse alone will not establish abandonment where the owner introduces sufficient evidence to show that during the period of nonuse there never was any intention to permanently discontinue the use of the water. *Beaver Park Water, Inc. v. Abandonment is question of fact and water court's determination will not be disturbed on appeal unless the evidence is wholly insufficient to support the decision. People v. City of Thornton, 775 P.2d 11 (Colo. 1989).

The water judge correctly found that the presumption of abandonment created by the failure to put a water right to beneficial use for approximately 30 years was rebutted by an abundance of objective evidence regarding actions taken by the water right owner that are inconsistent with an intent to abandon, including attempts to repair the ditch and divert water, the filing of legal documents with regard to the water right, the fact that the water right never appeared on the state engineer's abandonment list, the lease of the water right, diligent efforts to sell the water right along with the ranch, and financial obstacles to exercising the water right. E. Twin Lakes Ditches & Water Works, Inc. v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 76 P.3d 918 (Colo. 2003).

Mere failure to pay taxes on property does not constitute abandonment. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Blanning, 29 Colo. App. 61, 479 P.2d 404 (1970).

A change in the method or means of conveying appropriated water from the source of supply to the point of beneficial use is not evidence of abandonment, likewise the unauthorized, unprotested change of the point of diversion is not evidence of abandonment; on the other hand, it is evidence of nonabandonment. Lengel v. Davis, 141 Colo. 94, 347 P.2d 142 (1959).

Where the evidence disclosed that a water user intended to and thought he was diverting water under a decreed priority of a ditch, and had so diverted and used such water for many years, no intention to abandon could be inferred. Means v. Pratt, 138 Colo. 214, 331 P.2d 805 (1958).

Where designated fractional amounts of a water priority are conveyed to grantees, the use by one user in the ditch of water to which another user is entitled does not prevent abandonment by the second user. City & County of Denver v. Just, 175 Colo. 260, 487 P.2d 367 (1971).

Where holders of a designated fractional amount of water priority made no use of it for at least 34 years and there was not a shred of evidence to negate abandonment, the court must rule that there was abandonment. City & County of Denver v. Just, 175 Colo. 260, 487 P.2d 367 (1971).

Where water rights appropriated for use on plaintiffs' land had not been used thereon for more than 18 years, a finding by the trial court that such right had long been abandoned, was not error. Kaess v. Wilson, 132 Colo. 443, 289 P.2d 636 (1955).

And, where the evidence established that a headgate had not been replaced in at least fifty years, and that a ditch was in disrepair a finding by the water court that abandonment had occurred was not error. Masters Inv. Co. v. Irrigationists Ass'n, 702 P.2d 268 (Colo. 1985).

Federal reserved water rights are immune from Colorado's nonuse requirement to the extent necessary to fulfill the purposes of the reservation. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Seniority of federal reserved water rights. The federal government's position is similar to the holder of a conditional senior water right who can step ahead of junior appropriators causing a diminution of the amount of water available for diversion. Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

For effect of federal reserved water rights, see Navajo Dev. Co. v. Sanderson, 655 P.2d 1374 (Colo. 1982).

REGULATION OF WATER - VIOLATIONS

Cross references: For the appointments and functions of water division engineers, see § 37-92-202.

37-92-501. Jurisdiction over water - rules and regulations. (1) The state engineer and the division engineers shall administer, distribute, and regulate the waters of the state in accordance with the constitution of the state of Colorado, the provisions of this article and other applicable laws, and written instructions and orders of the state engineer, in conformity with such constitution and laws, and no other official, board, commission, department, or agency, except as provided in this article and article 8 of title 25, C.R.S., has jurisdiction and authority with respect to said administration, distribution, and regulation. It is the legislative intent that the operation of this section shall not be used to allow groundwater withdrawal which would deprive senior surface rights of the amount of water to which said surface rights would have been entitled in the absence of such groundwater withdrawal and that groundwater diversions shall not be curtailed nor required to replace water withdrawn, for the benefit of surface right priorities, even though such surface right priorities be senior in priority date, when, assuming the absence of groundwater withdrawal by junior priorities, water would not have been available for diversion by such surface right under the priority system. The state engineer may adopt rules and regulations to assist in, but not as a prerequisite to, the performance of the foregoing duties.

(2) In the adoption of such rules and regulations the state engineer shall be guided by the principles set forth in section 37-92-502 (2) and by the following:

(a) Recognition that each water basin is a separate entity, that aquifers are geologic entities and different aquifers possess different hydraulic characteristics even though such aquifers be on the same river in the same division, and that rules applicable to one type of aquifer need not apply to another type. All other factors being the same, aquifers of the same type in the same water division shall be governed by the same rules regardless of where situate.

(b) Consideration of all the particular qualities and conditions of the aquifer;

(c) Consideration of the relative priorities and quantities of all water rights and the anticipated times of year when demands will be made by the owners of such rights for waters to supply the same;

(d) Recognition that one owner may own both surface and subsurface water rights;

(e) That all rules and regulations shall have as their objective the optimum use of water consistent with preservation of the priority system of water rights;

(f) That rules and regulations may be amended or changed from time to time within the same aquifer dependent upon the then existing and forecast conditions, facts and conditions as then known, and as knowledge of the aquifer is enlarged by operating experience;

(g) That time being of the essence, rules and regulations and changes thereof proposed for an aquifer shall be published once in the county or counties where such aquifer exists not less than sixty days prior to the proposed adoption of such rules and regulations, and copies shall be mailed by the water clerk of the division to all persons who are on the mailing list of such division. Copies of such proposed regulations shall be available without charge to any owner of a water right at the office of the water clerk.

(3) (a) Any person desiring to protest a proposed rule and regulation may do so in the same manner as provided in section 37-92-304 for the protest of a ruling of a referee, and the water judge shall hear and dispose of the same as promptly as possible.

(b) Any such protest must be filed by the end of the month following the month in which such proposed rules and regulations are published.

(4) (a) In addition to the provisions of subsection (2) of this section, when adopting rules governing the use of underground water in division 3, and in recognition of the unique geologic and hydrologic conditions and the conjunctive use practices prevailing in division 3, the state engineer shall have wide discretion to permit the continued use of underground water consistent with preventing material injury to senior surface water rights. Any reduction in underground water usage required by such rules shall be the minimum necessary to meet the standards of this subsection (4). In regulating an aquifer or system of aquifers in division 3, the state engineer shall apply the following principles:

(I) Use of the confined and unconfined aquifers shall be regulated so as to maintain a sustainable water supply in each aquifer system, with due regard for the daily, seasonal, and long-term demand for underground water;

(II) Unconfined aquifers serve as valuable underground water storage reservoirs with water levels that fluctuate in response to climatic conditions, water supply, and water demands, and such fluctuations shall be allowed to continue;

(III) Fluctuations in the artesian pressure in the confined aquifer system have occurred and will continue to occur in response to climatic conditions, water supply, and water demands. Subject to subparagraph (IV) of this paragraph (a), such pressure fluctuations shall be allowed with the ranges that occurred during the period of 1978 through 2000. Artesian pressures shall be allowed to increase in periods of greater water supply and shall be allowed to decline in periods of lower water supply in much the same manner and within the same ranges of fluctuation as occurred during the period of 1978 through 2000, while maintaining average levels similar to those that occurred in 1978 through 2000.

(IV) Nothing in subparagraph (I) or (II) of this paragraph (a) shall be construed either to relieve wells from the obligation to replace injurious stream depletions in accordance with the rules adopted by the state engineer or to permit the expanded use of underground water; and

(V) Underground water use shall not unreasonably interfere with the state's ability to fulfill its obligations under the Rio Grande compact, codified in article 66 of this title, with due regard for the right to accrue credits and debits under the compact.

(b) In adopting rules pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subsection (4), the state engineer shall:

(I) Recognize contractual arrangements among water users, water user associations, water conservancy districts, ground water management subdistricts, and the Rio Grande water conservation district, pursuant to which:

(A) Water is added to the stream system to assist in meeting the Rio Grande compact delivery schedules or to replace depletions to stream flows resulting from the use of underground water; or

(B) Subject to subparagraphs (I), (II), and (III) of paragraph (a) of this subsection (4), injury to senior surface water rights resulting from the use of underground water is remedied by means other than providing water to replace stream depletions;

(II) Establish criteria for the beginning and end of the division 3 irrigation season for all irrigation water rights;

(III) Not recognize the reduction of water consumption by phreatophytes as a source of replacement water for new water uses or to replace existing depletions, or as a means to prevent injury from new water uses; and

(IV) Not require senior surface water right holders with reasonable means of surface diversions to rely on underground water to satisfy their appropriate water right.

(c) The state engineer shall not curtail underground water withdrawals from aquifers in division 3 that are included in a ground water management subdistrict created pursuant to section 37-45-120 or 37-48-108 if the withdrawals are made pursuant to a groundwater management plan adopted by the subdistrict that meets the requirements of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subsection (4). The state engineer shall publish notice of the approval of any groundwater management plan in the same manner as provided for rules under paragraph (g) of subsection (2) of this section, and judicial review of such approval shall be pursuant to paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section. The water judge shall retain jurisdiction over the water management plan for the purpose of ensuring the plan is operated, and injury is prevented, in conformity with the terms of the court's decree approving the water management plan.

Division engineer evaluates each junior appropriator's diversion to determine material injury caused. The statutory plan in this section and § 37-92-502 contemplates that the division engineer will evaluate each junior appropriator's diversion to determine whether it is causing material injury to water rights having senior priorities before ordering the discontinuance of the diversion by the junior appropriator. South-eastern Colo. Water conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Since the language in this statute on regulations by the state engineer is permissive, it does not require a surface appropriator to apply ground water to his decree before making a call. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Stream administration. Streams independently appropriated remain independent under the doctrine of prior appropriation unless the water of those streams becomes subject to equitable apportionment by compact, in which case the streams must be administered as mandated by the compact or statutory provisions for priority administration of water rights. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

State engineer may promulgate and enforce appropriate rules. In order to promulgate and enforce rules for compliance with Rio Grande river compact commitments, the state engineer may promulgate and enforce appropriate rules for the administration of water rights. In re Rules & Regulations Governing Water Rights, 196 Colo. 197, 583 P.2d 910 (1978).

Given an irreconcilable conflict between intrastate priority administration and compliance with an interstate compact, it is compact compliance that must take precedence. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

Burden of proof to support amendment to rules. The state engineer has the burden of proof, by a preponderance of the evidence, in a proceeding to determine the validity of a proposed amendment to rules, adopted pursuant to this section, governing the use of ground water. Kuiper v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry., 195 Colo. 557, 581 P.2d 293 (1978).

State engineer's authority to apply compact tributary rule. A compact requiring administration of the Rio Grande mainstem and Conejos river according to delivery schedules that did not include the contributions of three creeks as significant to the delivery obligation did away with the state engineer's authority to apply the tributary rule of the compact to the three creeks. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Regulations of the state engineer are presumed to be valid until shown otherwise by a preponderance of the evidence. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Regulations need not be uniform throughout the state. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Rules may take effect only after all protests have been heard and resolved by the water court. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

The procedural requirements specified in this section for the promulgation of rules control over conflicting portions of the state Administrative Procedure Act. Simpson v. Cotton Creek Circles, LLC, 181 P.3d 252 (Colo. 2008).

Water judge may award costs to the prevailing party, which may include a private party who supported the rule. The statute specifies that the procedures are "the same" as for a protest of a ruling of the referee pursuant to § 37-92-304 and are therefore sufficiently trial-like to justify the authority to award costs. Cotton Creek Circles v. Rio Grande Water Conservation Dist., 218 P.3d 1098 (Colo. 2009).

When adjudicated priorities are not being filled as a result of pumping unappropriated ground water, it cannot be said that this ground water is unappropriated. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

If the regulation of wells which are inferior in priority will reasonably contribute to the satisfaction of earlier priorities, the owners of the wells cannot be heard to say that they have a right to continue the use thereof. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

This section does not authorize a water judge to approve the use of salvaged water for augmentation credits free of the call of the river; rather, it merely gives administrative discretion to the state engineer. In re Water Rights of Park County Sportsmen's Ranch, 105 P.3d 595 (Colo. 2005).

Diversions made pursuant to water right considered historical use where not ordered discontinued. Where the water commissioner was aware of the landowners' diversions of water and had never ordered them to be discontinued or limited, the diversions made pursuant to a water right, though not in priority, could be considered as establishing an historical use for the purpose of the change of water right. South-eastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Regulations found to promote development and use of underground water. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Maximum utilization of an aquifer is not license to get all the water from it, but rather the objective of "maximum use" administration is "optimum use" which can only be achieved with proper regard for all significant factors, including economic and environmental concerns. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Aquifer-wide determination of material injury. Under rules proposed by the state engineer, individuals retained the right in "each case" to challenge the application of an aquifer-wide determination of material injury to "each diversion", but since the streams were over-appropriated and underground water diversions from the aquifer were found to significantly affect stream flow, it was presumed that each underground water diversion materially injured senior appropriators; therefore, the state engineer was not required to repeat for every well the analysis which lead to the aquifer-wide determination of material injury. Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Ass'n v. Gould, 674 P.2d 914 (Colo. 1983).

Because the confined aquifer is overappropriated, the requirement that the state engineer allow the confined aquifer's artesian pressure to fluctuate only within a stated historic range does not violate the constitutional right to divert unappropriated water. Simpson v. Cotton Creek Circles, LLC, 181 P.3d 252 (Colo. 2008).

The state engineer's rules that specify that unappropriated water is not made available as a result of the reduction of water consumption by "nonirrigated native vegetation" are valid even though the statute prohibits the rules from recognizing the reduction of water consumption by "phreatophytes". Because the rules mirror statutory law, they do not exceed the scope of the statutory authority. Simpson v. Cotton Creek Circles, LLC, 181 P.3d 252 (Colo. 2008).

The subdistrict's ground water management plan is sufficiently comprehensive and detailed to permit the continued use of ground water consistent with preventing material injury to senior surface water rights. It accomplishes this by being able to reliably estimate annual depletions in time, amount, and location and by having adequate financial mechanisms in place to either acquire the necessary replacement water, reduce depletions, or both. One permissible mechanism is the option of entering into contracts with non-subdistrict well owners for replacement water. The ground water model incorporated into the plan may not account for changes in evapotranspiration caused by the eradication of phreatophytes, but may account for changes in evapotranspiration caused by fluctuations in the ground water table as contemplated by the statute. If the subdistrict does not comply with its approved plan, or if the plan as implemented does not actually prevent material injury, the state engineer must curtail ground water diversions to protect senior surface water rights. In re Subdistrict No. 1, 270 P.3d 927 (Colo. 2011).

Although this section directs the state engineer to regulate state waters, it does not exempt all water projects from local regulation. Denver v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 782 P.2d 753 (Colo. 1989).

Regulations found not to be fatally vague, unenforceable, or unreasonable. Kuiper v. Well Owners Conservation Ass'n, 176 Colo. 119, 490 P.2d 268 (1971).

Federal reserved water rights. The United States possesses reserved rights for its federal reservations in Colorado in waters unappropriated upon the date of reservation of the federal lands from the public domain, and in the amount necessary to achieve the primary purposes of the reservations. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Reserved rights determined by Colorado law. Colorado law governing the determination of water rights is properly applied as the rule of decision by which the courts will determine the contours of the reserved rights asserted by the United States. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

Administration by state engineer. Federal reserved water rights ultimately adjudicated to the United States are subject to administration by the state engineer. United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

For extent of federal reserved water rights on different categories of public lands, see United States v. City & County of Denver, 656 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1982).

The state engineer has authority under this section to determine how to administer the one-fill rule when a storage decree does not address how diversions are to be accounted for.

N. Sterling Irrig. Dist. v. Simpson, 202 P.3d 1207 (Colo. 2009).

Applied in Pioneer Irrigation Dists. v. Danielson, 658 P.2d 842 (Colo. 1983).

37-92-501.5. Special procedures with respect to plans for augmentation. Consistent with the decisions of the water judges establishing the basis for approval for plans for augmentation and for the administration of groundwater, the state engineer and division engineers shall exercise the broadest latitude possible in the administration of waters under their jurisdiction to encourage and develop augmentation plans and voluntary exchanges of water and may make such rules and regulations and shall take such other reasonable action as may be necessary in order to allow continuance of existing uses and to assure maximum beneficial utilization of the waters of this state. In so doing, the state engineer shall curtail all out-of-priority diversions, the depletions from which are not so replaced as to prevent injury to vested water rights.

Approval by water courts required. This section does not delegate to the state engineer independent authority to approve out-of-priority diversions and the replacement water used in augmentation plans. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

37-92-502. Orders as to waste, diversions, distribution of water. (1) The state engineer or the division engineers shall issue to the owners or users of water rights and to the users of waters of the state such orders as are necessary to implement the provisions of section 37-92-501, including, but not limited to, the orders specified in subsections (2) to (7) of this section. If such orders are given orally, they shall be confirmed promptly in writing.

(2) (a) Each division engineer shall order the total or partial discontinuance of any diversion in his division to the extent that the water being diverted is not necessary for application to a beneficial use; and he shall also order the total or partial discontinuance of any diversion in his division to the extent that the water being diverted is required by persons entitled to use water under water rights having senior priorities, but no such discontinuance shall be ordered unless the diversion is causing or will cause material injury to such water rights having senior priorities. In making his decision as to the discontinuance of a diversion to satisfy senior priorities, the division engineer shall be governed by the following: The materiality of injury depends on all factors which will determine in each case the amount of water such discontinuance will make available to such senior priorities at the time and place of their need. Such factors include the current and prospective volumes of water in and tributary to the stream from which the diversion is being made; distance and type of stream bed between the diversion points; the various velocities of this water, both surface and underground; the probable duration of the available flow; and the predictable return flow to the affected stream. Each diversion shall be evaluated and administered on the basis of the circumstances relating to it and in accordance with provisions of this article and the court decrees adjudicating and confirming water rights. In the event that a discontinuance has been ordered pursuant to the provisions of this paragraph (a), and nevertheless such discontinuance does not cause water to become available to such senior priorities at the time and place of their need, then such discontinuance order shall be rescinded. If a well has been approved as an alternate means of diversion for a water right for which a surface means of diversion is decreed, such well and such surface means must be utilized to the extent feasible and permissible under this article to satisfy said water right before diversions under junior water rights are ordered discontinued. In addition to any other methods of giving notice, the posting of a written order, in plain sight, at the place of diversion shall be considered sufficient notice of the order of the division engineer; and, when so posted, such order shall be effective from the time of posting:

(b) If any groundwater was exposed to the atmosphere in connection with the extraction of sand and gravel by open mining as defined in section 34-32-103 (9), C.R.S., prior to January 1, 1981, the division engineer shall not order the curtailment of diversions which were attributable solely to evaporation from such exposed groundwater.

(3) Each division engineer shall order the release from storage of any water he finds to have been illegally or improperly stored and shall make such orders as are necessary to insure that such released waters are delivered to those owners or users of water rights who are entitled to the same and to insure that the release will not cause damage.

(4) Each division engineer with the approval of the state engineer shall administer the movement of water involved in any plan for augmentation or water use project which is in effect in his division. If any such plan or project involves the movement of water from one division to another, then the administration of such movement shall be the direct responsibility of the state engineer, but he may act through the appropriate division engineers. In such administration the division engineers and the state engineer shall issue such orders as are necessary and appropriate and may utilize any funds, public or private, and any other resources made available to them. Each plan for augmentation shall be administered to accomplish the maximum economic use of and benefit from the water which may be available or developed for such administration if persons owning, or entitled to use water under, water rights or conditional water rights will not be injuriously affected thereby.

(5) (a) The state engineer and the division engineers have authority to order any owner or user of a water right to install and maintain at such owner's or user's expense necessary meters, gauges, or other measuring devices and to report at reasonable times to the appropriate division engineer the readings of such meters, gauges, or other measuring devices.

(b) The state engineer and the division engineers have authority to order any person or company supplying energy used to pump groundwater to provide, at reasonable times to the appropriate division engineer, records of energy used to pump groundwater. Nothing contained in this paragraph (b) shall affect any reporting requirements of the public utilities commission pursuant to section 40-3-110, C.R.S.

(c) By June 30, 2004, the state engineer and the division engineers shall refund all amounts collected through assessment of the water administration fee established in section 37-80-121. The amount refunded shall not include interest, legal fees, or costs incurred by water users in protests or appeals of such assessment or any other costs associated with section 37-80-121.

(6) The state engineer and the division engineers and their duly authorized assistants and staff have the authority and duty to enter upon, and to order any person to permit the entry upon, private property at any reasonable time to inspect the various means or proposed means of diversion, transportation, and storage and the uses to which water is being, or is proposed to be, put and to read meters, gauges, and other measuring devices.

(7) The state engineer, division engineer, and their duly authorized assistants have the power and duty to issue orders so that the streams of the state may be kept clear of unnecessary dams or other obstructions which may restrict or impede the flow of water to the water users of the state.

Although a junior well operator’s ultimate ability to divert return flows may be subject to a call by a more senior appropriator with surface rights downstream, the administration of these competing priorities is vested in the state and division engineers. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

The trial court exceeded its authority when it decreed that the state engineer petition the court to have Thornton pay the cost of administrative assistance from the state engineer’s office for the administration of the northern project. This statute merely authorized the state engineer and division engineer to utilize private funds that may be available to them, not to impose obligations on private parties to provide such funds. City of Thornton v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 926 P.2d 1 (Colo. 1996).

Automatic cessation of diversions by junior appropriator not contemplated. This section and § 37-92-501 do not contemplate automatic cessation of diversions by junior appropriator in response to a river call. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Division engineer evaluates each junior appropriator’s diversion to determine material injury caused. The statutory plan in this section and § 37-92-501 contemplates that the division engineer will evaluate each junior appropriator’s diversion to determine whether it is causing material injury to water rights having senior priorities before ordering the discontinuance of the diversion by the junior appropriator. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Adequacy of replacement water not an issue. The state engineer’s material injury analysis under this section is limited to a determination, based on consideration of the factors expressly listed, of whether curtailment of an out-of-priority use will make water available to fulfill senior priorities at the time and place of need. Simpson v. Bijou Irrigation Co., 69 P.3d 50 (Colo. 2003).

Order for discontinuation justified where diversion caused by construction of gravel pits will result in material injury to senior water rights. Zigan Sand & Gravel v. Cache La Poudre, 758 P.2d 175 (Colo. 1988).

Trial court properly applied the relevant materiality of injury test in finding that junior diversion was not harming senior priority rights. SRJ I Venture v. Smith Cattle, Inc., 820 P.2d 341 (Colo. 1991).

Diversions made pursuant to water right considered historical use where not ordered discontinued. Where the water commissioner was aware of the landowners’ diversions of water and had never ordered them to be discontinued or limited, the diversions made pursuant to a water right, though not in priority, could be considered as establishing an historical use for the purpose of the change of water right. Southeastern Colo. Water Conservancy Dist. v. Rich, 625 P.2d 977 (Colo. 1981).

Out-of-priority, undetected diversions made by appropriator’s predecessor in interest should not be considered in establishment of historical use of water right. Pueblo West Metro. Dist. v. S.E. Colo. Water Cons. Dist., 717 P.2d 955 (Colo. 1986).

Aquifer-wide determination of material injury. Under rules proposed by the state engineer, individuals retained the right in “each case” to challenge the application of an aquifer-wide determination of material injury to “each diversion”, but since the streams were over-appropriated and underground water diversions from the aquifer were found to significantly affect stream flow, it was presumed that each underground water diversion materially injured senior appropriators; therefore, the state engineer was not required to repeat for every well the analysis which led to the aquifer-wide determination of material injury. *Alamosa-La Jara Water Users Prot. Applied in Purgatoire River Water Conservancy Dist. v. Kuiper, 197 Colo. 200, 593 P.2d 333 (1979).

37-92-503. Enforcement - injunction. (1) (a) In the event an order of a division engineer or the state engineer issued pursuant to section 37-92-502 is not complied with, the state engineer and the particular division engineer in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, through the attorney general, shall apply to the water judge of the particular division for an injunction enjoining the person to whom such order was directed from continuing to violate same. The term “injunction” includes mandatory relief.

(b) In such proceeding, if the court upholds the order of the state engineer, the person against whom such order was issued shall pay the costs of the proceeding, including the allowance of reasonable attorney fees.

(c) Any proceeding brought by the state engineer or a division engineer to enforce an order to curtail the diversion of surface water or groundwater to comply with an interstate compact shall be accelerated on the court's calendar pursuant to section 37-92-203 (2), shall take priority over other water matters, and shall be determined immediately upon the conclusion of such proceeding.

(2) In the case of an order with respect to the diversion of water or the release of water from reservoirs, the water judge in ruling upon such injunction shall consider, depending on the basis for the order, whether or not the water is being applied to a beneficial use; whether or not the diversion is causing or will cause injury to persons owning, or entitled to use water under, water rights having senior decreed priorities; and whether or not the release of improperly stored water would benefit other water users.

(3) Any person who has an interest in the subject matter of such proceedings may intervene, if such intervention is timely and will not cause undue delay.

(4) In the case of a violation of an injunction issued under the provisions of this section, the water judge shall try and punish the offender for contempt of court.

(5) Such proceedings shall be in addition to, and not in lieu of, any other penalties and remedies, public or private, provided by law.

(6) (a) (I) Any person who diverts groundwater contrary to a valid order of the state engineer or a division engineer issued pursuant to section 37-92-502, in violation of a plan approved pursuant to rules adopted by the state engineer, or otherwise in violation of rules adopted by the state engineer to regulate or measure diversions of groundwater shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each day such violation continues.

(II) Any person who diverts surface water contrary to a valid order of the state engineer or a division engineer issued pursuant to section 37-92-502 shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each day such violation continues.

(b) Any person who, when required to do so by rules and regulations adopted by the state engineer, fails to submit data as to amounts of water pumped from a well, makes a false or fictitious report of the amounts of water pumped from a well, falsifies any data as to amounts pumped from a well, makes a false or fictitious report of a power coefficient for a well, or falsifies any power coefficient test shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each violation.

(c) It is unlawful for any person not authorized by the well owner or the state engineer to willfully interfere with any power meter, totalizing flow meter, or other device used to measure groundwater diversions. Any person who willfully injures or destroys a power meter, totalizing flow meter, or other device used to measure groundwater diversions or who tampers with or falsifies any record made or being made by any such power meter, totalizing flow meter, or other device shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each violation.

(d) Any fine collected for violations of the provisions of this subsection (6) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the general fund.

(e) The state engineer and the particular division engineer in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, through the attorney general, shall apply to the water judge of the particular division to recover the civil penalties specified in paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this subsection (6) or for a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, or permanent injunction, as appropriate, enjoining further violations of this subsection (6). If the state engineer and the division engineer prevail, the court shall also award the costs of the proceeding including the allowance of reasonable attorney fees.

(7) Any person required by a valid order of the state engineer or division engineer, or by existing rules of the state engineer, to replace depletions caused by diversions of groundwater or surface water and whose failure to replace such depletions results in the violation of an interstate compact shall be liable for all direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred by the state of Colorado in performing any action, including the purchase of water or payment of damages, necessary for the state of Colorado to remedy the violation of such compact. The state engineer and the particular division engineer in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, through the attorney general, shall apply to the water judge of the particular division to recover such expenses. If the state engineer and the division engineer prevail, the court shall also award the costs of the proceeding including the allowance of reasonable attorney fees.

Defendants in suit for injunction under this section have standing to assert affirmative defense that curtailment order is invalid as a violation of the terms of the Arkansas river compact. A defendant's affirmative defense does not constitute an independent cause of action; therefore, the rules for whether a plaintiff has standing are inapplicable to defendant under these circumstances (distinguishing standing cases involving criminal defendants). People ex rel. Simpson v. Highland Irr., 893 P.2d 122 (Colo. 1995), aff'd, 917 P.2d 1242 (Colo. 1996).

Where the circumstances clearly show that water from a well that was subject to a valid curtailment order was used to irrigate the well owner's alfalfa crop, subsection (6) imposes liability on the well owner despite the owner's defense that he personally did not turn on the well pump because the well was being used illegally with his authorization. *Vaughn v. ### APPLICATION OF ARTICLE

Cross references: For the appointments and functions of water division engineers, see § 37-92-202.

37-92-601. Disposition of pending proceedings - showings of reasonable diligence. All proceedings pending on June 7, 1969, for the adjudication of water rights, for a change of water rights, or for the disposition of other matters which are of the type to be handled by proceedings provided for in this article shall be concluded by June 1, 1972, in accordance with the provisions of the statute under which they are instituted, and priorities and changes of water rights which are determined in such pending proceedings shall be integrated by the various division engineers in their current records and shall be included in tabulations prepared by the division engineers pursuant to the provisions of this article. Any such proceedings which are not concluded by June 1, 1972, shall be heard from that time on to completion by the water judge for the division in which the proceedings are pending, under procedures provided for in this article; except that the chief justice of the supreme court may provide that a judge, other than the water judge, shall complete proceedings in specific cases. Persons who have filed statements of claim in such pending proceedings may withdraw therefrom at any time and file applications or otherwise proceed in accordance with this article. Showings of reasonable diligence under existing conditional decrees or conditional decrees entered in such pending proceedings shall be made in accordance with the provisions of this article, but the time shall be tolled during any period in which the water judge finds the applicant was prevented from filing by reason of conditions beyond his control. Applications for findings of reasonable diligence shall be filed with the water clerk pursuant to the terms of this article. When and if a conditional water right awarded in any such conditional decree becomes a water right pursuant to the procedures in this article, the priority awarded such water right shall be the same as if the proceedings in which the conditional decree was entered had remained open until the final determination with respect to such water right.

37-92-602. Exemptions - presumptions - legislative declaration. (1) This article, except for sections 37-92-201 and 37-92-202, does not apply to:

- (a) Designated groundwater basins as defined and established by article 90 of this title;
- (b) Wells not exceeding fifteen gallons per minute of production and used for ordinary household purposes, fire protection, the watering of poultry, domestic animals, and livestock on farms and ranches and for the irrigation of not over one acre of home gardens and lawns but not used for more than three single-family dwellings;
- (c) Wells not exceeding fifteen gallons per minute of production and used for drinking and sanitary facilities in individual commercial businesses;
- (d) Wells to be used exclusively for fire-fighting purposes if said wells are capped, locked, and available for use only in fighting fires;
- (e) Wells not exceeding fifty gallons per minute that are in production as of May 22, 1971, and were and are used for ordinary household purposes for not more than three single-family dwellings, fire protection, the watering of poultry, domestic animals, and livestock on farms and ranches, and for the irrigation of not over one acre of gardens and lawns;
- (f) Wells to be used exclusively for monitoring and observation purposes if said wells are capped and locked and used only to monitor water levels or for water quality sampling; and
- (g) (I) Any system or method of collecting precipitation from the roof of a building that is used primarily as a residence and is not served by, whether or not connected to, a domestic water system that serves more than three single-family dwellings, but only if the use of the water thus collected is limited to one or more of the following:

- (A) Ordinary household purposes;
- (B) Fire protection;
- (C) The watering of poultry, domestic animals, and livestock on farms and ranches; or
- (D) The irrigation of not more than one acre of gardens and lawns.

(II) As used in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (g), "a building that is used primarily as a residence" may include, but is not limited to, any structure used for habitation, regardless of whether the structure is operated commercially or inhabited intermittently.

(III) On and after July 1, 2009, any person wishing to use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture that qualifies as exempt under subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (g) shall comply with one of the following provisions of sub-subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of this subparagraph (III):

(A) A person who has a well permit issued or recorded pursuant to this section and who intends to use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture that qualifies as exempt under subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (g) shall file, on a form prescribed by the state engineer and consistent with this section, a notice and description of the system or method of rooftop precipitation capture to be used in conjunction with the well. No fee shall be charged for the filing of this form.

(B) A person who applies for a new well permit pursuant to this section and who intends to use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture that qualifies as exempt under subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (g) shall include on the well permit application a description of the system or method of rooftop precipitation capture to be used in conjunction with the well. An applicant under this sub-subparagraph (B) shall pay the well permit application fee pursuant to subparagraph (II) of paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section; however, such applicant shall not be required to pay any additional application fee for the rooftop precipitation collection system.

(C) A person who does not intend to construct and use a well, but would otherwise be entitled to the issuance of a well permit pursuant to this section, including the provisions of subsection (6) of this section, shall submit an application in the form and manner designated by the state engineer for a permit to install and use a system or method of rooftop precipitation capture and pay a fee in an amount to be determined by the state engineer. If the state engineer determines that the proposed system or method of rooftop precipitation capture meets the requirements of this paragraph (g), the state engineer shall issue a permit for the system or method, but not otherwise. The state engineer shall enforce the provisions of the permit in the same manner as the enforcement of any well permit issued under this section.

(IV) A person using or legally entitled to use a well pursuant to this section, including the provisions of subsection (6) of this section, shall be allowed to collect rooftop precipitation pursuant to this paragraph (g) only for use by the same dwellings that are or would be served by the well and subject to all of the limitations on use contained in the well permit or, in the absence of a well permit, the well permit to which the person would be legally entitled, as determined by the state engineer.

(V) (A) The state engineer or the division engineers may issue, to the users of methods or systems of rooftop precipitation collection, orders necessary to implement the provisions of this paragraph (g). If such orders are given orally, they shall be confirmed promptly in writing.

(B) In the event that an order of a division engineer or the state engineer issued pursuant to sub-subparagraph (A) of this subparagraph (V) is not complied with, the state engineer, in the name of the people of the state of Colorado, through the attorney general, shall apply to the water judge of the particular division for an injunction enjoining the person from committing the violation. In such proceeding, if the court upholds the order of the state engineer, the person against whom such order was issued shall pay the costs of the proceeding, including reasonable attorney fees.

(C) Any person who violates an order issued by the state engineer pursuant to sub-subparagraph (A) of this subparagraph (V) shall forfeit and pay a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars for each violation. Any fine collected for violations of this paragraph (g) shall be transmitted to the state treasurer, who shall credit the same to the water resources cash fund created in section 37-80-111.7 (1).

(2) With respect to applications filed prior to May 8, 1972, the state engineer shall issue a permit for the construction of wells specified in subsection (1) of this section without regard to the provisions of section 37-90-137 (2) and (3) upon submission of an application which shall be accompanied by a fee of five dollars. It is the legislative intent that the exemption in subsection (1) of this section is for an applicant to obtain a water supply for his own use.

(3) (a) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, wells of the type described in paragraphs (b) to (d) of subsection (1) of this section may be constructed only upon the issuance of a permit in accordance with the provisions of this subsection (3). A person desiring to use such a well shall submit an application for a permit accompanied by a fee of sixty dollars for an application under paragraph (c) of this subsection (3) and a fee of one hundred dollars for an application under paragraph (b) of this subsection (3).

(b) (I) With respect to applications filed on and after May 8, 1972, the state engineer shall first make a determination as to whether or not the exercise of the requested permit will materially injure the vested water rights of others or any other existing well, subject to the provisions of subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b). If the state engineer finds that the vested water rights of others or any other existing well will be materially injured, he shall deny the permit. Otherwise, the permit shall be issued, and it shall set forth such conditions for drilling, casing, equipping, and using the well as are reasonably necessary to prevent waste, pollution, or material injury to existing rights. The state engineer shall endorse upon the application the date of its receipt, file and preserve such application, and make a record of such receipt and the issuance of the permit in his office, so indexed as to be useful in determining the extent of the uses made from various groundwater sources.

(II) (A) If a permit is sought by a user for a well exempted under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section which will be the only well on a residential site, which well will be used solely for ordinary household purposes inside a single-family dwelling and will not be used for irrigation or will be the only well on a tract of land of thirty-five acres or more or will be the only well on a cluster development lot, serving one single-family residence, where the ratio of water usage in the cluster development does not exceed one acre-foot of annual withdrawals for each thirty-five acres within the cluster development and will be used solely for the purposes specified in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section, and the return flow from such uses shall be returned to the same stream system in which the well is located, there shall be a presumption that there will not be material injury to the vested water rights of others or to any other existing well resulting from such well, which presumption may be rebutted by evidence sufficient to show such material injury.

(D) Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude the state engineer from requiring metering of withdrawals, periodic reporting of such withdrawals, and cessation of withdrawals that exceed one acre-foot of water for each thirty-five acres within a cluster development.

(III) If the application is for a well, as defined in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (b), which will be located in a subdivision, as defined in section 30-28-101 (10), C.R.S., and approved on or after June 1, 1972, pursuant to article 28 of title 30, C.R.S., for which the water supply plan has not been recommended for approval by the state engineer, the cumulative effect of all such wells in the subdivision shall be considered in determining material injury.

(c) (I) If any person wishes to relocate an existing well of the type specified in paragraphs (b) to (e) of subsection (1) of this section, such person shall file an application pursuant to this subsection (3) for the construction of a well and shall state in such application such person's intent to abandon the existing well which is to be relocated.

(II) (A) If such relocated well will not change substantially the usage of water which can lawfully be made by means of the existing well, a permit to construct and use the relocated well shall be issued, and the existing well shall be abandoned within ninety-one days after the completion of the relocated well.

(B) For purposes of this subparagraph (II), absent a showing by a preponderance of the evidence, a relocated well will be presumed not to change substantially the usage of water if the existing well was constructed pursuant to a permit issued by the state engineer, the location of the relocated well will be within two hundred feet of the existing well, the well will be constructed into the same aquifer, the historical use of water from the well will not change, the annual volume of use of the relocated well will be the same as or less than the annual permitted volume of use of the existing well, and the gallons per minute flow of the relocated well will be the same as or less than the permitted gallons per minute flow of the existing well.

(d) (I) Repealed.

(II) Effective July 1, 2006, wells for which permits have been granted or may be granted shall be constructed within two years after the permit is issued, which time may be extended for successive years at the discretion of the state engineer for good cause shown.

(e) The state engineer shall act upon an application filed under this subsection (3) within forty-nine days after such filing and shall support his or her ruling with a written statement of the basis therefor, and the provisions of article 4 of title 24, C.R.S., shall apply.

(f) Any person aggrieved by a decision of the state engineer granting or denying an application filed under this subsection (3) may within thirty-five days after such decision file a petition for review with the water clerk of the water division in which the well is located. Upon receipt of such petition, the water judge of said water division shall promptly conduct such hearings as are necessary to determine whether or not the decision of the state engineer shall be upheld. In any case in which the state engineer's decision is reversed, the water judge shall order the state engineer to grant or to deny the application, as such reversal may require, and may specify such terms and conditions as are appropriate. Appeals from any decision of the water judge shall be made as in other civil actions.

(4) Notwithstanding the provisions of the introductory portion of subsection (1) of this section, water rights for wells of the type specified in paragraphs (b) to (e) of said subsection (1) may be determined pursuant to sections 37-92-302 to 37-92-306; except that the original priority date of any such well may be awarded regardless of the date of application therefor.

(5) (a) Repealed.

(b) Effective July 1, 2006, any wells exempted by this section that were put to beneficial use prior to May 8, 1972, and any wells that were used exclusively for monitoring and observation purposes prior to August 1, 1988, not of record in the office of the state engineer may be recorded in that office upon written application, payment of a processing fee of one hundred dollars, and permit approval. The record shall include the date the water is claimed to have been appropriated or first put to beneficial use.

(6) It is hereby declared to be the policy of the state of Colorado that the exemptions set forth in this section are intended to allow citizens to obtain a water supply in less densely populated areas for in-house and domestic animal uses where other water supplies are not available. It is not the intent that these wells be used to cause material injury to prior vested water rights, and, wherever possible, persons seeking the use of such individual wells may be required to develop plans for augmentation pursuant to section 37-92-302 or to develop other replacement plans acceptable to the state engineer.

(7) Notwithstanding the amount specified for any fee in this section, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may reduce the amount of one or more of the fees if necessary pursuant to section 24-75-402 (3), C.R.S., to reduce the uncommitted reserves of the fund to which all or any portion of one or more of the fees is credited. After the uncommitted reserves of the fund are sufficiently reduced, the state engineer by rule or as otherwise provided by law may increase the amount of one or more of the fees as provided in section 24-75-402 (4), C.R.S.

Owners of unadjudicated wells exempted under subsection (4) have vested water rights and may assert injury to their water rights in water court once they have filed for adjudication of those rights. However, the priority of such a right is not enforceable until an application for adjudication has been filed. Once the exempt well owner files, he or she has a statutorily guaranteed expectation of the original priority date of the well regardless of the date of application. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Actual entry of a decree is not a condition precedent to an appearance by an exempt well owner in an augmentation proceeding. Once the exempt well owner has filed for adjudication, any uncertainty in the award of a priority date is statutorily resolved. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Findings by the state engineer were held not to be a condition precedent to a water court ruling in the context of an augmentation proceeding where objectors were not permitted to assert injury to their exempt wells. Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Under a plan for augmentation, wells, which might be exempt otherwise, must be treated as nonexempt. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976); Application of Turkey Canon Ranch Ltd., 937 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1997).

Of necessity, the issuance of well permits, the adjudication of a plan for augmentation involving wells, and the enforcement of that plan and regulations involving wells must relate to wells which are subject to administration. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

Under the act, an exempt well, standing alone, was and is free from regulation by either a water court or the state engineer. When, however, one studies § 37-92-302, relating to a plan for augmentation, the conclusion is inescapable that all wells involved in the plan must be treated as if they were nonexempt. Cache La Poudre Water Users Ass'n v. Glacier View Meadows, 191 Colo. 53, 550 P.2d 288 (1976).

37-95-101. Short title. This article shall be known and may be cited as the “Colorado Water Resources and Power Development Authority Act”.

Source: L. 81: Entire article added, p. 1794, § 1, effective July 1.

37-95-102. Legislative declaration. (1) It is hereby declared to be the public policy of the state to preserve, protect, upgrade, conserve, develop, utilize, and manage the water resources of the state, to promote the beneficial use of waters of the state for the protection and preservation of the public health, safety, convenience, and welfare, to create or preserve jobs and employment opportunities or to improve the economic welfare of the people of the state, and to assist and cooperate with governmental agencies in achieving such purposes. In furtherance of such public policy, the Colorado water resources and power development authority is created in this article to initiate, acquire, construct, maintain, repair, and operate projects or cause the same to be operated pursuant to a lease, sublease, or other agreement with any person or governmental agency and may issue its bonds and notes payable solely from revenues to pay the cost of such projects.

(2) The general assembly finds and declares that the authority and powers conferred under this article and the expenditures of public moneys pursuant thereto constitute a serving of a valid public purpose and that the enactment of the provisions set forth in this article is in the public interest and is hereby so declared to be such as a matter of express legislative determination.

37-95-103. Definitions. As used in this article:

(1) “Authority” means the Colorado water resources and power development authority created by this article.

(2) “Beneficial use” means a use of water, including the method of diversion, storage, transportation, treatment, and application, that is reasonable and consistent with the public interest in the proper utilization of water resources, including, but not limited to, domestic, agricultural, industrial, power, municipal navigational, fish and wildlife, and recreational uses.

(3) “Board” means the board of directors of the authority.

(4) “Bonds” means bonds, notes, or other obligations issued by the authority pursuant to this article.

(4.5) “Clean water act” means the “Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972”, Pub.L. 92-500, and any act amendatory or supplemental thereto as of April 4, 1988.

(4.7) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2003, p. 2410, § 4, effective June 5, 2003.)

(4.8) “Drinking water project eligibility list” means the list of projects eligible for financial assistance from the authority through the drinking water revolving fund or its other bonding capabilities, as adopted and from time to time modified in accordance with section 37-95-107.8 (4). The list shall consist of new or existing water management facilities that extend, protect, improve, or replace domestic drinking water supplies in the state of Colorado and may include any domestic drinking water supply projects eligible for financial assistance through a state revolving fund pursuant to the terms of the “Safe Drinking Water act”, as defined in subsection (12.2) of this section.

(4.9) “Forest health project” means an undertaking that improves the health of a forest, including, but not limited to:

(a) Reducing the threat of uncharacteristically large or intense insect diseases and epidemics;

- (b) Reducing the impact of uncharacteristically large or high-intensity wildfires;
- (c) Reducing the impact of undesirable nonnative species;
- (d) Replanting trees in deforested areas; or
- (e) Improving the use of, or adding value to, small diameter trees.

(5) (a) "Governmental agencies" means departments, divisions, or other units of state government, special districts, water conservation districts, metropolitan water districts, conservancy districts, irrigation districts, municipal corporations, counties, cities, and other political subdivisions, and the United States or any agency thereof.

(b) "Governmental agencies" also includes enterprises and any entity, agency, commission, or authority established by any governmental agency specified in paragraph (a) of this subsection (5), including, without limitation, those established pursuant to an interstate compact or other intergovernmental compact or agreement.

(6) "Hydroelectric facilities" means facilities for the hydrogeneration or transmission of electric power and energy.

(7) "Notes" means notes issued by the authority pursuant to this article.

(8) "Owner" includes all individuals, copartnerships, associations, corporations, or governmental agencies having any title or interest in any property rights, easements, and interests authorized to be acquired by this article.

(9) "Person" means any individual, firm, partnership, association, or corporation, or two or more or any combination thereof.

(10) "Project" means any water management facility or hydroelectric facility, including undivided or other interests therein, acquired or constructed or to be acquired or constructed by the authority under this article, including all buildings and facilities that the authority deems necessary for the operation of the project, together with all property rights, water rights, easements, and interests, including gathering, storage, treatment, and transmission facilities, unless adequate transmission capacity is available from any existing public utility, which may be required for such operation. "Project" also includes any water management facility, hydroelectric facility, or watershed protection projects and forest health projects financed in whole or in part by the authority.

(11) "Public roads" includes all public highways, roads, railroads, and streets in the state, whether maintained by the state, a county, a city, or any other political subdivision.

(12) "Public utility facilities" includes tracks, pipes, mains, conduits, cables, wires, towers, poles, and other equipment and appliances of any public utility.

(12.2) "Safe drinking water act" means the federal "Safe Drinking Water Act", 42 U.S.C. sec. 300f et seq., as amended or supplemented.

(12.5) (a) (I) "Small water resources project" means any water management facility or hydroelectric facility that is or will be financed in whole or in part by the authority and in which the total amount of financing provided by the authority to any participating governmental agency does not exceed five hundred million dollars.

(13) "Water management facilities" means facilities for the purpose of the development, use, and protection of water resources, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, facilities for water supply and treatment, facilities for streamflow improvement, dams, reservoirs, and other impoundments, water transmission lines, sewerage facilities, water wells and well fields, pumping stations and works for underground water recharge, stream-monitoring systems, and facilities for the stabilization of stream and river banks.

(13.5) "Water pollution control project eligibility list" means the list of projects eligible for financial assistance from the authority through the water pollution control revolving fund or its other bonding capabilities, as adopted and from time to time modified in accordance with section 37-95-107.6 (4). The list shall consist of a project or projects from the project priority list for federal funds adopted by the Colorado water quality control commission for publicly owned treatment works as defined in section 212 of the clean water act and nonpoint source management program projects pursuant to section 319 of the clean water act.

(14) "Water resources" means all waters in or arising from rivers, streams, lakes, ponds, marshes, watercourses, waterways, wells, springs, irrigation systems, drainage systems, underground aquifers, and other bodies, geologic formations, or accumulations of water, either natural or artificial, which are situated wholly or partly within, or which border upon, this state.

(15) "Watershed protection project" means an undertaking to improve or protect a domestic or agricultural supply watershed, including, but not limited to, activities to achieve fire prevention or wildfire hazard reduction or post-fire remediation, soil stabilization, water supply continuance, or water quality maintenance or improvement within the watershed. A watershed protection project does not include undertakings where the purpose is to materially increase water quantity.

37-95-104. Establishment of authority - board of directors - removal - organization - compensation - dissolution. (1) There is hereby created the Colorado water resources and power development authority, which shall be a body corporate and a political subdivision of the state. The authority shall not be an agency of state government, nor shall it be subject to administrative direction by any department, commission, board, bureau, or agency of the state, except to the extent provided by this article.

(2) (a) The powers of the authority shall be vested in the governing body of the authority which shall be a board of directors consisting of nine members who shall be appointed by the governor, with the consent of the senate, as follows:

- (I) One member from the Rio Grande drainage basin;
- (II) One member from the North Platte drainage basin;
- (III) One member from the Arkansas drainage basin;
- (IV) One member from the South Platte drainage basin outside the city and county of Denver;

(V) One member from the city and county of Denver who is familiar with its water problems;

- (VI) One member from the Yampa-White drainage basins;
- (VII) One member from the main Colorado drainage basin;
- (VIII) One member from the Gunnison-Uncompahgre drainage basins;
- (IX) One member from the San Miguel-Dolores-San Juan drainage basins.

(b) Appointments to the board shall be made so as to include one member who shall be experienced in water project financing, one member who shall be experienced in the engineering aspects of water projects, one member who shall be experienced in the planning and developing of water projects, one member who shall be experienced in public health issues related to drinking water or water quality matters, and one member who shall be experienced in water law. Members of the board shall be representative of the water districts from which they are appointed.

(c) No more than five members of the board shall be members of the same major political party.

(3) Members of the board shall be appointed for terms of four years; except that, of the original terms commencing October 1, 1981, three members shall be appointed for terms of one year, two members shall be appointed for terms of two years, two members for terms of three years, and two members for terms of four years, at the governor's discretion. Each member shall hold office for the term of his appointment and until his successor has been appointed and has qualified. A member shall be eligible for reappointment. Any vacancy in the membership occurring other than by expiration of term shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment but for the unexpired term only.

(4) Each member may be removed from office by the governor for cause, after a public hearing, and may be suspended by the governor pending the completion of such hearing. Each member, before entering upon his duties, shall take and subscribe an oath to perform the duties of his office faithfully, impartially, and justly to the best of his ability. A record of all such oaths shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state.

(5) The members of the board shall elect a chairman and a vice-chairman. The members of the board shall also elect a secretary and a treasurer who need not be members, and the same person may be elected to serve as both secretary and treasurer. The powers of the board shall be vested in the members thereof in office from time to time, and five members of the board shall constitute a quorum at any meeting thereof. Action may be taken and motions and resolutions adopted by the board at any meeting thereof by the affirmative vote of at least five members of the authority. No vacancy in the membership of the board shall impair the right of a quorum of the members to exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of the board.

(6) Each member of the board not otherwise in full-time employment of the state shall receive a per diem of one hundred dollars for each day actually and necessarily spent in the discharge of official duties, and all members shall receive traveling and other necessary expenses actually incurred in the performance of official duties.

(7) The authority may be dissolved by an act passed by the general assembly on condition that the authority has no debts or obligations outstanding or that provision has been made for the payment or retirement of such debts or obligations. Upon any such dissolution of the authority, all property, funds, and assets thereof shall be vested in the state.

37-95-105. Records and meetings of board - disclosure of interests required.

(1) All resolutions and orders shall be recorded and authenticated by the signature of the chairman and the secretary of the board. Every legislative act of the board of a general or permanent nature shall be by resolution. The book of resolutions, corporate acts, and orders shall be a public record. A public record shall also be made of all other proceedings of the board, minutes of the meetings, annual reports, certificates, contracts, and bonds given by officers, employees, and any other agents of the authority. The account of all moneys received by and disbursed on behalf of the authority shall also be a public record. Any public record of the authority shall be open for inspection by any citizen. All records shall be subject to uniform budget and audit laws, as set forth in article 1 of title 29, C.R.S., and shall be subject to regular audits, as provided therein.

(2) All meetings of the board shall be open to the public. No business of the board shall be transacted except at a regular or special meeting at which a quorum is present. One or more members of the board may participate in any meeting and may vote through the use of telecommunications devices, including, but not limited to, a conference telephone or similar communications equipment. Such participation through telecommunications devices shall constitute presence in person at such meeting. Such use of telecommunications shall not supersede any requirements for public hearing otherwise provided by law.

(3) Any board member, employee, or other agent or adviser of the board who has a direct or indirect interest in any contract or transaction with the authority shall disclose this interest to the board. This interest shall be set forth in the minutes of the board, and no board member, employee, or other agent or adviser having such interest shall participate on behalf of the board in the authentication of any such contract or transaction.

37-95-106. Authority - powers. (1) Except as otherwise limited by this article, the authority, acting through the board, has the power:

(a) To have the duties, privileges, immunities, rights, liabilities, and disabilities of a body corporate and political subdivision of the state;

(b) To sue and be sued;

(c) To have an official seal and to alter the same at pleasure;

(d) To make and alter bylaws for its organization and internal management and for the conduct of its affairs and business;

(e) To maintain an office at such place or places within the state as it may determine;

(f) To acquire, hold, use, and dispose of its income, revenues, funds, and moneys;

(g) To charge, alter, and collect rentals or other charges for the use or services of any project, to contract in the manner provided in this article with one or more persons or governmental agencies or combinations thereof desiring the use or services thereof, and to fix the terms, conditions, rentals, or other charges for such use or services;

(h) To acquire, lease as lessee or lessor, rent, hold, use, and dispose of real or personal property, including water rights, for its purposes; except that the acquisition by the authority of existing decreed water rights of a governmental agency shall not occur without the consent of the affected governmental agency and that negotiation by the authority for the purchase of water rights shall not proceed without first notifying any affected agency when an existing governmental agency has initiated negotiations for the purchase of such rights. The submission of a bona fide offer by a governmental agency for the purchase of such water rights shall be deemed evidence of such initiated negotiations.

(i) To deposit any moneys of the authority in any banking institution within or outside the state;

(j) To fix the time and place or places at which its regular and special meetings are to be held;

(k) (I) To plan, design, develop, acquire, construct, reconstruct, enlarge, extend, improve, furnish, equip, maintain, repair, manage, operate, dispose of, and participate in one or more projects within or without the state and to appropriate water for said projects;

(II) To designate the Colorado water conservation board or, with said board's permission, one or more other persons or governmental agencies participating in a project to act as its agent, in connection with the planning, designing, development, acquisition, construction, reconstruction, enlargement, extension, improvement, furnishing, equipping, maintenance, repair, management, operation, disposition of, or participation in such projects;

(III) To establish rules and regulations for the use of such projects; and

(IV) To finance or participate in the financing of a project, or any interest therein, acquired or constructed or to be acquired or constructed by any governmental agency;

(l) To make available the use or services of any project to one or more persons, one or more governmental agencies, or any combination thereof;

(m) To borrow money and to issue its negotiable bonds or notes in furtherance of its purposes and to provide for the rights of the holders thereof;

(n) To have and exercise the power of eminent domain and, in general, to have and exercise rights and powers of eminent domain conferred upon other agencies as provided in articles 1 to 7 of title 38, C.R.S.; but the authority shall neither have nor exercise the power of eminent domain against the state nor acquire thereby any electric generation facilities, electric distribution lines, or any conditional or absolute water rights;

(o) To contract with any person or governmental agency within or without the state for the construction of any project, or for the sale of the output of any project, or for any interest therein or any right to capacity thereof, on such terms and for such period of time as the board shall determine;

(p) To purchase, sell, exchange, transmit, or distribute the power generated by any project within or without the state, in such amounts as it shall determine to be necessary and appropriate to make the most effective use of its powers and to meet its responsibilities, and to enter into agreements with any person or governmental agency with respect to such purchase, sale, exchange, transmission, or distribution on such terms and for such period of time as the board shall determine;

(q) To purchase, sell, exchange, transmit, or distribute the water of any project within or without the state, subject to the limitation that the waters of the project shall not be delivered outside of the state for purposes other than meeting Colorado compact commitments, in such amounts as it shall determine to be necessary and appropriate to make the most effective use of its powers and to meet its responsibilities; and to enter into agreements with any person or governmental agency with respect to such purchase, sale, exchange, transmission, or distribution on such terms and for such period of time as the board shall determine; except that such action shall not interrupt the development, completion, or operation of existing water projects, nor shall the action adversely affect the ability of a district or governmental agency from fulfilling its contractual commitments associated with such projects;

(r) To make loans to any governmental agency for the planning, designing, acquiring, constructing, reconstructing, improving, equipping, and furnishing of a project, which loans may be secured by loan and security agreements, leases, or any other instruments, upon such terms and conditions as the board shall deem reasonable, including provisions for the establishment and maintenance of reserve and insurance funds, and to require the inclusion, in any lease, contract, loan and security agreement, or other instrument, of such provisions for the construction, use, operation, maintenance, and financing of a project as the board may deem necessary or desirable;

(s) To make and enter into all contracts, leases, and agreements which are necessary or incidental to the performance of its duties and the exercise of its powers under this article;

(t) To sell, convey, or lease to any person or governmental agency all or any portion of a project for such consideration and upon such terms as the board may determine to be reasonable;

(u) To make or cause to be made surveys, maps, and plans for, and estimates of the cost of, any project;

(v) (I) To acquire, in the name of the authority:

(A) Any land or other real or personal property, including water rights, which the authority determines is reasonably necessary for a project or for the relocation or reconstruction of any public road by the authority;

(B) Any and all right, title, and interest to and in such land and other real or personal property, including public lands, reservations, public roads, or parkways owned by or in which the state or any county, municipality, city and county, public corporation, or other political subdivision of the state has any right, title, or interest;

(C) Any fee simple absolute or any lesser interest in private property; and

(D) Any fee simple absolute in, or easements upon, or the benefit of restrictions upon abutting property to preserve and protect the project; except that the authority shall not acquire by purchase or condemnation land, an interest in land, or a right-of-way for the change of location of any portion of any public road, railroad, point of diversion, or public utility facility which is not needed for the construction of a project pursuant to this article.

(II) Acquisitions by the authority pursuant to this paragraph (v) may be made by purchase or otherwise, on such terms and conditions, and in such manner as the authority deems appropriate or may be made through the exercise of the power of eminent domain pursuant to, and subject to the limitations of, paragraph (n) of this subsection (1).

(w) To adopt rules and regulations for the use, management, and operation of the hydroelectric facilities and water management facilities financed by the authority;

(x) Subject to any agreement with bondholders or noteholders, to invest moneys of the authority not required for immediate use, including proceeds from the sale of any bonds or notes, in such obligations, securities, and other investments as the authority deems prudent;

(y) To contract for and to accept any gifts or grants or loans of funds or property or financial or other aid in any form from the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof, or from the state or any governmental agency thereof, or from any other source and to comply, subject to the provisions of this article, with the terms and conditions thereof;

(z) Subject to any agreements with bondholders or noteholders, to purchase bonds or notes of the authority out of any funds or moneys of the authority available therefor and to hold, cancel, or resell such bonds or notes;

(aa) To employ accountants, attorneys, financial advisers, underwriters, and other experts and such other persons to act as agents and employees as may be required and to determine their qualifications, terms of office, duties, and compensation, all without regard to the provisions of the state personnel system; except that the authority may utilize the services of the officers, personnel, and consultants of the Colorado water conservation board to perform any or all activities specified in paragraphs (k) and (u) of this subsection (1);

(bb) To do and perform any acts authorized by this article under, through, or by means of its officers, agents, or employees or by contracts with any person, firm, or corporation;

(cc) To procure insurance against any losses in connection with its property, operations, personal liability, or assets in such amounts and from such insurers as it deems desirable;

(dd) To do any and all things necessary or convenient to carry out its purposes and exercise the powers given and granted in this article;

(ee) To purchase or refinance all or any portion of principal and interest on, and to purchase insurance or other credit-enhancement for the payment of, bonds, notes, or other obligations issued by the authority or any governmental agency to finance any project;

(ff) To charge to and collect from governmental agencies and persons fees and charges in connection with the authority's loans or other services, including, but not limited to, fees and charges sufficient to reimburse the authority for all reasonable costs necessarily incurred by the authority in connection with its financing and administration thereof and the establishment and maintenance of reserves or other funds, as the authority may determine to be reasonable;

(gg) Repealed.

(hh) To enter into one or more agreements with the Colorado water conservation board and any other governmental agencies to assist in the development of the water resources of the state.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Plans and Studies: of Colorado's Water Resources", see 55 U. The Recent Quest for a Utopia in the Utilization Colo. L. Rev. 391 (1984).

37-95-107. Feasibility studies - repayment of costs. (1) (a) (I) Before any proposed project can receive consideration for construction funding by the authority, the Colorado water conservation board must first review the feasibility study of any such proposed project, and the general assembly must authorize the authority to proceed to consider the construction of any proposed project.

(II) (A) Upon receipt of a feasibility study by the Colorado water conservation board, said board shall review such study and forward the study to the general assembly together with its recommendation as to whether or not the proposed project should be authorized by the general assembly.

(B) Upon receipt of a feasibility study from the Colorado water conservation board, the general assembly may authorize the authority, by means of a joint resolution signed by the governor, to proceed with the consideration of any project that the general assembly deems to be in the interests of and to the advantage of the people of this state. However, such joint resolution shall in no way require or compel the authority to fund or in any way finance and proceed with the development, acquisition, construction, reconstruction, enlargement, extension, improvement, furnishing, equipping, maintenance, repair, management, operation, or disposition of, or participation in any proposed project. A decision to proceed, when made subsequent to such joint resolution, shall be entirely within the discretion of the authority.

(C) Should the authority choose to proceed with a project, then the authority shall make, or cause to be made, the necessary final designs and specifications for such project; except that the final project location, operation, and purposes must be in substantial compliance with the feasibility study for a project that was reviewed by the Colorado water conservation board. The authority shall also develop and implement detailed plans for the financing of projects with which it chooses to proceed. The terms and conditions of such financing shall be at the sole discretion of the authority.

(III) The provisions of this subsection (1) shall not apply to any small water resources project; except that, in the case of any small water resources project that consists of or includes raw water diversion or storage facilities, the board shall promptly forward a copy of the project loan application to the Colorado water conservation board for informational purposes.

(b) The state engineer shall not issue a permit or license or approve plans, pursuant to any law or rule governing such actions, for construction of any water management facility or hydroelectric power facility for which the authority has paid in whole or in part for a feasibility study or an environmental assessment or environmental impact study without a written resolution or written statement by the authority notifying the state engineer that the applicant has reimbursed the authority for its expenditures for the conduct of such studies.

(2) If the Colorado water conservation board enters into a contract for the performance of a feasibility study for a proposed raw water project with a governmental agency and incurs expenses in performing such feasibility study, then the authority shall provide for the reimbursement of such expenses out of its financing contract with the governmental agency for such project prior to the start of construction only when:

(a) The Colorado water conservation board's contract with the governmental agency sponsoring the project unconditionally requires the repayment of all of the expenses associated with the feasibility study prior to the start of construction, regardless of the funding source for such construction; and

(b) Such governmental agency obtains financing from the authority.

(3) The reimbursement obligation of the authority pursuant to subsection (2) of this section shall not apply:

(a) To the expenses of any feasibility study commenced or initiated by the Colorado water conservation board prior to June 5, 2003;

(b) To the expenses of any full or partial stream-wide, basin-wide, or statewide feasibility study that is not focused on a single discrete raw water supply project;

(c) To the expenses of any feasibility study identified and authorized or directed by law to be performed by the Colorado water conservation board without a contract with another governmental agency for such study;

(d) To the study of any domestic water supply project;

(e) If the Colorado water conservation board waives the obligation of the governmental agency to make such repayment or if the Colorado water conservation board releases, in whole or in part, such governmental agency from its obligation to make such repayment; and

(f) If otherwise agreed to by the authority and the Colorado water conservation board in an agreement entered into pursuant to section 37-60-106 (1) (t).

37-95-107.5. Legislative declaration - specific project authorizations. (1) It is hereby declared to be the policy of the general assembly to protect and foster the full utilization of Colorado's limited surface water resources by allocation thereof through the operation of the appropriation system as provided by sections 5 and 6 of article XVI of the state constitution. Any judicial interpretation or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the water rights appropriation and adjudication system of the state of Colorado shall continue to be utilized to establish priority of right to the use of the natural streams within the state which include groundwater tributary thereto.

(2) It is the recognition and intent of the general assembly that investment in the state's water resources for future generations must be made from state funds, from private capital, or from other moneys available to the authority. Major Colorado water projects should be developed as soon as possible in anticipation of demand and revenues.

(3) Several compacts relating to interstate streams have been entered into by the state on behalf of the people of the state of Colorado to reserve for the people the right to the use of such waters under the appropriation doctrine. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the general assembly to fully utilize, for the maximum benefit of all the people, said natural stream resources. To achieve such utilization, the general assembly hereby directs the authority to proceed with project development and financing in accordance with agreements between the project sponsor and the authority, and consistent with the provisions of this article, such projects as the Colorado water conservation board identifies in statewide water supply initiatives and associated feasibility studies and other projects identified by the authority.

(5) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to the financing of any small water resources project.

37-95-107.6. Creation and administration of water pollution control revolving fund. (1) There is hereby created in the authority the water pollution control revolving fund, which shall be maintained and administered by the authority and be available in perpetuity for the purposes stated in this section. The authority is authorized to establish such procedures as may be required to administer the water pollution control revolving fund in accordance with the clean water act and state law. The authority may create separate accounts in the water pollution control revolving fund, which accounts may be pledged and assigned as security for the payment of the bonds of the authority.

(2) (a) Subject to the provisions of the clean water act and agreements with the holders of bonds of the authority, the authority shall deposit in the water pollution control revolving fund grants from the federal government or its agencies allocated to the state for deposit in said fund; state matching funds where required; loan principal, interest, and penalty payments; and other moneys determined by the authority to be deposited therein.

(b) Moneys in the water pollution control revolving fund shall be expended in a manner consistent with terms and conditions of the clean water act and may be used to provide assistance to governmental agencies for the construction of publicly owned wastewater treatment plants that appear on the priority list under section 216 of the clean water act and as are defined in section 212 of the clean water act; for implementation of a nonpoint source pollution management program under section 319 of the clean water act; and for any other purposes permitted by the clean water act.

(c) Moneys on deposit in the water pollution control revolving fund may be used by the authority for wastewater treatment facilities through the making of loans to governmental agencies; purchasing or refinancing debt obligations of governmental agencies where the debt obligations were incurred after March 7, 1985; purchasing insurance for debt obligations of governmental agencies; securing or providing revenues for payment of the principal and interest on bonds of the authority; providing for the costs of administering the water pollution control revolving fund, including the administrative costs of state agencies; and providing for any other expenditure consistent with the clean water act and state law. Money not currently needed for the operation of the water pollution control revolving fund may be invested, and all interest earned on such investments shall be credited to the specific account, if any, in the water pollution control revolving fund.

(3) (a) The authority may make and contract to make loans to governmental agencies in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this section to finance the cost of wastewater treatment system projects that are on the water pollution control project eligibility list established pursuant to subsection (4) of this section and any other projects authorized under the clean water act and that the governmental agencies may lawfully undertake or acquire under state law, including, but not limited to, applicable provisions of the "Colorado Water Quality Control Act", article 8 of title 25, C.R.S., and for which the governmental agencies are authorized by law to borrow money. The loans may be made subject to such terms and conditions as the authority shall determine to be consistent with the purposes thereof. Each loan by the authority and the terms and conditions thereof shall be subject to financial analysis by the division of local government of the department of local affairs. Such financial analysis shall include an analysis of the capacity to repay a loan and the need for financial assistance. Each loan to a local governmental agency shall be evidenced by notes, bonds, or other obligations thereof issued to the authority. In the case of each governmental agency, notes and bonds to be issued to the authority by the local governmental agency shall be authorized and issued as provided by law for the issuance of notes and bonds by the governmental agency, may be sold at private sale to the authority at any price, whether or not less than par value, and shall be subject to redemption prior to maturity at such times and at such prices as the authority and governmental agency may agree. Each loan to a local governmental agency and the notes, bonds, or other obligations thereby issued shall bear interest at such rate or rates per annum at or below market interest rate and shall be for such terms not to exceed twenty years after project completion as the authority and the governmental agency may agree.

(b) The authority is authorized, from moneys in the water pollution control revolving fund, to purchase or refinance or purchase insurance for the payment of all or any portion of the principal and interest on bonds, notes, or other obligations issued by a governmental agency to finance the cost of any wastewater treatment system project which the governmental agency may lawfully undertake or acquire under state law, including, but not limited to, applicable provisions of the "Colorado Water Quality Control Act", article 8 of title 25, C.R.S., and for which the governmental agency is authorized by law to borrow money. Each purchase or refinancing or purchase of insurance by the authority shall be subject to financial analysis by the division of local government in the department of local affairs. Such financial analysis shall include an analysis of the capacity to repay a loan and the need for financial assistance.

(c) The authority may charge to and collect from governmental agencies fees and charges in connection with the authority's loans or other services, including, but not limited to, fees and charges sufficient to reimburse the authority for all reasonable costs necessarily incurred by it in connection with its financing and the establishment and maintenance of reserves or other funds, as the authority may determine to be reasonable.

(4) (a) The initial water pollution control project eligibility list shall consist of those projects ranked one through thirty on the construction grant project priority list for federal funds adopted by the water quality control commission effective January 30, 1988.

(b) Additions or modifications to the water pollution control project eligibility list that have been developed by the water quality control commission shall be submitted to the general assembly on or before January 15 of each year. The additions and modifications shall be in conformance with applicable provisions of the clean water act and state law. On or before April 1 of each year, the additions or modifications shall be approved by a joint resolution presented to the governor in accordance with section 39 of article V of the state constitution.

(c) No funds may be expended from the water pollution control revolving fund or bonds issued by the authority pursuant to subsection (6) of this section for any wastewater treatment system project unless the wastewater treatment system project is on the water pollution control project eligibility list approved by the general assembly or is an emergency project in accordance with paragraph (d) of this subsection (4). Financial assistance for a project pursuant to this section may be provided regardless of the rank of such project on the eligibility list.

(d) The Colorado water quality control commission may amend the water pollution control project eligibility list at any time, in accordance with its regular procedures, to include wastewater treatment system projects that it determines and declares to be emergency projects needed to prevent or address threats to the public health or environment. No later than January 15 of each year, the authority shall provide to the general assembly a listing of all emergency projects for which moneys from the water pollution control revolving fund have been expended in the preceding calendar year.

(5) The division of local government in the department of local affairs, the division of administration in the department of health, and the authority shall develop an intended use plan in compliance with the clean water act.

(6) In order to finance the cost of making loans to governmental agencies and provide reserves therefor pursuant to paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section, the authority is authorized to issue bonds pursuant to the provisions of this article.

(7) The authority, on behalf of the state, with the written approval of the department of health, is authorized to enter into such agreements with the United States as may be necessary to comply with the provisions of the federal "Water Quality Act of 1987" (Pub.L. 100-4) and as otherwise may be required to provide for the capitalization of the water pollution control revolving fund from federal grant moneys.

(8) The provisions of sections 37-95-107 and 37-95-107.5 shall not be applicable to any wastewater treatment system project on the project eligibility list approved by the general assembly pursuant to subsection (4) of this section.

(9) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any other provision of this article, moneys on deposit in the water pollution control revolving fund may, if permitted by applicable federal law and the terms of any agreement between the state and the United States relating to the water pollution control revolving fund, be deposited by the authority, in its discretion, into one or more funds or accounts created or pledged to secure the payments of bonds issued by the authority in connection with the drinking water revolving fund created and administered under section 37-95-107.8. Any moneys transferred under this subsection (9) from the water pollution control revolving fund into or for the benefit of the drinking water revolving fund shall be repaid into the water pollution control revolving fund as soon as practicable.

(10) The authority may, acting in its discretion and with the approval of the governor, transfer moneys from the water pollution control revolving fund to the drinking water revolving fund created and administered pursuant to section 37-95-107.8, if the transfer of such moneys is permitted by applicable federal law and the terms of any agreement between the state and the United States relating to the water pollution control revolving fund.

Editor's note: Subsection (6)(b) provided for the repeal of this section effective on the date the revisor of statutes receives notice that the domestic water supply project revolving fund has been depleted. (See L. 95, p. 942.) The state treasurer sent such notice in a letter dated April 24, 1999.

37-95-107.8. Creation and administration of drinking water revolving fund.

(1) There is hereby created in the authority the drinking water revolving fund that the authority shall maintain and administer for the purposes stated in this section. The authority may:

(a) Establish procedures to administer the drinking water revolving fund in accordance with the safe drinking water act and state law;

(b) Create separate accounts in the drinking water revolving fund and pledge and assign the accounts as security for the payment of the bonds of the authority;

(c) To the extent permitted by the safe drinking water act, transfer moneys to and divide moneys between the drinking water revolving fund and the water pollution control revolving fund created in section 37-95-107.6.

(2) (a) Subject to any applicable provisions of the safe drinking water act and agreements with the holders of bonds of the authority, the authority shall deposit in the drinking water revolving fund:

(I) Any grants from the federal government or its agencies allocated to the state for deposit in said fund;

(II) State matching funds, if required;

(III) Loan principal, interest, and penalty payments received with respect to loans made from the drinking water revolving fund; and

(IV) and (V) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2001, p. 1279, § 52, effective June 5, 2001.)

(VI) Any other moneys as determined by the authority.

(b) Moneys in the drinking water revolving fund shall be spent in a manner consistent with the terms and conditions of any state revolving program fund established by the safe drinking water act and may be used:

(I) To provide assistance to governmental agencies for projects that appear on the drinking water project eligibility list, referred to in this section as "eligible projects"; and

(II) For any other purposes permitted by the safe drinking water act.

(c) The authority may spend moneys in the drinking water revolving fund for financial assistance to governmental agencies for eligible projects, including expenditures by any of the following means:

(I) Any means specified in the safe drinking water act;

(II) Making loans to governmental agencies;

(III) Purchasing or refinancing obligations of governmental agencies if the debt obligations were incurred after October 14, 1993, or for a project to comply with amendments to regulations enacted by the 1986 amendments to the safe drinking water act;

(IV) Securing or purchasing insurance for debt obligations;

(V) Securing or providing moneys for payment of the principal and interest on bonds of the authority;

(VI) Securing or providing moneys for payment of the principal and interest on other bonds issued to finance eligible projects;

(VII) Providing for the costs of administering the drinking water revolving fund, including the administrative costs of state agencies;

(VIII) Investing money that is not currently needed for the operation of the drinking water revolving fund in the manner determined by the authority. All interest earned on these investments shall be credited to the specified account, if any, in the drinking water revolving fund.

(IX) Providing for any other expenditure that is consistent with the safe drinking water act and state law.

(3) (a) The authority may make and contract to make loans to governmental agencies in accordance with and subject to this section to finance the cost of eligible projects that the governmental agency may lawfully undertake or acquire under state law and for which the governmental agency is entitled by law to borrow money. The authority may make the loans subject to terms and conditions determined by the authority to be consistent with the purposes of the loans, and, to the extent that moneys originating in grants from the federal government are the source of the loans, consistent with the provisions of the safe drinking water act. Loans by the authority and the terms and conditions of the loans are subject to financial analysis by the division of local government in the department of local affairs. The financial analysis shall include an analysis of the capacity to repay a loan and the need for financial assistance. The loans shall be evidenced by notes, bonds, or other obligations of the borrower that are issued to the authority. In the case of a governmental agency, notes and bonds to be issued to the authority shall be authorized and issued pursuant to this paragraph (a). All notes, bonds, or other obligations evidencing a loan from the authority may be sold at private sale to the authority at any price, whether or not less than par value. The denominations, the times for payment of principal and interest, and the provisions for redemption prior to maturity of such notes, bonds, or other obligations shall be as the authority and the borrower agree. Each loan to a governmental agency and the notes, bonds, or other obligations thereby issued shall bear interest at such rate or rates per annum at or below market interest rate and shall be for such terms not to exceed twenty years after project completion as the authority and the borrower may agree; except that, if the source of the loaned funds is a grant from the United States, the loan term may be extended in accordance with the terms of the safe drinking water act providing for extended loan terms.

(b) From moneys in the drinking water revolving fund, the authority may purchase or refinance or purchase insurance for the payment of all or any portion of the principal and interest on bonds, notes, or other obligations issued by a governmental agency to finance an eligible project that the governmental agency may lawfully undertake or acquire under state law and for which the governmental agency is authorized by law to borrow money. The purchase or refinancing or purchase of insurance by the authority is subject to financial analysis by the division of local government in the department of local affairs. The financial analysis shall include an analysis of the capacity to repay a loan and the need for financial assistance.

(c) The authority may charge to and collect from governmental agencies provided financial assistance from the drinking water revolving fund fees and charges in connection with the authority's loans or other services, including, but not limited to, fees and charges sufficient to reimburse the authority for all reasonable costs it necessarily incurred in providing financial assistance from the drinking water revolving fund, including, but not limited to, costs of financing and the establishment and maintenance of reserves or other funds as the authority may determine is reasonable.

(4) (a) The initial drinking water project eligibility list shall be developed by the division of administration in the department of public health and environment.

(b) Additions or modifications to the drinking water project eligibility list shall be developed by the water quality control commission and shall be submitted to the general assembly on or before January 15 of each year. The additions or modifications shall conform to applicable provisions of the safe drinking water act and state law. On or before April 1 of each year, the additions or modifications shall be adopted by the passage of a joint resolution that is approved by a majority vote of both houses of the general assembly and that is presented to the governor in accordance with section 39 of article V of the state constitution.

(c) Moneys shall not be spent from the drinking water revolving fund or bonds issued by the authority pursuant to subsection (6) of this section for any project unless the project is on the drinking water project eligibility list approved in accordance with this subsection (4) or is an emergency project in accordance with paragraph (d) of this subsection (4). Financial assistance for a project pursuant to this section may be provided regardless of the rank, if any, of the project on the eligibility list; except that any priority for eligible projects established or required by the safe drinking water act shall apply in the issuance of financial assistance if the source of the financial assistance is grant moneys from the federal government.

(d) The water quality control commission may amend the drinking water project eligibility list at any time, pursuant to its regular procedures, to include drinking water projects that it determines and declares to be emergency projects needed to prevent or address threats to the public health or environment. No later than January 15 of each year, the authority shall provide to the general assembly a listing of all emergency projects for which moneys from the drinking water revolving fund have been expended in the preceding calendar year.

(5) (a) The division of local government in the department of local affairs, the division of administration in the department of public health and environment, and the authority shall develop an intended use plan that complies with the safe drinking water act.

(b) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2005, p. 40, § 3, effective March 23, 2005.)

(6) The authority may issue bonds pursuant to this article to finance the cost of providing financial assistance from the drinking water revolving fund and to provide reserves therefor pursuant to subsection (3) of this section.

(7) On behalf of the state and with the written approval of the water quality control commission, the authority may enter into any agreements with the federal government as necessary to comply with any provisions of the safe drinking water act and if otherwise required to provide for any capitalization of the drinking water revolving fund from federal grant moneys.

(8) Sections 37-95-107 and 37-95-107.5 shall not apply to any project on the drinking water project eligibility list approved in accordance with subsection (4) of this section.

(9) The authority may, acting in its discretion and with the approval of the governor, transfer moneys from the drinking water revolving fund to the water pollution control revolving fund created and administered pursuant to section 37-95-107.6, if the transfer of such moneys is permitted by applicable federal law and the terms of any agreement between the state and the United States relating to the drinking water revolving fund.

37-95-108. Acquisition and disposition of property - change of location of highways, railroad, or public utilities - regulation of public utility facilities on a project.

(1) When the authority, or the person or governmental agency with which the authority contracts, finds it necessary to change the location of any portion of any public road, state highway, railroad, point of diversion, or public utility facility in connection with the construction of a project, it shall cause the same to be reconstructed at such location as the other person owning or the unit of government having jurisdiction over such road, highway, railroad, or public utility facility deems most favorable. Such construction shall be of substantially the same type and in as good condition as the original road, highway, railroad, or public utility facility. The cost of such reconstruction, relocation, or removal and any damage incurred in changing the location of any such road, highway, railroad, or public utility facility shall be paid by the authority, or the person or governmental agency responsible to the authority for repayment of bonds or notes in conjunction with any project authorized by the authority, as a part of the cost of such project.

(2) If the authority finds it necessary in connection with the undertaking of any project to change the location of any portion of any public highway or road, it may contract with any governmental agency or any public or private corporation which may have jurisdiction over said public highway or road to cause said public highway or road to be constructed. The cost of such reconstruction and any damage incurred in changing the location of any such highway shall be ascertained and paid by the authority, or the person or governmental agency with which the authority contracts, as a part of the cost of the project. Any public highway affected by the construction of the project may be vacated or relocated by the authority in the manner now provided by law for the vacation or relocation of public roads, and any damages awarded on account thereof shall be paid by the authority as a part of the cost of the project. In all undertakings authorized by this subsection (2), the authority shall consult with and obtain the approval of the department of transportation.

(3) The authority and its authorized agents and employees may enter upon any lands and premises for the purpose of making such surveys, soundings, drillings, and examinations as it may deem necessary or convenient for the purposes of this section, all in accordance with due process of law, and such entry shall not be deemed a trespass nor shall an entry for such purpose be deemed an entry under any condemnation proceedings which may be then pending. The authority shall make reimbursement for any actual damages resulting to such lands and premises as a result of such activities.

(4) The authority also has the power to make reasonable regulations for the installation, construction, maintenance, repair, renewal, relocation, and removal of railroad and public utility facilities in, on, along, over, or under any of its projects. Whenever the authority determines that it is necessary that any such public utility and railroad facilities which now are, or hereafter may be, located in, on, along, over, or under any project be relocated in any project or should be removed therefrom, the public utility or railroad owning or operating such facilities shall relocate or remove the same in accordance with the order of the authority, but the cost and expenses of such relocation or removal, including the cost of installing such facilities in a new location, and the cost of any lands, or any rights or interests in lands, and any other rights acquired to accomplish such relocation or removal shall be ascertained and paid by the authority, or the person or governmental agency with which the authority contracts, as a part of the cost of the project. In the case of any such relocation or removal of facilities, the public utility or railroad owning or operating the same or its successors or assigns may maintain and operate such facilities, with the necessary appurtenances, in the new location for as long a period and upon the same terms and conditions as it had to maintain and operate such facilities in their former location.

37-95-109. Bonds or notes - issuance - terms. (1) The authority has the power and is hereby authorized from time to time to issue its bonds or notes in such principal amounts as in the opinion of the board are necessary to provide sufficient funds for any of its corporate purposes, including the payment, funding, or refunding of the principal of, or interest or redemption premiums on, any bonds or notes issued by it, whether the bonds or notes or interest to be funded or refunded have or have not become due, and including the establishment or increase of such reserves to secure or to pay such bonds or notes or interest thereon and all other costs or expenses of the authority incident to and necessary to carry out its corporate purposes and powers. The authority shall subsidize some or all of the cost of issuance of bonds and notes pursuant to this article for projects, including small water resources projects, to build water management facilities that are raw water diversion or storage projects that are jointly sponsored by two or more governmental agencies that do not share the same governing body.

(2) Except as may be otherwise expressly provided in this article or by the authority, every issue of bonds or notes shall be special obligations payable out of any revenues or funds of the authority, subject only to any agreements with the holders of particular bonds or notes pledging any particular revenues or funds. The authority may issue such types of bonds or notes as it may determine, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, bonds or notes as to which the principal and interest are payable:

(a) Exclusively from the revenues and receipts of the part of the project financed with the proceeds of such bonds or notes;

(b) Exclusively from the revenues and receipts of certain designated parts of the project, whether or not the same are financed in whole or in part from the proceeds of such bonds or notes; or

(c) From its revenues and receipts generally.

(3) Any such bonds or notes may be additionally secured by a pledge of any grant, subsidy, or contribution from the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof, or the state or any governmental agency thereof, or any person, firm, or corporation or by a pledge of any income or revenues, funds, or moneys of the authority from any source whatsoever.

(4) Whether or not the bonds and notes are of such form and character as to be negotiable instruments under the terms of the "Uniform Commercial Code", title 4, C.R.S., the bonds and notes are hereby made negotiable instruments within the meaning of and for all the purposes of said title 4, subject only to the provisions of the bonds and notes for registration.

(5) Bonds or notes of the authority shall be authorized by a resolution or resolutions of the board, and may be issued in one or more series, and shall bear such date or dates, mature at such time or times, bear interest at such rate or rates of interest per annum, be in such denomination or denominations, be in such form, either coupon or registered, carry such conversion or registration privileges, have such rank or priority, be executed in such manner, be payable from such sources in such medium of payment at such place or places within or without the state, and be subject to such terms of redemption (with or without premium) as such resolution or resolutions may provide.

(6) Bonds or notes of the authority may be sold at public or private sale at such price or prices and in such manner as the board shall determine.

(7) Bonds or notes may be issued under the provisions of this article without obtaining the consent of any department, division, commission, board, bureau, or agency of the state and without any other proceeding or the happening of any other conditions or other things than those proceedings, conditions, or things which are specifically required by this article.

(8) Bonds and notes of the authority issued under the provisions of this article shall not be in any way a debt or liability of the state or of any political subdivision thereof other than the authority and shall not create or constitute any indebtedness, liability, or obligation of the state or of any such political subdivision or be or constitute a pledge of the faith and credit of the state or of any such political subdivision, but all such bonds and notes, unless funded or refunded by bonds or notes of the authority, shall be payable solely from revenues or funds pledged or available for their payment as authorized in this article. Each bond and note shall contain on its face a statement to the effect that the authority is obligated to pay the principal thereof or the interest thereon only from revenues or funds of the authority and that neither the state nor any political subdivision thereof is obligated to pay such principal or interest and that neither the faith and credit nor the taxing power of the state or any political subdivision thereof is pledged to the payment of the principal of or the interest on such bonds or notes.

(9) All expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this article shall be payable solely from revenues or funds provided or to be provided under the provisions of this article, and nothing in this article shall be construed to authorize the authority to incur any indebtedness or liability on behalf of or payable by the state or any political subdivision thereof.

37-95-110. Power to make covenants to secure payment. (1) In any resolution of the board authorizing or relating to the issuance of any bonds or notes, the authority, in order to secure the payment of such bonds or notes and in addition to its other powers, has the power by provisions therein which shall constitute covenants by the authority and contracts with the holders of such bonds or notes:

(a) To pledge all or any part of its rents, fees, revenues, or receipts to which its right then exists or may thereafter come into existence, and the moneys derived therefrom, and the proceeds of any bonds or notes;

(b) To pledge any lease or other agreement or the rents or other revenues thereunder and the proceeds thereof;

(c) To covenant against pledging all or any part of its rents, fees, revenues, or receipts, or its leases or agreements or rents or other revenues thereunder, or the proceeds thereof; or against mortgaging all or any part of its real or personal property then owned or thereafter acquired; or against permitting or suffering any lien on any of the foregoing;

(d) To covenant with respect to limitations on any right to sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of any project or any part thereof or any property of any kind;

(e) To covenant as to any bonds and notes to be issued and the limitations thereon and the terms and conditions thereof and as to the custody, application, investment, and disposition of the proceeds thereof;

(f) To covenant as to the issuance of additional bonds or notes or as to limitations on the issuance of additional bonds or notes and on the incurring of other debts by it;

(g) To covenant as to the payment of the principal of or interest on the bonds or notes, or any other obligations, as to the courses and methods of such payment, as to the rank or priority of any such bonds, notes, or obligations with respect to any lien or security, or as to the acceleration of the maturity of any such bonds, notes, or obligations;

(h) To provide for the replacement of lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated bonds or notes;

(i) To covenant against extending the time for the payment of bonds or notes or interest thereon;

(j) To covenant as to the redemption of bonds or notes and privileges of exchange thereof for other bonds or notes of the authority;

(k) To covenant as to the rates to be established and charged and the amount to be raised each year or other period of time by such charges and as to the use and disposition to be made thereof;

(l) To covenant to create or authorize the creation of special funds or moneys to be held in pledge or otherwise for construction, operating expenses, payment or redemption of bonds or notes, reserves, or other purposes and as to the use, investment, and disposition of the moneys held in such funds;

(m) To establish the procedure, if any, by which the terms of any contract or covenant with or for the benefit of the holders of bonds or notes may be amended or abrogated, the amount of bonds or notes the holders of which must consent thereto, and the manner in which such consent may be given;

(n) To covenant as to the construction, improvement, operation, or maintenance of its real and personal property, the replacement thereof, the insurance to be carried thereon, and the use and disposition of insurance moneys;

(o) To provide for the release of property, leases, or other agreements;

(p) To provide for the rights and liabilities and the powers and duties arising upon the breach of any covenant, condition, or obligation and to prescribe the events of default and the terms and conditions upon which any or all of the bonds, notes, or other obligations of the authority shall become or may be declared due and payable before maturity and the terms and conditions upon which any such declaration and its consequences may be waived;

(q) To vest in a trustee or trustees within or without the state such property, rights, powers, and duties in trust as the authority may determine, including the right to foreclose any mortgage, and to limit the rights, duties, and powers of such trustee;

(r) To execute all bills of sale, conveyances, deeds of trust, and other instruments necessary or convenient in the exercise of its powers or in the performance of its covenants or duties;

(s) To pay the costs or expenses incident to the enforcement of such bonds or notes or of the provisions of such resolution or of any covenant or agreement of the authority with the holders of its bonds or notes;

(t) To limit the powers of the authority to construct, acquire, or operate any structures, facilities, or properties which may compete or tend to compete with the project;

(u) To limit the rights of the holders of any bonds or notes to enforce any pledge or covenant securing bonds or notes; and

(v) To make covenants other than those expressly authorized in this section, of like or different character, and to make such covenants to do or refrain from doing such acts and things as may be necessary, or convenient and desirable, in order to better secure bonds or notes or which, in the absolute discretion of the authority, will tend to make bonds or notes more marketable, notwithstanding that such covenants, acts, or things may not be enumerated in this section.

37-95-111. Pledge of revenues, moneys, funds, or other property - lien. Any pledge of revenues, moneys, funds, or other property made by the authority shall be valid and binding from the time when the pledge is made; the revenues, moneys, funds, or other property so pledged and thereafter received by the authority shall immediately be subject to the lien of such pledge without any physical delivery thereof or further act, and the lien of any such pledge shall be valid and binding as against all parties having claims of any kind in tort, contract, or otherwise against the authority, irrespective of whether such parties have notice thereof. Neither the resolution nor any other instrument by which a pledge of revenues, moneys, or funds is created need be filed or recorded, except in the records of the authority.

37-95-112.5. Watershed protection and forest health projects - repeal. (1) The authority is hereby authorized to issue bonds, in an amount not to exceed fifty million dollars, for the purposes of funding watershed protection projects and forest health projects of governmental agencies.

(2) The authority may make and contract to make loans with the proceeds of the bonds authorized by this section to governmental agencies pursuant to this section to finance the cost of watershed protection projects and forest health projects if the authority or the governmental agency has entered into an agreement with the Colorado clean energy development authority, as it existed prior to July 1, 2012, or the Colorado state forest service with respect to the application of proceeds of such bonds. The authority may make the loans subject to terms and conditions that are determined by the authority to be consistent with the purposes of the loans. The loans shall be evidenced by notes, bonds, or other obligations of the governmental agency that are issued to the authority, and the governmental agencies are authorized to issue such notes, bonds, or other obligations for such purposes. All notes, bonds, or other obligations evidencing a loan from the authority may be sold at a private sale to the authority at any price, whether or not less than par value. The denominations, times for payment of principal and interest, and provisions for redemption prior to maturity of such bonds, notes, or other obligations shall be as the authority and the governmental agency agree. Each loan to a governmental agency and the notes, bonds, or other obligations issued to evidence the same shall bear interest at the rate or rates and have the maturities as the authority and the governmental agency agree. The authority may charge and collect from governmental agencies fees and charges in connection with the loans or other services from the authority, including, but not limited to, fees and charges sufficient to reimburse the authority for all reasonable costs that it necessarily incurred in providing such loans. All watershed protection projects and forest health projects funded with moneys made available pursuant to this section shall comply with all applicable federal and state laws, such as best management practices for water quality established by the Colorado state forest service pursuant to section 24-33-201, C.R.S.

(3) Governmental agencies participating in watershed protection projects and forest health projects shall specify how the moneys made available pursuant to financing by the authority are to be allocated in a memorandum of understanding with the authority, subject to the following limitations:

(a) Up to twenty percent of the proceeds of bonds issued by the authority may be distributed for watershed protection projects and forest health projects, including the establishment of incentives for use of beetle-infested lumber.

(b) The remaining proceeds shall be applied to watershed protection projects and forest health projects identified, in consultation with the governmental agencies participating in such projects, by the Colorado state forest service pursuant to section 23-31-311, C.R.S.

- (4) For purposes of this section, "governmental agencies" means:
- (a) Any political subdivision of the state, including, but not limited to, cities, counties, cities and counties, municipalities, water conservation districts, water conservancy districts, special districts, water authorities, government-owned public utilities, and state agencies;
- (b) The United States and any agency thereof, including the United States forest service and the bureau of land management; and
- (c) Any enterprise, entity, agency, commission, or authority established by a governmental agency, including, without limitation, those established pursuant to an interstate compact or other intergovernmental compact or agreement.
- (5) This section is repealed, effective July 1, 2013. Such repeal shall not nullify, abrogate, alter, or otherwise affect any extant obligations under this article at the time of the repeal.

37-95-113. Debt service reserve funds for watershed protection projects and forest health projects. (1) In addition to any other funds it may establish, the board may, by resolution, establish one or more special funds pursuant to this section, referred to in this section as "debt service reserve funds", for bonds issued to finance watershed protection projects and forest health projects pursuant to section 37-95-112.5, and may pay into such debt service reserve funds:

- (a) Any moneys appropriated and made available by the state for the purposes of such debt service reserve funds;
- (b) Any proceeds from the sale of bonds to the extent provided in the resolutions of the board authorizing the issuance thereof; and
- (c) Any moneys that may be made available to the authority from any other sources for the purposes of such debt service reserve funds.

(2) So long as there are bonds outstanding secured by a debt service reserve fund created by this section, all moneys held in any debt service reserve fund, except as otherwise required in this section, shall be used solely for the payment of the principal of the bonds or of the sinking fund payments referred to in this section with respect to such bonds, the purchase or redemption of such bonds, the payment of interest on such bonds, or the payment of any redemption premium required to be paid when such bonds are redeemed prior to maturity; except that moneys in any such fund shall not be withdrawn at any time in such amount as would reduce such fund to less than the debt service reserve fund requirement, except for the purpose of making, with respect to such bonds, principal, interest, redemption premium, and sinking fund payments for the payment of which other moneys of the authority are not available. So long as there are no bonds issued and outstanding secured by a debt service reserve fund created by this section, the amounts on deposit in such debt service reserve fund shall be used for watershed protection projects and forest health projects funded pursuant to section 37-95-112.5.

(3) Any income or interest earned by, or increment to, any debt service reserve fund due to the investment thereof may be transferred to other funds or accounts of the authority to the extent it does not reduce the amount of such debt service reserve fund below the debt service reserve fund requirement.

(4) The authority may provide by resolution for the establishment of a debt service reserve fund requirement for any debt service reserve fund established pursuant to this section.

(5) The chair of the authority shall, on or before January 1 of each year, make and deliver to the governor a certificate, stating the sum, if any, required to restore each debt service reserve fund to the debt service reserve fund requirement. The governor may transmit to the general assembly a request for the amount, if any, required to restore each debt service reserve fund to the debt service reserve fund requirement. The general assembly may, but shall not be required to, make any such appropriations so requested. All sums appropriated and paid by the general assembly for such restoration shall be deposited by the authority in each such debt service reserve fund. If, in its sole discretion, the general assembly appropriates any moneys for such purpose, the aggregate outstanding principal amount of bonds for which moneys may be appropriated shall not exceed fifty million dollars. Nothing in this section shall create or constitute a debt or liability of the state.

(6) Any moneys appropriated by the general assembly for the purposes of any of the debt service reserve funds established pursuant to this section shall not revert to the general fund of the state at the end of any fiscal year.

(7) If, by virtue of a decision of the Colorado supreme court or any federal court, portions of this article are held unconstitutional and the authority is thereby rendered incapable of performing all of the purposes for which it is hereby created, then, subject to the provisions of section 37-95-114, any moneys appropriated by the general assembly for the purposes of any of the debt service reserve funds established by the authority remaining on deposit therein shall be transferred to the Colorado water conservation board construction fund established pursuant to section 37-60-121, such transfer to take effect on the day after such decision becomes final and no longer appealable.

37-95-116. Annual report - annual audit - annual budget. (1) On or before April 30 of each year, the authority shall make an annual report of its activities for the preceding fiscal year to the governor and the joint agriculture and natural resource committee of the house of representatives and the senate. Each such report shall set forth a complete operating and financial statement covering its operations during the year. Included within such report shall be detailed financial data setting forth the manner in which any previously appropriated state funds have been used. The authority, no later than November 30 of each year, shall report to the governor any requests for state funds for the upcoming state fiscal year, detailing the purposes for which said funds are to be utilized.

(2) The authority shall cause an audit of its books and accounts to be made at least once in each year by certified public accountants, and the cost thereof shall be considered as expenses of the authority, and a copy thereof shall be filed with the state treasurer.

(3) The authority shall develop and adopt an annual administrative operating budget and submit such budget on a timely basis to each district, governmental entity, and other entity participating in projects, so as to permit such districts and entities to make necessary adjustments in their respective budgets, fees, and charges.

37-95-117. Services by state officers, departments, boards, agencies, divisions, and commissions. All officers, departments, boards, agencies, divisions, and commissions of the state are hereby authorized and empowered to render any and all of such services to the authority as may be within the area of their respective governmental functions as fixed or established by law and as may be requested by the authority. The cost and expense of any such services shall be met and provided for by the authority.

37-95-118. Bonds eligible for investment. Bonds issued under the provisions of this article are hereby made securities in which all insurance companies, trust companies, banking associations, savings and loan associations, investment companies, executors, administrators, trustees, and other fiduciaries may properly and legally invest funds, including capital, in their control or belonging to them. Public entities, as defined in section 24-75-601 (1), C.R.S., may invest public funds in such bonds only if said bonds satisfy the investment requirements established in part 6 of article 75 of title 24, C.R.S. Such bonds are hereby made securities which may properly and legally be deposited with and received by any public entity for any purpose for which the deposit of bonds, notes, or obligations of the state is authorized by law.

37-95-119. Charges for use of service of projects. Rentals or other charges with respect to a project shall not be subject to supervision or regulation by any other authority, commission, board, bureau, or agency of the state, and such contract with respect to a project may provide for acquisition by such person or governmental agency of all or any part of such project for such consideration, payable over the period of the contract or otherwise, as the authority in its sole discretion determines to be appropriate, but subject to the provisions of any resolution authorizing the issuance of bonds or notes of the authority or any trust agreement securing the same.

37-95-120. Agreements with governmental agencies or persons. (1) Governmental agencies or persons may enter into lease, sale, or loan agreements with the authority with respect to any project, and governmental agencies or persons may also enter into purchase agreements with the authority for the purchase of the capacity use or service of any project. Such lease, sale, loan, or purchase agreements may be for a term covering the life of a project, or for any other term, or for an indefinite period. Pursuant to any such agreements, such governmental agencies or persons may obligate themselves to make payments in amounts which shall be sufficient to enable the authority to meet its expenses, the interest and principal payments (whether at maturity or upon sinking fund redemption) for its bonds, its reasonable reserves for debt service, operation and maintenance, and renewals and replacements, and the requirements of any rate covenant with respect to debt service coverage contained in any resolution, trust indenture, or other security instrument.

(2) Purchase agreements between the authority and any governmental agency or persons may contain such other terms and conditions as the authority and the purchasers may determine, including provisions whereby the purchaser is obligated to pay for the output, capacity, or use of any project irrespective of whether such output, capacity, or use is produced or delivered to the purchaser or whether any water development project contemplated by any such agreement is completed, operable, or operating, and notwithstanding suspension, interruption, interference, reduction, or curtailment of the output, use, or service of such project. Subject to local charter and state constitutional limitations, such purchase agreements may also provide that if one or more of the purchasers defaults in the payment of its obligations under any such purchase agreement, the remaining purchasers which also have such agreements shall be required to accept and pay for, and shall be entitled proportionately to use or otherwise dispose of, the output, capacity, or use of the project contracted for by the defaulting purchaser.

(3) The obligations of a governmental agency or persons under an agreement with the authority or arising out of the default by any other purchaser with respect to such an agreement shall not, unless otherwise lawful, be construed to constitute a debt of the governmental agency or persons. To the extent provided in agreements with the authority, such obligations shall constitute special obligations of the governmental agency or persons, payable solely from the revenues and other moneys derived by the governmental agency or persons from their utility systems, and shall be treated as expenses of operating such systems.

WATER CONSERVATION*ARTICLE 96*Water Conservation in State Landscaping

37-96-101.	Short title.	37-96-103.	Requirement of water conservation in landscaping for certain public projects.
37-96-102.	Legislative declaration.

37-96-101. Short title. This article shall be known and may be cited as the "State Projects Water Conservation in Landscaping Act".

Source: L. 89: Entire article added, p. 1435, § 1, effective April 19.

37-96-102. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that:

(a) The waters of the state are of limited supply and are subject to ever increasing demands;

(b) The continuation of Colorado's economic prosperity is dependent on adequate supplies of water being available for future uses;

(c) It is the policy of the state to promote the conservation and efficient use of water and to prevent the waste of this valuable resource;

(d) It is further the policy of the state to conserve water used for public projects;

(e) Landscaping with plants that conserve water has an additional benefit of reducing ongoing maintenance of public projects or facilities and costs associated therewith.

Source: L. 89: Entire article added, p. 1435, § 1, effective April 19.

37-96-103. Requirement of water conservation in landscaping for certain public projects. (1) For purposes of this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) (I) "Public project or facility" means any new construction or renovation financed wholly or in part by the state, including, but not limited to, any road or highway construction project and facility connected therewith, any public building or facility constructed or renovated by a public entity, and any project, building, or facility constructed or renovated by a public entity with funding from the Colorado lottery.

(II) "Public entity" means any governmental or quasi-governmental agency of the state as well as any political subdivision of the state if that political subdivision receives financing from the state for a public project or facility, as defined in this subsection (1).

(b) "Public project or facility" does not include any public project or facility which disturbs less than two hundred square feet of ground space or any project or facility which is not irrigated; except that any public project or facility which is subsequently irrigated shall comply with this article.

(c) "Renovation" includes external improvements to the project or facility that affect at least thirty-five percent of the covered landscaped area.

(2) On and after January 1, 1990, when the public entity responsible for landscaping and maintaining any public project or facility constructed or renovated by the public entity develops a landscaping plan, the plan shall seek to conserve water in the landscaping of such public project or facility. Any such landscaping plan shall consider, but need not be limited to:

(a) Depending upon the use of the public project or facility, limiting the area on which frequently irrigated and mowed turf is to be maintained to functional areas or areas proximal to entryways and restricting turf use from median strip plantings;

(b) Insuring the use of efficient irrigation techniques, including, but not limited to, water reuse, wherever possible and the use of seasonally variable irrigation schedules which match the evapotranspiration needs of the plants being irrigated;

- (c) Analyzing and improving soil on the site to maximize moisture availability for plant intake and to increase soil moisture penetration and retention;
  - (d) Using mulches to reduce water needs and weed growth and to check soil erosion;
  - (e) Using lower-water demand plants, ground cover, and grass species to conserve water; and
  - (f) Planning for routine maintenance such as weed control, pruning, and irrigation system adjustments to reduce water usage.
- (3) Any public entity which constructs or renovates a public project or facility to which the provisions of this article apply may develop a water use analysis, a water use projection, and a landscaping water plan to guide and regulate water used for maintenance of any such landscaping.
- (4) The state of Colorado shall develop and implement a plan to enhance water use efficiency with respect to any state project or facility the construction or renovation of which commences after January 1, 1993.
- (5) If the state facility or project involves landscaping or maintenance of existing landscaping to enhance water use efficiency, a landscaping plan shall be developed and implemented using best management practices which shall include, but not be limited to:
- (a) Limiting to functional areas of heavy pedestrian traffic, such as ballfields or areas proximal to entryways, the locations on which frequently irrigated and mowed turf such as bluegrass is to be maintained, and restricting the use of turf in median strips;
  - (b) Ensuring the use of efficient irrigation techniques and systems, including prohibiting landscape irrigation between the hours of 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.; employing the use of nonpotable water supplies and water reuse, where such supplies and water reuse are available, for irrigation of areas exceeding ten acres; and using seasonally variable irrigation schedules which match the evapotranspiration needs of the plants being irrigated;
  - (c) Analyzing and improving soil on the site to maximize moisture availability for plant intake and to increase soil moisture penetration and retention;
  - (d) Using mulches to reduce water needs and weed growth and to check soil erosion;
  - (e) Using lower water-demand plants, ground cover, and grass species to reduce water usage;
  - (f) Planning for routine maintenance such as weed control, pruning, and irrigation system adjustments so as to reduce water usage; and
  - (g) Using evapotranspiration data, when available, to determine water needs.
- (6) After January 1, 1992, the state of Colorado shall subject all state buildings to evaluation through water audits in those areas in which such audits are available from the local water supply entity.
- (7) In all state-owned buildings the construction or renovation of which commences after January 1, 1992, water-efficient plumbing devices shall be installed in accordance with article 1.3 of title 9, C.R.S.; except that:
- (a) Where tank-type water closets are installed, such water closets shall flush with a maximum of one and six-tenths gallons of water.
  - (b) Where flushometer valves are used, such flushometer valves shall be the least water-using type found to be safe and reliable.
- (8) Repealed.

Source: L. 90: Entire article added, p. 1630, § 1, effective July 1.

37-97-102. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) “Water service supplier” means any person who, for compensation, provides water for human consumption or for household use through a system of pipes, structures, or other facilities if such system has at least six hundred unmetered taps.

Source: L. 90: Entire article added, p. 1630, § 1, effective July 1.

37-97-102.5. Exemptions. (1) Communities receiving their water supply from free-flowing springs shall be exempt from this article.

(2) Raw water piped irrigation systems in communities that have separate raw water piped irrigation systems and domestic water systems shall be exempt from this article.

(3) Communities under sanction by the department of public health and environment for water quality standards shall be exempt from this article.

Source: L. 90: Entire article added, p. 1630, § 1, effective July 1. L. 94: (3) amended, p. 2805, § 576, effective July 1.

Cross references: For an additional exemption, see § 37-97-103 (6).

37-97-103. Mandatory use of metered water delivery and billing systems. (1) Every water service supplier providing water in this state shall provide a metered water delivery and billing service to its customers according to the following schedule:

(a) For any new construction serviced by such water service supplier, including but not limited to construction for residential, commercial, or industrial use, meters shall be installed at the time of such construction.

(b) For any existing construction with unmetered taps, meters shall be installed on fifty percent of such taps on or before January 1, 2000. For any taps remaining unmetered as of January 1, 2000, meters shall be installed on fifty percent of such taps on or before January 1, 2005, and on all remaining unmetered taps on or before January 1, 2009.

(2) Billing of such water services based on the metered service shall begin no later than ninety days from the date of the installation of the meter.

(3) Any increase in the rates charged for such water service attributed to such installation and billing service requirements shall be based upon the actual costs of such installation and billing service. Such increase may recover the total cost of providing such service to the customers of the water service provider.

(4) Nothing in this section shall preclude a water service supplier from providing such metered water delivery and billing service prior to the dates specified in subsections (1) and (2) of this section or from seeking a corresponding rate increase necessitated by the provision of such service prior to those dates.

(5) Within an industrial customer operation, multiple water uses shall not be considered separate service connections. Deliveries to any customer other than a detached single family residential customer who may be subject to this article may be metered by the use of a single meter for the entire customer or operation.

(6) A mobile home park, as defined in section 38-12-201.5 (3), C.R.S., which makes water service available to tenants but does not bill such tenants for water as a separate item is exempt from the provisions of this article.

37-98-101. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly finds, determines, and declares that the purpose of this article is to provide an interim committee as a forum through which the general assembly shall review the administration and monitoring of Colorado's water resources. The general assembly recognizes its mandate to vigorously protect and defend Colorado's finite supply of water. The general assembly further recognizes the need to ensure that water issues receive sufficient legislative scrutiny and public input:

(a) To maximize the benefit derived from Colorado's surface water and groundwater resources;

(b) To evaluate the present and future water needs of the state;

(c) To ensure effective water rights administration;

(d) To protect water quality and water quantity;

(e) To ensure that Colorado's interstate water compact agreements are met and, in relation thereto, that Colorado's water resources are protected against unwarranted claims; and

(f) To continue the studies of the special water committee pursuant to Senate Bill 96-074.

Source: L. 2001: Entire article added, p. 725, § 1, effective July 1.

37-98-102. Water resources review committee - creation. (1) (a) For the purposes of contributing to and monitoring the conservation, use, development, and financing of the water resources of Colorado for the general welfare of its inhabitants and to review and propose water resources legislation, there is hereby created the water resources review committee, referred to in this article as the committee. The committee shall meet at the call of the chair as often as six times during even-numbered years and eight times during odd-numbered years to review and to propose water resources legislation and matters relating thereto. No more than two of such meetings may occur during periods other than the interim period; except that the committee shall not meet during the 2010 interim period. In connection with such review, except during the 2010 interim period, the committee may take up to two field trips per year in connection with its mandate and shall consult with experts in the field of water conservation, quality, use, finance, and development. The department of natural resources, the state engineer, and the attorney general, together with the members and staff of the Colorado water conservation board, the Colorado water resources and power development authority, the Colorado water quality control commission, the department of public health and environment, the department of agriculture, and the great outdoors Colorado program, shall cooperate with the committee and with any persons assisting the committee in pursuing its responsibilities pursuant to this section. Further, the committee may utilize the legislative council staff to assist its members in researching any matters.

(b) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2003, p. 718, § 2, effective March 20, 2003.)

(2) (a) The committee shall consist of ten members of the general assembly to be selected as follows:

(I) Five members of the committee shall be from the senate, three appointed by the president of the senate and two appointed by the minority party leader; and

(II) Five members of the committee shall be from the house of representatives, appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives after consultation with the minority leader of the house of representatives.

(b) At least four members of the committee shall either:

(I) Reside in that portion of the state that is west of the continental divide; or

(II) Represent a legislative district the majority of the population of which lies west of the continental divide.

(c) To the extent possible, the members shall be selected so as to achieve representation from each water division as defined in section 37-92-201.

(d) (I) Except as provided in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (d), members' terms shall extend from January 1 of an odd-numbered year to December 31 of the following even-numbered year.

(II) The terms of the members appointed by the speaker of the house of representatives, the president of the senate, and the minority leader of the senate and who are serving on March 22, 2007, shall be extended to and expire on or shall terminate on the convening date of the first regular session of the sixty-seventh general assembly. As soon as practicable after such convening date, the speaker, the president, and the minority leader of the senate shall appoint or reappoint members in the same manner as provided in paragraph (a) of this subsection (2). Thereafter, the terms of members appointed or reappointed by the speaker, the president, and the minority leader of the senate shall expire on the convening date of the first regular session of each general assembly, and all subsequent appointments and reappointments by the speaker, the president, and the minority leader of the senate shall be made as soon as practicable after such convening date. The person making the original appointment or reappointment shall fill any vacancy by appointment for the remainder of an unexpired term. Members shall serve at the pleasure of the appointing authority and shall continue in office until the member's successor is appointed.

(3) The president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives shall coordinate their appointments to the extent practicable.

(4) Members of the committee shall serve without compensation; except that each member shall receive the sums specified in section 2-2-307 (3) (a) and (3) (b), C.R.S., for attendance at meetings of the committee when the general assembly is in recess for more than three days or is not in session.

(5) During odd-numbered years, the president of the senate shall appoint the chair and the speaker of the house of representatives shall appoint the vice-chair, and during even-numbered years, the speaker of the house of representatives shall appoint the chair and the president of the senate shall appoint the vice-chair.

37-98-103. Annual recommendations - bill limitation - deadlines for introduction - repeal. (1) The committee may report no more than three bills or other measures to the legislative council created in section 2-3-301, C.R.S., unless a two-thirds majority of the members of the committee vote to report a greater number; except that the committee shall not report any bills to the legislative council in 2010. No bill shall be reported to the legislative council unless a two-thirds majority of the appointed members of the committee vote to report such bill to the legislative council. Such greater number shall not exceed one bill or other measure per member. These bills shall be exempt from any applicable bill limit imposed on the individual committee members sponsoring such bills if the bills have been approved by the legislative council no later than October 15 in even-numbered years and November 15 in odd-numbered years.

PROCEEDINGS - REQUIREMENTS AND LIMITATIONS - DETERMINATION OF JUST COMPENSATION

38-1-101. Compensation - public use - commission - jury - court - prohibition on elimination of nonconforming uses or nonconforming property design by amortization - limitation on extraterritorial condemnation by municipalities - definitions. (1) (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in order to protect property rights, without the consent of the owner of the property, private property shall not be taken or damaged by the state or any political subdivision for a public or private use without just compensation.

(b) (I) For purposes of satisfying the requirements of this section, "public use" shall not include the taking of private property for transfer to a private entity for the purpose of economic development or enhancement of tax revenue. Private property may otherwise be taken solely for the purpose of furthering a public use.

(II) By enacting subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b), the general assembly does not intend to create a new procedural mechanism to bring about the condemnation of private property. By enacting subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b), the general assembly intends to limit only as provided in subparagraph (I) of this paragraph (b), and not expand, the definition of "public use".

(c) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of a private party to condemn property as otherwise provided by law.

(2) (a) In all cases in which compensation is not made by the state in its corporate capacity, such compensation shall be ascertained by a board of commissioners of not less than three disinterested and impartial freeholders pursuant to section 38-1-105 (1) or by a jury when required by the owner of the property as prescribed in section 38-1-106. All questions and issues, except the amount of compensation, shall be determined by the court unless all parties interested in the action stipulate and agree that the compensation may be so ascertained by the court. In the event of such stipulation and agreement, the court shall proceed as provided in this article for the trial of such causes by a board of commissioners or jury.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in any condemnation action, without the consent of the owner of the property, the burden of proof is on the condemning entity to demonstrate, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the taking of private property is for a public use, unless the condemnation action involves a taking for the eradication of blight, in which case the burden of proof is on the condemning entity to demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, that the taking of the property is necessary for the eradication of blight.

(3) (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, a local government shall not enact or enforce an ordinance, resolution, or regulation that requires a nonconforming property use that was lawful at the time of its inception to be terminated or eliminated by amortization.

(b) (Deleted by amendment, L. 2006, p. 1749, § 1, effective June 6, 2006.)

(4) (a) The general assembly hereby finds and declares that:

(I) The acquisition by condemnation by a home rule or statutory municipality of property outside of its territorial boundaries involves matters of both statewide and local concern because such acquisition by condemnation may interfere with the plans and operations of other local governments and of the state.

(II) In order that each local government and the state enjoy the greatest flexibility with respect to the planning and development of land within its territorial boundaries, it is necessary that the powers of a home rule or statutory municipality to acquire by condemnation property outside of its territorial boundaries be limited to the narrowest extent permitted by article XX of the state constitution.

(b) (I) Effective January 1, 2004, no home rule or statutory municipality shall either acquire by condemnation property located outside of its territorial boundaries nor provide any funding, in whole or in part, for the acquisition by condemnation by any other public or private party of property located outside of its territorial boundaries; except that the requirements of this paragraph (b) shall not apply to condemnation for water works, light plants, power plants, transportation systems, heating plants, any other public utilities or public works, or for any purposes necessary for such uses.

(II) Effective January 1, 2004, no home rule or statutory municipality shall either acquire by condemnation property located outside of its territorial boundaries for the purpose of parks, recreation, open space, conservation, preservation of views or scenic vistas, or for similar purposes, nor provide any funding, in whole or in part, for the acquisition by condemnation by any other private or public party of property located outside of its territorial boundaries for the purpose of parks, recreation, open space, conservation, preservation of views or scenic vistas, or for similar purposes except where the municipality has obtained the consent of both the owner of the property to be acquired by condemnation and the governing body of the local government in which territorial boundaries the property is located.

(c) Effective January 1, 2004, the provisions of this subsection (4) shall supersede any inconsistent statutory provisions whether contained in this title or any other title of the Colorado Revised Statutes.

(5) For purposes of this section, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Local government" means a county, city and county, town, or home rule or statutory city.

(b) "Political subdivision" means a county; city and county; city; town; service authority; school district; local improvement district; law enforcement authority; urban renewal authority; city or county housing authority; water, sanitation, fire protection, metropolitan, irrigation, drainage, or other special district; or any other kind of municipal, quasi-municipal, or public corporation organized pursuant to law.

Eminent domain provisions not in conflict with federal constitution. The eminent domain provisions of this state are not in conflict with the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution. Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932).

Each landowner holds his estate subject to the public necessity for the exercise of the right of eminent domain for public purposes, and he cannot evade this by any agreement with his neighbor, nor can his neighbor acquire a right from a private individual which imposes a new burden upon the public in the exercise of the right of eminent domain. Smith v. Clifton San. Dist., 134 Colo. 116, 300 P.2d 548 (1956).

The authority to exercise the right of eminent domain for public uses is based upon the theory that property is granted the subject upon condition that it may be retaken to serve the necessities of the sovereign power. Tanner v. Treasury Tunnel Mining & Reduction Co., 35 Colo. 593, 83 P. 464 (1906); People ex rel. Watrous v. District Court, 207 F.2d 50 (10th Cir. 1953).

Right of condemnation has been restrained by constitutional limitations in the protection of individual property rights. Potashnik v. Pub. Serv. Co., 126 Colo. 98, 247 P.2d 137 (1952); Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1952).

Both § 15 of art. II, Colo. Const., and this section protect an individual's vested rights and prohibit the taking thereof for public or private use without condemnation under proper proceedings and just compensation given therefor. Stuart v. County Comm'rs, 25 Colo. App. 568, 139 P. 577 (1914).

Condemnation right exists only under powers specifically granted by the general assembly or, in some cases, where the power to condemn specific property is provided by home-rule cities to which the general assembly has delegated its power in such matters. Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 604 (1889); Potashnik v. Pub. Serv. Co., 126 Colo. 98, 247 P.2d 137 (1952); Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1952).

Power is vested in state. It is fundamental that the power of eminent domain is vested in the state of Colorado. Such power may not be exercised by a governmental subdivision or other entity unless the power has been delegated to it by the general assembly. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Intermountain Rural Elec. Ass'n, 655 P.2d 831 (Colo. 1982).

That the state constitution permits private property to be taken for certain specified uses is an implied declaration that such uses are so closely connected with the public interest as to be at least quasi public or, in a modified sense, affected with a public interest. Lamborn v. Bell, 18 Colo. 346, 32 P. 989 (1893); Gibson v. Cann, 28 Colo. 499, 66 P. 879 (1901); Ortiz v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 100, 83 P. 964 (1905); Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909); Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932).

Private property cannot be taken by government, except for public purposes. Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932).

Taking of private property to be accompanied by compensation to owner. Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932).

Effect of state agency's entry upon land without paying just compensation. When a state agency enters upon land or injures land without paying just compensation therefor, or without having commenced condemnation proceedings to ascertain the compensation due for the taking or injury, the act of the state agency is unauthorized and unlawful and is not the act of the state of Colorado. People ex rel. Watrous v. District Court, 207 F.2d 50 (10th Cir. 1953).

Remedy against state officer. The remedy for an unauthorized and unlawful taking of or injury to private land for public use without compensation by a state agency is against the state officer, individually, to prevent his unlawful act or for appropriate redress if it has been consummated. People ex rel. Watrous v. District Court, 207 F.2d 50 (10th Cir. 1953).

Municipal ordinance which imposed reasonable limitations on billboards on private property, thereby requiring modification of said billboards, did not constitute a taking for which just compensation must be paid. Nat'l Adver. v. Bd. of Adjustment of City & County of Denver, 800 P.2d 1349 (Colo. App. 1990).

"Private use" construed. The words "private use" do not mean a strictly private use, that is to say, one having no relation to the public interest. Lamborn v. Bell, 18 Colo. 346, 32 P. 989, 20 L.R.A. 241 (1893); Gibson v. Cann, 28 Colo. 499, 66 P. 879 (1901); Ortiz v. Hansen, 35 Colo. 100, 83 P. 964 (1905); Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909); Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932).

Exercise of eminent domain unrestricted by contract. Parties may not by contract between themselves restrict the exercise of the power of eminent domain. Smith v. Clifton San. Dist., 134 Colo. 116, 300 P.2d 548 (1956).

Property owners of adjacent property cannot thwart a public improvement by the execution of restrictive covenants. Smith v. Clifton San. Dist., 134 Colo. 116, 300 P.2d 548 (1956).

Public service company is authorized to acquire by condemnation interests in real property from private owners, provided, inter alia, that the purpose for which the condemned property is sought is determined to be a public purpose. Shaklee v. District Court, 636 P.2d 715 (Colo. 1981).

Sanitation district empowered to condemn lands. A sanitation district is a body politic or corporate with power to condemn lands for proper purposes. Smith v. Clifton San. Dist., 134 Colo. 116, 300 P.2d 548 (1956).

Landowner has right to sue trespasser with power of eminent domain. A landowner has a right to sue in trespass even though the trespasser may have the statutory power of eminent domain with respect to the land on which the trespass occurs. Ossman v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974).

Inverse condemnation tried as if eminent domain proceeding. An inverse condemnation action is based on § 15 of art. II, Colo. Const. Since it is based on the "takings" clause of the state constitution, it is to be tried as if it were an eminent domain proceeding. Ossman v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974); Hayden v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 41 Colo. App. 102, 580 P.2d 830 (1978); Linnebur v. Pub. Serv. Co. of Colo., 716 P.2d 1120 (Colo. 1986).

Mandamus. Mandamus cannot be used to compel the state to bring and prosecute proceedings in condemnation because mandamus would require affirmative action by the state in the exercise of its sovereign power of eminent domain. People ex rel. Watrous v. District Court, 207 F.2d 50 (10th Cir. 1953).

Doctrine of inseparability does not apply. If the legislature wanted to recognize the doctrine of inseparability, which is an exception to the general rule of recovery, it would have amended the statute to allow for the exception. Dept. of Transp. v. Marilyn Hickey Ministries, 129 P.3d 1068 (Colo. App. 2005), rev'd on other grounds, 159 P.3d 111 (Colo. 2007).

General assembly enacted subsection (3)(a) to restrict the abilities of local governments to unjustly deprive property owners of their inalienable rights. JAM Rest., Inc. v. City of Longmont, 140 P.3d 192 (Colo. App. 2006).

Subsection (3)(a) is constitutional, does not violate the home rule amendment to the Colorado Constitution, and prevails over municipality's zoning ordinance as applied to landowner. Subsection (3)(a) enforces constitutionally protected property rights and prohibits the unconstitutional taking of private property without just compensation. Constitutionally protected property interests are a matter of statewide concern and must be treated uniformly throughout the state. While zoning regulations are typically a matter of local concern, subsection (3)(a) is not a zoning regulation. Rather, it prohibits the unconstitutional taking of property without just compensation. JAM Rest., Inc. v. City of Longmont, 140 P.3d 192 (Colo. App. 2006).

Because inalienable property rights are involved, both local and state concerns are implicated, and the constitution cannot be read to dictate the matter at issue as one of exclusively local concern. Although the amortization of sexually oriented businesses in a municipality may result in those businesses relocating to neighboring municipalities, there is no showing that this possibility will seriously impact residents outside the municipality. Thus, extraterritorial impact of zoning ordinance is not substantial. Although zoning regulations generally have little extraterritorial impact and are traditionally a matter of local concern, in consideration of the legislative declaration respecting subsection (3)(a) and the importance of protecting constitutionally based property rights, preventing the taking of private property without just compensation is a matter of statewide or, at least, mixed concern. JAM Rest., Inc. v. City of Longmont, 140 P.3d 192 (Colo. App. 2006).

To enforce property rights as mandated in the Colorado Constitution, statute prohibits local government from eliminating or terminating nonconforming uses that were lawful at their inception by amortization. Statute does not address whether amortization periods are reasonable. JAM Rest., Inc. v. City of Longmont, 140 P.3d 192 (Colo. App. 2006).

Subsection (3)(a) cannot be applied retroactively to negate a municipal ordinance that required a licensee to operate in an appropriately zoned area of the city. Absent legislative intent to the contrary, a statute is presumed to operate prospectively on transactions occurring after its effective date, rather than retroactively on transactions that have already occurred or on rights and obligations that existed before its effective date. Z.J. Gifts D-2, L.L.C. v. City of Aurora, 93 P.3d 633 (Colo. App. 2004).

Subsection (3)(a) applies to injunctions sought after its effective date. Because municipality did not seek to enforce zoning provisions of ordinance until after statute became effective, no retroactive application of statute occurred. JAM Rest., Inc. v. City of Longmont, 140 P.3d 192 (Colo. App. 2006).

Since the language in subsection (3)(a) does not specify an intent of the general assembly to apply the provision retroactively, the court will not attribute an intent to the general assembly to enact a statutory amendment controlling amor-tization of nonconforming uses that took place before the amendment was enacted. Z.J. Gifts D-2, L.L.C. v. City of Aurora, 93 P.3d 633 (Colo. App. 2004).

Giving the word “affect” its plain and ordinary meaning, § 18-4-515 does not change, alter, or lessen the requirements of articles 1 through 7 of this title in condemnation actions. San Miguel County Bd. of County Comm’rs v. Roberts, 159 P.3d 800 (Colo. App. 2006).

Giving the word “supersede” its plain and ordinary meaning, § 18-4-515 does not void, replace, supplant, or make unnecessary any provisions or requirements of articles 1 through 7 of this title in condemnation actions. San Miguel County Bd. of County Comm’rs v. Roberts, 159 P.3d 800 (Colo. App. 2006).

Section 18-4-515 may not be used in place of applicable condemnation procedures. There is no basis to conclude, however, that it does not apply or may not be used in support of or in conjunction with a contemplated condemnation proceeding. San Miguel County Bd. of County Comm’rs v. Roberts, 159 P.3d 800 (Colo. App. 2006).

The condemnation by a home rule municipality of property outside its territorial boundaries for open space and park purposes falls within the scope of the eminent domain power granted to such municipalities in this article. The eminent domain power granted to home rule municipalities in this article is not limited to the purposes specified in this section nor is the eminent domain power circumscribed when exercised extraterritorially. Rather, this article grants home rule municipalities the power to condemn property, within or outside of territorial limits, for any lawful, public, local, and municipal purpose. The extraterritorial condemnation of property need not be pursuant to a purpose that is purely local and municipal. As long as the condemnation is based on a lawful, public, local, and municipal purpose, it does not fall outside of the scope of this article merely because it potentially implicates competing state interests. Based upon statutory provisions authorizing statutory localities to condemn land for open space, parks, and recreation, as well as the traditional exercise of this power by the state’s statutory and home rule municipalities, the extraterritorial condemnation of property for open space and parks is a lawful, public, local, and municipal purpose within the scope of this article. The condemnation of the landowner’s property outside the territorial boundaries of the municipality was, therefore, lawful. Town of Telluride v. San Miguel Valley Corp., 185 P.3d 161 (Colo. 2008).

Subsection (4)(b) abrogates constitutional powers granted to home rule municipalities by this article. Accordingly, the statutory provision is unconstitutional with respect to home rule municipalities. Court’s inquiry need not extend beyond the question of whether the statute purports to deny home rule municipalities powers specifically granted by the constitution. No analysis of competing state and local interests is necessary where a statute purports to take away home rule powers granted by the constitution. The legislature cannot prohibit the exercise of constitutional home rule powers regardless of the state interests that may be implicated by the exercise of those powers. Town of Telluride v. San Miguel Valley Corp., 185 P.3d 161 (Colo. 2008).

Subsection (4)(b) prohibits home rule municipalities from condemning property for parks and open space, thus denying them their constitutional power to condemn for any lawful, public, local, and municipal purpose. Subsection (4)(b) curtails the condemnation power in this article by limiting it to the enumerated purposes in this section and also by removing certain enumerated purposes from the list. Accordingly, subsection (4)(b) is an unconstitutional abrogation of the powers granted to home rule municipalities under this article. The general assembly has no power to enact a law that denies a right specifically granted by the constitution. Town of Telluride v. San Miguel Valley Corp., 185 P.3d 161 (Colo. 2008).

Applied in City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974); City of Boulder v. Kahn’s, Inc., 190 Colo. 90, 543 P.2d 711 (1975).

II. JURISDICTION AND PROCEDURE IN CONDEMNATION.

A. In General.

Proceedings conducted strictly according to procedures in statute. Eminent domain proceedings are special statutory proceedings and are to be conducted strictly according to the procedures set out in the eminent domain statute. Bd. of Comm’rs v. Poundstone, 74 Colo. 191, 220 P. 234 (1923); Ossman v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974); Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Marshall Mfg. Co., 35 Colo. App. 227, 532 P.2d 746 (1975).

A federal district court with diversity jurisdiction can consider an inverse condemnation claim arising under the Colorado constitution and statutes providing a special judicial procedure for condemnation claims. SK Fin. SA v. La Plata County, Bd. of Comm’rs, 126 F.3d 1272 (10th Cir. 1997).

Statutory authority required. Even though the purpose for which the property is sought to be condemned is a “public use” within the meaning of Colo. Const., art. II, § 15, in the absence of express or necessarily implied statutory condemnation authority, private property may not be condemned. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Intermountain Rural Elec. Ass'n, 655 P.2d 831 (Colo. 1982).

Colorado rules of civil procedure applicable to this article. The Colorado rules of civil procedure apply to actions brought under the provisions of this article. Stalford v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 128 Colo. 441, 263 P.2d 436 (1953).

Constitutional objections to eminent domain proceedings should be raised in those proceedings and should be determined by the court in limine; not by way of a collateral injunction proceeding. Auraria Businessmen Against Confiscation, Inc. v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 183 Colo. 441, 517 P.2d 845 (1974).

Matters which cannot be asserted in collateral suit. Matters which cannot be raised in an original condemnation proceeding cannot be asserted in a collateral suit. Ambrosio v. Baker Metro. Water & San. Dist., 139 Colo. 437, 340 P.2d 872 (1959).

Names and addresses of appraisers to remain unknown to landowner. The owner of property sought to be condemned is not entitled to know the names and addresses of persons who made appraisals at the request of the condemning agency. Epstein v. City & County of Denver, 133 Colo. 104, 293 P.2d 308 (1956).

Disclosure of appraisals could prejudice owners not parties to suit. Disclosure of appraisal values obtained by private owners not parties to the suit whose property has not yet been condemned could work to the prejudice of substantial rights of those private owners, since should parties who obtained independent appraisal reports reject the government's settlement offer and opt for trial, disclosure could be prejudicial to their rights. United States v. 25.02 Acres of Land, More or Less, 495 F.2d 1398 (10th Cir. 1974).

A condemning authority may exercise the power of eminent domain provided that the taking is necessary and the purpose for the condemnation is judicially determined to be a public use. Colorado law does not require a condemning authority to obtain development permits or approvals as a condition precedent to going forward with a condemnation proceeding; nor does it require the condemning authority to prove that immediate possession will not lead to irreparable damage to natural resources if permits and environmental impact statement (EIS) approval are denied and the project is not completed. Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

In reviewing the condemning authority's finding that a proposed taking is for public use, the court's role is to determine whether the essential purpose of the condemnation is to obtain a public benefit, and the court must consider the physical conditions of the country, the needs of the community, and the character of the benefit that the projected improvement may confer upon the locality as well as the necessities for such improvement in the development of the resources of the state. Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

The owners of the property to be condemned have the burden of proving that the taking is not for a public purpose. Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

Where a taking would be to determine if it is possible that the condemned property could be used for a public use in the future, the taking is not for a public purpose. Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

Trial court properly dismissed petition by county to condemn a portion of owner's property for use as a public road because county presented no valid public purpose for its condemnation of owner's property. Here, public purpose is to benefit private parties; a few, select members of the public will gain access to a private cemetery. Such a private benefit does not constitute a valid public purpose. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Kobobel, 176 P.3d 860 (Colo. App. 2007).

B. Question of Necessity.

Trial court's findings that corporation's 10-inch pipeline would serve a public purpose is supported by evidence in the record. Trial court's finding was based on testimony of corporation's counsel that pipeline was necessary to provide an adequate supply of oil products to meet the increased demand of the customers in the greater Denver metropolitan area. Evidence in the record indicates that the pipeline would permit continuous service to the corporation's existing Colorado customers as well as its out-of-state customers. Sinclair Transp. Co. v. Sandberg, 228 P.3d 198 (Colo. App. 2009).

Issue of necessity. The threshold issue of necessity, when properly raised in the pleadings, should be resolved before there is any trial as to the value of the land to be taken. Colo. State Bd. of Land Comm'rs v. District Court, 163 Colo. 338, 430 P.2d 617 (1967).

Matter of necessity cannot be raised by merely denying allegation that the taking is necessary. Colo. State Bd. of Land Comm'rs v. District Court, 163 Colo. 338, 430 P.2d 617 (1967).

As must plead facts evidencing fraud or bad faith. The matter of necessity cannot be raised by any conclusory pleading of fraud and bad faith, but only by pleading facts which, if true, would amount to fraud or bad faith. Colo. State Bd. of Land Comm'rs v. District Court, 163 Colo. 338, 430 P.2d 617 (1967).

Proper matters for consideration in determining necessity of taking vary according to the circumstances of each particular case. Mortensen v. Mortensen, 135 Colo. 167, 309 P.2d 197 (1957).

Matter of necessity of taking in condemnation is to be determined by court. Larson v. Chase Pipe Line Co., 183 Colo. 76, 514 P.2d 1316 (1973).

Necessity involves taking property for intended purpose. The question of necessity involves the necessity of having the property taken for the purpose intended. Mortensen v. Mortensen, 135 Colo. 167, 309 P.2d 197 (1957); Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

Feasibility or financial success of enterprise precluded from inquiry of necessity. Whether or not an enterprise is feasible or practicable, and whether or not it will be a financial success, cannot be inquired into even by commissioners charged with the duty of determining the question of necessity; such questions are not for the determination of the court. Mortensen v. Mortensen, 135 Colo. 167, 309 P.2d 197 (1957); Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

Public agency's determination of necessity, absent fraud, is final. In the absence of fraud or bad faith, the determination by a public agency as to the need, necessity, and location of highways, or other public improvements, is final and conclusive and will not be disturbed by the courts. Colo. State Bd. of Land Comm'rs v. District Court, 163 Colo. 338, 430 P.2d 617 (1967); Silver Dollar Metro. Dist. v. Goltra, 66 P.3d 170 (Colo. App. 2002).

The determination by the state of the necessity for a particular taking in the absence of a showing of bad faith is final and conclusive. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963); Arizona-Colorado Land & Cattle Co. v. District Court, 182 Colo. 44, 511 P.2d 23 (1973).

Causing of greater than necessary loss evidence of bad faith. Where the taking of a particular easement by a private corporation would entail a great loss to the landowner which might readily be avoided, the court in limine may consider this factor in determining whether the corporation is acting in bad faith. Arizona-Colorado Land & Cattle Co. v. District Court, 182 Colo. 44, 511 P.2d 23 (1973).

Easement serves public purpose by providing access to property in the state and therefore may be the subject of a condemnation. Bear Creek Dev. Corp. v. Dyer, 790 P.2d 897 (Colo. App. 1990).

No trial on compensation if necessity not shown. If the petitioner cannot establish necessity, there will then be no need for a trial on the issue of compensation. Colo. State Bd. of Land

Comm'rs v. District Court, 163 Colo. 338, 430 P.2d 617 (1967).

Duties of trial court, in absence of jury, include appointing the commissioners, administering the oath of office to them, fixing the time and place of their first meeting, instructing them in writing as to their duties, and, at the conclusion of the testimony, instructing them in writing as to the applicable and proper law to be followed by them in arriving at their ascertainment. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Vail Assocs., 171 Colo. 381, 468 P.2d 842 (1970).

Court shall upon request make rulings upon propriety of proofs and objections of the parties. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Vail Assocs., 171 Colo. 381, 468 P.2d 842 (1970).

Judge not to preside as in jury trial. The judge of the trial court shall not preside over the commission proceedings in the same manner as he is required to do in a jury trial. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Vail Assocs., 171 Colo. 381, 468 P.2d 842 (1970).

Unsupported report of commissioners not binding on court. A report of commissioners in eminent domain proceedings, unsupported by any findings and based on undisputed evidence, does not bind the court. Mortensen v. Mortensen, 135 Colo. 167, 309 P.2d 197 (1957).

Award of expert witness fees. In eminent domain actions, the awarding of expert witness fees is a matter within the discretion of the trial court. City of Lakewood v. DeRoos, 631 P.2d 1140 (Colo. App. 1981).

III. DEFENSES AND REMEDIES.

Matters considered inappropriate for defense. In a condemnation proceeding, the expediency of the project or that condemnation might proceed in a way other than that proposed are not appropriate matters of defense. Ambrosio v. Baker Metro. Water & San. Dist., 139 Colo. 437, 340 P.2d 872 (1959).

Injunction is not proper remedy to be accorded a defendant in a proceeding in eminent domain. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958); Ambrosio v. Baker Metro. Water & San. Dist., 139 Colo. 437, 340 P.2d 872 (1959); Dunham v. City of Golden, 31 Colo. App. 433, 504 P.2d 360 (1972).

Doctrine of laches does not provide relief where defendant failed to show that improvements would be impacted by the easement or that the defendant suffered prejudice not covered by the compensation award. Minto v. Lambert, 870 P.2d 572 (Colo. App. 1993).

IV. ABANDONMENT OF PROCEEDING.

When condemnor may abandon action. Where a property owner has not changed his position in good faith reliance on a condemnation suit, the condemnor may abandon the action at any time prior to the time the rights of the parties are reciprocally vested. Piz v. Hous. Auth., 132 Colo. 457, 289 P.2d 905 (1955).

Right to abandon condemnation proceedings may be relinquished or lost. The right to abandon condemnation proceedings may be relinquished by agreement or lost by estoppel. Piz v. Hous. Auth., 132 Colo. 457, 289 P.2d 905 (1955).

V. JUST COMPENSATION.

A. Right to Compensation.

Basis for compensation is fairness. The constitutional requirement of just compensation derives as much content from the basic equitable principles of fairness as it does from technical concepts of property law. Upper Eagle Valley San. Dist. v. Carnie, 634 P.2d 1008 (Colo. App. 1981).

Right to compensation belongs to owner. The right to compensation for the value of land taken and damages to the residue occasioned by the taking is a personal one which belongs to the owner. Enke v. City of Greeley, 31 Colo. App. 337, 504 P.2d 1112 (1972); Upper Eagle Valley San. Dist. v. Carnie, 634 P.2d 1008 (Colo. App. 1981); Direct Mail Servs., Inc. v. Colo., 557 F. Supp. 851 (D. Colo. 1983), aff'd, 729 F.2d 672 (10th Cir. 1984).

Lessee not entitled to separate award for value of leasehold. Lessee is not entitled in the initial condemnation proceedings to establish the value of its leasehold interest independently of the value of the entire property and is not entitled to a separate award by the state for the value of its leasehold. City of Sterling v. Plains Inv. Co., 32 Colo. App. 115, 511 P.2d 512 (1973), rev'd on other grounds, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974); Direct Mail Servs., Inc. v. Colo., 557 F. Supp. 851 (D. Colo. 1983), aff'd, 729 F.2d 672 (10th Cir. 1984).

Property owners are not entitled to obtain the highest and best use of their property or to gain maximum profits from its use. Van Sickle v. Boyes, 797 P.2d 1267 (Colo. 1990); Nat'l Adver. v. Bd. of Adjustment of City & County of Denver, 800 P.2d 1349 (Colo. App. 1990).

B. Amount of Compensation.

Landowner is entitled to be compensated for costs reasonably incurred by him in condemnation proceedings since to require a landowner to pay such costs would reduce the just compensation guaranteed by section 15 of art. II, Colo. Const. Dept. of Hwys. v. Kelley, 151 Colo. 517, 379 P.2d 386 (1963).

"Just compensation" includes payment of costs. In condemnation proceedings, the landowner is entitled to compensation for all reasonable costs incurred. Expenses necessarily incurred by reason of the litigation are correctly viewed as such costs. City of Colo. Springs v. Berl, 658 P.2d 280 (Colo. App. 1982).

Property damage must affect some right or interest which the landowner enjoys and which is not shared or enjoyed by the public generally, in order to be compensable; the damage must be different in kind, not merely in degree, from that suffered by the public in general. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969); City of Lakewood v. DeRoos, 631 P.2d 1140 (Colo. App. 1981).

Owner must establish right to substantial compensation. Burden rests upon owner to establish by competent evidence his right to substantial compensation. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969); United States v. 25.02 Acres of Land, More or Less, 495 F.2d 1398 (10th Cir. 1974).

No vested right in public highway maintenance. No person has a vested right in the maintenance of the public highway in any particular place. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969).

Award includes damages that are incident of improvement. An award in an eminent domain proceeding includes all damages, present and prospective, that are the natural, necessary, or reasonable incident of the improvement, but an award does not include such damages as may arise from negligent or unskillful construction or use thereof. Ruth v. Dept. of Hwys., 153 Colo. 226, 385 P.2d 410 (1963); Linnebur v. Pub. Serv. Co. of Colo., 716 P.2d 1120 (Colo. 1986).

Right to compensation unchanged by nature of business. The nature of the business, which is situated upon land subject to condemnation, does not change the right of an individual to compensation. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969).

Factors considered in determining compensable taking of access rights. Factors to consider in determining whether or not there has been a compensable taking of access rights to a highway include whether the property is a single economic unit or consists of separate units with particular access needs, the use of the property, the location of improvements, the contiguity to the highway, the land's topography, and all pertinent characteristics of the property which may be relevant to its access needs. Shaklee v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 176 Colo. 559, 491 P.2d 1366 (1971).

Loss of view from property not compensable. Since a property owner has no right to have the traveling public pass his property, he has no right to have the traveling public afforded a clear view of his property, and loss of view from the property caused by the construction of a viaduct is not compensable. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969).

Goodwill and profits are not regarded as elements of just compensation under either the due process or just compensation clauses of the federal and state constitutions. Auraria Businessmen Against Confiscation, Inc. v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 183 Colo. 441, 517 P.2d 845 (1974).

Owner compensated only for actual taking in pipeline condemnation. The rule in condemnation cases concerning pipelines is that the owner of the land will be compensated only to the actual extent of the estate taken. W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973).

Limitation on compensation for loss of access. An abutting landowner is entitled to compensation for limitation or loss of access only if the limitation or loss substantially interferes with his means of ingress and egress to and from his property. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Davis, 626 P.2d 661 (Colo. 1981).

So long as the landowner retains a reasonable means of access to and from his property partial loss of access is not compensable. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969); Shaklee v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 176 Colo. 559, 491 P.2d 1366 (1971).

There is no taking of private property which would be subject to compensation when a landowner's access rights to a state highway are limited to two access points of his own choosing. Shaklee v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 176 Colo. 559, 491 P.2d 1366 (1971).

Inconvenience is not substantial impairment of access. Inconvenience caused by the required use of a more circuitous route to gain access to property does not constitute substantial impairment of access. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Davis, 626 P.2d 661 (Colo. 1981).

Compensation is not permitted for damage caused by circuity of route where the properties involved were used for business purposes such as motels, restaurants, and gas stations, and where the inability of the traveling public to get to the property conveniently had, in effect, diminished the value of the business property. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969).

The diversion of traffic away from the property is a factor hardly separable from circuity of route since the diversion of traffic will inevitably have as its result circuity of route. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969).

Proof required for landowner's compensation for loss of access. In order for plaintiff to be compensated for loss of access it is incumbent upon her to establish to the satisfaction of the trial court that she no longer retains a reasonable means of access to and from her property and the general system of public streets. Troiano v. Colo. Dept. of Hwys., 170 Colo. 484, 463 P.2d 448 (1969).

Trial judge determines reasonableness of landowner's access. The trial judge must determine in the first instance whether a landowner's right of access has been subjected to unreasonable control or limitation. Shaklee v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 176 Colo. 559, 491 P.2d 1366 (1971).

Fair market value of property taken is sole question in determining the value of property in an eminent domain action. Dillinger v. North Sterling Irrigation Dist., 135 Colo. 95, 308 P.2d 606 (1957).

In the case of a temporary taking, landowner is entitled to just compensation for fair rental value of property at its highest and best use, taking into consideration any existing land use restrictions, during the period of temporary taking. In determining fair rental value, the trial court and the jury must assume a free bargaining transaction between a hypothetical lessor and lessee. Changes in land use restrictions may only be considered if they probably could have occurred during the temporary taking period. Fowler Irrevocable Trust 1992-1 v. City of Boulder, 17 P.3d 797 (Colo. 2001).

Market value means the price property would bring if sold in the open market under ordinary and usual circumstances for cash, assuming that the owner is willing to sell and the purchaser willing to buy, but neither under any obligation to do so. Epstein v. City & County of Denver, 133 Colo. 104, 293 P.2d 308, 55 A.L.R.2d 783 (1956).

Reasonable market value means the fair, actual cash market value of the property. It is the price the property could have been sold for on the open market, for cash under the usual and ordinary circumstances where the owner was willing to sell and the purchaser was willing to buy, but neither was under an obligation to do so. Goldstein v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 192 Colo. 422, 560 P.2d 80 (1977); City of Aurora v. Webb, 41 Colo. App. 11, 585 P.2d 288 (1978).

Assessment of present market value. The present market value must be assessed in light of the most advantageous use to which the property may reasonably be applied. Goldstein v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 192 Colo. 422, 560 P.2d 80 (1977).

Major factors for consideration in determining market value of real estate in condemnation proceedings are: (1) A view of the premises and their surroundings; (2) a description of the physical characteristics of the property and its situation in relation to points of importance in the neighborhood; (3) the price at which the land was bought, if sufficiently recent to throw light on present value; (4) the price at which similar neighboring land has sold at about the time of the taking; (5) the opinion of competent experts; (6) a consideration of the uses for which the land is adapted and for which it is available; (7) the cost of the improvements if they are such as to increase the value of the land; and (8) the net income from the land, if the property is devoted to one of the uses to which it could be most advantageously and profitably applied. United States v. 25.02 Acres of Land, More or Less, 495 F.2d 1398 (10th Cir. 1974).

Board is entitled to consider any competent evidence, apart from certain factors arising from the very fact of condemnation, which would be considered by a prospective seller or buyer as tending to affect the present market value of the land. Goldstein v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 192 Colo. 422, 560 P.2d 80 (1977); City of Aurora v. Webb, 41 Colo. App. 11, 585 P.2d 288 (1978).

If sale not too remote. If not too remote in point of time, and if neither economic nor physical conditions have changed, voluntary prior sales of the subject property may be shown in evidence in eminent domain proceedings. Epstein v. City & County of Denver, 133 Colo. 104, 293 P.2d 308, 55 A.L.R.2d 783 (1956).

Evidence of the price paid for similar property in a voluntary sale is admissible on the question of value of the property condemned, provided the properties sold are similar in locality and character to the property in question and not so far removed in point of time to make a comparison unjust or impossible. W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973).

Root consideration is whether comparable sale is sufficiently similar, in one or more aspects, to be probative of the fair market value of the property under consideration by the commission. Goldstein v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 192 Colo. 422, 560 P.2d 80 (1977).

Best evidence of market value found in comparable sales. While the best evidence of market value is found in sales of comparable property. The determination is not limited to that consideration and other substantial facts and circumstances may have probative value. United States v. 25.02 Acres of Land, More or Less, 495 F.2d 1398 (10th Cir. 1974).

Determination of market value not limited to consideration of comparable sales; other substantial facts and circumstances may have probative value. United States v. 25.02 Acres of Land, More or Less, 495 F.2d 1398 (10th Cir. 1974).

In eminent domain proceeding, in calculating value of subject property as a waste transfer station, trial court correctly admitted evidence based upon the land residual method instead of the comparable sales method. Whether a comparable sale is sufficiently similar to be of probative value in determining the value of land taken is for the trial court or commission to determine in its discretion. Here, considering both parties' expert testimony, there was sufficient evidence in the record to support landowner's position that there were not sufficient comparable sales and that, in the absence of such sales, the only way to calculate the added value of the planned unit development and waste transfer permit approvals was to use the land residual method. The record also supports a finding that criteria outlined by the American institute of real estate appraisers for use of the land residual method were met. In upholding the use of the land residual method, court of appeals rejected city's arguments that use of this method impermissibly considers a speculative or prospective value, that income and profits from a waste transfer station could not be considered in valuing the land, and that use of this method violated the undivided basis rule. City of Englewood v. Denver Waste Transfer, L.L.C., 55 P.3d 191 (Colo. App. 2002).

Unexecuted written contract for sale of adjacent land inadmissible. Just as a mere offer to buy or sell property is not a measure of the market value of a similar property, so, too, a written contract for the sale of adjacent land has been held inadmissible, if the sale did not take place. United States v. 25.02 Acres of Land, More or Less, 495 F.2d 1398 (10th Cir. 1974).

Where compensation for less than value of fee simple held proper. Where pipeline company did not take fee title to property containing its easement, and the surface land remained unaffected, useful, and of substantial value, the compensation was properly less than the value for fee simple title to the entire area within which the pipe was located. W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973).

When purchaser confined to damages for subsequent taking. Where land is already burdened by an easement when a purchaser acquires title, he takes that land in that condition when he acquires title and is confined to damages for subsequent takings. Upper Eagle Valley San. Dist. v. Carnie, 634 P.2d 1008 (Colo. App. 1981).

Demolition costs. In determining the present market value of unimproved property, as reflected by a comparable sale, the addition of demolition costs to the purchase price of a comparable property which had improvements but which was purchased for use as undeveloped land is permissible. Goldstein v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 192 Colo. 422, 560 P.2d 80 (1977).

Fixtures included in determination of landowner's compensation. Fixtures are a part of the realty for which compensation must be paid to the owner by the condemning authority. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Steiner Am. Corp., 31 Colo. App. 125, 500 P.2d 983 (1972).

Reservations in deeds admissible to show value of condemned property. In an eminent domain proceeding, the trial court committed prejudicial error when it refused to allow a city to introduce into evidence certain reservations in deeds through which landowners acquired their record title in order to show diminution in value of the property taken, since actually, the deeds in question should have been admitted into evidence on the question of the value of the landowners' interest. City of Englewood v. Reffel, 173 Colo. 203, 477 P.2d 361 (1970); E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. Jagow, 30 P.3d 798 (Colo. App. 2001), aff'd on other grounds, 49 P.3d 1151 (Colo. 2002).

When nonexpert witness competent to testify as to value. A nonexpert witness called to testify as to value is said to have sufficient qualification if a resident, landowner, or farmer in the neighborhood. Baker Metro. Water & San. Dist. v. Baca, 138 Colo. 239, 331 P.2d 511 (1958).

Defendant failed to show the easement causes significant damage because of depreciation of the value of property due to the impact on the property's "pristine" character. Minto v. Lambert, 870 P.2d 572 (Colo. App. 1993).

All evidence relevant to the determination of the present market value of condemned property is admissible, including evidence of the most advantageous potential future use of the entire property, even if the condemned property would need to be dedicated as part of annexation and rezoning of the entire property in the future. Palizzi v. City of Brighton, 228 P.3d 957 (Colo. 2010).

Evidence of the value of the condemned portion as a part of the whole is admissible and should be evaluated by the fact finder when determining just compensation. Palizzi v. City of Brighton, 228 P.3d 957 (Colo. 2010).

VI. SPECIFIC TYPES OF PROPERTY SUBJECT TO CONDEMNATION.

Types of property subject to condemnation unlimited. There are no limitations on the type of property that may be acquired by the state through condemnation proceedings for highway purposes. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963).

Using or enlarging ditch without owner's consent considered taking. Using or enlarging a ditch, without the owner's consent, was a taking or damaging of private property as would be appropriating the right-of-way therefor, in the first instance, but such taking or damaging could not be tolerated except upon payment, in a constitutional manner, of just compensation. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883).

Cemetery lands subject to condemnation. Cemetery lands, by virtue of their sacred nature, are not placed beyond the reach of the power of eminent domain; however, in the case of public cemeteries, such power to condemn must be given expressly or by necessary and reasonable implication. Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1952).

Church property can be taken by eminent domain for paramount public use. Pillar of Fire v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 181 Colo. 411, 509 P.2d 1250 (1973).

Condemnation of flowage easements permitted. Denver is vested with ample authority to condemn flowage easements and channel improvement rights for transportation of diverted water to storage facilities. Toll v. City & County of Denver, 139 Colo. 462, 340 P.2d 862 (1959).

Condemnor acquires surface and support of surface. When land is acquired by condemnation for a highway, the condemnor acquires not only what is understandably known as just the surface, but, by virtue of such condemnation, it acquires whatever is necessary for the support of that surface. Russel Coal Co. v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 129 Colo. 330, 270 P.2d 772 (1954).

Property already subject to existing public use can be condemned. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963).

Where overwhelming necessity shown. Where land is already devoted to a public use, it would be wholly unreasonable to permit it to be taken for another public use which would nullify and defeat the one to which it is already devoted, except in cases where the overwhelming necessities of the public were such that in order to serve their needs or supply their necessities, the taking of such property became necessary. Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1952).

Public waters, etc., not condemnable for sewage purposes. Public waters or beds or channels of public streams cannot be condemned for sewage purposes. City & County of Denver v. District Court, 140 Colo. 1, 342 P.2d 648 (1959).

Counties lack authority to condemn for office space. The general assembly has not impliedly delegated the power of eminent domain to counties for the purpose of acquiring office space for authorized county purposes. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Intermountain Rural Elec. Ass'n, 655 P.2d 831 (Colo. 1982) (decided prior to enactment of § 30-11-104 (2)).

VII. REVIEW BY SUPREME COURT.

Property owners may file writ of certiorari during stay of execution. Within a period of a stay of execution granted by a trial court, the owners of property being condemned, not having the right of review of an interlocutory order upon writ of error, may file an original action, by way of certiorari, in the supreme court, alleging that otherwise they were without remedy whatsoever to protect their property from seizure under an order of a district court, which they v. District Court, 140 Colo. 510, 345 P.2d 1064 contended was without lawful authority. Lucas (1959).

38-1-101.5. Necessity of taking land for pipelines. (1) When a court is determining the necessity of taking private land or nonfederal public land for the installation of a pipeline, the court shall require the pipeline company:

(a) To show that the particular land lies within a route which is the most direct route practicable;

(b) To post a bond with the court equal to double the amount which the court determines to be the estimated cost of restoring the affected land to the same or as good a condition as it was in prior to the installation of the pipeline; except that the pipeline company may elect to deposit cash, negotiable bonds of the United States government or any political subdivision of this state, or negotiable certificates of deposit of any bank or other savings institution organized or transacting business in the United States equal to double such cost. Said bond shall not be released until the court is satisfied that the condemned land has been restored to the same or as good a condition as existed prior to the installation of the pipeline, and, if the affected land is productive agricultural land, that the soil which sustains the agricultural activity has been restored so as to provide for the continuation of such agricultural activity, and that any damages awarded by the court have been paid. If the condemned land is adjacent to or in proximity of the boundary of federal land of comparable use, such bond shall not be released until the company has restored the land to at least the same reclamation standards and meets such other standards and requirements for such federal land as required by the laws, rules, and regulations of the federal government.

(c) To consider existing utility rights-of-way before any new routes are taken if the land to be condemned is adjacent to existing utility rights-of-way.

(2) When land is condemned for a pipeline, the determination of the amount of compensation to be received by the landowner shall reflect consideration of the fact that the condemned land is to be restored as required in this section.

ANNOTATION

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in excluding evidence relating to safety issues. Landowners failed to cite any authority that supports the proposition that a court must consider safety issues in pipeline condemnation cases. Sinclair Transp. Co. v. Sandberg, 228 P.3d 198 (Colo. App. 2009).

38-1-101.7. Limitations on the use of right-of-way. (1) No easement or right-of-way for pipelines shall be used by the owner thereof or employees of such owner for any purpose other than to construct, lay, install, replace, operate, inspect, maintain, repair, renew, substitute, monitor, change the size of, and remove certain facilities placed within the easement by such owner.

(2) The owner of an easement or right-of-way shall mitigate any erosion of the land within the easement or right-of-way caused by the owner of such easement.

38-1-102. Petition - contents - parties. (1) In all cases where the right to take private property for public or private use without the owner's consent or the right to construct or maintain any railroad, spur or side track, public road, toll road, ditch, bridge, ferry, telegraph, flume, or other public or private work or improvement which may damage property not actually taken is conferred by general laws or special charter upon any corporate or municipal authority, public body, officer or agent, person, commissioner, or corporation and the compensation to be paid for, in respect of property sought to be appropriated or damaged for the purposes mentioned, cannot be agreed upon by the parties interested; or, in case the owner of the property is incapable of consenting, or his name or residence is unknown, or he is a nonresident of the state, it is lawful for the party authorized to take or damage the property so required to apply to the judge of the district court where the property or any part thereof is situate by filing with the clerk a petition, setting forth, by reference, his authority in the premises, the purpose for which said property is sought to be taken or damaged, a description of the property, the names of all persons interested as owners or otherwise, as appearing of record, if known, or, if not known, stating that fact, and praying such judge to cause the compensation to be paid to the owner to be assessed. If the proceedings seek to affect the property of persons under guardianship, the guardians or conservators of persons having conservators shall be made parties defendant. Persons interested whose names are unknown may be made parties defendant by the description of the unknown owners. In all such cases an affidavit shall be filed by or on behalf of the petitioner, setting forth that the names of such persons are unknown.

(2) In cases where the property is sought to be taken or damaged by the state for the purpose of establishing, operating, or maintaining any state house or charitable or other state institution or improvement, the petition shall be signed by the governor or such other person as he directs or as is provided by law.

(3) Under the provisions of this section, private property may be taken for private use, for private ways of necessity, and for reservoirs, drains, flumes, or ditches on or across the lands of others for agricultural, mining, milling, domestic, or sanitary purposes.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For comment on City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978), appearing below, see 56 Den L. J. 625 (1979). For article, "Access to Mineral Lands in Colorado", see 11 Colo. Law. 870 (1982).

Principal object of condemnation proceedings is to ascertain the price which a petitioner must pay for the land which he desires to acquire, and, until that determination is made by a board or jury and the same has been approved by a court, it cannot be said that the rights of the parties have become fixed or determined. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958).

Proceedings can only be instituted under particular statutes which warrant them. Colo. Midland Ry. v. Ruedi, 2 Colo. App. 202, 29 P. 1034 (1892).

This section contemplates institution of proceedings by one corporation against another as well as by a corporation of a public character against the property of a private individual. San Luis Land, Canal & Imp. Co. v. Kenilworth Canal Co., 3 Colo. App. 244, 32 P. 860 (1893).

Power not assertable by federal oil and gas lessee. The power of condemnation prescribed by this section may not be asserted by a federal oil and gas lessee. Coquina Oil Corp. v. Harry Kourlis Ranch, 643 P.2d 519 (Colo. 1982).

Power not assertable by owner of unpatented mining claim. Precious Offer. Mineral Exch. v. McLain, 194 P.3d 455 (Colo. App. 2008).

Good faith offer prerequisite to failure to agree upon purchase price. The prerequisite of a failure to agree upon the purchase price for the property sought to be condemned generally requires only that the condemning authority make a reasonable good faith offer to reach an agreement with the owner of the property for its purchase. City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978); Bd. of County Comm'rs, v. Blecha, 697 P.2d 416 (Colo. App. 1985); City of Holyoke v. Schlachter Farms R.L.L.P., 22 P.3d 960 (Colo. App. 2001).

Where the negotiator for the plaintiff stated a price for land to the president of defendant association, who informed board of directors of offered price and all refused to accept it, this constituted failure to agree which was a condition precedent to jurisdiction of the trial court in a condemnation proceeding brought pursuant to this section. Old Timers Baseball Ass'n v. Hous. Auth., 122 Colo. 597, 224 P.2d 219 (1950).

Requirement of good faith negotiations under this section is not a restriction on the court's subject matter jurisdiction but is merely an element of the claim for relief. Minto v. Lambert, 870 P.2d 572 (Colo. App. 1993).

Trial court did not err in finding that the good faith negotiation requirement under subsection (1) was satisfied. Here, record supports trial court's determination because: (1) Petitioner made two separate offers, both of which exceeded the appraisal, (2) respondents declined to accept either offer, although they had been afforded a reasonable time in which to do so, and (3) their only counteroffer was substantially greater than either of petitioner's offers and the only appraisal. Sheridan Redev. Agency v. Knightsbridge Land Co., 166 P.3d 259 (Colo. App. 2007).

Property owner has privilege of controverting petitioner's right to condemn. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909).

Thereafter, petitioner has burden to maintain right by proper proofs. When property owner controverts petitioner's right to condemn, the burden is upon the petitioner to maintain his right by proper proofs. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909).

Where owner fails to make contest, petitioner's right to condemn deemed admitted. Where the owner fails to make a contest, in the proper manner and at the proper time, the right in the petitioner to condemn will be deemed admitted, leaving the amount of damages to be awarded as the sole matter in dispute. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909).

Petitioner must prove failure to agree upon compensation for land taken. The burden of proof is upon the petitioner in a condemnation action to establish by competent evidence that there was a failure to agree upon the compensation to be paid for land sought to be taken or damaged. Stalford v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 128 Colo. 441, 263 P.2d 436 (1953); City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978).

Failure to agree on compensation prerequisite to institution of proceedings. Failure to agree upon compensation to be paid for land sought to be taken or damaged is a condition precedent to the right to institute and maintain proceedings at all and is clearly jurisdictional. Mulford v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 62 Colo. 167, 161 P. 301 (1916); Stalford v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 128 Colo. 441, 263 P.2d 436 (1953); Welch v. City & County of Denver, 141 Colo. 587, 349 P.2d 352 (1960).

Effect of owner's silence or failure to propose counter offer. If the property owner remains silent or rejects the offer without making an acceptable counter-offer, a condemnation action may be instituted. City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978).

Agreement precludes institution of proceedings. Where an agreement was reached between the state, which was the condemnor, and the city, which was the landowner, the state is not compelled to institute condemnation proceedings because, by enacting an ordinance authorizing the use of park lands for highway purposes, all was accomplished by condemnation proceedings. Welch v. City & County of Denver, 141 Colo. 587, 349 P.2d 352 (1960).

Order for temporary possession not reviewable by writ of error. An order for temporary possession is interlocutory and not a final judgment or final determination of the action; thus are not reviewable by writ of error. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958).

Doctrines of claim preclusion and issue preclusion apply, and condemnees cannot revisit the valuation of the property acquired as determined in earlier condemnation proceedings in a subsequent civil action claiming a taking without just compensation. The issue of damages for the taking of the acquired property was actually and necessarily adjudicated in the prior condemnation proceeding where the condemnees had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue. Wall v. City of Aurora, 172 P.3d 934 (Colo. App. 2007).

Record supports trial court's determination that corporation engaged in good faith negotiations. Requirement of good faith negotiation under subsection (1) satisfied where condemning authority makes a reasonable good faith offer to reach an agreement with property owner and allows owner sufficient time to respond. Here, condemning authority made several offers, some of which exceeded properties' appraised values, landowners did not accept offers, although they had a reasonable time to do so, and landowners' counteroffers demanded substantially more than condemning authority's offers and properties' appraised values. Sinclair Transp. Co. v. Sandberg, 228 P.3d 198 (Colo. App. 2009).

Applied in Colo. Midlands Ry. v. Croman, 16 Colo. 381, 27 P. 256 (1891); Town of Lyons v. City of Longmont, 54 Colo. 112, 129 P. 198

(1912); Otero Irrigation Dist. v. Enderud, 122 Colo. 136, 220 P.2d 862 (1950); Rabinoff v. District Court, 145 Colo. 225, 360 P.2d 114 (1961); Buck v. District Court, 199 Colo. 344, 608 P.2d 350 (1980); Direct Mail Servs., Inc. v. Colo., 557 F. Supp. 851 (D. Colo. 1983), aff'd, 729 F.2d 672 (10th Cir. 1984); Thornton Dev. Auth. v. Upah, 640 F. Supp. 1071 (D. Colo. 1986).

II. PROPERTY SUBJECT TO EMINENT DOMAIN.

A. Private Property.

Property held by corporation deemed private. Property held by public corporation which is not devoted to, or needed for, a public use, is as much private property as though held by an individual. Denver Power & Irrigation Co. v. Denver & R.G.R.R., 30 Colo. 204, 69 P. 568 (1902).

B. Way of Necessity.

Common-law way of necessity is easement founded upon implied grant. Where one party conveys property, he also conveys whatever is necessary to the beneficial use of that property by which it is assumed that, when a party conveys property, he also conveys whatever is necessary to the beneficial use of that property. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915); Minto v. Lambert, 870 P.2d 572 (Colo. App. 1993).

Way of necessity arises only in favor of grantee over grantor's land, and not over the lands of a stranger. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915).

Necessity does not create right, as it always originates in some grant or change of ownership. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915).

Private and public ways of necessity distinguished. Private ways of necessity differ from public ways of necessity only in the fact that they are private; private ways of necessity refer particularly to, and include, passageways or roadways which are indispensable to the practical use of the property for which they are claimed. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915).

Private ways of necessity are not limited to ways desired for agricultural, mining, milling, domestic, or sanitary purposes, as are those for reservoirs, drains, flumes, and ditches. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915); Childers v. Quartz Creek Land Co., 946 P.2d 534 (Colo. App. 1997), cert. dismissed, 964 P.2d 509 (Colo. 1998).

When private corporation may condemn land for private way of necessity. A private corporation may condemn land for a private way of necessity where the nature of its business and the situation of its property require the way, and where, under like conditions, other persons not corporate may condemn. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915).

Courts may determine what constitutes private way of necessity in any particular case, unless restrained by the general assembly. Crystal Park Co. v. Morton, 27 Colo. App. 74, 146 P. 566 (1915).

Private way of necessity may be condemned when the need is reasonably necessary and the common law or other legal remedy does not provide a present enforceable legal right to an alternate mode of access that is reasonable and practical. Minto v. Lambert, 870 P.2d 572 (Colo. App. 1993).

State highway department cannot condemn property for a private way of necessity. Although state highway department has express statutory authority to condemn property for local service roads and for highway construction, the department has no statutory authority to "stand in the shoes" of a private landowner and condemn a private way of necessity which the landowner has the right to assert under this section. Dept. of Hwys. v. Denver & Rio Grande W.R., 789 P.2d 1088 (Colo. 1990).

The phrase "private ways of necessity" in subsection (3) does not include natural gas pipelines. Phrase is limited to passageways, such as paths, bridges, and tunnels, and roadways that provide legal access connecting landlocked property to a public road. Petitioners do not seek to condemn an easement to provide such access but rather to construct and maintain an underground natural gas pipeline and related equipment and facilities. As such, petition did not identify a purpose for which taking property is permitted under this section and section 14 of article II of the state constitution. Akin v. Four Corners Encampment, 179 P.3d 139 (Colo. App. 2007).

If the defendant pleads the existence of an alternate route of private access across property not owned by the defendant, defendant has the burden of establishing the existence of an acceptable alternate route and of proving that plaintiffs have the present enforceable legal right to use it. West v. Hinksmon, 857 P.2d 483 (Colo. App. 1992).

Defendant should be permitted to show that an alternate route across defendant's property exists that would be less damaging than that proposed by plaintiff. West v. Hinksmon, 857 P.2d 483 (Colo. App. 1992).

When a petitioner seeks to condemn private way of necessity for access to property it wishes to develop in the future, it must demonstrate a purpose for the condemnation that enables the trial court to examine both the scope of and necessity for the proposed condemnation, so that the burden to be imposed upon the condemnee's property may be ascertained and circumscribed through the trial court's condemnation order. Glenelk Ass'n v. Lewis, 260 P.3d 1117 (Colo. App. 2011).

Condemnor failed to articulate a concrete development proposal for the subject property nor did he sufficiently engage the county's land use approval process prior to initiating the condemnation proceeding. Record fails to clarify condemnor's intended use of the property or size of the planned road with sufficient specificity to allow trial court to analyze necessity of requested easement. Condemnor's failure to sufficiently articulate development plan prevented trial court from determining scope of proposed condemnation sufficiently to determine scope of burden to be imposed upon the property to be condemned. Given evidentiary shortcomings in the record, trial court correctly concluded that it could not determine whether particular way of necessity requested by condemnor was indispensable and, therefore, trial court correctly denied condemnor's request for immediate possession and dismissed the condemnation petition. Glenelk Ass'n v. Lewis, 260 P.3d 1117 (Colo. App. 2011).

Trial court's determination in declaratory judgment action brought under constitutional counterpart of subsection (3) of this section, § 14 of article II of the state constitution, that defendants failed to rebut plaintiff's showing of an entitlement to a private way of necessity is not clearly erroneous. Trial court held plaintiff may condemn private way of necessity across defendants' property pursuant to constitutional section. Trial court's determinations that plaintiff proved that a way of necessity is reasonably necessary and that defendants did not prove, in any concrete fashion, that plaintiff has either an alternate route of access or a present enforceable legal right to use one are not clearly erroneous. Tieze v. Killam, 179 P.3d 10 (Colo. App. 2007).

C. Property Devoted to Public Use.

Condemnation of property already devoted to public use limited. Property already devoted to a public use cannot be taken for another in such manner or to such an extent that the use to which it is devoted will be wholly defeated or superseded, except where a public exigency requires that it be taken. Denver Power & Irrigation Co. v. Denver & R.G.R.R., 30 Colo. 204, 69 P. 568 (1902); Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1932).

Land already appropriated as a right-of-way by a railroad company cannot be taken for a reservoir site to an extent which would totally deprive the railroad company of its use, unless a public necessity requires that it be taken. Denver

Power & Irrigation Co. v. Denver & R.G.R.R., 30 Colo. 204, 69 P. 568 (1902).

Property held for a public use may be taken under the exercise of the right of eminent domain for the same or a different public use, when such taking does not materially interfere with the uses for which it is already held. Colo. E. Ry. v. Union Pac. Ry., 41 F. 293 (D. Colo. 1890), writ of error dismissed, 54 F. 22 (8th Cir. 1893), writ of error dismissed, 163 U.S. 708, 16 S. Ct. 1207, 41 L. Ed. 310 (1895); Union P. R. R. v. Colo. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 30 Colo. 133, 69 P. 564 (1902), appeal dismissed, 191 U.S. 577, 24 S. Ct. 861, 48 L. Ed. 309 (1903).

City may not condemn property already dedicated to public use. Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1952).

III. THE PETITION.

A. Contents.

Petition to reflect property value or amount in controversy. The petition should show the value of the property sought to be taken or the amount involved in the proceeding. Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889).

Authority to condemn need not appear in petition. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909).

Definiteness required in description of condemned property. A petition that describes the right-of-way sought to be condemned with sufficient definiteness that any one versed in the nomenclature employed for the description of lands could locate it without any trouble, contains a sufficient description. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

Nothing in this section requires a petition to include a legal description. Story v. Bly, 217 P.3d 872 (Colo. App. 2008), aff'd, 241 P.3d 529 (Colo. 2010).

Averments of shortest route practicable, etc., unnecessary. The petition for a way for an irrigating ditch, over the cultivated lands of another, need not aver that the way sought is the shortest and most direct route practicable, etc. Mulford v. Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 62 Colo. 167, 161 P. 301 (1916).

Deficient petition to be dismissed. If the petitioner is unable to bring himself within the descriptio personae of some act from which he derives his rights, or if he fails to show that he is seeking to take private property and desires to ascertain its value in that proceeding, his petition must be dismissed. Colo. Midland Ry. v. Ruedi, 2 Colo. App. 202, 29 P. 1034 (1892).

Nature of easement. Unless the exact nature of an easement sought to be taken is fixed by law, petition must describe in detail the nature of the use to be made of the land so that the burden on the landowner can be accurately evaluated. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Woolley, 696 P.2d 828 (Colo. App. 1984).

Slope easement defined in State Dept. of Highways v. Woolley, 696 P.2d 828 (Colo. App. 1984).

B. Sufficiency.

Sufficient showing of public purpose in petition. In a proceeding to condemn a right-of-way for a telegraph line, a petition which alleges that petitioner is a corporation organized for the purpose of erecting and maintaining lines of magnetic telegraph in this state is sufficient to show that the line to be established is for public use. Union P.R.R. v. Colo. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 30 Colo. 133, 69 P. 564 (1902), appeal dismissed, 191 U.S. 577, 24 S. Ct. 861, 48 L. Ed. 309 (1903).

38-1-103. Summons - return - publication. (1) A summons shall be issued and served and proof of service shall be made in accordance with the Colorado rules of civil procedure. The contents of such summons shall be in conformity with said rules; except that it shall notify the respondent or defendant that, upon failure to appear and defend, the court, without further notice, shall cause the compensation to be determined and title vested in the petitioner according to law. When it appears that the owners of the property sought to be condemned cannot be personally served as provided by the Colorado rules of civil procedure, an affidavit shall be filed in said cause by the petitioner or his attorney, setting forth that the person making such affidavit has made diligent inquiry and has been unable to learn the whereabouts of such owners.

(2) The court shall then order a notice to be published in some newspaper published in said county, addressed to such owners, in which notice shall be stated the name of the petitioner, a full and accurate description of the property sought to be taken or condemned, the purpose for which such condemnation is asked, the time and place at which such owners are required to appear, and the title of the court or name of the judge before whom said application is to be heard. The court shall also fix and determine when said notice shall be made returnable, but in no case shall it be made returnable in less than thirty days. The same shall be published at least four times in some weekly newspaper before the return day thereof. If there is no weekly newspaper published in the county in which such proceedings are had, the court shall direct that said notice be published in some newspaper, named by him, published in the nearest convenient place to such county.

C. Parties.

Unknown, interested parties. Where the names of interested parties are unknown, this section authorizes the institution of proceedings against the owner appearing of record or, if not known stating that fact; but this section does not and could not lawfully undertake to conclude the rights and transmute the title of the real owner without notice and having his day in court. Colo. E.R.R. v. Chicago, B. & Q. Ry., 141 F. 898 (8th Cir. 1905).

Shareholders necessary parties in mutual ditch corporation action. Pursuant to Rule 19, C.R.C.P. the district court should join as parties to a condemnation action those shareholders in a mutual ditch corporation whose water rights would be affected by the condemnation action of the defendant as of the date of the initiation of the condemnation action and all parties in interest. Jacobucci v. District Court, 189 Colo. 380, 541 P.2d 667 (1975).

ANNOTATION

Failure to answer summons waives all issues except compensation. Where the summons is returnable at a certain day and hour, no answer being interposed at the hour appointed, the court can proceed at once to the appointment of commissioners to ascertain the compensation to be made because failing to answer at the time specified is a waiver of all questions as to the necessity for the taking and the attempt to agree. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909); Williams v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 48 Colo. 541, 111 P. 71 (1910).

Applied in Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892); Colo. Midland Ry. v. Ruedi, 2 Colo. App. 202, 29 P. 1034 (1892); Siedler v. Seely, 8 Colo. App. 499, Postal Tel. Cable Co.*, 30 Colo. 133, 69 P. 564 (1902); Goodman v. City of Ft. Collins, 164 F. 970 (8th Cir. 1908).

38-1-104. Trial - amendments - rules. No cause shall be heard earlier than thirty days after service upon the defendant or upon due publication as provided in section 38-1-103. Any number of separate parcels of property situate in the same county may be included in one petition, and the compensation for each shall be assessed separately by the same or different commissions or juries, as the court may direct. Amendment to the petition or to any paper or record in the cause may be permitted whenever necessary to a fair trial and final determination of the questions involved. Should it become necessary at any stage of the proceeding to bring a new party before the court, the court has the power to make such rule or order in relation thereto as may be deemed reasonable and proper, and also has the power to make all necessary rules and orders for notice to parties of the pendency of the proceeding and to issue all process necessary to the execution of orders and judgments as they may be entered.

ANNOTATION

Provisions relating to amendment of petition to be accorded liberal interpretation. Lebanon Mining Co. v. Consol. Republican Mining Co., 6 Colo. 371 (1882); Archibald v. Thompson, 2 Colo. 388 (1892); Sw. Land Co. v. Hickory Jackson Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 489, 33 P. 275 (1893); Jordan v. Greig, 33 Colo. 360, 80 P. 1045 (1905); Goodman v. City of Ft. Collins, 164 F. 970 (8th Cir. 1908).

Applicability of section. The provisions of this section allowing amendment of a petition are as applicable to the correction of errors and omissions in the statement of jurisdictional facts as to the correction of other defects. Lebanon Mining Co. v. Consol. Republican Mining Co., 6 Colo. 371 (1882); Archibald v. Thompson, 2 Colo. 388 (1892); Sw. Land Co. v. Hickory Jackson Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 489, 33 P. 275 (1893); Jordan v. Greig, 33 Colo. 360, 80 P. 1045 (1905); Goodman v. City of Ft. Collins, 164 F. 970 (8th Cir. 1908).

General statutory provisions governing amendments to pleadings are inapplicable to the eminent domain act, which prescribes a complete system of procedure for the taking or damaging of private property. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883); Knoth v. Barclay, 8 Colo. 300, 6 P. 924 (1885); Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889); Kindel v. Le Bert, 23 Colo. 385, 48 P. 641, 58 Am. St. R. 234 (1897).

Matter of amendments is discretionary with the court. Knoth v. Barclay, 8 Colo. 300, 6 P. 924 (1885); Goodman v. City of Ft. Collins, 164 F. 970 (8th Cir. 1908).

Amendment power unaffected by parties' failure to appear. The power of the court to allow an amendment of a petition is not affected in any wise by the failure of parties to appear because the personal service of the summons brought them under the jurisdiction of the court for all purposes of the proceedings as fully as a voluntary appearance could have done. Goodman v. City of Ft. Collins, 164 F. 970 (8th Cir. 1908).

Defective condemnation proceedings may be renewed, and the petition and other papers may be amended whenever necessary to a fair trial and final determination of the controversy. Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889).

Jurisdiction is not lost by amendment of petition because an amendment is not the institution of a new proceeding, and it creates no occasion for the issuance of a new summons or like process. Goodman v. City of Ft. Collins, 164 F. 970 (8th Cir. 1908).

Trial court's refusal to permit amendment deemed no abuse of discretion. If the condemnor is fully aware of the nature and value of the property it seeks to take, it may not wait until after evidence of value has been heard and, because of anticipated dissatisfaction with the amount of the award, modify its position where the property owners have changed their position in good faith and reliance on the condemnor's representations; since the trial court's refusal to permit an amendment was based upon consideration of fairness to the parties, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying to condemnor's motion to amend. Evergreen Fire Prot. Dist. v. Huckleby, 626 P.2d 744 (Colo. App. 1981).

Applied in Colo. E.R.R. v. Chicago, B. & Q. Ry., 141 F. 898 (8th Cir. 1905); Schneider v. Schneider, 36 Colo. 518, 86 P. 347 (1906); Tegeler v. Schneider, 49 Colo. 574, 114 P. 288 (1911); Cucharas Sanitation & Water v. Mounsey, 805 P.2d 1177 (Colo. App. 1990).

38-1-105. Adjournment - commission - compensation - defective title - withdrawal of deposit. (1) The court may adjourn the proceedings from time to time and shall direct any further notice thereof to be given that may seem proper. The court shall hear proofs and allegations of all parties interested touching the regularity of the proceedings and shall rule upon all objections thereto. Unless a jury is requested by the owner of the property as provided in section 38-1-106, the court shall appoint a board of commissioners of not less than three disinterested and impartial freeholders to determine compensation in the manner provided in this article to be allowed to the owner and persons interested in the lands, real estate, claims, or other property proposed to be taken or damaged in such county for the purposes alleged in the petition. The court shall fix the time and place for the first meeting of such commissioners. Such meeting shall be held at least thirty days prior to the date scheduled for the trial to determine compensation. At the meeting, a voir dire examination shall be conducted by the court and the parties to determine whether the proposed commissioners are disinterested and impartial freeholders. If the court determines that any of the proposed commissioners is not disinterested and impartial, the court shall replace such person and appoint another commissioner, who shall also be subject to voir dire examination. At the hearing to determine compensation, the court shall administer an oath to the commissioners, shall instruct them in writing as to their duties, and, at the conclusion of the testimony, shall instruct them in writing as to the applicable and proper law to be followed by them in arriving at their ascertainment. The court shall fix reasonable compensation for the services and expenses of said commissioners and shall provide the services of a court reporter to record all proceedings had by the commissioners.

(2) The commissioners, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take an oath to faithfully and impartially discharge their duties as commissioners, and any one of them may administer oaths to witnesses produced before them. The commissioners may request the court or clerk thereof to issue subpoenas to compel witnesses to attend the proceedings and testify as in other civil cases and may adjourn and hold meetings for that purpose. They may request the court to make rulings upon the propriety of the proof or objections of the parties. They shall hear the proofs and allegations of the parties according to the rules of evidence and, after viewing the premises or other property and without fear, favor, or partiality, shall ascertain and certify the proper compensation to be made to said owner or parties interested for the lands, real estate, claims, or other property to be taken or affected, as well as all damages accruing to the owner or parties interested in consequence of the condemnation of the same. The commissioners shall make, subscribe, and file with the clerk of the court in which such proceedings are had a certificate of their ascertainment and assessment, in which such lands, real estate, claims, or other property shall be described with convenient certainty and accuracy.

(3) The court, upon the filing of such certificate or returning of a verdict of a jury as provided in section 38-1-107 and due proof that such compensation and separate sums, if any, are certified or found to have been paid to the parties entitled to the same or have been deposited to the credit of such parties in court or with the clerk of the court for that purpose, shall make and cause to be entered in its minutes a rule describing such lands, real estate, claims, or other property, such ascertainment or compensation with the mode of making it, and each payment or deposit of the compensation, a certified copy of which shall be recorded and indexed in the office of the county clerk and recorder of the proper county in like manner and with like effect as if it were a deed of conveyance from the owner and parties interested to the proper parties. If there is more than one person interested as owner or otherwise in the property and they are unable to agree upon the nature, extent, or value of their respective interests in the total amount of compensation so ascertained and assessed on an undivided basis by either a commission or a jury, the nature, extent, or value of said interests shall thereupon be determined according to law in a separate and subsequent proceeding and distribution made among the several claimants thereto.

(4) Upon the entry of such rule, the petitioner shall become seized in fee unless a lesser interest has been sought, except as provided in this section, of all such lands, real estate, claims, or other property described in said rule as required to be taken, and may take possession and hold and use the same for the purposes specified in such petition, and shall thereupon be discharged from all claims for any damages by reason of any matter specified in such petition, certificate, or rule of said court. No right-of-way or easement acquired by condemnation shall ever give the petitioner any right, title, or interest to any vein, ledge, lode, deposit, oil, natural gas, or other mineral resource found or existing in the premises condemned, except insofar as the same may be required for subsurface support.

(5) If at any time after an attempted or actual ascertainment of compensation under this article or any purchase or by donation to said petitioner of any lands, real estate, claims, or other property for purposes specified in the petition it appears that the title acquired thereby, to all or any part of such lands for the use of such petitioner, is defective or if said assessment fails or is deemed defective, the petitioner may proceed and perfect such title by procuring an ascertainment of the proper compensation to be made to any person who has title, claim, or interest in or lien upon such lands, real estate, claims, or other property and by making payment thereof in the manner provided in section 38-1-112, as near as may be.

(6) (a) At any stage of such new proceedings or of any proceedings under this article, the court, by rule in that behalf made, may authorize the petitioner, if already in possession, to use, and, if not in possession, to take possession of and use, said premises during the pendency and until the final conclusion of such proceedings and may stay all actions and proceedings against such petitioner on account thereof, if such petitioner pays a sufficient sum into court, or to the clerk thereof, to pay the compensation in that behalf when ascertained. The court wherein any such proceedings are had shall determine the amount such petitioner is required to pay or deposit pending any such ascertainment. In every case where possession is so authorized, it is lawful for either party to conduct the proceedings to a conclusion, if the same are delayed by the other party.

(b) Upon proper application to the court or by stipulation between the parties, the owner may withdraw from the sum so deposited an amount not to exceed three-fourths of the highest valuation evidenced or testimony presented by the petitioner at the hearing for possession, unless the petitioner agrees to a larger withdrawal, if all parties interested in the property sought to be acquired consent and agree to such withdrawal. Any such withdrawal of said deposit shall be a partial payment of the amount of total compensation to be paid and shall be deducted by the clerk of the court from any award or verdict entered thereafter.

(c) The petitioner shall not take possession of the property sought to be taken or condemned earlier than thirty days after service of the summons upon the defendant, unless the owner consents to such possession prior to the expiration of the thirty-day period.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For note, "The Real Property Interest Created in a Railroad Upon Acquisition of Its Right-of-Way", see 27 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 73 (1954). For article, "La Plata Electric Association v. Cummins: A Radical Departure or a Consistent Interpretation of Pre-Existing Equities in Colorado Condemnation Law?", see 65 Den. U. L. Rev. 93 (1988).

Only such interest necessary to accomplish purpose passed. This article passes only such estate or interest in the lands as is reasonably necessary to accomplish the purpose had in view in the condemnation proceeding. Lithgow v. Pearson, 25 Colo. App. 70, 135 P. 759 (1913).

As a result of the 2008 legislative expansion of this section, subsection (4) prohibits a governmental entity from acquiring through condemnation a right to any mineral resource beneath real property that was itself acquired through condemnation for highway purposes except to the extent required for subsurface support. Prior to that expansion, subsection (4) did not prohibit such acquisition by the department of transportation. Dept. of Transp. v. Gypsum Ranch Co., 244 P.3d 127 (Colo. 2010).

Specific land description in order appointing commissioners not required. This section does not require that the land to be taken or damaged should be specifically described in the order appointing the commissioners. Williams v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 48 Colo. 541, 111 P. 71 (1910).

Trial judge is not required to preside at all commissioners' meetings. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Vail Associates, 171 Colo. 381, 468 P.2d 842 (1970).

Applied in Smith Canal or Ditch Co. v. Colo. Ice & Storage Co., 34 Colo. 485, 82 P. 940 (1905); Boothroyd v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 43 Colo. 428, 97 P. 255 (1908); Kern v. District Court, 199 Colo. 344, 608 P.2d 350 (1980); State Dept. of Hwys. v. Pigg, 656 P.2d 46 (Colo. App. 1982).

II. THE PROCEEDINGS.

A. In General.

Parties entitled to presence at trial, cross-examination, etc. At the trial both parties are entitled to be present, to cross-examine witnesses and to object to the admission or exclusion of any and all documents offered in evidence. Routt County Dev. Co. v. Johnson, 23 Colo. App. 511, 130 P. 1081 (1913).

Petitioner may pay award or abandon proceedings. Under a judgment in condemnation the petitioner may pay the award and take title to the property, or he may abandon the proceedings and, thus, incur no liability for the sum awarded as the value of the property; and this is true even in cases where by virtue of the statute, he has obtained preliminary possession pending trial. Dolores No. 2 Land & Canal Co. v. Hartman, 17 Colo. 138, 29 P. 378 (1891).

Condemning party may discontinue proceedings at any time before the right of the property owner to compensation or damages has become complete, in the absence of a statutory provision showing a legislative intent to the contrary. Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681 (1915); Denver & N.O.R.R. v. Lamborn, 8 Colo. 380, 8 P. 582 (1885); Johnson v. Climax Molybdenum Co., 109 Colo. 308, 124 P.2d 929 (1942).

Payment required for costs and damages recoverable upon abandonment. The privilege to so abandon the proceeding does not relieve the condemning party from the payment of such costs and damages as may be lawfully recovered. Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681, 1916E Ann. Cas. 985 (1915).

Landowner must recover damages in separate action. Damages occasioned by the occupancy and use of the land by the condemnor, where the condemnor discontinues the proceedings after gaining temporary possession of the property, must be recovered by the landowner in a separate action. Johnson v. Climax Molybdenum Co., 109 Colo. 308, 124 P.2d 929 (1942).

Since landowner's action for damages improper for consideration in condemnation proceedings. The procedural requirement of the landowner having to seek recovery in a separate action arose from the fact that condemnor, after abandoning and discontinuing the proceedings, was relegated to the status of a trespasser ab initio, and the landowner's action for damages, of necessity, had to sound in tort and involved essentials, both in the pleading and trial thereof, not properly subjects for consideration in condemnation proceedings under this section. Johnson v. Climax Molybdenum Co., 109 Colo. 308, 124 P.2d 929 (1942).

Condemnor has burden of maintaining his right by proper proofs, once the landowner has controverted the condemnor's right to condemn. Otero Irrigation Dist. v. Enderud, 122 Colo. 136, 220 P.2d 862 (1950).

Property owner acquires no vested right to compensation awarded until condemnor has secured a vested right to the property condemned, and vice versa. City of Broomfield v. Walnut Creek Dev. Corp., 666 P.2d 1103 (Colo. App. 1982).

Scope of petitioner's showing in pleadings and proof. The petitioner is at liberty to show, by proper pleadings and proof that such title or claim is nothing more than the bare legal title, without any equity in the defendant, and that the damages are merely nominal, or that the defendant's estate is something less than the full legal and equitable interest, on account of the payment and acceptance of the compensation therefor, as pleaded; nothing in disparagement of defendant's title, unless fairly within the scope of the pleadings, could be properly admitted in evidence. Knoth v. Barclay, 8 Colo. 300, 6 P. 924 (1885); G.B. & L. Ry. v. Haggart, 9 Colo. 346, 12 P. 215 (1886); Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889).

Order violating constitution does not vitiate rest of proceedings. Whether an interlocutory order violates constitutional requirement of due process of law or not, it does not vitiate the rest of the proceedings for condemnation and, if in those proceedings, respondents have had notice and have had their compensation judicially ascertained, the case will not be reversed because of such order, unless it is shown that it has injuriously affected their rights upon the merits. Sternberger v. McClain v. People, 9 Colo. 190, 11 P. 85 (1886); San Luis Land, Canal & Imp. Co. v. Kenilworth Canal Co., 3 Colo. App. 244, 32 P. 860 (1893); Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901); Lavelle v. Town of Julesburg, 49 Colo. 290, 112 P. 774 (1911); Cont'l Mines Power & Reduction Co., 68 Colo. 129, 186 P. 910 (1920), appeal dismissed, 257 U.S. 617, 42 S. Ct. 95, 66 L. Ed. 399 (1921).

Issues pertaining to the government's right to take immediate possession of condemned property are properly part of eminent domain proceedings. Because the trial court had jurisdiction to decide issues pertaining to the department of transportation's right to take immediate possession of the property, it necessarily follows that the trial court also had jurisdiction to accept, interpret, and enforce a stipulation which resolved the dispute over such possession. Dept. of Transp. v. Auslaender, 94 P.3d 1239 (Colo. App. 2004).

B. Questions for Determination in Limine.

Questions for determination by court include: (1) Whether or not the petitioner belongs to the class of persons entitled to condemn; (2) whether or not the property sought to be taken belongs to the class of property that is subject to condemnation; (3) whether or not the purpose for which the property is sought to be taken is one for which condemnation is permitted; (4) whether or not the petitioner and the owner have been able to come to an agreement concerning a purchase of the land; and (5) whether or not the act authorizing the proceeding is constitutional. Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932).

Court must determine necessity and purpose of taking land. The question of the necessity of taking land and property from the owner and the question as to whether or not the purpose for which the property is to be taken is a public one are questions which the court must answer because the correct answers are conditioned by rules of law of which the commissioners cannot have competent knowledge. Union P.R.R. v. Colo. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 30 Colo. 133, 69 P. 564 (1902), appeal dismissed, 191 U.S. 577, 24 S. Ct. 861, 48 L. Ed. 309 (1903).

Petitioner's entitlement to condemn. If a petitioner is not entitled to condemn a tract, or if a tract should not have been taken are matters for the court to settle in advance. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

Since a right-of-way shall not give the party condemning it any right, title, or interest to any vein, ledge, lode, or deposit in the premises so taken, the question of whether the petitioners were precluded from running a tunnel is a matter which, if proper to consider in condemnation proceedings, must be settled by the court. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

Inability to agree is to be determined by court. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909).

Feasibility or financial success of enterprise not determinations for court in limine. Whether or not an enterprise is feasible or will be a financial success cannot be inquired into even by commissioners charged with the duty of determining the question of necessity for the project, and clearly such questions were not for the determination of the court in limine. Rothwell v. Coffin, 122 Colo. 140, 220 P.2d 1063 (1950).

Nothing in subsection (1) purports to preclude a court from making determination before trial on the legal question of whether the phrase "private ways of necessity" includes ways for natural gas pipelines. This legal question is distinguished from factual question of necessity, that is, whether the way sought is "reasonably necessary" under the facts and circumstances of the case, which is one for the trier of fact. Akin v. Four Corners Encampment, 179 P.3d 139 (Colo. App. 2007).

C. Power of Commissioners.

Language of subsection (2) is permissive and not mandatory. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. McClure Venture, 41 Colo. App. 524, 594 P.2d 585 (1978).

Province of board fixed by subsection (2). The province of the board of commissioners is fixed by the terms of subsection (2). Broadmoor Land Co. v. Curr, 142 F. 421 (8th Cir. 1905); Routt County Dev. Co. v. Johnson, 23 Colo. App. 511, 130 P. 1081 (1913).

Commissioner is combination of civil juror and judge. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Copper Mt., Inc., 624 P.2d 936 (Colo. App. 1981).

Commissioners to make all evidentiary decisions. The board of commissioners may seek the aid of the trial court in resolving the propriety of the proofs or objections of the parties; however, in the absence of the board's requesting such aid, the board will make all evidentiary decisions. City of Aurora v. Webb, 41 Colo. App. 11, 585 P.2d 288 (1978).

The commission was entitled to consider any competent evidence, including after sales which were comparable in character, close in time and in location, in ascertaining the present, reasonable market value of the condemned property at the date of the taking. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Town of Silverthorne, 707 P.2d 1017 (Colo. App. 1985), cert. dismissed, 736 P.2d 411 (Colo. 1987).

Commissioners may not hold interviews with those not called as witnesses. Routt County Dev. Co. v. Johnson, 23 Colo. App. 511, 130 P. 1081 (1913).

Commissioners may not examine documents not produced at the hearing. Routt County Dev. Co. v. Johnson, 23 Colo. App. 511, 130 P. 1081 (1913).

Commissioners not required to determine questions of law. It was never intended that commissioners should be required to determine questions the solution of which depends upon the application of intricate questions of law such as would be presented by the trial of issues tendered by the answer of respondent. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892); Siedler v. Seely, 8 Colo. App. 499, 46 P. 848 (1896); Thompson v. De Weese-Dye Ditch & Reservoir Co., 25 Colo. 243, 53 P. 507 (1898); Gibson v. Cann, 28 Colo. 499, 66 P. 879 (1901); Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901); Union P.R.R. v. Colo. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 30 Colo. 133, 69 P. 564 (1902), appeal dismissed, 191 U.S. 577, 24 S. Ct. 861, 48 L. Ed. 309 (1903).

Section does not confer roving commission upon commissioners; therefore, the commissioners may not go into the highways and byways in quest of plats, documents, and printed matter. Routt County Dev. Co. v. Johnson, 23 Colo. App. 511, 130 P. 1081 (1913).

Effect of one commissioner's failure to view subject property. Failure of one of commission of three freeholders to view subject property does not vitiate the commission's ascertainment of value and the judgment entered thereon. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. McClure Venture, 41 Colo. App. 524, 594 P.2d 585 (1978).

Disqualification of commissioner. There is no Colorado law on the grounds for disqualification of a commissioner. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Copper Mt., Inc., 624 P.2d 936 (Colo. App. 1981).

III. DEPOSITS.

A. In General.

Purpose of requiring deposit is to provide the landowner with security for the payment of compensation and damages ultimately awarded. City of Englewood v. Reffel, 34 Colo. App. 103, 522 P.2d 1241 (1974).

Preliminary deposit is not payment, nor part payment, until it is actually so applied. Dolores No. 2 Land & Canal Co. v. Hartman, 17 Colo. 138, 29 P. 378 (1891); Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681 (1915).

Deposit required must be sufficient to pay compensation due the landowner when the value of his land is determined by a board of commissioners or a jury as provided. Swift v. Smith, 119 Colo. 126, 201 P.2d 609 (1948).

If the petitioner deposits a sum with the court sufficient to pay the compensation when it is later ascertained, the court may authorize the petitioner to take immediate possession of the property before a final evaluation of the property is made. E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. 455 Co., 997 P.2d 1273 (Colo. App. 1999).

Court acts as depositary of petitioner. In receiving the preliminary deposit, the court, or its proper officer, acts as the depositary of the petitioner until the deposit is actually applied to its ultimate purpose or is otherwise legally disposed of. Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681 (1915); Dolores No. 2 Land & Canal Co. v. Hartman, 17 Colo. 138, 29 P. 378 (1891).

B. Withdrawal of Deposits.

Withdrawals deemed provisional. Withdrawals from the sum deposited pursuant to subsection (6)(b) are provisional, not absolute. City of Englewood v. Reffel, 34 Colo. App. 103, 522 P.2d 1241 (1974).

If deposit withdrawn, petitioner's right of possession suspended. A preliminary deposit in a condemnation proceeding is essential to the petitioner's right of entry and possession and, if by any means, it is withdrawn before the final determination of the controversy, the petitioner's right of possession is suspended. Dolores No. 2 Land & Canal Co. v. Hartman, 17 Colo. 138, 29 P. 378 (1891); Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681 (1915).

Refund of excessive withdrawals. If approximation of value is shown to be grossly inflated, there is no justification for allowing the landowner to retain amounts previously withdrawn. City of Englewood v. Reffel, 34 Colo. App. 103, 522 P.2d 1241 (1974).

If courts refused to allow a refund when excessive amounts are withdrawn, the landowners would be unjustly enriched at the public's expense. City of Englewood v. Reffel, 34 Colo. App. 103, 522 P.2d 1241 (1974).

Order demanding landowner refund excess withdrawn not modification of judgment. Where a city in a second judgment succeeded in drastically reducing the amount of the landowners' award in an eminent domain proceeding, but the landowners had under the first judgment, and in accordance with subsection (6) (b), withdrawn a significant excess over the final award, an order of the court demanding a refund was not a modification of the judgment, but was an attempt to give effect to the judgment. City of Englewood v. Reffel, 34 Colo. App. 103, 522 P.2d 1241 (1974).

IV. DAMAGES.

Commissioners fix compensation payable to interested parties. The commissioners shall fix the compensation to be paid, not only to the owners, but to all parties interested in the lands taken, as well as all damages accruing to such owners or parties interested in consequence of the condemnation of the same. Hutchinson v. McLaughlin, 15 Colo. 492, 25 P. 317 (1890); Swift v. Smith, 119 Colo. 126, 201 P.2d 609 (1948).

Commissioners to consider highest and best use. The commissioners are not to view the property in its present status only, but rather, the present market value is to be assessed in light of the highest and best use to which the property can reasonably be applied. City of Aurora v. Webb, 41 Colo. App. 11, 585 P.2d 288 (1978).

Probability of upward rezoning. If a probability of upward rezoning exists, the commissioners may take evidence, under the comparable sales method of valuation, of sales of other property which has benefited by the more advantageous zoning status. City of Aurora v. Webb, 41 Colo. App. 11, 585 P.2d 288 (1978).

This state follows version of undivided basis rule. Where a lessor holds a fee simple subject to an encumbrance, such as a lease, this state follows the rule that the property must be valued on an undivided basis, but with some distinctions from the strict undivided fee rule. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Under undivided basis rule, parties have opportunity to agree on apportionment of award, thereby avoiding completely the difficult task of ascertaining the value of the separate interests. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Once the reasonable market value of property in an eminent domain proceeding has been established, the apportionment of that amount among claimants is of no concern to the condemnor. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Town of Silverthorne, 707 P.2d 1017 (Colo. App. 1985), cert. dismissed, 736 P.2d 411 (Colo. 1987).

Undivided basis rule has effect of curbing excessive awards in that it simplifies and narrows the issues in the proceeding in which the condemnor has an interest. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Encumbrance adding or subtracting from fair market value not ignored. The undivided basis rule, as applied in Colorado and, as distinguished from the undivided fee rule adopted in some states, does not ignore the value which an encumbrance may add to or subtract from the fair market value of the property as a whole. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Contract rental adding to value relevant. The undivided basis rule contemplates that where a contract rental adds to the fair market value of the property, evidence of that rental is relevant in determining the compensation to be paid. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

If contract rental less than fair rent, latter relevant. Under the undivided basis rule, where a contract rental is less than the fair rental, the fair rental and not the contract rental is the relevant evidence on the issue of compensation. This assures a fair return for the property valued as a whole. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Condemnor need not pay for interest which was not lost by condemnees under the undivided basis rule. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Lessee's compensable rights in leasehold unaffected by lessor's settlement. Where lessee has compensable rights in leasehold, these rights are not affected by lessor's settlement with the condemnor. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Where lessee is party in interest, its compensation is affected by amount which condemnors must pay for entire property taken, and although it may have waived its right to present its own evidence of value, it did not waive its right to insist that the award be based on competent evidence and to cross-examine its source. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Stipulation not proper basis for award. Where a lessee, a party in interest, was not a party to a stipulation between the condemnors and the lessor, and objected to admissibility of the stipulation and asserted its right to cross-examine the appraisers, the stipulation is not a proper basis for the award. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

When interest on award accrues. Where the authorization to take possession of property is contingent on a deposit, the date of possession for purposes of entitlement to interest on the award is the date of deposit. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978).

Procedure for determining the total value of the property. In a valuation hearing, the commission and the court properly refused to consider evidence of chain of title to the condemned street. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Town of Silverthorne, 707 P.2d 1017 (Colo. App. 1985), cert. dismissed, 736 P.2d 411 (Colo. 1987).

38-1-106. Jury. The owner of the property involved in any proceeding brought under the provisions of this article, before the appointment of commissioners, as provided in section 38-1-105, and before the expiration of the time for the defendant to appear and answer, may demand a jury of freeholders residing in the county in which the petition is filed to determine the compensation to be allowed in the manner provided in this article. Such demand may be made in the pleadings or by a separate writing filed with the clerk. Such jury shall consist of six persons, unless a larger number is demanded by any party to the proceeding. In no case shall the number of jurors exceed twelve. Any party so demanding a larger number than six jurors shall advance the fees for such additional jurors for one day's service according to the rate allowed jurors in the district court.

ANNOTATION

Section complies with constitution. This section complies with § 15 of art. II, Colo. Const., in providing for a board of commissioners or a jury to ascertain the compensation for taking private property against the owner's consent. Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883).

Privilege of jury trial is unconditional; when demanded in proper time, it must be allowed. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

Disposition of preliminary matters before jury called required. All preliminary matters are, in a regular and orderly course, to be disposed of before a jury is called to assess damages; for, unless the right to condemn be first established, there will be no damage, hence no occasion for a jury, and the jury comes for that single purpose, and for no other. Kaschke v. Camfield, 46 Colo. 60, 102 P. 1061 (1909); Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

Where a jury is demanded and impaneled to try the question of damages caused by taking land for a right-of-way for a ditch, the question of the necessity for taking the land cannot be tried before the jury. Thompson v. De Weese-Dye Ditch & Reservoir Co., 25 Colo. 243, 53 P. 507 (1898).

Right to demand jury of freeholders afforded in inverse condemnation. This section provides that a landowner may demand a jury of freeholders to determine the damages or compensation to be awarded in an eminent domain proceeding. The same right should likewise be afforded a landowner seeking redress, after the fact, in an inverse condemnation action. Ossman

v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974).

Inverse condemnation and common-law claim not litigated in same suit. The requirement of a jury of freeholders in an inverse condemnation action and the lack of such a requirement in an ordinary civil action leads to the conclusion that an inverse condemnation claim cannot be litigated in the same lawsuit with a common-law claim. Ossman v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974).

Challenge for cause should be sustained to juror who is not freeholder. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Ogden, 638 P.2d 832 (Colo. App. 1981).

Retrial required where jury not made up of freeholders. Where, although the owner of property involved in a condemnation proceeding requested merely a "jury of six" and the trial court attempted to qualify the jury as freeholders, a juror did not hear the question and thus was not discovered that he was not a freeholder, there is no waiver of a jury made up of freeholders. The case must be retried before a properly constituted jury. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Ogden, 638 P.2d 832 (Colo. App. 1981).

Defendant is not entitled to have his damages assessed twice in an eminent domain proceeding, first by a commission, and then by a jury; a jury trial is allowed in lieu of an assessment of damages by a commission. Snider v. Town of Platteville, 75 Colo. 589, 227 P. 548 (1924); Trippe v. Overacker, 7 Colo. 72, 1 P. 695 (1883).

Verdict of jury is a special verdict in a special statutory proceeding under this section since the jury is concerned only with determining the amount of compensation to be paid the owners of property taken. City of Aurora v. Powell, 153 Colo. 4, 383 P.2d 798 (1963).

Striking answer no justification for reversible error. Striking out an answer in condemnation proceedings by the trial court is not an error that would justify reversal. Whitehead v. City of Denver, 13 Colo. App. 134, 56 P. 913 (1899).

Under this section, unlike C.R.C.P. 38, no fees need be advanced at time of jury demand. It is only if more than six jurors are requested that any fees must be advanced, and then the only fees required are those for the number of jurors beyond the initial six. Town of

Red Cliff v. Reider, 851 P.2d 282 (Colo. App. 1993).

Although landowners waived their right to a jury of twelve by not tendering fees at the time of their jury demand, they did not thereby waive their statutory right to a trial by a six-person jury. Town of Red Cliff v. Reider, 851 P.2d 282 (Colo. App. 1993).

Applied in Southwestern Land Co. v. Hickory Jackson Ditch Co., 18 Colo. 489, 33 P. 275 (1893); Siedler v. Seely, 8 Colo. App. 499, 46 P. 848 (1896); Union P.R.R. v. Colo. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 30 Colo. 133, 69 P. 564 (1902); Broadmoor Land Co. v. Curr, 142 F. 421 (8th Cir. 1905).

38-1-107. Inspection of premises - expenses - verdict. (1) When the jury has been selected and the jurors have taken an oath faithfully and impartially to discharge their duties, the court, at the request of any party to the proceeding and in the discretion of the court, may order that the jury go upon the premises sought to be taken or damaged, in charge of a sworn bailiff, and examine the premises in person. Such order shall require the party making such request to advance a sum, to be fixed by the court in such order, sufficient in the opinion of the court to defray the necessary expenses of such examination. In default of such party forthwith advancing such sum, such order shall be held for naught upon such trial before a jury. The court shall preside in the same manner and with like powers as in other cases. Evidence shall be admitted or rejected by the court according to the rules of law. At the conclusion of the evidence, the matters in controversy may be argued by counsel to the jury. At the conclusion of the arguments, the court shall instruct the jury in writing. The jury shall retire for deliberation, in charge of a sworn officer, and when they have agreed upon a verdict the same shall be returned into court.

(2) If the jury fails to agree, it may be discharged by the court. Thereupon another jury shall be summoned as soon as practicable, in the same manner as before, and like proceedings be had with such jury or successive juries, until a verdict is had. Any party feeling aggrieved by such verdict may move before such court for a new trial in the same manner and for the same causes as in actions at law. The refusal of such court to grant a new trial may be excepted to and assigned for appeal.

ANNOTATION

Person, other than bailiff accompanying jury's view, constitutes error. Where a view of the proposed right-of-way by the jury was directed by the court, it is error to appoint guides to aid the jury in their view because no person other than the sworn bailiff in charge of the jury is allowed to accompany the jury on their view of the premises. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

Purpose of deposit. The deposit under subsection (1) is required for the sole purpose of making secure the award of compensation to be made for the taking of the land. Teller v. Sievers, 20 Colo. App. 109, 77 P. 261 (1904); Denver &

Requiring jury's return of special findings within trial court's discretion. Whether or not a jury shall be required to return special findings in a condemnation proceeding rests in the discretion of the trial court and, unless that discretion has been abused to the prejudice of the party requesting such findings, the action of the trial court in refusing to require such findings will not be disturbed. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

38-1-108. Order of possession. The court, upon such verdict, shall proceed to adjudge and make such order as to right and justice shall pertain, ordering that the petitioner enter upon such property and the use of the same, upon payment of full compensation as ascertained. Such order with evidence of such payment shall constitute complete justification of the taking of such property.

ANNOTATION

Judgment construed. A judgment is the sentence of the law pronounced by a court of competent jurisdiction as the result of proceedings instituted, and it is a judicial act; to be valid it must be pronounced by the court at a time and place appointed by law, and in the form the court requires. City of Aurora v. Powell, 153 Colo. 4, 383 P.2d 798 (1963).

Jury's findings do not constitute judgment. The findings of a jury as to compensation in a condemnation proceeding do not constitute a judgment, the verdict not being a judicial determination but a finding of fact which the court may accept, reject, or utilize in formulating a judgment. City of Aurora v. Powell, 153 Colo. 4, 383 P.2d 798 (1963).

Findings of court do not constitute judgment, and a statement that a judgment was rendered cannot supply the place of the judgment itself. City of Aurora v. Powell, 153 Colo. 4, 383 P.2d 798 (1963).

Verdict itself is not judicial determination of fact, and it is without virtue until judgment has been rendered upon it. City of Aurora v. Powell, 153 Colo. 4, 383 P.2d 798 (1963).

Property disposition in trial court's discretion. The trial court has a discretion in deter-

Refusal of taxation of costs. The trial courts possess discretionary power to refuse a taxation in respondent's favor of costs contumaciously or unreasonably incurred. Dolores No. 2 Land & Canal Co. v. Hartman, 17 Colo. 138, 29 P. 378 (1892).

Court lacks authority to require deposit. The court has no authority to require the petitioner in a condemnation proceeding to deposit a sum to be applied on costs accrued or to accrue. Teller v. Sievers, 20 Colo. App. 109, 77 P. 261 (1904); Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681 (1915).

Order for temporary possession is interlocutory. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958).

Review must be by original proceedings. Because an order for temporary possession in a condemnation proceeding is interlocutory, any review must be by an original proceeding. Larson v. Chase Pipe Line Co., 183 Colo. 76, 514 P.2d 1316 (1973).

Relief from interlocutory order by certiorari. The proper proceeding for relief from an interlocutory order in eminent domain actions is by certiorari when directed to an endangered fundamentally substantive and substantial right. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958).

Writ of error is improper procedure to review an interlocutory order of a district court granting immediate possession in eminent domain. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958).

38-1-109. Intervention - cross petition. Any person not made a party to such proceeding may become such by filing a cross petition at any time before the hearing, setting forth that he is an owner or has an interest in the property sought to be taken or damaged by the petitioner and stating the character and extent of such interest. The rights of such person shall thereupon be fully considered and determined. Except for such cross petition, there shall be no written pleadings on the part of any party to the proceeding, but, at the hearing provided for in section 38-1-105, the court shall hear and dispose of all objections that may be raised touching the legal sufficiency of the petition or cross petition or the regularity of the proceedings in any other respect. In case any person or corporation at any time or in any manner succeeds to the right of any party in the subject matter of the proceeding, such proceeding shall not abate thereby, but such person or corporation, upon motion and upon proof of the fact of such succession, shall be substituted for such party as a party to the proceeding.

ANNOTATION

Cross petition may encompass lands not included in petition. The language of this section is broad enough to permit the defendant to file a cross petition where he has other lands that will be affected by the condemnation proceedings, which are not included in the petition. Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Griffith, 17 Colo. 598, 31 P. 171 (1892).

Party allowed to defend title to preserve voluntary agreement with condemnor. Intervention has been refused in eminent domain proceedings only where the intervenor has no interest in the property. Nothing in this section precludes a party from defending its title from condemnation in order to preserve its rights under a voluntary agreement with the condemnor. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Anderson, 34 Colo. App. 37, 525 P.2d 478 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 337, 534 P.2d 1201 (1975).

Disregarding intervention rights constitutes error. The rights of a minor in real estate may be condemned; and, when a petition in intervention is filed in a condemnation proceeding setting forth such rights, it is error to disregard the same. Hutchinson v. McLaughlin, 15 Colo. 492, 25 P. 317 (1890).

Intervenor has right to appeal final judgment adversely affecting it once intervention has been properly granted. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Anderson, 34 Colo. App. 37, 525 P.2d 478 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 337, 534 P.2d 1201 (1975).

ANNOTATION

Principal object of condemnation proceedings is to ascertain the price which a petitioner must pay for the land which he desires to acquire, and, until that determination is made by a board or jury and the same has been approved by a court, it cannot be said that the rights of the parties have become fixed or determined. Town of Glendale v. City & County of Denver, 137 Colo. 188, 322 P.2d 1053 (1958); Burlington & C.R.R. v. Colo. E.R.R., 45 Colo. 222, 100 P. 607 (1909).

Supreme court cannot take original jurisdiction of condemnation proceedings. Denver & N.O.R.R. v. Lamborn, 9 Colo. 119, 10 P. 797 (1886).

This section discourages review of cause piecemeal. Burlington & C.R.R. v. Colo. E.R.R., 45 Colo. 222, 100 P. 607 (1909).

Review is allowed only upon final determination of proceedings. See Burlington & C.R.R. v. Colo. E.R.R., 45 Colo. 222, 100 P. 607 (1909).

A judgment which settles the rights of respective parties is a final judgment reviewable by the appellate court. Denver Power & Irrigation Co. v. Denver & R.G.R.R., 30 Colo. 204, 69 P. 568 (1902).

When commissioners filed with the clerk their certificate of ascertainment and assessment, and the court or judge denied the motion of petitioner or respondent, as the case may be, to vacate and set aside the same, there is such a final determination as entitles him to an appeal. Benninghoff v. Town of Palisade, 48 Colo. 64, 108 P. 983 (1910).

Interlocutory order not reviewable. The order of the trial court which determines that the petitioner has the power to condemn is not final, but merely interlocutory, from which an appeal, and to which a writ of error, do not lie. Burlington & C.R.R. v. Colo. & E.R.R., 45 Colo. 222, 100 P. 607 (1909); First Nat'l Bank v. Minnesota Mines, 109 Colo. 6, 121 P.2d 488, cert. denied,

Intervenor has right to appeal final judgment affecting it adversely once intervention has been properly granted. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Anderson, 34 Colo. App. 37, 525 P.2d 478 (1974), aff'd, 188 Colo. 337, 534 P.2d 1201 (1975).

Applied in Order of Friars Minor of Province of Most Holy Name v. Denver Urban Renewal Auth., 186 Colo. 367, 527 P.2d 804 (1974).

38-1-111. Possession pending appeal. In cases in which compensation is ascertained, if the owner of the property taken or affected prosecutes an appeal as provided by law and the Colorado appellate rules, the petitioner may pay into court or to the clerk thereof the amount of compensation ascertained and awarded for the use of the owner and shall thereupon be entitled to take possession and use the property taken or affected the same as if no such appeal had been taken. The money so deposited shall remain on deposit until such appeal has been heard and determined. If the owner elects to receive such money before the determination of said appeal, the appeal shall thereupon be dismissed so far as such owner is concerned. If the appeal is taken by the petitioner, the amount of compensation shall nevertheless be paid into court or to the clerk thereof for the use of the owner of the property condemned or affected before such petitioner has the right to take possession of and use said property so condemned or affected. Such compensation may be paid to such owner, at any time before the determination of such appeal, upon the execution and delivery of a good and sufficient bond by such owner with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by said court, in a sum double the amount of such compensation, conditioned that such owner will pay and refund to such petitioner all or such part of said sum as said owner may be required or adjudged to pay said petitioner, together with the cost of said appeal.

ANNOTATION

Order of additional deposit covering award proper during pending proceedings. Where the petitioner in condemnation proceedings desired to occupy and use the premises pending appellate proceedings, it is proper to order an additional deposit sufficient to cover the amount of the compensation ascertained and awarded. Otero Canal Co. v. Fosdick, 20 Colo. 522, 39 P. 332 (1895).

Use of security deposit in subsequent condemnation proceedings. The security deposit for possession, pending condemnation proceedings, cannot be used in a subsequent condemnation proceeding by the same petitioner and for a portion of the same premises where the damages suffered by respondent through the first proceeding have not been determined and paid. Denver & N.O.R.R. v. Lamborn, 9 Colo. 119, 10 P. 797 (1886).

Dismissal of an appeal by a condemnee who requested a release of funds from the court registry that inadvertently included the $100 nominal damage award being contested and who submitted a copy of a check made payable to the court registry in the amount of $100 would simply advance form over substance and would frustrate rather than promote the function of courts, which is to adjudicate fully the issues presented by the parties. Colo. Mountain Prop. v. Heineman, 860 P.2d 1388 (Colo. App. 1993).

Statute does not bar appeal without exception when a property owner elects to receive the benefit of a judgment before the determination of an appeal. Property owners may appeal the nature of the title obtained by a water and sanitation district that condemned the property, even though the property owners withdrew the bond that the district deposited with the clerk of court. Steamboat Lake Water & Sanit. v. Halvorson, 252 P.3d 497 (Colo. App. 2011).

38-1-112. Payment to clerk or owner. Payment of compensation adjudged may in all cases be made to the court or the clerk thereof, who shall on demand pay the same to the party entitled thereto, taking receipt therefor. Payment may be made to the party entitled thereto or to his conservator or guardian.

ANNOTATION

Claimant's rights unaffected by change in form of res. When the condemnor pays the amount of the award for the condemned property into the registry of the court, the change of the form of the res from property to money does not affect the relative rights of the owner and other claimants in the res. Southworth v. Dept. of Hwys., 176 Colo. 82, 489 P.2d 204 (1971).

Payment of award into court discharges further tax obligation. Where the state highway department paid into court the amount of an award in condemnation proceedings, it discharged its obligation and was relieved of further responsibility for an unpaid city tax lien assessed for the creation of a local public improvement district. Southworth v. Dept. of Hwys., 176 Colo. 82, 489 P.2d 204 (1971).

Formula for computing compensation - definitions. (1) Except for the provisions of subsection (2) of this section that shall apply to acquisitions for highways and transportation projects undertaken by the regional transportation district created by article 9 of title 32, C.R.S., the right to compensation and the amount thereof, including damages and benefits, if any, shall be determined initially as of the date the petitioner is authorized by agreement, stipulation, or court order to take possession or the date of trial or hearing to assess compensation, whichever is earlier, but any amount of compensation determined initially shall remain subject to adjustment for one year after the date of the initial determination to provide for additional damages or benefits not reasonably foreseeable at the time of the initial determination. In estimating the value of all property actually taken, the true and actual value at such time shall be allowed and awarded. No deduction therefrom shall be allowed for any benefit to the residue of said property. In estimating damages occasioned to other portions of the claimant's property or any part thereof other than that actually taken, the value of the benefits, if any, may be deducted therefrom. In all cases the owner shall receive the full and actual value of all property actually taken. In case the benefit to the property not actually taken exceeds the damages sustained by the owner to the property not actually taken, the owner shall not be required to pay or allow credit for such excess.

(2) (a) For acquisitions for highways and transportation projects undertaken by the regional transportation district created by article 9 of title 32, C.R.S., the right to compensation and the amount thereof, including damages and benefits, if any, shall be determined as of the date the petitioner is authorized by agreement, stipulation, or court order to take possession or the date of trial or hearing to assess compensation, whichever is earlier, but any amount of compensation determined initially shall remain subject to adjustment for one year after the date of the initial determination to provide for additional damages or benefits not reasonably foreseeable at the time of the initial determination.

(b) If an entire tract or parcel of property is condemned, the amount of compensation to be awarded is the reasonable market value of the said property on the date of valuation.

(c) If only a portion of a tract or parcel of land is taken, the damages and special benefits, if any, to the residue of said property shall be determined. When determining damages and special benefits, the appraiser shall take into account a proper discount when the damages and special benefits are forecast beyond one year from the date of appraisal.

(d) In determining the amount of compensation to be paid for such a partial taking, the compensation for the property taken and damages to the residue of said property shall be reduced by the amount of any special benefits which result from the improvement or project, but not to exceed fifty percent of the total amount of compensation to be paid for the property actually taken.

(3) For purposes of this section, "transportation" shall have the same meaning as set forth in section 43-1-102 (6), C.R.S.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "Some Problems of Severance Damage", see 29 Dicta 327 (1952). For article, "Inverse Condemnation — A Viable Alternative", see 51 Den. L. J. 529 (1974). For article, "Status of Landowners Property Slated for Condemnation", see 14 Colo. Law. 1191 (1985).

Right of just compensation guarded. Section 15 of art. II, Colo. Const., guarantees just compensation to the owner when property is taken without his consent, and this right is jealously guarded. Lamborn v. Bell, 18 Colo. 346, 32 P. 989, 20 L.R.A. 241 (1893).

Subsection (2)(d) does not violate art. II, § 15, of the Colorado Constitution, which requires that landowners receive just compensation for property taken or damaged. When an award of compensation for property taken is reduced by the amount of special benefits pursuant to subsection (2)(d), the value of the payment received plus the value of the land still possessed by the landowner after the taking, enhanced by the special benefits, is equivalent to the value of the landowners property prior to the taking. Therefore, the landowner receives just compensation. E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. Revenig, 91 P.3d 1038 (Colo. 2004).

General compensation rules not strictly applied if result fundamentally unfair. The general rule that compensation is to be determined as of the date of the order of possession cannot be applied strictly if the result would be fundamentally unfair. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Delaney, 41 Colo. App. 548, 592 P.2d 1338 (1978) (decided prior to 1979 amendment).

State has duty to assure just compensation. It is the duty of the state, in the conduct of an inquest by which the compensation is ascertained, to see that it is just, not merely to the individual whose property is taken, but to the public which is to pay for it. Williams v. City & County of Denver, 147 Colo. 195, 363 P.2d 171 (1961).

Condemnation award is made in gross as a general rule. Vivian v. Bd. of Trustees, 152 Colo. 556, 383 P.2d 801 (1963).

Claimants litigate right to assessed damages among themselves. When the damages are assessed for the taking of the property, it should be paid into court and the claimants can litigate the right thereto among themselves. Denver Power & Irrigation Co. v. Denver & R.G.R.R., 30 Colo. 204, 69 P. 568 (1902); Vivian v. Bd. of Trustees, 152 Colo. 556, 383 P.2d 801 (1963).

Landowner has burden to show property value and damages. In a proceeding to condemn property for public use, the burden is upon the landowner to show the value of the property or interest therein actually taken, as well as the damages, if any, to the residue of such property. Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889).

Petitioner has burden to show benefits, if any, as well as the burden of showing the necessity of the taking, where such matters are litigated. Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889).

Requirement to accept device to lessen damage prohibited. A landowner cannot be required to accept a structure or device of the petitioner, intended to lessen such damage, and which is no part of the improvement for which his land is taken. Von Richtofen v. Bijou Irrigation Dist., 52 Colo. 527, 125 P. 495 (1912).

Invalidity of award must be shown by anyone asserting it by clear and satisfactory evidence. Pub. Serv. Co. v. City of Loveland, 79 Colo. 216, 245 P. 493 (1926).

Value of land taken in condemnation proceeding should be determined as of date of city's possession and not as of the date of valuation hearing if condemnee did not seek damages to the remainder and had accepted a stipulated monetary amount upon condemnation. Therefore, condemnee was only entitled to the difference between the payment accepted and the fair market value of land at time of possession plus interest on the difference from the date of possession. City of Glendale v. Rose, 679 P.2d 1096 (Colo. App. 1983) (action commenced prior to 1979 amendment).

If the property is sought to be condemned under this procedure and if the court authorizes the condemning authority to take possession of the property prior to the valuation hearing, the ultimate award of compensation, based on the property, shall be determined as of the date the petitioner is authorized by the court to take possession. If, however, the condemning authority has not taken possession of the property prior to the valuation hearing, then the valuation date is the date of trial or hearing to assess compensation. Fowler Irrevocable Trust 1992-1 v. City of Boulder, 992 P.2d 1188 (Colo. App. 1999), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 17 P.3d 797 (Colo. 2001).

Where the state takes possession prior to entering into a contract or receiving a court order, fair market value must be determined as of the date of possession. The Mill v. State Dept. of Health, 868 P.2d 1099 (Colo. App. 1993).

The plain language of the statute allows for the determination of true and actual value as of the date of possession. Where mining waste existed on the property as of the date the city took possession but was not discovered until after the city took possession, this section does not preclude the introduction of that information. City of Black Hawk v. Ficke, 215 P.3d 1129 (Colo. App. 2008).

Applied in Twin Lakes Hydraulic Gold Mining Syndicate v. Colo. M. Ry., 16 Colo. 1, 27 P. 258 (1890); San Luis Land, Canal & Imp. Co. v. Kenilworth Canal Co., 3 Colo. App. 244, 32 P. 860 (1893); Lithgow v. Pearson, 25 Colo. App.

70, 135 P. 759 (1913); Pine Martin Mining Co. v. Empire Zinc Co., 90 Colo. 529, 11 P.2d 221 (1932); Fishel v. City & County of Denver, 106 Colo. 576, 108 P.2d 236 (1940); Rullo v. Pub. Serv. Co., 163 Colo. 99, 428 P.2d 708 (1967); Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Marshall Mfg. Co., 35 Colo. App. 227, 532 P.2d 746 (1975); Hayden v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 41 Colo. App. 102, 580 P.2d 830 (1978).

II. DAMAGES FOR PROPERTY ACTUALLY TAKEN.

A. In General.

Witnesses qualified to testify on property value. A witness may be sufficiently qualified to testify if he is a resident, landowner or farmer in the neighborhood, and is familiar with the value of the property. Bd. of Dirs. v. Calvaresi, 156 Colo. 173, 397 P.2d 877 (1964).

Owner may testify as to his own estimate of value of his land. Bd. of Dirs. v. Calvaresi, 156 Colo. 173, 397 P.2d 877 (1964).

Jury not required to accept owner's conclusions. Where the trial court allowed the owner to testify on his theory of value and past operations, the jury was certainly entitled to weigh the past history against the glowing future predicted, but was not required to accept the owner's conclusions. Ruth v. Dept. of Hwys., 145 Colo. 546, 359 P.2d 1033 (1961).

Rejection of owner's estimate of value harmless error. The rejection of evidence, that defendant had stated, after the improvement was constructed, that he would not take $10,000 for his place, held, in view of testimony given by other witnesses for plaintiff, if error, to be harmless. Wiley Drainage Dist. v. Semmens, 80 Colo. 365, 250 P. 527 (1926).

Laying foundation for expert's cross-examination on property appraisals. Sufficient foundation for cross-examination of an expert as to appraisals of other property which he has made in the area is laid where it is shown: (1) That the appraisal is of a piece of property that he has determined to be comparable or involves similar property in the neighborhood of the condemned property; and (2) that the appraisal is not too remote in time. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. H.A. Nottingham & Sons, 36 Colo. App. 265, 540 P.2d 1126 (1975).

One of the few means a condemnee has to question the credibility of the condemnor's expert witness, other than by contradictory testimony by other witnesses, is to show that the expert has made other inconsistent appraisals of the comparable or of similar neighboring land at a time which is not too remote to provide a reasonable comparison. This line of cross-examination, while ostensibly used for the purpose of testing the witness's credibility, serves, in essence, to elicit additional affirmative evidence of the value of the comparable, and as such, it is relevant for purposes of determining the true value of the land used as a comparison. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. H.A. Nottingham & Sons, 36 Colo. App. 265, 540 P.2d 1126 (1975).

B. Measure of Compensation Allowed.

Compensation allowable is the difference in value of the property before and after the taking is complete. Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Griffith, 17 Colo. 598, 31 P. 171 (1892).

The compensation allowable is the price the property will sell for where there is a demand. Denver N.W. & P. Ry. v. Howe, 49 Colo. 256, 112 P. 779 (1910).

Elements of damages to condemned property such as the cost of restoration of property, estimate of replacement value, and related items are admissible only if they would have a bearing on and influence opinion as to value. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963).

Factors considered in determining proper measure of owner's recovery include: (1) Compensation for the land or property actually taken equal to the true and actual value thereof at the time of the appraisalment; and (2) damages to the residue of the land or property not taken, equal to the actual diminution of its market value, if any, for any use to which the same may reasonably be put. City of Denver v. Bayer, 7 Colo. 113, 2 P. 6 (1883); Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889); Colo. M. Ry. v. Brown, 15 Colo. 193, 25 P. 87 (1890).

In arriving at the present value of the property taken and the damages, if any, to the residue, the jury has a right to consider its present condition, improvements, surroundings, and capabilities, and the present use of the land and any reasonable use in the future to which it may be adapted or to which it might be put. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Noble, 117 Colo. 77, 184 P.2d 142 (1947); Ruth v. Dept. of Hwys., 145 Colo. 546, 359 P.2d 1033 (1961); Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968).

Market value of land. In determining the value of the land taken, the jury is to be governed by the land's market value at the time of the trial. Mulford v. Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 62 Colo. 167, 161 P. 301 (1916); Vivian v. Bd. of Trustees, 152 Colo. 556, 383 P.2d 801 (1963).

Market value is the price which property will bring when offered for sale by one who desires but is not obliged to sell it, and is bought by one who desires it but is under no necessity to buy the property. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Noble, 117 Colo. 77, 184 P.2d 142 (1947); Vivian v. Bd. of Trustees, 152 Colo. 556, 383 P.2d 801 (1963); Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968).

Just compensation excludes factors relating to public acquisition. Under the test of market value, just compensation cannot include any increment arising from the very fact of acquisition of the subject property because, if the land sold in the open market under ordinary and usual circumstances, factors relating to public acquisition would have to be excluded from consideration. Williams v. City & County of Denver, 147 Colo. 195, 363 P.2d 171 (1961).

Just compensation is determined as of the date the petitioner is authorized by agreement, stipulation, or court order to take possession of the subject property and cannot include any increment arising from the very fact of acquisition or the intended use of the property. Wall v. City of Aurora, 172 P.3d 934 (Colo. App. 2007).

Amount of liens cannot be added to award. The award of the commission or the jury must reflect only the fair market value of the property taken and there cannot be added to the award as part of the fair market value the amount of liens which exist against the property. Dept. of Hwys. v. Kelley, 151 Colo. 517, 379 P.2d 386 (1963).

Price paid for similar property in voluntary sale admissible evidence. Evidence of the price paid for similar property in a voluntary sale is admissible on the question of value of the property condemned, provided the properties sold are similar in locality and character to the property in question and not so far removed in point of time to make a comparison unjust or impossible. Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968); Western Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973); Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Evergreen, Inc., 35 Colo. App. 171, 532 P.2d 777 (1974); Loloff v. Sterling, 31 Colo. 102, 71 P. 1113 (1903); Herring v. Platte River Power Authority, 728 P.2d 709 (Colo. 1986).

Determination of property similarities rests in trial court's discretion. Whether condemned property and property voluntarily sold are sufficiently similar so that sale price would be aid to the jury in fixing the value of the property condemned rests largely in the sound discretion of the trial court which will not be interfered with unless abused. Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968); W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973); Herring v. Platte River Power Authority, 728 P.2d 709 (Colo. 1986).

Evidence of value of individual lots in subdivision admissible. Where process of subdivision, platting, recording, and development had progressed to point where individual lots were available as separate units for sale, such land would have a higher market value than land which is merely currently suitable for sale as one tract to a single person who would in turn subdivide or develop the land for sale to others.

Therefore, although the question for the jury is the fair market value of the tract as a whole, evidence as to the individual lot values would be both pertinent and necessary to a consideration of the highest and best use of the land. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Evergreen, Inc., 35 Colo. App. 171, 532 P.2d 777 (1974).

When evidence of enhancement resulting from acquisition admissible. Although evidence relating to enhancement in value as a result of the acquisition of the subjected property is generally inadmissible, there are exceptional situations where the courts will admit evidence of enhancement resulting from an acquisition and they include cases where the location of the proposed project is indefinite or where there is a supplemental taking. Williams v. City & County of Denver, 147 Colo. 195, 363 P.2d 171 (1961); City & County of Denver v. Smith, 152 Colo. 227, 381 P.2d 269 (1963).

Speculative or prospective values are not admissible in arriving at the fair market value of the property. Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968); Ruth v. Dept. of Hwys., 145 Colo. 546, 359 P.2d 1033 (1961).

Fair compensation does not include speculative values either lowering or raising the compensation to be paid. Williams v. City & County of Denver, 147 Colo. 195, 363 P.2d 171 (1961).

Under some circumstances, evidence of a probable change in zoning may be admitted where such change is unrelated to the acquisition of the subject property, and where the change in zoning results from the taking of the subject property, it is not admissible. Williams v. City & County of Denver, 147 Colo. 195, 363 P.2d 171 (1961).

Expert testimony as to value based on mere speculation is not competent. An expert opinion that relies upon an estimate of construction costs that the undisputed evidence demonstrated was not only unreliable, but was mere speculation is not legally competent evidence under C.R.E. 703. Farrar v. Total Petroleum, Inc., 799 P.2d 463 (Colo. App. 1990).

Uses available for adaptation of property considered. The use to which the property taken is subjected may be taken into consideration in determining the proper measure of damages recoverable by the owner of property. City of Denver v. Bayer, 7 Colo. 113, 2 P. 6 (1883); Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889); Colo. M. Ry. v. Brown, 15 Colo. 193, 25 P. 87 (1890).

The most profitable and advantageous use to which the property taken is adapted is the basis upon which fair compensation should be determined. Union Exploration Co. v. Moffat Tunnel Imp. Dist., 104 Colo. 109, 89 P.2d 257 (1939).

If land is so situated that it is actually available for building purposes, its value for such purposes may be considered, even if it is used as a farm or is covered with brush and boulders.

Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968).

It is improper, however, for the jury to consider an undeveloped tract of land as though a subdivision thereon is an accomplished fact, and such undeveloped property may not be valued on a per lot basis, the cost factor clearly being too speculative. Dept. of Hwys. v. Schulhoff, 167 Colo. 72, 445 P.2d 402 (1968).

The value of lands taken is to be estimated not merely with reference to the use to which it is at the time applied, but with reference to uses to which it is plainly adapted; thus, the owner of lands having thereon an excavation for an irrigating ditch, never used for the purpose and long since abandoned by the person who made it, is entitled to the market value of the land, taking into account that this excavation is to be considered with reference to the purpose for which it is suited. Roberts v. Scurvin Ditch Co., 22 Colo. App. 120, 125 P. 552 (1912).

Special value for particular uses is to be considered in the assessment. Denver N.W. & P. Ry. v. Howe, 49 Colo. 256, 112 P. 779 (1910).

Contract rental adding to value relevant evidence. The undivided basis rule contemplates that where a contract rental adds to the fair market value of the property, evidence of that rental is relevant in determining the compensation to be paid. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Fair rental is relevant evidence if contract rental less than fair rental. Under the undivided basis rule, where a contract rental is less than the fair rental, the fair rental and not the contract rental is the relevant evidence on the issue of compensation. This assures a fair return for the property valued as a whole. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Rental value of land considered. The rental value of land is an element for the purpose of determining present market value. Vivian v. Bd. of Trustees, 152 Colo. 556, 383 P.2d 801 (1963).

Rental of lands while in possession of petitioner is not allowable without evidence of rental value. Mulford v. Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 62 Colo. 167, 161 P. 301 (1916).

Undivided basis rule. Where a lessor holds a fee simple subject to an encumbrance, such as a lease, the property must be valued on an undivided basis, but with some distinctions from the strict undivided fee rule. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Parties have opportunity to agree on apportionment of award under the undivided basis rule, thereby avoiding completely the difficult task of ascertaining the value of the separate interests. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Condemnor need not pay for interest not lost by condemnees under the undivided basis rule. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. City of Sterling, 185 Colo. 238, 523 P.2d 465 (1974).

Injury to business on condemned land not element of just compensation. Injury to a business conducted upon lands taken does not constitute an element of just compensation because the business itself is not being condemned and can be relocated elsewhere. City & County of Denver v. Hinsey, 177 Colo. 178, 493 P.2d 348 (1972).

Where income is derived from land itself, as in a farming or ranching operation, then an injury to a business conducted upon the lands may be considered in determining just compensation. City & County of Denver v. Hinsey, 177 Colo. 178, 493 P.2d 348 (1972).

It is well settled that when land occupied for business purposes is taken by eminent domain, the owner is entitled to compensation only for the value of the land and improvements but not for the value of any business conducted thereon. Since rental trailers located on condemned land are personal property and were not themselves condemned, the commission's refusal to consider income from them was correct. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. HAD Enterprises, Inc., 35 Colo. App. 162, 533 P.2d 45 (1974).

Property deemed waste not valueless. Property is not to be deemed worthless because the owner allows it to go to waste, or to be regarded as valueless because he is unable to put it to any use, because others may be able to use it, and make it subserve the necessities or conveniences of life, and its capability of being made thus available gives it a market value which can be readily estimated. Roberts v. Scurvin Ditch Co., 22 Colo. App. 120, 125 P. 552 (1912); Colo. M. Ry. v. Brown, 15 Colo. 193, 25 P. 87 (1890).

No interest is allowable on unliquidated claim for damages, in the absence of contract or of statute providing therefor. Union Exploration Co. v. Moffat Tunnel Imp. Dist., 104 Colo. 109, 89 P.2d 257 (1939).

When interest on award accrues. Where the authorization to take possession of property is contingent on a deposit, the date of possession for purposes of entitlement to interest on the award is the date of deposit. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978).

Exemplary damages not allowed in condemnation proceeding. Absent a provision for exemplary damages, such damages are not to be allowed in a special statutory proceeding for condemnation. Ossman v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974).

An inverse condemnation action is in the nature of a special statutory proceeding and is to be tried as if it were an eminent domain proceeding. Thus, the exemplary damages statute, which authorizes the award of exemplary damages in "all civil actions", is not applicable to an inverse condemnation action. Ossman v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 184 Colo. 360, 520 P.2d 738 (1974).

Landowner entitled to costs reasonably incurred. A landowner is entitled to be compensated for costs incurred by him in condemnation proceedings, provided such costs are reasonably incurred, on the theory that to require the landowner to pay such costs would reduce the just compensation for the taking. Dept. of Hwys. v. Kelley, 151 Colo. 517, 379 P.2d 386 (1963).

"Costs" means expenses necessarily incurred by reason of the litigation. Dept. of Hwys. v. Kelley, 151 Colo. 517, 379 P.2d 386 (1963).

Attorney fees are not included within meaning of "costs" and are not recoverable in eminent domain proceedings. Dept. of Hwys. v. Intermountain Term. Co., 164 Colo. 354, 435 P.2d 391 (1967).

Special improvement assessments against land taken are not "costs". Special improvement assessments against land taken by condemnation and paid by the landowner are not expenses necessarily incurred by reason thereof, and cannot be taxed as costs. Dept. of Hwys. v. Kelley, 151 Colo. 517, 379 P.2d 386 (1963).

All evidence relevant to the determination of the present market value of condemned property is admissible, including evidence of the most advantageous potential future use of the entire property, even if the condemned property would need to be dedicated as part of annexation and rezoning of the entire property in the future. Palizzi v. City of Brighton, 228 P.3d 957 (Colo. 2010).

Evidence of the value of the condemned portion as a part of the whole is admissible and should be evaluated by the fact finder when determining just compensation. Palizzi v. City of Brighton, 228 P.3d 957 (Colo. 2010).

III. DAMAGES TO RESIDUE OF PROPERTY.

Measure of damages to residue is diminution of market value. The measure of damages to the residue of property after an eminent domain taking is the diminution of the market value by reason of the taking. W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973).

Damages are awarded equal to the actual diminution of its market value, if any, for any use to which the same may reasonably be put. Roberts v. Scurvin Ditch Co., 22 Colo. App. 120, 125 P. 552 (1912); City of Denver v. Bayer, 7 Colo. 113, 2 P. 6 (1883); Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889); Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Griffith, 17 Colo. 598, 31 P. 171 (1892).

Damage to the residue after land taken is to be measured by the present difference between market value before and after taking, and includes all damages from the natural, necessary, and reasonable result of the taking. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963).

All damages, present and prospective, that are the natural, necessary, or reasonable result of the taking should be assessed, except such as may arise from negligent or unskillful construction. Mulford v. Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 62 Colo. 167, 161 P. 301 (1916); Denver City Irrigation & Water Co. v. Middaugh, 12 Colo. 434, 21 P. 565 (1889); Loloff v. Sterling, 31 Colo. 102, 71 P. 113 (1903); Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co. v. Cooper, 54 Colo. 402, 130 P. 1004 (1913); Moffat v. City & County of Denver, 57 Colo. 473, 143 P. 577 (1914).

Damage to residue includes all damages from the natural, necessary, and reasonable result of the taking. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963).

When a portion of a parcel of land is taken from a property owner in a condemnation proceeding, the landowner is entitled to recover all damages that are the natural, necessary, and reasonable result of the taking, as measured by the reduction in the market value of the remainder of the property. The property owner is entitled to present any relevant evidence concerning diminution of market value caused by the taking. If the evidence supports a finding that a diminution of market value has occurred, compensation must be awarded. La Plata Elec. Ass'n, Inc. v. Cummins, 728 P.2d 696 (Colo. 1986); Bement v. Empire Elec. Ass'n, Inc. 28 P.2d 706 (Colo. 1986); Herring v. Platte River Power Authority, 728 P.2d 709 (Colo. 1986).

Loss and inconvenience thereby occasioned may be considered in determining the proper measure of damages recoverable by an owner whose property has been taken. City of Denver v. Bayer, 7 Colo. 113, 2 P. 6 (1883); Colo. Cent. R.R. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229, 22 P. 605 (1889); Colo. M. Ry. v. Brown, 15 Colo. 193, 25 P. 87 (1890).

Loss of means of access to premises considered. Where the premises sought are used by the landowner as the means of access to the premises not taken, the injury occasioned by the taking will, in this respect, be special to him, and he is entitled to compensation therefor. Lavelle v. Town of Julesburg, 49 Colo. 290, 112 P. 774 (1910).

Although it would seem difficult to establish the true or market value of access rights since they are not a commodity dealt in on a buying and selling market, the right of ingress and egress to and from a person's property adds or detracts from the property value and it would seem that the true value of such rights could only be found in the difference between the value of the land and its use for any and all kinds of purposes before the disturbance or destruction of such rights, and the value of the land minus any access or disturbed or inconvenient access to the highway. Boxberger v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 126 Colo. 526, 251 P.2d 920 (1952).

Damage for loss beyond market value prohibited. The condemnor is not permitted to add an additional element of damage for loss of use beyond the market value. Vivian v. Bd. of Trustees, 152 Colo. 556, 383 P.2d 801 (1963).

Costs of restoration are not allowed as a test for determining damages to residue occasioned by a taking in condemnation cases. Western Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973).

Evidence of aesthetic damage and damage for loss of view, which would result from construction of power line, is admissible in assessing damages to remainder since unsightliness or loss of view did not affect any other owner or public in a general way but did specifically affect remainder. La Plata Elec. Ass'n, Inc. v. Cummins, 703 P.2d 592 (Colo. App. 1985), aff'd, 728 P.2d 696 (Colo. 1986).

Jury cannot consider general benefits. General benefits, which accrue to the residue of property after a condemnation by reason of the improvement, may not be considered by the jury in arriving at the market value of the residue after the taking. Mack v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 152 Colo. 300, 381 P.2d 987 (1963).

"Benefit". "Benefit", as used in eminent domain law, is not equivalent or interchangeable with "benefit" that arises out of special improvement. City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

"Benefit" that justifies a special assessment tax is not the same "benefit" that must be calculated and deducted from a landowner's recovery in an eminent domain proceeding. City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

General benefit cannot be set off against damages. General benefits that result to the owner in common with the public and other nearby owners cannot be set off against damages. W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973).

Special benefits that may be set off against damages are those benefits that accrue directly to the residue as a result of the construction of the improvement and that directly and particularly benefit that residue as opposed to benefiting the public generally. W. Slope Gas Co. v. Lake Eldora Corp., 32 Colo. App. 293, 512 P.2d 641 (1973); E-470 Pub. Highway Auth. v. 455 Co., 983 P.2d 149 (Colo. App. 1999), rev'd on other grounds, 3 P.3d 18 (Colo. 2000).

Special benefits may generally be set off against a condemnation award but cannot be set off where the remaining property is subject to an assessment for those same benefits. E-470 Pub. Highway Auth. v. 455 Co., 983 P.2d 149 (Colo. App. 1999), rev'd on other grounds, 3 P.3d 18 (Colo. 2000).

Trial court abused its discretion by granting landowners' motion in limine to exclude all evidence of special benefits accruing to the landowners' property as a result of the E-470 highway construction. The commissioners should have had the opportunity at trial to consider all parties' evidence of the special benefits accruing to the remaining property. Both the highway authority's and the landowners' appraisers agreed that construction of the E-470 conferred special benefits on the landowners' remaining property. By excluding this evidence of special benefits, the trial court effectively ensured that the landowners would recover in an amount greater than they suffered. E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. 455 Co., 3 P.3d 18 (Colo. 2000).

Whether the highway expansion fee is labeled as a "special fee" or a "special assessment", the mere existence of such fee is not, in and of itself, an adequate basis for excluding all evidence of special benefits for two reasons: (1) The fee is speculative; and (2) the fee does not charge for the same benefit as those the highway authority sought to introduce into evidence. E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. 455 Co., 3 P.3d 18 (Colo. 2000).

City's collection of special assessment tax not foreclosed. A city's failure to prove any benefit to the landowner's property in the section 38-1-101 proceeding does not foreclose the city from collecting a special assessment tax. The city is entitled to specially assess for the benefit accruing to the landowner's property by the construction of the special improvement.

City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

Record that included contradictory and conflicting evidence supported the trial court's determination that diminution, if any, of the value of condemnee's remaining property was de minimis even though condemnee testified that he was forced to sell his remaining lots low because the condemnation action could possibly result in a loss of privacy, an increased traffic flow, and an inability to construct a security gate at the entrance to the subdivision. Colo. Mountain Prop. v. Heineman, 860 P.2d 1388 (Colo. App. 1993).

Trial court's refusal to award damages based on the purportedly lower sales prices of condemnee's lots is consistent with rule that compensation in a condemnation action is measured either at the time the petitioner is authorized to take possession or at the date of the trial or hearing in which compensation is assessed, particularly where the trial court, within its discretion, found that condemnee failed to meet the burden of establishing that claimed loss. Colo. Mountain Prop. v. Heineman, 860 P.2d 1388 (Colo. App. 1993).

Trial court did not err in awarding nominal damages since the record supports its finding that there was not evidence presented of any additional cost of the roadway other than evidence of initial costs that were not associated with the subsequent grant of the access easement. Colo. Mountain Prop. v. Heineman, 860 P.2d 1388 (Colo. App. 1993).

No unjust enrichment where the record shows that the development costs in building roadway would have been incurred by condemnee regardless of whether condemnor pursued his rights in condemnation. Colo. Mountain Prop. v. Heineman, 860 P.2d 1388 (Colo. App. 1993).

38-1-115. Contents of report or verdict. (1) Except as provided in this section, the report of the commissioners or the verdict of the jury shall contain:

- (a) An accurate description of the land taken;
- (b) The value of the land or property actually taken;
- (c) The damages, if any, to the residue of such land or property; and
- (d) The amount and value of the benefit.

(2) No findings as to damages and benefits as provided in paragraphs (c) and (d) of subsection (1) of this section shall be required in cases involving the total taking of property, nor shall either or both of such findings be required in cases involving the partial taking of property unless evidence thereof has been received by the commissioners or jury.

(3) The report of the commissioners or the verdict of the jury may also contain such other findings or answers to interrogatories as the court in its discretion may require to establish the value of the property condemned on an undivided basis.

ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Requirement as to Description of the Land Taken.
- III. Requirement as to Value of Land Taken.
- IV. Requirement as to Amount and Value of Benefits to Residue.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

This section is mandatory. Denver N.W. & P. Ry. v. Howe, 49 Colo. 256, 112 P. 779 (1910); Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Stark, 16 Colo. 291, 26 P. 779 (1891); Otero Canal Co. v. Fosdick, 20 Colo. 522, 39 P. 332 (1895); Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

Section must be strictly construed. Pueblo v. Rudd, 5 Colo. 270 (1880); Rio Grande S. Ry. v. Knight, 1 Colo. App. 219, 28 P. 19 (1891).

Failure of verdict to include required contents deemed fatal. A failure to include in the verdict those things required by the section is fatal. Norris v. City of Pueblo, 12 Colo. App. 290, 55 P. 747 (1898).

Province of jury is to determine damages to be awarded the owner of the property taken. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901); Tegeler v. Schneider, 49 Colo. 574, 114 P. 288 (1911).

The question of the necessity for taking for municipal purposes is not for the jury. Warner v. Town of Gunnison, 2 Colo. App. 430, 31 P. 238 (1892).

Submission of questions not required properly refused. Any attempt to submit to the jury any questions, save those which it is required to report upon, is properly refused. Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901).

When directions requiring additional evidence not prejudicial. Where the report of the commissioners, based upon the evidence presented, was in compliance with this section, the directions of the trial court requiring more evidence, to the extent, were surplusage not affecting the substantial rights of the parties, therefore, not prejudicial. Dept. of Hwys. v. Intermountain Term. Co., 164 Colo. 354, 435 P.2d 391 (1967).

Respondent to show cash value of property. The burden rests upon the respondent to show by a preponderance of the evidence the present actual cash value of the property taken, as well as the damages, if any, resulting to the residue, but the burden of showing benefits, if any, accruing to the residue rests upon the petitioner. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Noble, 117 Colo. 77, 184 P.2d 142 (1947).

Petitioner to show benefits accruing to residue. The burden of showing benefits, if any, accruing to the residue rests upon the petitioner.

Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Noble, 117 Colo. 77, 184 P.2d 142 (1947).

When objection to report or verdict required. Any objection to the commissioners' report must be made when it is returned, before the commissioners are discharged. Evergreen Fire Prot. Dist. v. Huckleby, 626 P.2d 744 (Colo. App. 1981).

Objection to the form or substance of a verdict must be made at the time of its return, and before the discharge of the jury. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Farnan, 48 Colo. 414, 109 P. 861 (1910).

Applied in Searl v. Sch. Dist. No. 2, 133 U.S. 553, 10 S. Ct. 374, 33 L. Ed. 740 (1890); Pub. Serv. Co. v. City of Loveland, 79 Colo. 216, 245 P. 493 (1926); Wiley Drainage Dist. v. Semmens, 80 Colo. 365, 250 P. 527 (1926).

II. REQUIREMENT AS TO DESCRIPTION OF THE LAND TAKEN.

Description as land "tinted pink" on map insufficient. It is not a sufficient description to merely refer to the land as the land described in the petition, nor as the land "tinted pink" on the map. Norris v. City of Pueblo, 12 Colo. App. 290, 55 P. 747 (1898).

III. REQUIREMENT AS TO VALUE OF LAND TAKEN.

Verdict must state value of property taken for conformity. The verdict does not conform to the requirements of subsection (1) (b), where it does not state the value of the property actually taken. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

Stating gross amount in verdict as value deemed noncompliance. Stating a gross amount as the value of the property taken to cover right-of-way and enlargement for a certain distance, certainly is not a compliance with subsection (1) (b), and neither can the other amounts assessed as damages to cover certain work and improvements be regarded as an ascertainment of the value of the property taken. Sand Creek Lateral Irrigation Co. v. Davis, 17 Colo. 326, 29 P. 742 (1892).

IV. REQUIREMENT AS TO AMOUNT AND VALUE OF BENEFITS TO RESIDUE.

Verdict must show consideration and determination of benefits question. The verdict must affirmatively show that the question of benefits was considered and determined; otherwise it was insufficient and must be vacated. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Farnan, 48 Colo. 414, 109 P. 861 (1910).

Where the verdict as to this matter was as follows: "That the amount and value of the benefits received by the defendants due to the construction of this ditch, is _____ dollars", the question of the benefits was considered and passed upon, and benefits were nothing. Fort Lyon Canal Co. v. Farnan, 48 Colo. 414, 109 P. 861 (1910).

Verdict not fixing definite value to be rejected. A verdict not fixing any definite amount or value of the supposed benefit, in dollars, is to be rejected. Denver N.W. & P. Ry. v. Howe, 49 Colo. 256, 112 P. 779 (1910).

38-1-116. Interest on award. The court shall forthwith cause the report of the commissioners or the verdict of the jury to be entered upon the records of the court, and, where possession of the property has been previously taken by the petitioner pursuant to section 38-1-105 (6), it shall add to the amount of any such award interest at the rate established pursuant to section 5-12-106 (2), C.R.S., on and after the date of such possession until the date such award of the commissioners or verdict of the jury is filed with the clerk of the court. No interest shall be allowed on that portion of the award which the owner and others interested received or could have received as a partial payment by withdrawal from the deposit as provided in section 38-1-105 (6), nor shall interest be allowed for the period wherein the trial of the case is delayed or continued by or at the request of the respondent.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Collecting Pre- and Post- Judgment Interest in Colorado: A Primer", see 15 Colo. Law. 753 (1986). For article, "An Update of Appendices from Collecting Pre- and Post-Judgment Interest in Colorado", see 15 Colo. Law. 990 (1986).

When interest on award accrues. Where the authorization to take possession of property is contingent on a deposit, the date of possession for purposes of entitlement to interest on the award is the date of deposit. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978).

When the landowner, with the consent of the other interested parties, could have withdrawn funds deposited by the petitioner pursuant to § 38-1-105 (6), the exception to the interest accrual requirement under this section applies and no interest is allowed on the funds. E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. 455 Co., 997 P.2d 1273 (Colo. App. 1999).

No conflict with general interest statute. There is no conflict between this section, which provides for six percent interest from the date of possession until the date the commission's award is filed with the court, and the general interest statute, § 5-12-102, pertaining to interest thereafter, since once the amount of the valuation award has been ascertained, the result is like any other judgment. And, since the condemnation statutes are silent on the matter of interest for the period after judgment, the general statute on interest applies. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978); E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. 455 Co., 997 P.2d 1273 (Colo. App. 1999).

No interest accrues on the amount of an immediate possession deposit made under § 38-1-105. By depositing funds into the court registry, a petitioner relinquishes control of the funds and transfers to the property owner the right to withdraw and use the funds, and the petitioner is no longer responsible for the productive use of the funds. E-470 Pub. Hwy. Auth. v. 455 Co., 997 P.2d 1273 (Colo. App. 1999).

Interest under this section to be compounded annually. Although this section does not specifically state that interest is to be compounded annually, since the rate of interest under this section is determined by reference to the rate established in § 5-12-106 (2), which provides for annual compounding of interest, this section implicitly provides that interest be compounded annually. State Dept. of Hwys. v. Interstates-Denver West, 781 P.2d 176 (Colo. App. 1989).

Trial court appropriately denied award of pre-judgement interest in inverse condemnation case. There was no order authorizing the municipality to take possession of the property prior to trial. Moreover, the evaluation date used by each of the parties, without objection from either, was the date of the hearing, and the jury was specifically instructed to determine the value of the property taken as of that date. Accordingly, because the property was valued as of the date of the trial and not as of some earlier date, no award of pre-judgment interest was authorized. Fowler Irrevocable Trust 1992-1 v. City of Boulder, 992 P.2d 1188 (Colo. App.

1999), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 17 P.3d 797 (Colo. 2001).

Applied in State Dept. of Hwys. v. Copper Mt., Inc., 624 P.2d 936 (Colo. App. 1981).

38-1-117. Condemnation of personal property. Whenever a petitioner is specifically authorized by law to acquire personal property or interests therein by condemnation, the proceedings to acquire the same shall be governed by this article, and the petitioner shall acquire such interest therein as may be sought and specifically described in the petition in condemnation.

38-1-118. Evidence concerning value of property. Any witness in a proceeding under articles 1 to 7 of this title, in any court of record of this state wherein the value of real property is involved, may state the consideration involved in any recorded transfer of property, otherwise material and relevant, which was examined and utilized by him in arriving at his opinion, if he has personally examined the record and communicated directly and verified the amount of such consideration with either the buyer or seller. Any such testimony shall be admissible as evidence of such consideration and shall remain subject to rebuttal as to the time and actual consideration involved and subject to objections as to its relevancy and materiality.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Inverse Condemnation — A Viable Alternative", see 51 Den. L.J. 529 (1974).

Competence of witness not presumed. It will not be presumed that a witness is competent to give an opinion as to the value of property; rather, it must be shown that he has some peculiar means of forming an intelligent, correct judgment as to the value of the property in question or the effect upon it by a particular improvement beyond what is possessed by men generally. City & County of Denver v. Hinsey, 177 Colo. 178, 493 P.2d 348 (1972).

Knowledge of witness may be derived from buying and selling, valuing, and managing real estate in the town or county where the particular property is situated or by reason of being acquainted with the property in the neighborhood where it is situated, especially if accompanied by a knowledge of sales of similar property. City & County of Denver v. Hinsey, 177 Colo. 178, 493 P.2d 348 (1972).

Expert testimony need not be stricken where expert relied only in part on sales data he did not personally confirm but did not offer the data as direct evidence to support his opinion. Any impermissible impact that the unverifiable sales may have had on the expert's testimony was ameliorated by striking evidence of the comparable property that was supported by the unverified sales. Westminster v. Jefferson Center Ass'n, 958 P.2d 495 (Colo. App. 1997).

Owner's opinion of property value. A property owner may testify as to his opinion of the value of his own property. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Berglund-Cherne Co., 193 Colo. 562, 568 P.2d 478 (1977); Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978).

Testimony by the owner regarding the price paid for replacement property in a transaction that was not a comparable sale is incompetent. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978).

Evidence of restoration costs admissible. Evidence of costs of restoration and replacement of property where there is no testimony to relate these costs to market value is admissible only insofar as it aids the jury in arriving at the market value of the property before and after the taking in order that there be no confusion between the measure of damages and evidence admissible to show damages. City & County of Denver v. Hinsey, 177 Colo. 178, 493 P.2d 348 (1972).

Evidence of economic rent is admissible only for limited purpose of establishing the basis for the expert's final opinion of value. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Berglund-Cherne Co., 193 Colo. 562, 568 P.2d 478 (1977).

Evidence of the character and amount of business conducted on the land taken is only admissible for the limited purpose of showing a use to which the land could be put. City & County of Denver v. Hinsey, 177 Colo. 178, 493 P.2d 348 (1972).

When opinion evidence inadmissible. Opinion testimony based almost entirely on the offering prices as distinguished from the sale prices of replacement properties and on the price paid for a noncomparable property is inadmissible. Denver Urban Renewal Auth. v. Hayutin, 40 Colo. App. 559, 583 P.2d 296 (1978).

38-1-119. Preference on docket. To assure that property owners receive compensation for the taking of their property at the earliest practical time and to reduce the interest obligation of petitioners, all courts wherein such actions are pending shall give such actions preference over other civil actions therein in the manner of setting the same for trial.

38-1-120. Acquisition of state lands - department of natural resources. All proceedings brought by the department of natural resources pursuant to the provisions of section 24-33-107 (3) (a), C.R.S., for the acquisition of interests in state lands under the jurisdiction of the state board of land commissioners shall be as prescribed by this article.

38-1-121. Appraisals - negotiations. (1) As soon as a condemning authority determines that it intends to acquire an interest in property, it shall give notice of such intent, together with a description of the property interest to be acquired, to anyone having an interest of record in the property involved. If the property has an estimated value of five thousand dollars or more, such notice shall advise that the condemning authority shall pay the reasonable costs of an appraisal pursuant to subsection (2) of this section. Such notice, however, need not be given to any of such persons who cannot be found by the condemning authority upon the exercise of due diligence. Upon receipt of such notice, such persons may employ an appraiser of their choosing to appraise the property interest to be acquired. Such appraisal shall be made using sound, fair, and recognized appraisal practices which are consistent with law. The value of the land or property actually taken shall be the fair market value thereof. Within ninety days of the date of such notice, such persons may submit to the condemning authority a copy of such appraisal. The condemning authority immediately upon receipt thereof shall submit to such persons copies of its appraisals. If the property interest is being acquired in relation to a federal aid project, then the appraisals submitted by the condemning authority shall be those which have been approved by it pursuant to applicable statutes and regulations, if such approval is required. All of these appraisals may be used by the parties to negotiate in good faith for the acquisition of the property interest, but neither the condemning authority nor such persons shall be bound by such appraisals.

(2) If an appraisal is submitted to the condemning authority in accordance with the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, the condemning authority shall pay the reasonable costs of such appraisal. If more than one person is interested in the property sought to be acquired and such persons cannot agree on an appraisal to be submitted under subsection (1) of this section, the condemning authority shall be relieved of any obligation herein imposed upon it to pay for such appraisals as may be submitted to it pursuant to this section.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as in any way limiting the obligation of the condemning authority to negotiate in good faith for the acquisition of any property interest sought prior to instituting eminent domain proceedings or as in any way limiting the discovery rights of parties to eminent domain proceedings.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the condemning authority from complying with federal and state requirements to qualify the authority for federal aid grants.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the right of the condemning agency to institute eminent domain proceedings or to obtain immediate possession of property as permitted by law; except that an eminent domain proceeding may not proceed to trial on the issue of valuation until the ninety-day period provided in subsection (1) of this section has expired or the owner's appraisal has been submitted to the condemning authority, whichever is sooner.

(6) If the parties involved in the negotiations fail to reach agreement on the fair market value of the property being acquired, the condemning authority, prior to proceeding to trial on the issue of valuation, shall furnish all owners of record a written final offer.

ANNOTATION

Statute designed to facilitate negotiations and settlement. This statute, which is not mandatory, contemplates and is designed to facilitate negotiations and settlement between parties involved in condemnation proceedings. City of Colo. Springs v. Berl, 658 P.2d 280 (Colo. App. 1982).

This section does not apply to the award of costs pursuant to C.R.C.P. 54(d). City of Colo. Springs v. Berl, 658 P.2d 280 (Colo. App. 1982).

When costs of appraisals are litigation expenses. If the owner chooses not to submit appraisals prior to trial, but does so as evidence during trial, the costs of the appraisals of real property are correctly viewed as expenses necessarily incurred by reason of the litigation. City of Colo. Springs v. Berl, 658 P.2d 280 (Colo. App. 1982).

Amount offered by county not dispositive of lack of good faith attempt to negotiate where efforts by county were thwarted by lack of response from the landowners. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. Blosser, 844 P.2d 1237 (Colo. App. 1992).

Property interests contemplated by subsection (3) are limited to recorded interests. City & County of Denver v. Eat Out, Inc., 75 P.3d 1141 (Colo. App. 2003).

38-1-122. Attorney fees. (1) If the court finds that a petitioner is not authorized by law to acquire real property or interests therein sought in a condemnation proceeding, it shall award reasonable attorney fees, in addition to any other costs assessed, to the property owner who participated in the proceedings.

(1.5) In connection with proceedings for the acquisition or condemnation of property in which the award determined by the court exceeds ten thousand dollars, in addition to any compensation awarded to the owner in an eminent domain proceeding, the condemning authority shall reimburse the owner whose property is being acquired or condemned for all of the owner's reasonable attorney fees incurred by the owner where the award by the court in the proceedings equals or exceeds one hundred thirty percent of the last written offer given to the property owner prior to the filing of the condemnation action. The provisions of this subsection (1.5) shall not apply to any condemnation proceeding seeking to acquire rights-of-way under article 4, 5, or 5.5 of this title, article 45 of title 37, C.R.S., or section 7 of article XVI of the Colorado constitution.

(2) Nothing in subsection (1) of this section shall be construed as limiting the ability of a property owner to recover just compensation, including attorneys fees, as may otherwise be authorized by law.

ANNOTATION

Purpose of section is to compensate a property owner who is required to incur costs

when the condemning authority does not proceed properly. Fowler Irrevocable Trust 1992-1

v. City of Boulder, 992 P.2d 1188 (Colo. App. 1999), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 17 P.3d 797 (Colo. 2001).

The legislature intended that challenges to a condemning agency's authority to condemn be addressed by subsection (1), but that challenges to a condemning agency's valuations be addressed by subsection (1.5). Town of Telluride v. San Miguel Valley Corp., 197 P.3d 261 (Colo. App. 2008).

In valuation cases, the legislature intended to limit awards of attorney fees to relatively egregious cases where the condemning agency has not offered fair value to the property owner and also intended that reimbursement for attorney fees be limited to the fees incurred in obtaining a fair valuation. Town of Telluride v. San Miguel Valley Corp., 197 P.3d 261 (Colo. App. 2008).

Landowner is not authorized by law to condemn a right-of-way where he already has a common law way of necessity and, accordingly, the property owner against whom the condemnation proceedings were brought may recover attorney fees. Billington v. Yust, 789 P.2d 196 (Colo. App. 1989).

Subsection (2) permits recovery of attorney fees only if another statute expressly authorizes such recovery. Dept. of Health v. Hecla Mining Co., 781 P.2d 122 (Colo. App. 1989); City of Holyoke v. Schlachter Farms R.L.L.P., 22 P.3d 960 (Colo. App. 2001).

Attorney fees should be allowed where the condemnee proves that an alternate acceptable route is legally available to the condemnor at the time the condemnation action is commenced. West v. Hinksmon, 857 P.2d 483 (Colo. App. 1992).

But where dismissal is reversed on appeal, the award of attorney fees is not appropriate. Freeman v. Rost Family Trust, 973 P.2d 1281 (Colo. App. 1999).

No attorney fees should be allowed where the condemnee establishes the existence of an acceptable alternate route across the condemnee's own property. West v. Hinksmon, 857 P.2d 483 (Colo. App. 1992).

For purposes of awarding attorney fees, the petition for condemnation was amended in such a substantial manner that it was tantamount to the filing of a new condemnation action for a second parcel of land. Thus, the last written offer prior to filing the original condemnation proceeding on the first parcel and the subsequent amended petition as to the second parcel both constitute last written final offers as to the respective parcels. Sch. Dist. No. 12 v. Sec. Life of Denver Ins. Co., 179 P.3d 1 (Colo. App. 2007), rev'd on other grounds, 185 P.3d 781 (Colo. 2008).

When there are two distinct and separable condemnations that were tried in a single proceeding, this section contemplates the trial court's application of each written offer to the corresponding condemnation scenario. Because the condemnation award in either scenario exceeds 130% of the condemning authority's corresponding final written offer, the owner of the property is entitled to attorney fees. Sch. Dist. No. 12 v. Sec. Life of Denver Ins. Co., 185 P.3d 781 (Colo. 2008).

Absent evidence of a contrary legislative intent, section does not authorize fee awards in situations other than successful defenses in unauthorized condemnation proceedings. As such, fee award in inverse condemnation action would be improper. Fowler Irrevocable Trust 1992-1 v. City of Boulder, 992 P.2d 1188 (Colo. App. 1999), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 17 P.3d 797 (Colo. 2001).

Prejudgment interest is separate from the "award by the court". "[A]ward by the court" plainly contemplates only the principal award and not the prejudgment interest on that award. City of Colo. Springs v. Andersen Mahon Enters., 251 P.3d 536 (Colo. App. 2010).

Court rejects contention that section requires an "all or nothing" award of attorney fees and that trial court was therefore precluded from making a partial award of fees and costs. To refuse to award a respondent any fees at all when the trial court has found that the petitioner was not authorized to acquire some of the property interests being sought would thwart the purpose of the statute. Similarly, it would be equally inappropriate to award a respondent all fees incurred in defending the entire action when at least some of petitioner's condemnation claims were in fact authorized by law. Thus, an "all or nothing" approach would lead to unreasonable and absurd results. Wilkinson v. Gaffney, 981 P.2d 1121 (Colo. App. 1999).

Here, record supports trial court's determination that respondents were entitled to an award of only fees incurred in defending against petitioner's unauthorized claim for a utility easement by condemnation. Further, the court's ruling is supported by the record and is consistent with the statutory intent of discouraging the filing of unauthorized condemnation claims. Accordingly, trial court committed no abuse of discretion. Wilkinson v. Gaffney, 981 P.2d 1121 (Colo. App. 1999).

The city's bad faith in one aspect of the litigation does not violate the condemnation statutes and therefore does not mean the city is not authorized by law to acquire the property for purposes of subsection (1). City of Black Hawk v. Ficke, 215 P.3d 1129 (Colo. App. 2008).

Applied in Platte River Power Auth. v. Nelson, 775 P.2d 82 (Colo. App. 1989); Akin v. Four Corners Encampment, 179 P.3d 139 (Colo. App. 2007).

PART 2

GOVERNMENTAL ENTITIES, INDIVIDUALS, AND CORPORATIONS AUTHORIZED TO EXERCISE THE POWER OF EMINENT DOMAIN

38-1-201. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds and declares that:

(a) The power of eminent domain allows the federal government, the state, counties, cities and counties, municipalities, and various other types of governmental entities to condemn property when necessary for public use and allows individual property owners and corporations to condemn property in certain circumstances when condemnation is necessary to create a private way of necessity or to allow beneficial use of private property.

(b) Although both the state constitution and state statutes require the payment of just compensation to any person whose property is condemned, the exercise of the power of eminent domain nonetheless substantially impacts fundamental property rights.

(c) Because of this substantial impact, it is necessary and appropriate to ensure that Coloradans can easily determine which governmental entities, corporations, and other persons may exercise the power of eminent domain and to further ensure that Coloradans can easily identify the procedural requirements that entities, corporations, and other persons must follow when exercising the power of eminent domain.

(2) The general assembly further finds and declares that:

(a) In addition to counties, cities and counties, and municipalities that serve as general units of government in the state, the governmental structure of the state includes a wide variety of special districts, authorities, and other governmental entities that serve limited governmental purposes, some of which may exercise the power of eminent domain.

(b) Although many of the provisions of state law that authorize governmental entities, individuals, and corporations to exercise the power of eminent domain and prescribe procedures that govern the exercise of that power are concentrated in this article and in articles 2 to 7 of this title, the proliferation throughout the history of the state of special districts, authorities, and other governmental entities that serve limited governmental purposes, together with other historical factors that have necessitated grants of eminent domain powers to certain types of corporations and persons, have resulted in the codification in other parts of the Colorado Revised Statutes of many other provisions that authorize the exercise of the power of eminent domain.

(c) The codification of provisions of state law that authorize eminent domain in parts of the Colorado Revised Statutes other than this article and articles 2 to 7 of this title makes it difficult in many cases for Coloradans to easily determine, with respect to any given governmental entity, corporation, or person:

(I) Whether the governmental entity, corporation, or person may exercise the power of eminent domain; and

(II) The procedural requirements that the governmental entity, corporation, or person must comply with in order to exercise the power of eminent domain.

(d) In order to help Coloradans to more easily determine whether any given governmental entity, corporation, or person may exercise the power of eminent domain and identify the procedural requirements that the entity, corporation, or person must follow in exercising the power of eminent domain, it is necessary, appropriate, and in the best interests of the state to list in this part 2 all of the governmental entities, corporations, and persons that may exercise the power of eminent domain pursuant to provisions of state law and to clarify that the procedural requirements specified in this article and articles 2 to 7 of this title apply to all eminent domain proceedings.

(e) In enacting this part 2, it is not the intent of the general assembly to:

(I) Repeal, limit, or otherwise modify the authority of any governmental entity, corporation, or person to exercise the power of eminent domain;

(II) Grant new eminent domain authority to any governmental entity, individual, or corporation; or

(III) Infringe upon the home rule power of any home rule municipality or county.

38-1-202. Governmental entities, corporations, and persons authorized to use eminent domain. (1) The following governmental entities, types of governmental entities, and public corporations, in accordance with all procedural and other requirements specified in this article and articles 2 to 7 of this title and to the extent and within any time frame specified in the applicable authorizing statute, may exercise the power of eminent domain:

- (a) The United States as authorized in section 3-1-102, C.R.S.;
- (b) The state:
  - (I) As authorized in paragraph (b) of article IX of the upper Colorado river basin compact, codified at section 37-62-101, C.R.S.;
  - (II) As authorized in paragraph 3. of article V of the South Platte river compact, codified at section 37-65-101, C.R.S.;
  - (III) As authorized in article VII of the Republican river compact, codified at section 37-67-101, C.R.S.;
  - (IV) By action of the general assembly or by action of any of the following officers and agencies of the state:
    - (A) The department of human services as authorized in section 19-2-403.5, C.R.S.;
    - (B) The department of natural resources as authorized in section 24-33-107 (3), C.R.S.;
    - (C) The department of personnel with the approval of the governor as authorized in section 24-82-102, C.R.S.;

(XIII) A metropolitan district as authorized in section 32-1-1004 (4), C.R.S.;

(XIV) A sanitation, water and sanitation, or water district as authorized in section 32-1-1006 (1) (f), C.R.S.;

(XV) A tunnel district as authorized in section 32-1-1008 (1) (c), C.R.S.;

(XVI) A water and sanitation district organized under part 4 of article 4 of title 32, C.R.S., as authorized in section 32-4-406 (1) (j), C.R.S.;

(XVII) A metropolitan sewage district organized under the provisions of part 5 of article 4 of title 32, C.R.S., as authorized in section 32-4-502 (5) and 32-4-510 (1) (j), C.R.S.;

(XVIII) A regional service authority formed in accordance with the provisions of section 17 of article XIV of the state constitution and article 7 of title 32, C.R.S., as authorized in section 32-7-113 (1) (k), C.R.S.;

(XIX) The regional transportation district created in section 32-9-105, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 32-9-103 (2), 32-9-119 (1) (k), and 32-9-161, C.R.S.;

(XX) The urban drainage and flood control district created in section 32-11-201, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 32-11-104 (10), 32-11-216 (1) (g), 32-11-220 (1) (b), 32-11-615 (2), and 32-11-663, C.R.S.;

(XX.5) The Fountain creek watershed, flood control, and greenway district created in section 32-11.5-201, C.R.S., as authorized in section 32-11.5-205 (1) (n) (I), C.R.S.;

(XXI) A mine drainage district organized under the provisions of article 51 of title 34, C.R.S., as authorized in section 34-51-123, C.R.S.;

(XXII) A conservation district created pursuant to article 70 of title 35, C.R.S., as authorized in section 35-70-108 (1) (e), C.R.S.;

(XXIII) A conservancy district created under articles 1 to 8 of title 37, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-2-105 (7), 37-3-103 (1) (h), 37-3-116, 37-3-117, and 37-4-109 (3), C.R.S.;

(XXIV) A drainage district organized pursuant to article 20 of title 37, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-21-114 (1), 37-23-103, and 37-24-104, C.R.S.;

(XXV) The Grand Junction drainage district created in section 37-31-102 (1), C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-31-119 and 37-31-152, C.R.S.;

(XXVI) An irrigation district organized under the provisions of article 41 of title 37, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-41-113 (3) and (5), 37-41-114, 37-41-128, and 37-43-207, C.R.S.;

(XXVII) An irrigation district organized under the provisions of article 42 of title 37, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-42-113 (1) and (2) and 37-43-207, C.R.S.;

(XXVIII) An internal improvement district established under the provisions of article 44 of title 37, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-44-103 (1) (b), 37-44-108 (1) and (2), 37-44-109, and 37-44-141, C.R.S.;

(XXIX) A water conservancy district organized under the provisions of article 45 of title 37, C.R.S., as authorized in sections 37-45-118 (1) (c) and 37-45-119, C.R.S.;

(XXX) A water activity enterprise, as defined in section 37-45.1-102 (4), C.R.S., exercising the legal authority to exercise the power of eminent domain of the district that owns it in relation to a water activity, as defined in section 37-45.1-102 (3), C.R.S., as authorized in section 37-45.1-103 (4), C.R.S.;

(XXXI) The Colorado river water conservation district created in section 37-46-103, C.R.S., as authorized in section 37-46-107 (1) (i), C.R.S.;

(XXXII) The southwestern water conservation district created in section 37-47-103, C.R.S., as authorized in section 37-47-107 (1) (i), C.R.S.;

(XXXIII) The Rio Grande water conservation district created in section 37-48-102, C.R.S., as authorized in section 37-48-105 (1) (i), C.R.S.;

(XXXIV) The Republican river water conservation district created in section 37-50-103 (1), C.R.S., as authorized in section 37-50-107 (1) (j), C.R.S.;

Specific Grants of Power

38-2-101.	Who may condemn real estate, rights-of-way, or other rights - additional requirements for private toll roads and toll highways.	38-2-103.	Proceedings to drain.
		38-2-104.	Mineral landowner may construct connecting railway spur.
38-2-102.	Entering lands to survey - liability.	38-2-105.	Higher education governing boards have right of eminent domain.

38-2-101. Who may condemn real estate, rights-of-way, or other rights - additional requirements for private toll roads and toll highways. (1) If any corporation formed for the purpose of constructing a road, ditch, reservoir, pipeline, bridge, ferry, tunnel, telegraph line, railroad line, electric line, electric plant, telephone line, or telephone plant is unable to agree with the owner for the purchase of any real estate or right-of-way or easement or other right necessary or required for the purpose of any such corporation for transacting its business or for any lawful purpose connected with the operations of the company, the corporation may acquire title to such real estate or right-of-way or easement or other right in the manner provided by law for the condemnation of real estate or right-of-way. Any ditch, reservoir, or pipeline company, in the same manner, may condemn and acquire the right to take and use any water not previously appropriated.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, a toll road or toll highway company may not condemn real estate or right-of-way, but the department of transportation may exercise, subject to the conditions and limitations set forth in sections 7-45-104 and 43-1-1202 (1) (f), C.R.S., the power of eminent domain for purposes of acquiring property and rights-of-way necessary for the completion of a toll road or toll highway open to the public that is incorporated into the comprehensive statewide transportation plan prepared pursuant to section 43-1-1103 (5), C.R.S., and is being undertaken as a public-private initiative between the department and the company. Such a toll road or toll highway company shall provide written notice of its intent to construct a toll road or toll highway as required by section 7-45-108 (2), C.R.S.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize any toll road or toll highway company to construct a toll road or toll highway through, in, upon, under, or over any street or alley of any city, incorporated town, county, or city and county without first obtaining the consent of the municipal or county authorities having power to give the consent of the city, incorporated town, county, or city and county.

(4) (a) A political subdivision may levy a tax, fee, or charge on a toll road or toll highway company for any right or privilege of constructing or operating a toll road or toll highway such as a street or public highway construction permit fee or an impact fee or other similar development charge designed to fund expenditures by the political subdivision on capital facilities needed to serve the toll road or toll highway, but shall only levy a construction permit fee to the extent that the permit fee applies to all persons seeking a construction permit.

(b) All permit fees, impact fees, or other similar development charges levied by a political subdivision on a toll road or toll highway company constructing or operating a toll road or toll highway shall be no greater than necessary to defray the costs directly incurred by the political subdivision in providing services, and, in the case of impact fees or other development charges, shall be no greater than necessary to defray impacts directly related to the toll road or toll highway. The fees and charges shall also be reasonably related in time to the incurrence of the impacts or costs. In any controversy concerning the appropriateness of a fee or charge, the political subdivision shall have the burden of proving that the fee or charge is no greater than necessary to defray the direct impacts or costs incurred by the political subdivision. All costs of construction shall be borne by the toll road or toll highway company constructing or operating the toll road or toll highway.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Eminent Domain in Colorado", see 29 Dicta 313 (1952).

This section does not grant any authority to corporations that have power of eminent domain to condemn state lands but merely establishes the procedures by which to do so.

Town and water and sanitation district were not authorized to condemn state-owned property to determine feasibility of recreation and water storage project. Town of Parker v. Colo. Div. of Parks, 860 P.2d 584 (Colo. App. 1993).

Applied in Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Wilson, 28 Colo. 6, 62 P. 843 (1900) (decided prior to section's earliest source, L. 15, p. 229, § 1).

38-3-102. Notice - service - publication. The court shall fix a time for the first hearing upon said petition. Notice directed to such owner of the filing of the petition and its object and containing a description of the property and of the time and place of the first hearing shall be published by such corporation in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the state of Colorado once a week for six weeks prior to the time set for the first hearing. At least two weeks before the time set for the first hearing, a copy of said notice shall be served on any party who is in actual possession of the land, and, in case the state is the owner, on the attorney general, and, in case the United States is the owner, on the United States attorney for the district in which the land or any part thereof is situated. The copy of such notice shall be deemed to have been sufficiently served if delivered during the usual hours of business at the residence of the party in possession or at the office of the attorney general or the United States attorney, as the case may be.

38-3-103. Hearing - findings filed - published. Upon proof being filed of the publication of such notice and of such personal service where required, the court, at the time and place therein fixed or to which the hearing may be adjourned, shall proceed to hear the allegations and proofs of all persons interested which touch the matters committed to it, and it shall regulate the order of proof as it may deem best. The testimony taken by it shall be under oath. The court shall determine the truth of the matters alleged and set forth in the petition and also the compensation to be paid to such owner for the lands, rights-of-way, or other rights or easements in lands to be appropriated. In the event that the petitioner has theretofore taken possession of such lands, rights-of-way, or other rights or easements in lands, the value thereof shall be determined without considering the value of any improvements that may have been constructed by such corporation and as of the date when such corporation took possession. The court shall file among its records its findings in writing and shall give notice to the petitioner that its findings have been filed. The petitioner shall cause a notice to be published in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the state of Colorado once a week for two weeks, setting forth that the findings of the court have been filed and stating the amount of the compensation fixed by the court. If the owner has appeared in said proceeding by attorney, a copy of said notice shall be served prior to the last publication of said notice upon the attorney so appearing.

38-3-104. Order - copy recorded. In case no appeal is taken within thirty days after the last publication of notice that the findings of the court have been filed, the court, upon the payment by the petitioner to the clerk of such court of the compensation fixed by the court and upon motion of the petitioner, shall enter an order appropriating the lands, rights-of-way, or other rights or easements in lands, as the case may be, to the petitioner. Thereafter, the same shall be the property of the petitioner, and a certified copy of the order may be filed for record with the county clerk and recorder of the county in which such lands, rights-of-way, or other rights or easements in lands are located. Such record shall be notice, and a certified copy of such record shall be evidence of the title and rights of the petitioner as therein set forth. The clerk of said court shall notify the owner of the property of the payment of the compensation fixed by the court and shall pay the same to such owner on demand.

38-3-105. Judgment - appellate review. Upon the payment into court of the compensation assessed, the court shall give judgment appropriating the lands, rights-of-way, or other rights or easements in lands, as the case may be, to the petitioner, and thereafter the same shall be the property of the petitioner. Either party to the action may appeal from the judgment in like manner and with like effect as in ordinary condemnation cases. Such appeal shall not stay the proceedings so as to prevent the petitioner from taking such lands into its possession and using them for the purposes of the petitioner or from proceeding to exercise the rights-of-way or other rights or easements appropriated.

38-4-106. Distance governs rate. In fixing the rate to be charged its patrons, as provided in section 38-4-105, any such transportation tunnel company or aerial tramway company shall take into consideration the distance over which the materials to be transported are carried.

38-4-107. Compensation. Any such corporation shall make due and just compensation for such right-of-way to the owners of the property through which it is proposed to construct, operate, and maintain such tunnel, pipeline, electric transmission lines, or aerial tramway. When the parties cannot agree upon such right-of-way and the amount of compensation to be paid the owner of such property, the same shall be determined in the manner provided by law for the exercise of the right of eminent domain.

38-4-109. Owner to have access to tunnel. The owner of such vein or lode so intersected shall have the right, at any reasonable time and from time to time, upon application to the superintendent or other managing officer of such tunnel corporation, to enter such tunnel with his surveyors and inspectors for the purpose of inspecting and making a survey of any such vein or lode. The owner of such vein or lode and his employees shall have the right of ingress and egress into and out of said tunnel at all reasonable times.

38-4-110. No right to vein matter acquired. Nothing in this article shall be so construed as to give such tunnel corporation the right to follow any vein or lode without the consent of the owner. When any vein or lode is encountered in driving any such tunnel, such tunnel corporation shall only have the right-of-way to cross such vein or lode at such angle as may be suitable for the convenient operation of the tunnel.

Section within constitutional boundaries. The provisions of this section are well within the boundaries of art. XXV, Colo. Const. City of Englewood v. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co., 163 Colo. 400, 431 P.2d 40 (1967).

Right granted subject to reasonable changes by municipal authorities. The right granted in this section is qualified and subject to the power of the municipal authorities to make such reasonable changes in the grade or an improvement therein as in their judgment the public interests demanded and required. Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Horn Tower Constr. Co., 147 Colo. 166, 363 P.2d 175 (1961).

The provisions of this section are not applicable to grant a state franchise to continue using public highways when consent of a city was never obtained by a rural electric association for the use of the city's streets to expand its facilities. City of Greeley v. Poudre Valley R. Elec., 744 P.2d 739 (Colo. 1987), appeal dismissed for want of a properly presented federal question, 485 U.S. 949, 108 S. Ct. 1207, 99 L. Ed. 2d 409 (1988).

An intoxicated, speeding driver is not engaged in "usual travel" and, therefore, is not within the class of persons intended to be protected by this section. Jacque v. Pub. Serv. Co. of Colo., 890 P.2d 138 (Colo. App. 1994).

38-5-103. Power of companies to contract. Such electric light power, gas, or pipeline company, or such city or town shall have power to contract with any person or corporation, the owner of any lands or any franchise, easement, or interest therein over or under which the line of electric light wire power or pipeline is proposed to be laid or created for the right-of-way for the construction, maintenance, and operation of its electric light wires, pipes, poles, regulator stations, substations, or other property and for the erection, maintenance, occupation, and operation of offices at suitable distances for the public accommodation.

38-5-104. Right-of-way across private lands. (1) Such telegraph, telephone, electric light power, gas, or pipeline company or such city or town shall be entitled to the right-of-way over or under the land, property, privileges, rights-of-way, and easements of other persons and corporations and to the right to erect its poles, wires, pipes, regulator stations, substations, systems, and offices upon making just compensation therefor in the manner provided by law. The rights granted by this section and section 38-5-105 to such electric light power, gas, or pipeline companies or to such cities and towns shall not extend to the taking of any portion of the right-of-way of a railroad company, except to the extent of acquiring any necessary easement to cross the same or to serve such railroad company with electric light, power, or gas service. The rights granted by this section and section 38-5-105 to telegraph or telephone companies shall not extend to the taking of any portion of the right-of-way of a railroad company, except to the extent of acquiring any easement which does not materially interfere with the existing use by the railroad company, or except to the extent of acquiring any necessary easement to cross the same or to serve such railroad company with telegraph or telephone service.

(2) If any right-of-way is taken by such telegraph, telephone, electric light power, gas, or pipeline company, city or town over any portion of the right-of-way of a railroad company the taking party shall pay the entire cost of constructing its facilities along such right-of-way, including any expenses incurred by the railroad for inspection and flagging as reasonably necessary to avoid interference with safe operation of the railroad. The taking party shall also bear the entire cost, including the cost of such inspection and flagging, of removing, relocating, altering, or protecting any facility installed on right-of-way so taken if, at any time, such removal, relocation, alteration, or protection becomes reasonably necessary to avoid interference with the railroad company's ability to use its original right-of-way to operate its railroad efficiently and safely and to efficiently and safely serve existing, new, or potential railroad customers. The taking party shall indemnify the railroad company from all losses and expenses resulting from the negligence of the taking party, its successors or contractors, in connection with or related to such right-of-way. The taking party shall have no claim against the railroad for any loss resulting from damage to the taking party's telegraph or telephone facilities resulting from any unforeseen emergencies or acts of God such as derailment, explosions, collisions, or activities reasonably performed in repairing damages caused by such occurrences.

38-5-105. Companies, cities, and towns have eminent domain right. Such telegraph, telephone, electric light power, gas, or pipeline company or such city or town is vested with the power of eminent domain, and authorized to proceed to obtain rights-of-way for poles, wires, pipes, regulator stations, substations, and systems for such purposes by means thereof. Whenever such company or such city or town is unable to secure by deed, contract, or agreement such rights-of-way for such purposes over, under, across, and upon the lands, property, privileges, rights-of-way, or easements of persons or corporations, it shall be lawful for such telegraph, telephone, electric light power, gas, or pipeline company or any city or town owning electric power producing or distribution facilities to acquire such title in the manner now provided by law for the exercise of the right of eminent domain and in the manner as set forth in this article.

ANNOTATION

Because corporation is a foreign corporation, in good standing and authorized to do business in Colorado, operates and maintains a pipeline on landowner's properties, conveys petroleum products through its pipelines, and would be responsible for the construction, cost, operation, and maintenance of the pipeline, corporation is a pipeline company for purposes of this section. Sinclair Transp. Co. v. Sandberg, 228 P.3d 198 (Colo. App. 2009).

Trial court did not err in determining that corporation is a pipeline company under this section with the power of eminent domain and the authority to condemn landowners' property. Sinclair Transp. Co. v. Sandberg, 228 P.3d 198 (Colo. App. 2009).

Applied in Larson v. Chase Pipe Line Co., 183 Colo. 76, 514 P.2d 1316 (1973).

38-5-106. Possession pending action. At any time after jurisdiction has been obtained pursuant to section 38-1-103, the petitioner, upon notice to the respondent pursuant to the Colorado rules of civil procedure, may move for an order for immediate possession. Upon such motion and after hearing, the court, by rule in that behalf made, may authorize the petitioner, upon payment into court or to the clerk thereof of the amount determined by the court as probably sufficient to pay the sum that may ultimately be awarded as compensation and damages for the taking, if not in possession to take possession of such right-of-way, and if already in possession to maintain and keep such possession, and in all cases to use and enjoy such right-of-way during the pendency and until the final conclusion of such proceedings, and the court may stay all actions and proceedings against such petitioner on account thereof. Withdrawal from the sum so deposited may be had as provided in section 38-1-105 (6) (b). At such hearing for immediate possession, the court shall hear and dispose of all objections that are raised at that time concerning the motion for immediate possession, the legal sufficiency of the petition, or the regularity of the proceedings in any other respect.

ANNOTATION

Section inapplicable to acquisition of land for highway purposes. This section has no application whatever to eminent domain proceedings in which rights-of-way for highways are sought, and it is error to assume that this section confers any right or authority to maintain an action hereunder to acquire lands for highway purposes. Swift v. Smith, 119 Colo. 126, 201 P.2d 609 (1948).

Possession may be acquired only if property acquirable by eminent domain. A public service company may not lawfully acquire immediate possession of any property pursuant to this section unless that property could be lawfully acquired by the exercise of eminent domain. Shaklee v. District Court, 636 P.2d 715 (Colo. 1981).

Possession may not be awarded pending determination of public use. Because land cannot lawfully be condemned pending a judicial determination of the issue of public use, neither may immediate possession pendente lite be awarded. Shaklee v. District Court, 636 P.2d 715 (Colo. 1981).

Applied in Colo. Fuel & Iron Co. v. Four Mile Ry., 29 Colo. 90, 66 P. 902 (1901); Lavelle v. Town of Julesburg, 49 Colo. 290, 112 P. 774 (1910); Denver & R.G.R.R. v. Mills, 59 Colo. 198, 147 P. 681 (1915); Mulford v. Farmers' Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 62 Colo. 167, 161 P. 301 (1916); Beth Medrosh Hagodol v. City of Aurora, 126 Colo. 267, 248 P.2d 732 (1952).

38-5-107. Companies, cities, and towns carrying high voltage - crossings - arbitration. (1) Any person, corporation, or city or town seeking to secure a right-of-way for lines of electric light or for the transmission of electric power for any purpose over, under, or across any right-of-way of any other person, corporation, or city or town for such purposes or seeking to erect or construct its lines of wire under or over the lines of wire already constructed by such other person, corporation, or city or town for any such purposes upon, under, along, or across any public highway or upon, under, along, or across any public lands owned or controlled by the state of Colorado before constructing such lines or wires over, under, or across such rights-of-way or wires of other persons, corporations, or cities or towns, where either of said lines or wires carry a current at an electrical pressure of five thousand volts or more, shall agree with such other persons, corporations, or cities or towns as to the conditions under or upon which such overhead or underneath construction or crossing shall be made, looking to the due protection and safeguard of the wires of the person, corporation, or city or town already having a right-of-way for such wires and looking to the safety of life, health, and property. In case of an inability to agree upon the conditions under or upon which such overhead or underneath crossings shall be made, the person, corporation, or city or town owning and operating or controlling the lines of wires already built or constructed and the person, corporation, or city or town seeking to construct new lines or wires or to make said crossings shall each select a person as an arbitrator, which two persons shall determine said conditions under or upon which such overhead or underneath construction or crossing shall be made. In case of a disagreement in regard thereto by the arbitrators, they shall select a third person to act with them, and the decision made by any two of said arbitrators shall be final and binding upon the person, corporation, or city or town so seeking to make or construct the crossings, who shall construct the crossings in a manner determined by such arbitrators.

(2) The parties interested, before they make their submission to the arbitrators, shall make and subscribe a written article of agreement in and by which they shall agree to submit the matter as to how said crossings shall be made to the arbitrators named, and will abide by their award. Said award shall be in writing, and a copy thereof delivered to each of the parties interested. Such conditions for protection at said crossings shall be established at the sole expense of the person, corporation, or city or town seeking the right-of-way for such overhead or underneath construction or crossings. Nothing in this article shall affect the right of any person, corporation, or city or town to make such crossings where the lines or wires of neither of the parties concerned carry a current at an electrical pressure of less than five thousand volts.

38-5-108. Consent necessary to use of streets. Nothing in this article shall be construed to authorize any person, partnership, association, corporation, or city or town to erect any poles, construct any electric light power line, or pipeline, or extend any wires or lines along, through, in, upon, under, or over any streets or alleys of any city or incorporated town without first obtaining the consent of the municipal authorities having power to give the consent of such city or incorporated town.

38-5.5-101. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly hereby finds, determines, and declares that:

(a) The passage of House Bill 95-1335, enacted at the first regular session of the sixtieth general assembly, established a policy within the state to encourage competition among the various telecommunications providers, to reduce the barriers to entry for those providers, to authorize and encourage competition within the local exchange telecommunications market, and to ensure that all consumers benefit from such competition and expansion.

(b) The stated goals of House Bill 95-1335 were that all citizens have access to a wider range of telecommunications services at rates that are reasonably comparable within the state, that basic service be available and affordable to all citizens, and that universal access to advanced telecommunications services would be available to all consumers. Such goals are essential to the economic and social well-being of the citizens of Colorado and can be accomplished only if telecommunications providers are allowed to develop ubiquitous, seamless, statewide telecommunications networks. To require telecommunications companies to seek authority from every political subdivision within the state to conduct business is unreasonable, impractical, and unduly burdensome. In addition, the general assembly further finds and declares that since the public rights-of-way are dedicated to and held on a nonproprietary basis in trust for the use of the public, their use by telecommunications companies is consistent with such policy and appropriate for the public good.

(2) The general assembly further finds, determines, and declares that nothing in this article shall be construed to alter or diminish the authority of political subdivisions of the state to lawfully exercise their police powers with respect to activities of telecommunications providers within their boundaries, and, subject to such reservation of authority, that:

(a) The construction, maintenance, operation, oversight, and regulation of telecommunications providers and their facilities is a matter of statewide concern and interest;

(b) Telecommunications providers operating under the authority of the federal communications commission or the Colorado public utilities commission pursuant to article 15 of title 40, C.R.S., require no additional authorization or franchise by any municipality or other political subdivision of the state to conduct business within a given geographic area and that no such political subdivision has jurisdiction to regulate telecommunications providers based upon the content, nature, or type of telecommunications service or signal they provide except to the extent granted by federal or state legislation;

(c) Telecommunications providers have a right to occupy and utilize the public rights-of-way for the efficient conduct of their business;

(d) Access to rights-of-way and oversight of that access must be competitively neutral, and no telecommunications provider should enjoy any competitive advantage or suffer a competitive disadvantage by virtue of a selective or discriminatory exercise of the police power by a local government.

ANNOTATION

A municipal ordinance that conflicts with the specific provisions of state statute concerning telecommunications providers, which imposes express limitations on local regulation of telecommunications providers, is preempted and invalid. City & County of Denver v. Qwest Corp., 18 P.3d 748 (Colo. 2001).

38-5.5-102. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Political subdivision" means a county, city and county, city, town, service authority, school district, local improvement district, law enforcement authority, water, sanitation, fire protection, metropolitan, irrigation, drainage, or other special district, or any other kind of municipal, quasi-municipal, or public corporation organized pursuant to law.

(2) "Public highway" or "highway" for purposes of this article includes all roads, streets, and alleys and all other dedicated rights-of-way and utility easements of the state or any of its political subdivisions, whether located within the boundaries of a political subdivision or otherwise.

(3) "Telecommunications provider" or "provider" means a person that provides telecommunications service, as defined in section 40-15-102 (29), C.R.S., with the exception of cable services as defined by section 602(5) of the federal "Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984", 47 U.S.C. sec. 522(6), pursuant to authority granted by the public utilities commission of this state or by the federal communications commission. "Telecommunications provider" or "provider" does not mean a person or business using antennas, support towers, equipment, and buildings used to transmit high power over-the-air broadcast of AM and FM radio, VHF and UHF television, and advanced television services, including high definition television. The term "telecommunications provider" is synonymous with "telecommunication provider".

Editor's note: Section 602(5) of the federal "Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984" referenced in subsection (3) was repealed October 25, 1994.

38-5.5-103. Use of public highways - discrimination prohibited - content regulation prohibited. (1) Any domestic or foreign telecommunications provider authorized to do business under the laws of this state shall have the right to construct, maintain, and operate conduit, cable, switches, and related appurtenances and facilities along, across, upon, and under any public highway in this state, subject to the provisions of this article and of article 1.5 of title 9, C.R.S.; and the construction, maintenance, operation, and regulation of such facilities, including the right to occupy and utilize the public rights-of-way, by telecommunications providers are hereby declared to be matters of statewide concern. Such facilities shall be so constructed and maintained as not to obstruct or hinder the usual travel on such highway.

(2) No political subdivision shall discriminate among or grant a preference to competing telecommunications providers in the issuance of permits or the passage of any ordinance for the use of its rights-of-way, nor create or erect any unreasonable requirements for entry to the rights-of-way for such providers.

(3) No political subdivision shall regulate telecommunications providers based upon the content or type of signals that are carried or capable of being carried over the provider's facilities; except that nothing in this subsection (3) shall be construed to prevent such regulation by a political subdivision when the authority to so regulate has been granted to the political subdivision under federal law.

38-5.5-104. Right-of-way across state land. Any domestic or foreign telecommunications provider authorized to do business under the laws of this state shall have the right to construct, maintain, and operate lines of communication, switches, and related facilities and obtain permanent right-of-way therefor over, upon, under, and across all public lands owned by or under the control of the state, upon the payment of such just compensation and upon compliance with such reasonable conditions as may be required by the state board of land commissioners.

38-5.5-105. Power of companies to contract. Any domestic or foreign telecommunications provider shall have power to contract with any person or corporation, the owner of any lands or any franchise, easement, or interest therein over or under which the provider's conduits, cable, switches, and related appurtenances and facilities are proposed to be laid or created for the right-of-way for the construction, maintenance, and operation of such facilities and for the erection, maintenance, occupation, and operation of offices at suitable distances for the public accommodation.

Source: L. 96: Entire article added, p. 301, § 1, effective April 12.

38-5.5-106. Consent necessary to use of streets. (1) (a) Nothing in this article shall be construed to authorize any telecommunications provider to erect any poles or construct any conduit, cable, switch, or related appurtenances and facilities along, through, in, upon, under, or over any public highway within a political subdivision without first obtaining the consent of the authorities having power to give the consent of such political subdivision.

(b) A telecommunications provider that, on or before April 12, 1996, either has obtained consent of the political subdivision having power to give such consent or is lawfully occupying a public highway in a political subdivision shall not be required to apply for additional or continued consent of such political subdivision under this section.

(2) Consent for the use of a public highway within a political subdivision shall be based upon a lawful exercise of the police power of such political subdivision and shall not be unreasonably withheld, nor shall any preference or disadvantage be created through the granting or withholding of such consent.

Source: L. 96: Entire article added, p. 301, § 1, effective April 12.

38-5.5-107. Permissible taxes, fees, and charges. (1) (a) No political subdivision shall levy a tax, fee, or charge for any right or privilege of engaging in a business or for use of a public highway other than:

(I) A license fee or tax authorized under section 31-15-501 (1) (c), C.R.S., or article XX of the state constitution; and

(II) A street or public highway construction permit fee, to the extent that such permit fee applies to all persons seeking a construction permit.

(b) All fees and charges levied by a political subdivision shall be reasonably related to the costs directly incurred by the political subdivision in providing services relating to the granting or administration of permits. Such fees and charges also shall be reasonably related in time to the occurrence of such costs. In any controversy concerning the appropriateness of a fee or charge, the political subdivision shall have the burden of proving that the fee or charge is reasonably related to the direct costs incurred by the political subdivision. All costs of construction shall be borne by the provider.

(2) (a) Any tax, fee, or charge imposed by a political subdivision shall be competitively neutral among telecommunications providers.

(b) Nothing in this article or in article 32 of title 31, C.R.S., shall invalidate a tax or fee imposed if such tax or fee cannot legally be imposed upon another provider or service because of the requirements of state or federal law or because such other provider is exempt from taxation or lacks a taxable nexus with the political subdivision imposing the tax or fee.

(c) If a political subdivision imposes a tax on a provider and such tax does not apply to other providers of comparable telecommunications services due to the language of the ordinance or resolution that imposes the tax, then the governing body of the political subdivision shall take one of the following two courses of action:

(I) If it can do so without violating the election requirements of section 20 of article X of the state constitution, the governing body shall amend the ordinance or resolution that imposes the tax so as to extend the tax to providers of comparable telecommunications services; or

(II) If an election is required under section 20 of article X of the state constitution, the governing body shall cause an election to be held in accordance with said section 20 to authorize the extension of the tax to providers of comparable telecommunications services. If the extension of the tax is not approved by the voters at such election, then the existing tax shall no longer apply to the providers that had been subject to the tax immediately before the election.

(3) Taxes, fees, and charges imposed shall not be collected through the provision of in-kind services by telecommunications providers, nor shall any political subdivision require the provision of in-kind services as a condition of consent to use a highway.

(4) The terms of all agreements between political subdivisions and telecommunications providers regarding use of highways shall be matters of public record and shall be made available upon request pursuant to article 72 of title 24, C.R.S.

ANNOTATION

Section prohibiting municipality from exacting a fee from telecommunications providers for the use of public rights-of-way, beyond costs directly incurred by the municipality, does not authorize a taking of property for which the municipality would be entitled to compensation by inverse condemnation under article II, § 15 of the state constitution. A municipality controls public rights-of-way in its governmental capacity, and such property is not "private" for purposes of a takings analysis. City & County of Denver v. Qwest Corp., 18 P.3d 748 (Colo. 2001).

38-5.5-108. Pole attachment agreements - limitations on required payments.

(1) No municipally owned utility shall request or receive from a telecommunications provider or a cable television provider, as defined in section 602(5) of the federal "Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984", in exchange for permission to attach telecommunications devices to poles, any payment in excess of the amount that would be authorized if the municipally owned utility were regulated pursuant to 47 U.S.C. sec. 224, as amended.

(2) No municipality shall request or receive from a telecommunications provider, in exchange for or as a condition upon a grant of permission to attach telecommunications devices to poles, any in-kind payment.

CONDEMNATION OF PROPERTY

38-6-101. Power of towns and cities. Whenever, in a town, city, or city and county, the council thereof or other municipal board having authority by charter or statute passes a resolution or ordinance to establish, construct, extend, open, widen, or alter any street, lane, avenue, boulevard, park, playground, parkway, pleasure way, public square, market, viaduct, bridge, sewer, tunnel, or subway or to build, acquire, construct, or establish any public building or any other public work or public improvement, said town, city, or city and county shall have the right to take, damage, condemn, or appropriate by right of eminent domain such private property as may be required in the manner provided for in this part 1; but, except as specifically authorized by law, no incorporated town shall exercise the power of eminent domain over property outside the town boundaries. In any case where such special benefits are not to be assessed by commissioners as provided in section 38-6-107 against the real estate specially benefited, the said town, city, or city and county may follow the procedure set forth in this part 1 or the procedure set forth in article 1 of this title.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For comment, “Water: State-wide or Local Concern? City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978)”, see 56 Den. L. J. 625 (1979). For article, “Condemnation of Property for Economic Development by Home Rule Municipalities”, see 25 Colo. Law. 53 (January 1996).

Acquisition of right-of-way makes condemnation unnecessary. When an owner of land permitted the city to construct and operate a pipe line through his land, the city acquired a vested right-of-way and condemnation was unnecessary. Enke v. City of Greeley, 31 Colo. App. 337, 504 P.2d 1112 (1972).

Where condemnation action to be commenced. Art. XX, Colo. Const., and this article provide that a condemnation action must be commenced in the district court in which the city and county is situated. Toll v. City & County of Denver, 139 Colo. 462, 340 P.2d 862 (1959).

City has option of proceeding under either section 38-1-101 or this section in condemning private property for a public use. City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

Once election made city cannot be bound by other procedure. Once a city elects to proceed under article 1 of this title, it cannot be forced to follow, comply with, or be bound by the provisions contained in this part. City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

Determination of special assessments presumed valid. The invalidity of a municipal ordinance generally must be established beyond a reasonable doubt; however, a different rule as to special assessments has been established. A presumption of validity inheres in a city council's determination that the benefits specially accru-ing to properties equal or exceed the assessments thereon. Cline v. City of Boulder, 35 Colo. App. 349, 532 P.2d 770 (1975).

Property owners must show invalidity of ordinance as to special assessments. The burden is on the property owners to affirmatively show to the council, by substantial competent evidence, that a municipal ordinance is invalid as to special assessments. Cline v. City of Boulder, 35 Colo. App. 349, 532 P.2d 770 (1975).

Applied in Alexander v. City & County of Denver, 51 Colo. 140, 116 P. 342 (1911); Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919); *Snider v. 38-6-102. Petition. The attorney for said city or city and county, in the name of such city or city and county, shall apply to the district court of the district in which said city or city and county is situated, by petition, which petition shall state the general nature of the improvement proposed to be established or made, a correct description of the property required, and the name of the owner of said property as shown on the records of the county clerk and recorder of the county or city and county in which said property is situated. Said petition shall pray for the appointment of three disinterested commissioners, freeholders of real estate in and residents of said city or city and county, to appraise and award the damages which said owner may sustain by reason of the appropriation and condemnation of such property by the city or city and county and to perform such other duties as are in this part 1 enumerated.

38-6-103. Defendants - guardian ad litem. The owners of all property sought to be condemned for the proposed improvement shall be made parties defendant. It shall not be necessary to make any person a defendant unless such person has some title thereto of record in the office of the county clerk and recorder of the county or city and county in which said property is situated. If the proceeding seeks to affect land owned by an infant or a mentally incompetent person, the legal guardian or conservator of such person shall be made a party defendant. If such person has no legal guardian, the district court shall have the power to appoint a guardian ad litem to represent such person.

38-6-104. Judge to set hearing - summons - service - publication. Upon the filing of the petition, said court shall fix a date for hearing said petition, and the attorney for the petitioner shall prepare and issue a summons, directed to the defendants, notifying them of the date fixed by the court for the hearing. Jurisdiction of said defendants shall be obtained by causing the summons to be served on the defendants in like manner as is provided by the laws of this state for the service of summons in civil actions, except as otherwise provided in this section. The date for the hearing of the petition shall not be less than ten days after the date of the service of the summons. In case any defendant does not reside in said city or city and county or is a foreign corporation or in case the attorney for the petitioner files an affidavit that he has endeavored to find such person in such city or city and county, for the purpose of causing the person to be served, and that after reasonable effort he has been unable to find said person in said city or city and county, the petitioner may cause the summons to be published for three consecutive times in any daily or weekly newspaper published in said city or city and county. The date for the hearing of said petition shall not be less than ten days after the date of the last publication of said summons.

38-6-105. Answer - hearing - commissioners. Any defendant has the right to appear in the proceeding and file an answer, in writing, with the clerk of the court, at any time prior to the date fixed for the hearing of the petition but not thereafter, in which answer said defendant shall set forth such legal objections as he may have to the condemnation or appropriation of any property owned by him or to the prosecution of said proceeding. At the time set for the hearing of said petition or such time to which the hearing may have been continued by the court, the court shall proceed to hear any objections raised by the answer, if any there be. The court has no power to inquire into the necessity of exercising the power of eminent domain for the purpose proposed, nor into the necessity of making the proposed improvement, nor into the necessity of taking the particular property described in the petition. If the court finds that the petitioner has the right to prosecute said proceeding and such objections as may have been filed are overruled, the court shall appoint three disinterested commissioners in condemnation, freeholders of real estate in said city or city and county and residents thereof, who shall have the powers and duties provided in this part 1. No person shall be disqualified to act as a commissioner by reason of the fact that he may own either the fee or other interest in or to property that might be assessed a special benefit on account of the proposed improvement.

Questions for court to determine in limine. Whether or not the petitioner belongs to the class of persons entitled to condemn; whether or not the property sought to be taken belongs to the class of property that is subject to condemnation; whether or not the purpose for which the property is sought to be taken is one for which condemnation is permitted; whether or not the petitioner and the owner have been able to come to an agreement concerning a purchase of the land; and whether or not the act authorizing the proceeding is constitutional — these and similar questions, when raised, are for the court to determine in limine. *Wassenich v. 38-6-106. Commissioners - oaths - hearing. The commissioners, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take an oath to faithfully, promptly, and impartially discharge their duties as such commissioners. Any commissioner may administer oaths to witnesses produced before him. The commissioners may issue subpoenas and compel witnesses to attend and testify, may adjourn and hold meetings, and shall hear such proofs as may be presented to them.

38-6-107. Assessment of damages - lien - fund. It is the duty of the commissioners to estimate, fix, and determine the fair and actual cash market value of all property proposed to be taken for the improvement, without reference to the projected improvement, and the fair, direct, and actual damage caused on account of said improvement to other property not taken for the improvement. The commissioners shall provide for the payment of the total amount of their awards for land taken and damaged, in all cases where the resolution or ordinance authorizing the improvement so provides, by assessing against the owners of all real estate which, in their opinion, will be specially benefited by the proposed improvement the amounts of said benefit as special assessments, and such commissioners shall assess the balance required to make said total amount as a general assessment against the petitioning city or city and county. Such special benefits shall be assessed against the owners of each lot or parcel of property that is, in the opinion of said commissioners, specially benefited by said improvement, which said special benefits shall be a lien on the property so charged, and shall be collected as provided by the charter or ordinance of said city or city and county, and when so collected shall be paid into the treasury of said city or city and county as a separate fund, to be used for the payment of the awards and damages.

Railway property, benefited by special improvements, may be assessed the same as other lands. Post Printing & Publishing Co. v. City &

County of Denver, 68 Colo. 50, 189 P. 39 (1920).

"Benefit" construed. "Benefit", which justifies special assessment tax, is not the same "benefit" which must be calculated and deducted from a landowner's recovery in an eminent domain proceeding. City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

City not foreclosed from collecting special assessment tax. A city's failure to prove any benefit to the landowner's property in the section 38-1-101 proceeding does not foreclose the city from collecting a special assessment tax. The city was entitled to specially assess for the benefit accruing to the landowner's property by the construction of the special improvement. City of Englewood v. Weist, 184 Colo. 325, 520 P.2d 120 (1974).

Opinion of expert witnesses permitted as to amount of damages. Witnesses who have properly qualified as experts may give their opinion as to the amount of damages. City & County of Denver v. Tondall, 86 Colo. 372, 282 P. 191 (1929).

38-6-108. Commissioners' report. The commissioners shall make, subscribe, and file with the clerk of the court in which such proceedings are had a report of their awards and assessments, in which all property assessed shall be described with convenient certainty and accuracy. In said report, the awards and damages allowed to each owner and the benefits assessed against each parcel of land shall be separately stated.

38-6-109. Cost assessed against block. In all cases where the proposed improvement is the opening, widening, establishing, or extension of a public alley, the cost thereof shall be assessed against the property in the particular block in which said alley is situated, according to the benefits to be received therefrom, and against none other.

Applied in Phipps v. City & County of Denver, 57 Colo. 205, 140 P. 797 (1914).

38-6-110. Property need not be in city limits. In all proceedings under this part 1, the petitioner has the right to take or condemn separate parcels of land. Such parcels of land need not be adjoining or contiguous to each other. In all cases where a proceeding is brought to condemn, appropriate, or acquire land for boulevard, parkway, or park purposes, such land or any part thereof may be situated beyond or without the corporate limits of said city or city and county, subject to the limitation imposed by section 31-25-201 (1), C.R.S.

38-6-111. Hearing - notice - publication. After the report of said commissioners is filed with the clerk of the court, the court shall fix a time for the consideration of said report, and the petitioner shall give written notice to the defendants and all other persons who are the owners of record of property mentioned in said report, whether damaged, appropriated, condemned, or assessed special benefits, of the matters contained in said report and of the time so fixed by the court for the consideration thereof. The notice shall be served in like manner as is provided by the laws of this state for the service of summons in civil actions, except as otherwise provided in this section. Said persons shall be served at least ten days before the time fixed for the consideration of the report by the court. In case any defendant or owner of record of any property damaged, appropriated, condemned, or assessed special benefits does not reside in said city or city and county or is a foreign corporation or in case the attorney for said petitioner files an affidavit that he has endeavored to find such person in said city or city and county, for the purpose of causing said person to be notified, and that after reasonable effort he has been unable to find said person in said city or city and county, the petitioner may cause to be published a notice, of the matters affecting such person contained in said report and of the time fixed for the consideration thereof, for three successive times in some daily or weekly newspaper published in said city or city and county. Said publication shall be in lieu of personal service of said notice on all such persons.

ANNOTATION

Applied in Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

38-6-112. Objections - default - burden of proof - findings - reappraisalment. Any person who is the owner of, or who has any interest in, any of the property mentioned in said report, whether appropriated or damaged or against which special benefits have been assessed, may appear, at or before the time fixed by the court for the consideration of said report but not after said time, and file his written objection to said report. Default shall be entered against the owners of all property mentioned in said report who have not filed objections thereto within said time, and the report shall be confirmed by the court as to such persons. At the time fixed by the court for the consideration of said report, the court shall proceed to hear any objections that have been filed, except where a jury trial has been demanded, as provided for in section 38-6-113. Any party interested in said proceeding may introduce such evidence as may tend to establish the right of the matter. The burden of proof to change any finding, award, or assessment of said commissioners shall be upon the person objecting thereto. If it appears to the court that the property of the objector has been appraised by the commissioners at more or less than the fair, actual cash market value thereof, or that the fair, direct, and actual damage to property not taken is greater or less than the amount awarded by the commissioners, or that the property of the objector is assessed a special benefit in an amount greater than it will be actually benefited by the proposed improvement, the court shall so find and shall also find what the proper award or assessment shall be, and judgment shall be rendered accordingly. The court, for good cause shown, may modify, alter, change, annul, or confirm the report of the commissioners, or any part thereof, or may order a new reappraisalment and assessment as to any of the property affected in the proceeding by the same commissioners or by other commissioners appointed by the court.

38-6-113. Jury trial - motion for new trial - appellate proceedings. (1) At the time fixed for the hearing of the commissioners' report or at any time prior thereto but not after said time, any defendant who owns or is interested in any property actually taken, appropriated, or damaged on account of the proposed improvement and who is dissatisfied with the amount awarded to him by said commissioners may file his demand, in writing, for a trial by a jury of either six or twelve freeholders to appraise and assess the damages which said defendant or person may sustain by reason of the appropriation and condemnation of, or damage to, his property. Any person so demanding a jury, at the time of said demand, shall deposit with the clerk the jury fees for one day's services according to the rate allowed jurors in the district court. The court shall fix an early date for said trial, and on such date the defendants who have made written demands for jury trial within the time provided shall proceed to submit their claims to the jury. Such jury shall be drawn as in civil actions; except that the jurors shall have the qualifications provided in this section.

(2) The court shall proceed in the same manner and with like powers as in other cases, except as otherwise provided in this part 1. At the request of any party to the proceedings, the court shall order that the jury go upon the premises sought to be taken or damaged, in charge of a sworn bailiff and in the company of any other person that the court may order, and examine the premises in person. At the conclusion of the evidence, the matters in controversy may be argued by counsel to the jury, and at the conclusion of the arguments the court shall instruct the jury in writing. The jury shall return a special verdict fixing and determining the damages or compensation to be allowed to each defendant, severally, who has demanded a jury trial, which verdict shall include both the fair, actual cash market value of the land actually taken for the improvement and the direct, fair, and actual damage, if any, caused on account of said improvement to property not taken for the improvement. Any party to the proceeding may move for a new trial in the same manner as in actions at law. The refusal of said court to grant the same may be excepted to and assigned for appeal, but no appeal shall be permitted to stay the improvement sought by the proceeding.

Limiting number of witnesses is within court's discretion. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

Jury is not authorized to view premises other than the land condemned. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

Market value to be determined. The issue to be determined is the fair, actual cash market value of the land taken at the time of the award and the direct, fair and actual damages to the remainder of the tract, not taken, caused by the improvement, equal to the diminution in the market value of the residue at the time of the trial, for any use to which it may be put, reasonably. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

Any reasonable future use to which the land may be adapted or applied by men of ordinary prudence and judgment may be considered only insofar as it may assist the jury in arriving at the present market value. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

Evidence of sales of like properties admissible. In computing damages under a jury trial evidence of sales of other like properties, in the same vicinity, and used for the same purpose, is admissible. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

Opinions by qualified witnesses as to value permitted. To aid and assist the jury in arriving at an opinion, witnesses who are qualified may give their opinions as to the value and any special circumstances upon which those opinions are based. Wassenich v. City & County of Denver, 67 Colo. 456, 186 P. 533 (1919).

38-6-114. Costs - compensation. The cost of the proceedings shall be paid by the city or city and county. The commissioners shall be allowed a reasonable compensation for their services and expenses, the amount of which shall be fixed by the court.

38-6-115. Amendments - new parties - notice. Amendment to the petition or to any paper or record in the proceedings shall be permitted by the court whenever necessary to a fair hearing and final determination of the questions involved. Should it become necessary at any stage of the proceedings to bring in a new party, the court has the power to make such rule or order in relation thereto as may be deemed reasonable and proper. The court also has the power to make all necessary rules and orders for notice to persons of the pendency of the proceedings.

38-6-116. Decree - copy to city clerk - payments - collection of assessments. After the trial hearings and determination of all objections to said report, the court shall make its judgment and decree, granting the petitioner such title to the property condemned as may be petitioned for and the right to enter upon the same, upon payment of the compensation ascertained. The decree shall describe each parcel of property so condemned and state the owner thereof and shall describe the property against which special assessments have been made and the amounts thereof. When said judgment and decree have been made by the court, the clerk of said court shall make a certified copy thereof and after thirty days deliver the same to the clerk of the city or city and county. Unless other provision is made in the charter of said city or city and county for the payment of said awards, the council, within ninety days after the date of said decree, shall make, by ordinance, the necessary appropriation for the payment of the compensation for the property condemned. The proper officers of said city or city and county shall thereupon issue the warrants of said city or city and county to the respective parties entitled thereto. The council, by ordinance, shall also provide for the collection of such special assessments as have been confirmed by the final decree of the court.

38-6-120. Review - deposit - possession. Upon the final determination of any proceeding under this part 1, appeal shall lie in every case to bring into review the proceedings therein. If the owner of any property taken or affected appeals, the petitioner may pay into the registry of said court the amount of compensation awarded therefor, for the use of said owner, and shall thereupon be entitled to take possession of and use the property taken or affected the same as if no appeal had been taken. The money so deposited shall remain on deposit until the appeal has been heard and determined. If any owner elects to receive such amount before the determination of such appeal, said appeal shall thereupon be dismissed so far as such owner is concerned.

Town must comply with § 30-28-110 in exercising powers under this section. A town must comply with county zoning procedures enunciated in § 30-28-110, when the town exercises its power of eminent domain for construction of sewage facilities beyond its corporate limits pursuant to this section. Blue River Defense Comm. v. Town of Silverthorne, 33 Colo. App. 10, 516 P.2d 452 (1973).

County residents entitled to present objections and views. Even though a town may affirmatively overrule a county's decision regarding the town's proposed construction of a sewage plant, the residents of the county are entitled to an opportunity to present their objections and views and to have these considered as part of the planning commission's approval or disapproval and to require that if construction is to proceed, the town must determine to proceed in the face of the county's objection. Blue River Defense Comm. v. Town of Silverthorne, 33 Colo. App. 10, 516 P.2d 452 (1973).

Public stream not condemnable for sewer system purposes. This section grants to municipal corporations the authority to condemn land for the right-of-way for sewers, but no statute provides for the condemnation of a public stream for the purpose of making it a part of a sewer system. Healy v. City of Delta, 59 Colo. 124, 147 P. 662 (1915).

CONDEMNATION OF WATER RIGHTS

38-6-201. Condemnation of water rights by municipalities. This part 2 shall apply to any water right which is to be condemned by a town, city, county, or municipal corporation having the powers of condemnation, referred to in this part 2 as a "municipality".

38-6-202. Petition. (1) The attorney for any municipality, in the name of said municipality, shall apply to the district court of the district in which the municipality is situated, by petition, which petition shall set forth the general nature of the improvement proposed to be established or made, a correct description of the water right required, the name of the owner of the water right, and those persons who may be damaged by the acquisition of the water right. Said petition shall pray for the appointment of three disinterested commissioners appointed by the court of jurisdiction, freeholders of real estate in Colorado, one to be a resident from the area affected by the proposed action, one to be a resident of the municipality bringing the action, and one to be a party who has no interest in the controversy, to determine the issue of the necessity of exercising eminent domain as proposed in the petition and, if the condemnation is to be allowed, to appraise and award the damages that each person damaged may sustain by reason of the appropriation and condemnation of the water right by the municipality and to perform such other duties as are in this part 2 enumerated.

(2) No municipality shall be allowed to condemn water rights, as provided in section 38-6-207, for any anticipated or future needs in excess of fifteen years, nor shall any municipality be allowed to condemn water rights that are appropriated to a prior public use.

Provisions held unconstitutional. The provisions of this part, subsection (1) of this section, and §§ 38-6-203, 38-6-207 (1), (3), (4) and 38-6-210, relating to the appointment, action, and effect of a commission to determine the issue of necessity of exercising eminent domain, are in conflict with the express grant of eminent domain powers to home rule cities by § 1 of art. XX, Colo. Const. City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978).

The 15-year provision of subsection (2), as applied to home-rule municipalities, is unconstitutional. City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978).

38-6-203. Condemnation - municipal - water supplies - standards and procedures for evaluations. (1) Prior to any hearing for condemnation of water supplies and structures under this part 2, the municipality shall:

(a) Prepare or update a community growth development plan reflecting present population and resources uses and capabilities and projected population growth and resources requirements, the latter to include all resources requirements to provide for phased development of municipal services and facilities;

(b) Prepare a detailed statement describing:

(I) The water rights to be acquired under condemnation and their present uses;

(II) The effects upon the county and suitable area within the river drainage basin or basins from the change or conversion of acquired irrigation and other water supplies to domestic uses, to include economic and environmental effects;

(III) The unavoidable adverse and irreversible effects from such taking of properties and rights; and

(IV) Alternative sources of water supply that may be acquired by appropriation, purchase, lease, conservation, or condemnation and relative acquisitions costs.

(2) The information contained in the growth development plan and statement of effects from the condemnation shall be prepared in sufficient detail to provide a meaningful basis for assessment of the aspects of the condemnation to the public if the condemnation is approved. These statements shall be presented to the commissioners appointed by the court and the defendants and shall be made available to interested parties.

38-6-204. Defendants - guardian ad litem. The owners of all property sought to be condemned for the proposed improvement or who would be damaged by said improvement shall be made parties defendant. If the proceeding seeks to affect land owned by a minor or mental incompetent under legal disabilities, the legal guardian or conservator of such person shall be made party defendant. If such person has no legal guardian, the district court shall have the power to appoint a guardian ad litem to represent such person.

38-6-205. Judge to set hearing - summons - service - publication. Upon the filing of the petition, said court shall fix a date for hearing said petition, and the attorney for the petitioner shall prepare and issue a summons, directed to the defendants, notifying them of the date fixed by the court for the hearing. Jurisdiction of said defendants shall be obtained by causing the summons to be served on the defendants in like manner as is provided by the laws of this state for the service of summons in civil actions, except as otherwise provided in this section. The date for the hearing of the petition shall not be less than ten days after the date of the service of the summons. In case any defendant does not reside in the state or is a foreign corporation or in case the attorney for the petitioner files an affidavit that he has endeavored to find such person for the purpose of causing the person to be served and that after reasonable effort he has been unable to find said person, the petitioner may cause the summons to be published for three consecutive times in any daily or weekly newspaper published in the judicial district. The date for the hearing of said petition shall not be less than ten days after the date of the last publication of said summons.

38-6-206. Answer - hearing - jury. (1) Any defendant has the right to appear in the proceeding and file an answer, in writing, with the clerk of the court, at any time prior to the date fixed for the hearing of the petition but not thereafter, in which answer said defendant shall set forth such objections as he may have to the condemnation or appropriation of any water right owned by him or to the prosecution of said proceeding.

(2) Any defendant may file a demand for a jury trial as provided for in section 38-6-211 (1), prior to the date fixed for the hearing of the petition.

(3) At the time set for the hearing of said petition or at the time to which the hearing may have been continued by the court, the court shall proceed to hear any objections raised by the answer provided for in subsection (1) of this section. The court shall also appoint three commissioners to carry out the provisions of this part 2.

38-6-207. Duty of commissioners, determination of necessity. (1) In any case initiated for the acquisition of water rights pursuant to this part 2, it is the duty of the commissioners to:

(a) Examine and assess the growth development plan and statement provided by the municipality, from the proposed condemnation, required in section 38-6-203, and obtain necessary information pursuant to powers granted in section 38-6-208, and make a determination as to the necessity of exercising the power of eminent domain for the proposed purposes;

(b) Provide one of the following recommendations to the court, based upon their findings:

- (I) There exists no need and necessity for condemnation as proposed.
- (II) There exists a need and necessity for condemnation as proposed.
- (III) There exists a need and necessity for condemnation, but it is premature.

(2) In making a recommendation, as provided in subsection (1) (b) (II) of this section, the commissioners may recommend an alternate source of water supply.

(3) The commissioners shall hear the proofs and allegations of the parties and, after viewing the premises, certify the proper compensation to be made to said owner or parties interested for the water or other property to be taken or affected, as well as all damages accruing to the owner or parties interested in consequences of the condemnation of the same.

(4) If the commissioners find there exists no need and necessity for the condemnation proposed, they shall make no finding as to the value of the condemned property.

Provisions held unconstitutional. The provisions of this part, §§ 38-6-202(1), 38-6-203, 38-6-210 and subsections (1), (3), and (4) of this section, relating to the appointment, action, and effect of a commission to determine the issue of necessity of exercising eminent domain are in conflict with the express grant of eminent domain powers to home rule cities by § 1 of art. XX, Colo. Const. City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978).

Review of determination of necessity. The determination of necessity is an essential part of the power of eminent domain and is not reviewable by the judiciary absent a showing of fraud or bad faith. City of Thornton v. Farmers Reservoir & Irrigation Co., 194 Colo. 526, 575 P.2d 382 (1978).

38-6-208. Commissioners - oaths - hearing. The commissioners, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take an oath to faithfully, promptly, and impartially discharge their duties as such commissioners. Any commissioner may administer oaths to witnesses produced before him. The commissioners may issue subpoenas and compel witnesses to attend and testify, may adjourn and hold meetings, and shall hear such proofs as may be presented to them.

38-6-209. Hearing - notice - publication. After the report of the commissioners is filed with the clerk of the court, the court shall fix a time for the consideration of said report, and the petitioner shall give written notice to the defendants and all other persons who are the owners of property mentioned in said report, whether damaged, appropriated, condemned, or assessed special benefits, of the matters contained in said report and of the time so fixed by the court for the consideration thereof. The notice shall be served in like manner as is provided by the laws of this state for the service of summons in civil actions, except as otherwise provided in this section. Said persons shall be served at least ten days before the time fixed for the consideration of the report by the court. In case any defendant or owner of any property damaged, appropriated, condemned, or assessed special benefits does not reside in the state or is a foreign corporation or in case the attorney for said petitioner files an affidavit that he has endeavored to find such person for the purpose of causing said person to be notified and that after reasonable effort he has been unable to find said person in the state, the petitioner may cause to be published a notice, of the matters affecting such person contained in said report and of the time fixed for the consideration thereof, for three successive times in some daily or weekly newspaper published in said judicial district. Said publication shall be in lieu of personal service of said notice on all such persons.

38-6-210. Objections - default - burden of proof - findings - reappraisement. Any person who is the owner of, or who has any interest in, any of the property mentioned in said report, whether appropriated or damaged or against which special benefits have been assessed, may appear, at or before the time fixed by the court for the consideration of said report, but not after said time, and file his written objection to said report. Default shall be entered against the owners of all property mentioned in said report who have not filed objections thereto within said time, and the report shall be confirmed by the court as to such persons. At the time fixed by the court for the consideration of said report, the court shall proceed to hear any objections that have been filed, except where a jury trial has been demanded, as provided for in section 38-6-211. Any party interested in said proceeding may introduce such evidence as may tend to establish the right of the matter. The burden of proof to change any finding, award, or assessment of said commissioners shall be upon the person objecting thereto. If it appears to the court that the property of the objector has been appraised by the commissioners at more or less than the fair, actual cash market value thereof, or that the fair, direct, and actual damage to property not taken is greater or less than the amount awarded by the commissioners, or that the property of the objector is assessed a special benefit in an amount greater than it will be actually benefited by the proposed improvement, the court shall so find and shall also find what the proper award or assessment shall be, and judgment shall be rendered accordingly. The court, for good cause shown, may modify, alter, change, annul, or confirm the report of the commissioners, or any part thereof, or may order a new appraisal and assessment as to any of the property affected in the proceeding by the same commissioners or by other commissioners appointed by the court.

38-6-211. Jury trial - motion for new trial - appellate proceedings. (1) At any time prior to the date fixed for the hearing of the petition provided for in section 38-6-205, any defendant who owns or is interested in any property to be taken, appropriated, or damaged on account of the proposed improvement may file his demand, in writing, for a trial by a jury of either six or twelve freeholders to appraise and assess the damages which said defendant or person may sustain by reason of the appropriation and condemnation of, or damage to, his property. Any person so demanding a jury, at the time of said demand, shall deposit with the clerk the jury fees for one day's services according to the rate allowed jurors in the district court. The court shall fix an early date for said trial, and on such date the defendants who have made written demands for jury trial within the time provided shall proceed to submit their claims to the jury. Such jury shall be drawn as in civil actions; except that the jurors shall have the qualifications provided in this section.

(2) The court shall proceed in the same manner and with like powers as in other cases, except as otherwise provided in this part 2. At the request of any party to the proceedings, the court shall order that the jury go upon the premises sought to be taken or damaged, in charge of a sworn bailiff and in the company of any other person that the court may order, and examine the premises in person. At the conclusion of the evidence, the matters in controversy may be argued by counsel to the jury, and at the conclusion of the arguments the court shall instruct the jury in writing. The jury shall return a special verdict fixing and determining the damages or compensation to be allowed to each defendant, severally, who has demanded a jury trial, which verdict shall include the fair, actual cash market value of the land actually taken for the improvement. Any party to the proceeding may move for a new trial in the same manner as in actions at law. The refusal of said court to grant the same may be excepted to and assigned for appeal, but no appeal shall be permitted to stay the improvement sought by the proceeding.

38-6-213. Amendments - new parties - notice. Amendment to the petition or to any paper or record in the proceedings shall be permitted by the court whenever necessary to a fair hearing and final determination of the questions involved. Should it become necessary at any stage of the proceedings to bring in a new party, the court has the power to make such rule or order in relation thereto as may be deemed reasonable and proper. The court also has the power to make all necessary rules and orders for notice to persons of the pendency of the proceedings.

38-6-214. Decree - copy to municipality - payments - collection of assessments. After the trial hearings and determination of all objections to said report, the court shall make its judgment and decree. The decree shall describe the property so condemned and state the owner thereof and shall describe the property against which special assessments have been made and the amounts thereof. When said judgment and decree have been made by the court, the clerk of said court shall make a certified copy thereof and after thirty days deliver the same to the municipality. Unless other provision is made in the charter of the municipality for the payment of said awards, the legislative body, within ninety days after the date of said decree, shall make the necessary appropriation for the payment of the compensation for the property condemned. The proper officers of the municipality shall compensate the respective parties entitled thereto. The municipality shall also provide for the collection of such special assessments as have been confirmed by the final decree of the court.

38-7-101. Motion for vesting - contents. (1) In any proceeding initiated by an urban renewal authority, as defined in section 31-25-103, C.R.S., under the provisions of article 1 of this title, the petitioner or any respondent, at any time after the petition has been filed and before judgment is entered in the proceeding, may file a written verified motion requesting that, immediately or at some specified later date, the petitioner be vested with fee simple title, or some lesser estate, interest, or easement, as may be required, to the real property, or a specified portion thereof, which is the subject of the proceeding, and be authorized to take possession of and use such property. Any motion filed by any respondent shall affect, and be limited in application to, the property in which the said respondent has an interest. All the owners of property must join in any motion filed by any respondent under this section, unless one or more of the owners of record cannot by due diligence be found, in which instance this fact shall be stated in the motion.

(2) The motion described in subsection (1) of this section, referred to in this article as the "motion for vesting", shall set forth:

(a) An accurate description of the property to which the motion relates and the estate or interest sought to be acquired or divested; but, in any motion for vesting filed by any respondent, the interest sought to be divested shall be the interest described in the petition in eminent domain; and

(b) The names of the owners of record of the property described in the motion for vesting; and

(c) The date upon which it is requested that the estate or interest sought to be acquired or divested shall vest in the petitioner and the date upon which it is requested that the petitioner shall be entitled to possession and use of the subject property.

Cross references: For the definition of an urban renewal authority, see § 31-25-103 (8.5); for proceedings and procedure for taking private property, see part 1 of article 1 of this title.

38-7-102. Motion for vesting - procedure with respect thereto. (1) The court shall set a date, not less than twenty days after the filing of such motion, for the hearing thereon, and the court shall require at least ten days' notice to be given to each party to the proceeding whose interests would be affected by the taking requested. The averments in the motion and the necessity for the vesting of title, or some lesser estate, prior to the final determination of just compensation shall be deemed admitted unless such averments are controverted in a responsive pleading filed at or before the hearing on the motion for vesting.

(2) At the hearing on the motion for vesting, if such averments have been controverted in responsive pleadings filed at or before the said hearing and if the court has not previously, in the same proceeding, determined the same, the court shall first hear and determine the following matters:

(a) The authority of the petitioner to exercise the right of eminent domain;

(b) Whether the property described in the motion for vesting is subject to the exercise of the right of eminent domain;

(c) Whether the right of eminent domain is being properly exercised in the particular proceeding.

(3) Failure to raise the issues enumerated in subsection (2) of this section, at or before the hearing on the motion for vesting, shall constitute a waiver insofar as the said issues relate to the property described in the motion for vesting. The court's order thereon shall be a final order, and an appeal may be obtained for the review thereof by either party within twenty days after the entry of such order, but not thereafter unless the appellate court, on good cause shown, shall, within the twenty-day period, extend the time for obtaining an appeal. Appellate review shall not stay the other proceedings under this article, unless the appeal was obtained by the petitioner or unless an order staying such further proceedings is entered by the appellate court upon a showing of irreparable injury.

(4) If the issues enumerated under subsection (2) of this section are determined in favor of the petitioner and further proceedings are not stayed or if further proceedings are stayed and the appeal results in a determination in favor of the petitioner, the court shall hear and determine all matters raised in and relating to the motion for vesting. If the foregoing matters are determined in favor of the petitioner, the court shall appoint three disinterested commissioners, who shall be freeholders, to assess the compensation to which the respondents named in the motion for vesting may be entitled by reason of the appropriation of the petitioner.

(5) The commissioners, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take an oath to faithfully and impartially discharge their duties as commissioners. Any one of them may administer oaths to witnesses produced before them. The commissioners shall forthwith view the property, hear such testimony, and consider such evidence as is reasonably necessary to enable them to make a preliminary finding of an amount constituting just compensation for the taking of the property of the respondents named in the motion for vesting. The commissioners shall forthwith make, subscribe, and file with the clerk of the court in which such proceedings are had a certified report meeting the requirements of section 38-1-115. Upon the motion of the petitioner filed within ten days of receipt of the notice provided for in section 38-7-103 (1), the court shall review the said report of the commissioners, and, upon good cause shown by the petitioner, the court may order a new report by the same or different commissioners, and the said order shall void the report objected to. The new commissioners appointed, if any, and the new report shall be in accordance with the provisions of this article.

(6) Such preliminary finding of just compensation and any deposit made or security provided pursuant thereto shall not be evidence in the further proceedings to ascertain finally the just compensation to be paid and shall not be disclosed in any manner to a jury impaneled in such proceedings.

38-7-103. Vesting of title - procedure. (1) When the certified report of the commissioners is filed with the clerk of the court, the said clerk shall forthwith notify all parties named in the motion for vesting of the filing of the said report and of the amount preliminarily found to constitute just compensation.

(2) Within ten days of receipt of the notice described in subsection (1) of this section, the petitioner shall deposit with the court or the clerk of the court, for the use of the respondent named in the motion for vesting, the sum of money preliminarily found to constitute just compensation by the commissioners. If the petitioner has filed a motion for a new report under section 38-7-102 (5), the deposit shall not be due until ten days following the court's ruling on the said motion, if the motion is denied. If the motion is granted by the court, a new notice shall be sent by the clerk upon receipt of the new report.

(3) Upon payment into the court or the clerk of the court of the sum described in subsection (2) of this section by the petitioner, the court shall enter an order vesting in the petitioner the fee simple title, or such lesser estate, interest, or easement, as may be required, to the property as requested in the motion for vesting at such date as the court considers proper, and fixing a date on which the petitioner is authorized to take possession of and to use the property. A certified copy of said order shall be recorded and indexed in the recorder's office of the county in which the property is located in like manner and with like effect as if it were a deed of conveyance from the owners and parties interested to the proper parties. If there is more than one person interested as owner or otherwise in the property and they are unable to agree upon the nature, extent, or value of their respective interests in the total amount of compensation so ascertained and assessed on an undivided basis, the nature, extent, or value of said interests shall be determined according to law in a separate and subsequent proceeding and distribution made among the several claimants.

(4) At the request of any affected party and upon his showing of undue hardship or other good cause, the petitioner's authority to take possession of the property shall be postponed for more than ten days after the date of such vesting of title or more than fifteen days after the entry of such order when the order does not vest title in the petitioner. If postponement occurs, such party shall pay to the petitioner a reasonable rental for such property, the amount thereof to be determined by the court.

38-7-104. Withdrawals from deposit. Upon proper application to the court or by stipulation between the parties, the respondent may withdraw from the sum deposited pursuant to section 38-7-103 (2) an amount not to exceed three-fourths of the highest valuation evidenced by testimony presented by the petitioner to the commissioners, unless the petitioner agrees to a larger withdrawal. All parties interested in the property sought to be acquired shall be required to consent and agree to any such withdrawal. Any such withdrawal of said deposit shall be a partial payment of the amount of total compensation to be paid and shall be deducted by the clerk of the court from any award or verdict entered thereafter. Any party making such withdrawal shall refund to the clerk of the court, upon the entry of a proper court order, any portion of the amount so withdrawn which exceeds the amount finally ascertained in the proceeding to be just compensation or damages, costs, or expenses owing to such party.

Construction of article. The right to take possession and title prior to the final judgment as prescribed in this article is in addition to any other right, power, or authority otherwise conferred by law and shall not be construed as abrogating, limiting, or modifying any such other right, power, or authority, including the rights, powers, and authorities granted in articles 1 to 6 of this title. Should the provisions of this article be invoked by any party, the final determination of the amount constituting just compensation shall be determined pursuant to the provisions of article 1 of this title.

UNIFORM FRAUDULENT TRANSFER ACT
PREFATORY NOTE

The Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act was promulgated by the Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1918. The Act has been adopted in 25 jurisdictions, including the Virgin Islands. It has also been adopted in the sections of the Bankruptcy Act of 1938 and the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 that deal with fraudulent transfers and obligations.

The Uniform Act was a codification of the "better" decisions applying the Statute of 13 Elizabeth. See Analysis of H.R. 12339, 74th Cong., 2d Sess. 213 (1936). The English statute was enacted in some form in many states, but, whether or not so enacted, the voidability of fraudulent transfer was part of the law of every American jurisdiction. Since the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors is seldom susceptible of direct proof, courts have relied on badges of fraud. The weight given these badges varied greatly from jurisdiction, and the Conference sought to minimize or eliminate the diversity by providing that proof of certain fact combinations would conclusively establish fraud. In the absence of evidence of the existence of such facts, proof of a fraudulent transfer was to depend on evidence of actual intent. An important reform effected by the Uniform Act was the elimination of any requirement that a creditor have obtained a judgment or execution returned unsatisfied before bringing an action to avoid a transfer as fraudulent. See American Surety Co. v. Conner, 251 N.Y. 1, 166 N.E. 783, 67 A.L.R. 244 (1929) (per C.J. Cardozo).

The Conference was persuaded in 1979 to appoint a committee to undertake a study of the Uniform Act with a view to preparing the draft of a revision. The Conference was influenced by the following considerations:

- (1) The Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 has made numerous changes in the section of that Act dealing with fraudulent transfers and obligations, thereby substantially reducing the correspondence of the provisions of the federal bankruptcy law on fraudulent transfers with the Uniform Act.
- (2) The Committee on Corporate Laws of the Section of Corporations, Banking & Business Law of the American Bar Association, engaged in revising the Model Corporation Act, suggested that the Conference review provisions of the Uniform Act with a view to determining whether the Acts are consistent in respect to the treatment of dividend distributions.
- (3) The Uniform Commercial Code (located in title 4 of C.R.S.), enacted at least in part by all 50 states, had substantially modified related rules of law regulating transfers of personal property, notably by facilitating the making and perfection of security transfers against attack by unsecured creditors.

(4) Debtors and trustees in a number of cases have avoided foreclosure of security interests by invoking the fraudulent transfer section of the Bankruptcy Reform Act.

(5) The Model Rules of Professional Conduct adopted by the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association on August 2, 1983, forbid a lawyer to counsel or to assist a client in conduct that the lawyer knows is fraudulent.

The Drafting Committee appointed by the Conference held its first meeting in January of 1983. A first reading of a draft of the revision of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act was had at the Conference's meeting in Boca Raton, Florida, on July 27, 1983. The Committee held four meetings in addition to a meeting held in connection with the Conference meeting in Boca Raton. Meetings were also attended by the following representatives of interested organizations:

Robert Rosenberg, Esq., of the American Bar Association;

Richard Cherin, Esq., of the Commercial Financial Services Committee of the Corporation, Banking and Business Law Section of the American Bar Association;

Robert Zinman, Esq., of the American College of Real Estate Lawyers;

Bruce Bernstein, Esq., of the National Commercial Finance Association;

Ernest E. Specks, Esq., of the Real Property, Probate and Trust Law Section of the American Bar Association.

The Committee determined to rename the Act the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act in recognition of its applicability to transfers of personal property as well as real property, "conveyance" having a connotation restricting it to a transfer of personal property. As noted in Comment (2) accompanying § 1(2) (numbered as section 38-8-102 (2) in C.R.S.) and Comment (8) accompanying § 4 (numbered as section 38-8-105 in C.R.S.), however, this Act, like the original Uniform Act, does not purport to cover the whole law of voidable transfers and obligations. The limited scope of the original Act did not impair its effectiveness in achieving uniformity in the areas covered. See McLaughlin, Application of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, 46 Harv. L. Rev. 404, 405 (1933).

The basic structure and approach of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act are preserved in the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act. There are two sections in the new Act delineating what transfers and obligations are fraudulent. Section 4(a) (numbered as section 38-8-105 (1) in C.R.S.) is an adaptation of three sections of the U.F.C.A.; § 5(a) (numbered as section 38-8-106 (1) in C.R.S.) is an adaptation of another section of the U.F.C.A.; and § 5(b) (numbered as section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.) is new. One section of the U.F.C.A. (§ 8) is not carried forward into the new Act because deemed to be redundant in part and in part susceptible of inequitable application. Both Acts declare a transfer made or an obligation incurred with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors to be fraudulent. Both Acts render a transfer made or obligation incurred without adequate consideration to be constructively fraudulent - i.e., without regard to the actual intent of the parties - under one of the following conditions:

(1) the debtor was left by the transfer or obligation with unreasonably small assets for a transaction or the business in which he was engaged;

(2) the debtor intended to incur, or believed that he would incur, more debts than he would be able to pay; or

(3) the debtor was insolvent at the time or as a result of the transfer or obligation.

As under the original Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act a transfer or obligation that is constructively fraudulent because insolvency concurs with or follows failure to receive adequate consideration is voidable only by a creditor in existence at the time the transfer occurs or the obligation is incurred. Either an existing or subsequent creditor may avoid a transfer or obligation for inadequate consideration when accompanied by the financial condition specified in § 4(a)(2)(i) (section 38-8-105 (1)(b)(I) in C.R.S.) or the mental state specified in § 4(a)(2)(ii) (section 38-8-104 (1)(b)(II) in C.R.S.).

Reasonably equivalent value is required in order to constitute adequate consideration under the revised Act. The revision follows the Bankruptcy Code in eliminating good faith on the part of the transferee or obligee as an issue in the determination of whether adequate consideration is given by a transferee or obligee. The new Act, like the Bankruptcy Act, allows the transferee or obligee to show good faith in defense after a creditor establishes that a fraudulent transfer has been made or a fraudulent obligation has been incurred. Thus a showing by a defendant that a reasonable equivalent has been given in good faith for a transfer or obligation is a complete defense although the debtor is shown to have intended to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors.

A good faith transferee or obligee who has given less than a reasonable equivalent is nevertheless allowed a reduction in liability to the extent of the value given. The new Act, like the Bankruptcy Code, eliminates the provision of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act that enables a creditor to attack a security transfer on the ground that the value of the property transferred is disproportionate to the debt secured. The premise of the new Act is that the value of the interest transferred for security is measured by and thus corresponds exactly to the debt secured. Foreclosure of a debtor's interest by a regularly conducted, noncollusive sale on default under a mortgage or other security agreement may not be avoided under the Act as a transfer for less than a reasonably equivalent value.

The definition of insolvency under the Act is adapted from the definition of the term in the Bankruptcy Code. Insolvency is presumed from proof of a failure generally to pay debts as they become due.

The new Act adds a new category of fraudulent transfer, namely, a preferential transfer by an insolvent insider to a creditor who had reasonable cause to believe the debtor to be insolvent. An insider is defined in much the same way as in the Bankruptcy Code and includes a relative, also defined as in the Bankruptcy Code, a director or officer of a corporate debtor, a partner, or a person in control of a debtor. This provision is available only to an existing creditor. Its premise is that an insolvent debtor is obliged to pay debts to creditors not related to him before paying those who are insiders.

The new Act omits any provision directed particularly at transfers or obligations of insolvent partnership debtors. Under § 8 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act any transfer made or obligation incurred by an insolvent partnership to a partner is fraudulent without regard to intent or adequacy of consideration. So categorical a condemnation of a partnership transaction with a partner may unfairly prejudice the interests of a partner's separate creditors. The new Act also omits as redundant a provision in the original Act that makes fraudulent a transfer made or obligation incurred by an insolvent partnership for less than a fair consideration to the partnership.

Section 7 (numbered as section 38-8-108 in C.R.S.) lists the remedies available to creditors under the new Act. It eliminates as unnecessary and confusing a differentiation made in the original Act between the remedies available to holders of matured claims and those holding unmatured claims. Since promulgation of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act the Supreme Court has imposed restrictions on the availability and use of prejudgment remedies. As a result many states have amended their statutes and rules applicable to such remedies, and it is frequently unclear whether a state's procedures include a prejudgment remedy against a fraudulent transfer or obligation. A bracketed paragraph is included in Section 7 for adoption by those states that elect to make such a remedy available.

Section 8 (numbered as section 38-8-109 in C.R.S.) prescribes the measure of liability of a transferee or obligee under the Act and enumerates defenses. Defenses against avoidance of a preferential transfer to an insider under § 5(b) (numbered as section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.) include an adaptation of defenses available under § 547(c)(2) and (4) of the Bankruptcy Code when such a transfer is sought to be avoided as a preference by the trustee in bankruptcy. In addition a preferential transfer may be justified when shown to be made pursuant to a good faith effort to stave off forced liquidation and rehabilitate the debtor. Section 8 also precludes avoidance, as a constructively fraudulent transfer, of the termination of a lease on default or the enforcement of a security interest in compliance with Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code.

The new Act includes a new section specifying when a transfer is made or an obligation is incurred. The section specifying the time when a transfer occurs is adapted from Section 548(d) of the Bankruptcy Code. Its premise is that if the law prescribes a mode for making the transfer a matter of public record or notice, it is not deemed to be made for any purpose under the Act until it has become such a matter of record or notice.

The new Act also includes a statute of limitations that bars the right rather than the remedy on expiration of the statutory periods prescribed. The law governing limitations on actions to avoid fraudulent transfers among the states is unclear and full of diversity. The Act recognizes that laches and estoppel may operate to preclude a particular creditor from pursuing a remedy against a fraudulent transfer or obligation even though the statutory period of limitations has not run.

38-8-101. Short title. This article shall be known and may be cited as the "Colorado Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act".

Editor's note - Colorado legislative change: This section was numbered as section 12 in the uniform act. Colorado placed it here and renumbered the succeeding sections accordingly. Colorado also used its own numbering system for subsections and paragraphs within sections. Where necessary, these changes will be noted in the comments.

38-8-102. Definitions. As used in this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Affiliate" means:

(a) A person who directly or indirectly owns, controls, or holds with power to vote twenty percent or more of the outstanding voting securities of the debtor, other than a person who holds the securities:

- (I) As a fiduciary or agent without sole discretionary power to vote the securities; or
- (II) Solely to secure a debt, if the person has not exercised the power to vote;

(b) A corporation, twenty percent or more of whose outstanding voting securities are directly or indirectly owned, controlled, or held with power to vote, by the debtor or a person who directly or indirectly owns, controls, or holds with power to vote, twenty percent or more of the outstanding voting securities of the debtor, other than a person who holds the securities:

- (I) As a fiduciary or agent without sole power to vote the securities; or
- (II) Solely to secure a debt, if the person has not in fact exercised the power to vote;

(c) A person whose business is operated by the debtor under a lease or other agreement, or a person substantially all of whose assets are controlled by the debtor; or

(d) A person who operates the debtor's business under a lease or other agreement or controls substantially all of the debtor's assets.

(2) "Asset" means property of a debtor. "Asset" shall not include:

(a) Property to the extent it is encumbered by a valid lien;

(b) Property to the extent it is generally exempt immediately prior to the time of transfer under nonbankruptcy law; or

(c) An interest in property held in tenancy by the entireties to the extent it is not subject to process by a creditor holding a claim against only one tenant.

(3) "Claim" means a right to payment, whether or not the right is reduced to judgment, liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured, unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured, or unsecured.

(4) "Control" of a debtor or debtor's property by another person does not include conduct undertaken by the other person to enforce rights existing under a valid agreement, entered into in good faith and not primarily for the purpose of obtaining control of the debtor or the debtor's property, including without limitation a lease of such property.

(5) "Creditor" means a person who has a claim.

(6) "Debt" means liability on a claim.

(7) "Debtor" means a person who is liable on a claim.

(8) "Insider" means:

(a) If the debtor is an individual:

(I) A relative of the debtor or of a general partner of the debtor;

(II) A partnership in which the debtor is a general partner;

(III) A general partner in a partnership described in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (a); or

(IV) A corporation of which the debtor is a director, officer, or person in control;

(b) If the debtor is a corporation:

(I) A director of the debtor;

(II) An officer of the debtor;

(III) A person in control of the debtor;

(IV) A partnership in which the debtor is a general partner;

(V) A general partner in a partnership described in subparagraph (IV) of this paragraph (b); or

(VI) A relative of a general partner, director, officer, or person in control of the debtor;

(c) If the debtor is a partnership:

(I) A general partner in the debtor;

(II) A relative of a general partner in, or a general partner of, or a person in control of the debtor;

(III) Another partnership in which the debtor is a general partner;

(IV) A general partner in a partnership described in subparagraph (III) of this paragraph (c); or

(V) A person in control of the debtor;

(d) An affiliate, or an insider of an affiliate as if the affiliate were the debtor; or

(e) A managing agent of the debtor.

(9) “Lien” means a charge against or an interest in property to secure payment of a debt or performance of an obligation, and includes a security interest created by agreement, a judicial lien obtained by legal or equitable process or proceedings, a common-law lien, or a statutory lien.

(10) “Person” means an individual, partnership, corporation, association, organization, government or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, estate, trust, or any other legal or commercial entity.

(11) “Property” means anything that may be the subject of ownership.

(12) “Relative” means an individual related by consanguinity within the third degree as determined by the common law, a spouse, or an individual related to a spouse within the third degree as so determined, and includes an individual in an adoptive relationship within the third degree.

(13) “Transfer” means every mode, direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, voluntary or involuntary, of disposing of or parting with an asset or an interest in an asset, and includes payment of money, release, lease, and creation of a lien or other encumbrance.

(14) “Valid lien” means a lien that is effective against the holder of a judicial lien subsequently obtained by legal or equitable process or proceedings.

Editor’s note - Colorado legislative change: This section was numbered as section 1 in the uniform act. In the introductory portion to this section, after the word “article”, Colorado added a comma and the words “unless the context otherwise requires”. In the introductory portion to subsection (2), Colorado replaced a comma with a period and changed the words “but the term does not include” to “‘Asset’ shall not include”. In subsection (2) (b), after “exempt”, Colorado added “immediately prior to the time of transfer”. The definition of “control” in subsection (4) has been added and subsequent definitions renumbered accordingly. In subsection (8), the word “means” has been substituted for “includes”.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) The definition of “affiliate” is derived from § 101(2) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(2) The definition of “asset” is substantially to the same effect as the definition of “assets” in § 1 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. The definition in this Act, unlike that in the earlier Act, does not, however require a determination that the property is liable for the debts of the debtor. Thus, an unliquidated claim for damages resulting from personal injury or a contingent claim of a surety for reimbursement, contribution, or subrogation may be counted as an asset for the purpose of determining whether the holder of the claim is solvent as a debtor under § 2 of this Act (numbered as section 38-8-103 in C.R.S.), although applicable law may not allow such an asset to be levied on and sold by a creditor. Cf. Manufacturers & Traders Trust Co. v. Goldman (In re Ollag Construction Equipment Corp.), 578 F.2d 904, 907-09 (2d Cir. 1978).

Subparagraphs (i), (ii), and (iii) (paragraph (a), (b), and (c) in C.R.S.) provide clarification by excluding from the term not only generally exempt property but also an interest in a tenancy by the entirety in many states and an interest that is generally beyond reach by unsecured creditors because subject to a valid lien. This Act, like its predecessor and the Statute of 13 Elizabeth, declares rights and provides remedies for unsecured creditors against transfers that impede them in the collection of their claims. The laws protecting valid liens against impairment by levying creditors, exemption statutes, and the rules restricting levyability of interest in entireties property are limitations on the rights and remedies of unsecured creditors, and it is therefore appropriate to exclude property interests that are beyond the reach of unsecured creditors from the definition of “asset” for the purposes of this Act.

A creditor of a joint tenant or tenant in common may ordinarily collect a judgment by process against the tenant’s interest, and in some states a creditor of a tenant by the entirety may likewise collect a judgment by process against the tenant’s interest. See 2 American Law of Property 10, 22, 28-32 (1952); Craig, An Analysis of Estates by the Entirety in Bankruptcy, 48 Am.Bankr.L.J. 255, 258-59 (1974). The levyable interest of such a tenant is included as an asset under this Act.

The definition of “assets” in the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act excluded property that is exempt from liability for debts. The definition did not, however, exclude all property that cannot be reached by a creditor through judicial proceedings to collect a debt. Thus, it included the interest of a tenant by the entirety although in nearly half the states such an interest cannot be subjected to liability for a debt unless it is an obligation owed jointly by the debtor with his or her cotenant by the entirety. See 2 American Law of Property 29 (1952); Craig, An Analysis of Estates by the Entirety in Bankruptcy, 48 Am.Bankr.L.J. 255, 258 (1974). The definition in this Act requires exclusion of interests in property held by tenants by the entirety that are not subject to collection process by a creditor without a right to proceed against both tenants by the entirety as joint debtors.

The reference to "generally exempt" property in § 1(2)(ii) (numbered as section 38-8-102 (2)(b) in C.R.S.) recognizes that all exemptions are subject to exceptions. Creditors having special rights against generally exempt property typically include claimants for alimony, taxes, wages, the purchase price of the property, and labor or materials that improve the property. See Uniform Exemptions Act § 10 and the accompanying Comment. The fact that a particular creditor may reach generally exempt property by resorting to judicial process does not warrant its inclusion as an asset in determining whether the debtor is insolvent.

Since this Act is not an exclusive law on the subject of voidable transfers and obligations (see Comment (8) to § 4 infra) (numbered as section 38-8-105 in C.R.S.), it does not preclude the holder of a claim that may be collected by process against property generally exempt as to other creditors from obtaining relief from a transfer of such property that hinders, delays, or defrauds the holder of such a claim. Likewise the holder of an unsecured claim enforceable against tenants by the entirety is not precluded by the Act from pursuing a remedy against a transfer of property held by the entirety that hinders, delays, or defrauds the holder of such a claim.

Nonbankruptcy law is the law of a state or federal law that is not part of the Bankruptcy Code, Title 11 of the United States Code. The definition of an "asset" thus does not include property that would be subject to administration for the benefit of creditors under the Bankruptcy Code unless it is subject under other applicable law, state or federal, to process for the collection of a creditor's claim against a single debtor.

(3) The definition of "claim" is derived from § 101(4) of the Bankruptcy Code. Since the purpose of this Act is primarily to protect unsecured creditors against transfers and obligations injurious to their rights, the words "claim" and "debt" as used in the Act generally have reference to an unsecured claim and debt. As the context may indicate, however, usage of the terms is not so restricted. See, e.g. §§ 1(1)(i)(B) (numbered as section 38-8-102 (1)(b)(II) in C.R.S.) and 1(8) (numbered as section 38-8-102 (9) in C.R.S.).

(4) The definition of "creditor" in combination with the definition of "claim" has substantially the same effect as the definition of "creditor" under § 1 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. As under that Act, the holder of an unliquidated tort claim or a contingent claim may be a creditor protected by this Act.

(5) The definition of "debt" is derived from § 101(11) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(6) The definition of "debtor" is new.

(7) The definition of "insider" is derived from § 101(28) of the Bankruptcy Code. The definition has been restricted in clauses (i)(C), (ii)(E), and (iii)(D) (clauses (a)(III), (b)(V), and (c)(IV) in C.R.S.), to make clear that a partner is not an insider of an individual, corporation, or partnership if any of these latter three persons is only a limited partner. The definition of "insider" in the Bankruptcy Code does not purport to make a limited partner an insider of the partners or of the partnership with which the limited partner is associated, but it is susceptible of a contrary interpretation and one which would extend unduly the scope of the defined relationship when the limited partner is not a person in control of the partnership. The definition of "insider" in this Act also differs from the definition in the Bankruptcy Code in omitting the reference in 11 U.S.C. § 101(28)(D) to an elected official or relative of such an official as an insider of a municipality. As in the Bankruptcy Code (see 11 U.S.C. § 102(3)), the word "includes" is not limiting, however. Thus, a court may find a person living with an individual for an extended time in the same household or as a permanent companion to have the kind of close relationship intended to be covered by the term "insider." Likewise, a trust may be found to be an insider of a beneficiary.

(8) The definition of "lien" is derived from paragraphs (30), (31), (43), and (45) of § 101 of the Bankruptcy Code, which define "judicial lien," "lien," "security interest," and "statutory lien" respectively.

(9) The definition of "person" is adapted from paragraphs (28) and (30) of § 1-201 of the Uniform Commercial Code, defining "organization" and "person" respectively.

(10) The definition of "property" is derived from § 1-201(33) of the Uniform Probate Code (see section 15-10-201 (36) in C.R.S.). Property includes both real and personal property, whether tangible or intangible, and any interest in property, whether legal or equitable.

(11) The definition of "relative" is derived from § 101(37) of the Bankruptcy Code but is explicit in its references to the spouse of a debtor in view of uncertainty as to whether the common law determines degrees of relationship by affinity.

(12) The definition of "transfer" is derived principally from § 101(48) of the Bankruptcy Code. The definition of "conveyance" in § 1 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act was similarly comprehensive, and the references in this Act to "payment of money, release, lease, and the creation of a lien or incumbrance" are derived from the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. While the definition in the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act did not explicitly refer to an involuntary transfer, the decisions under that Act were generally consistent with an interpretation that covered such a transfer. See, e.g., Hearn 45 St. Corp. v. Jano, 283 N.Y. 139, 27 N.E.2d 814, 128 A.L.R. 1285 (1940) (execution and foreclosure sales); Lefkowitz v. Finkelstein Trading Corp., 14 F.Supp. 898, 899

(S.D.N.Y. 1936) (execution sale); Langan v. First Trust & Deposit Co., 277 App.Div. 1090, 101 N.Y.S.2d 36 (4th Dept. 1950), aff'd, 302 N.Y. 932, 100 N.E.2d 189 (1951) (mortgage foreclosure); Catabene v. Wallner, 16 N.J.Super. 597, 602, 85 A.2d 300, 302 (1951) (mortgage foreclosure).

(13) The definition of "valid lien" is new. A valid lien includes an equitable lien that may not be defeated by a judicial lien creditor. See, e.g., Pearlman v. Reliance Insurance Co., 371 U.S. 132, 136 (1962) (upholding a surety's equitable lien in respect to a fund owing a bankrupt contractor).

ANNOTATION

"Creditor" includes persons with unlitigated claims against a defendant. Sands v. New Age Family P'ship, Ltd., 897 P.2d 917 (Colo. App. 1995).

"Insider" includes spouses; therefore, the burden of proof lies with the creditor to prove each and every element of a fraudulent transfer under the statute before the debtor and spouse must come forward to prove their entitlement to the defense of good faith and reasonably equivalent value. In re Thomason, 202 Bankr. 768 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1996).

"Obligation," not specifically defined in this section, is generally synonymous with "transfer" and includes the assumption by the debtor of a duty to transfer an asset as a fraudulent transfer, even though no actual transfer has as yet taken place. Sands v. New Age Family P'ship, Ltd., 897 P.2d 917 (Colo. App. 1995).

Neither "transfer" nor "obligation" refers to the creditor's claim against the debtor, but refers instead to the transaction by which the debtor sought to place assets beyond the reach of creditors. Sands v. New Age Family P'ship, Ltd., 897 P.2d 917 (Colo. App. 1995).

A transaction between a husband and wife is presumptively fraudulent. Nevertheless, the movant must still establish an intent to hinder, delay, or defraud. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

38-8-103. Insolvency. (1) A debtor is insolvent if the sum of the debtor's debts is greater than all of the debtor's assets at a fair valuation.

(2) A debtor who is generally not paying his debts as they become due is presumed to be insolvent.

(3) A partnership is insolvent under subsection (1) of this section if the sum of the partnership's debts is greater than the aggregate of all of the partnership's assets, at a fair valuation, and the sum of the excess of the value of each general partner's nonpartnership assets over the partner's nonpartnership debts.

(4) Assets under this section do not include property that has been transferred, concealed, or removed with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or that has been transferred in a manner making the transfer voidable under this article.

(5) Debts under this section do not include an obligation to the extent it is secured by a valid lien on property of the debtor not included as an asset.

Editor's note - Colorado legislative change: This section was numbered as section 2 in the uniform act. In subsection (3), the phrase "at a fair valuation" has been moved from immediately after "aggregate" to immediately after the first "assets".

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) Subsection (a) (numbered as subsection (1) in C.R.S.) is derived from the definition of "insolvent" in § 101(29)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code. The definition in subsection (a) and the correlated definition of partnership insolvency in subsection (c) (numbered as subsection (3) in C.R.S.) contemplate a fair valuation of the debts as well as the assets of the debtor. As under the definition of the same term in § 2 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act exempt property is excluded from the computation of the value of the assets. See § 1(2) supra. (numbered as section 38-8-102 (2) in C.R.S.) For similar reasons interests in valid spendthrift trusts and interests in tenancies by the entireties that cannot be severed by a creditor of only one tenant are not included. See the Comment to § 1(2) supra. (numbered as section 38-8-102 (2) in C.R.S.) Since a valid lien also precludes an unsecured creditor from collecting the creditor's claim from the encumbered interest in a debtor's property, both the encumbered interest and the debt secured thereby are excluded from the computation of insolvency under this Act. See § 1(2) supra (numbered as section 38-8-102 (2) in C.R.S.) and subsection (e) of this section (numbered as subsection (5) in C.R.S.).

The requirement of § 550(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code that a transferee be "without knowledge of the voidability of the transfer" in order to be protected has been omitted as inappropriate. Knowledge of the facts rendering the transfer voidable would be inconsistent with the good faith that is required of a protected transferee. Knowledge of the voidability of a transfer would seem to involve a legal conclusion. Determination of the voidability of the transfer ought not to require the court to inquire into the legal sophistication of the transferee.

(2) Section 2(b) (numbered as section 38-8-103 (2) in C.R.S.) establishes a rebuttable presumption of insolvency from the fact of general nonpayment of debts as they become due. Such general nonpayment is a ground for the filing of an involuntary petition under § 303(h)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. See also U.C.C. § 1-201(23), which declares a person to be "insolvent" who "has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business." The presumption imposes on the party against whom the presumption is directed the burden of proving that the nonexistence of insolvency as defined in § 2(a) is more probable than its existence. See Uniform Rules of Evidence (1974 Act), Rule 301(a). The 1974 Uniform Rule 301(a) conforms to the Final Draft of Federal Rule 301 as submitted to the United States Supreme Court by the Advisory Committee on Federal Rules of Evidence. "The so-called 'bursting bubble' theory, under which a presumption vanishes upon the introduction of evidence which would support a finding of the nonexistence of the presumed fact, even though not believed, is rejected as according presumptions too 'slight and evanescent' an effect." Advisory Committee's Note to Rule 301. See also 1 J.Weinstein & M.Berger, Evidence 301 [01] (1982).

The presumption is established in recognition of the difficulties typically imposed on a creditor in proving insolvency in the bankruptcy sense, as provided in subsection (a) (numbered as subsection (1) in C.R.S.). See generally Levit, The Archaic Concept of Balance-Sheet Insolvency, 47 Am.Bankr.L.J. 215 (1973). Not only is the relevant information in the possession of a non-cooperative debtor but the debtor's records are more often than not incomplete and inaccurate. As a practical matter, insolvency is most cogently evidenced by a general cessation of payment of debts; as has long been recognized by the laws of other countries and is now reflected in the Bankruptcy Code. See Honsberger, Failure to Pay One's Debts Generally as They Become Due: The Experience of France and Canada, 54 Am.Bankr.L.J. 153 (1980); J. MacLachlan, Bankruptcy 13, 63-64, 436 (1956). In determining whether a debtor is paying its debts generally as they become due, the court should look at more than the amount and due dates of the indebtedness. The court should also take into account such factors as the number of the debtor's debts, the proportion of those debts not being paid, the duration of the nonpayment, and the existence of bona fide disputes or other special circumstances alleged to constitute an explanation for the stoppage of payments. The court's determination may be affected by a consideration of the debtor's payment practices prior to the period of alleged nonpayment and the payment practices of the trade or industry in which the debtor is engaged. The case law that has developed under § 303(h)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code has not required a showing that a debtor has failed or refused to pay a majority in number and amount of his or her debts in order to prove general nonpayment of debts as they become due. See, e.g., Hill v. Cargill, Inc. (In re Hill), 8 B.R. 779, 3 C.B.C.2d 920 (Bk.D.Minn. 1981) (nonpayment of three largest debts held to constitute general nonpayment, although small debts were being paid); In re All Media Properties, Inc., 5 B.R. 126, 6 B.C.D. 586, 2 C.B.C.2d 449 (Bk.S.D.Tex. 1980) (missing significant number of payments or regularly missing payments significant in amount said to constitute general nonpayment; missing payments on more than 50% of aggregate of claims said not to be required to show general nonpayment; nonpayment for more than 30 days after billing held to establish nonpayment of a debt when it is due); In re Kreidler Import Corp., 4 B.R. 256, 6 B.C.D. 608, 2 C.B.C.2d 159 (Bk.D.Md. 1980) (nonpayment of one debt constituting 97% of debtor's total indebtedness held to constitute general nonpayment). A presumption of insolvency does not arise from nonpayment of a debt as to which there is a genuine bona fide dispute, even though the debt is a substantial part of the debtor's indebtedness. Cf. 11 U.S.C. § 303(h)(1), as amended by § 426(b) of Public Law No. 98-882, the Bankruptcy Amendments and Federal Judgeship Act of 1984.

(3) Subsection (c) (numbered as subsection (3) in C.R.S.) is derived from the definition of partnership insolvency in § 101(29)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code. The definition conforms generally to the definition of the same term in § 2(2) of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act.

(4) Subsection (d) (numbered as subsection (4) in C.R.S.) follows the approach of the definition of "insolvency" in § 101(29) of the Bankruptcy Code by excluding from the computation of the value of the debtor's assets any value that can be realized only by avoiding a transfer of an interest formerly held by the debtor or by discovery or pursuit of property that has been fraudulently concealed or removed.

(5). Subsection (e) (numbered as subsection (5) in C.R.S.) is new. It makes clear the purpose not to render a person insolvent under this section by counting as a debt an obligation secured by property of the debtor that is not counted as an asset. See also Comments to §§ 1(2) (numbered as section 38-8-102 (2) in C.R.S.) and 2(a) supra (numbered as section 38-8-103 (1) in C.R.S.).

38-8-104. Value. (1) Value is given for a transfer or an obligation if, in exchange for the transfer or obligation, property is transferred or an antecedent debt is secured or satisfied, but value does not include an unperformed promise made otherwise than in the ordinary course of the promisor's business to furnish support to the debtor or another person.

(2) For the purposes of sections 38-8-105 and 38-8-106, a person gives a reasonably equivalent value if the person acquires an interest of the debtor in an asset pursuant to a regularly conducted, noncollusive sale, foreclosing on assets subject to a lien, or pursuant to the execution of a power of sale for the acquisition or disposition of the interest of the debtor upon default under a mortgage, deed of trust, or security agreement.

(3) A transfer is made for present value if the exchange between the debtor and the transferee is intended by them to be contemporaneous and is in fact substantially contemporaneous.

Editor's note - Colorado legislative change: This section was numbered as section 3 in the uniform act. In subsection (2), after "conducted," the phrase "noncollusive foreclosure sale or execution" has been changed to "noncollusive sale, foreclosing on assets subject to a lien, or pursuant to the execution".

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) This section defines "value" as used in various contexts in this Act, frequently with a qualifying adjective. The word appears in the following sections:

4(a)(2) (numbered as section 38-8-105 (1)(b) in C.R.S.) ("reasonably equivalent value");

4(b)(8) (numbered as section 38-8-105 (2)(h) in C.R.S.) ("value ... reasonably equivalent");

5(a) (numbered as section 38-8-106 (1) in C.R.S.) ("reasonably equivalent value");

5(b) (numbered as section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.) ("present, reasonably equivalent value");

8(a) (numbered as section 38-8-109 (1) in C.R.S.) ("reasonably equivalent value");

8(b), (c), (d), and (e) (numbered as section 38-8-109 (2), (3), (4), and (5) in C.R.S.) ("value");

8(f)(1) (numbered as section 38-8-109 (6)(a) in C.R.S.) ("new value"); and 8(f)(3) (numbered as section 38-8-109 (6)(c) in C.R.S.) ("present value").

(2) Section 3(a) (numbered as section 38-8-104 (1) in C.R.S.) is adapted from § 548(d)(2)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code. See also § 3(a) of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. The definition in Section 3 is not exclusive. "Value" is to be determined in light of the purpose of the Act to protect a debtor's estate from being depleted to the prejudice of the debtor's unsecured creditors. Consideration having no utility from a creditor's viewpoint does not satisfy the statutory definition. The definition does not specify all the kinds of consideration that do not constitute value for the purposes of this Act—e.g., love and affection. See, e.g., United States v. West, 299 F.Supp. 661, 666 (D.Del. 1969).

(3) Section 3(a) does not indicate what is "reasonably equivalent value" for a transfer or obligation. Under this Act, as under § 548(a)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code, a transfer for security is ordinarily for a reasonably equivalent value notwithstanding a discrepancy between the value of the asset transferred and the debt secured, since the amount of the debt is the measure of the value of the interest in the asset that is transferred. See, e.g., Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Co. v. Holy Family Polish Nat'l Catholic Church, Carnegie, Pa., 341 Pa. 390, 19 A.2d 360 (1941). If, however, a transfer purports to secure more than the debt actually incurred or to be incurred, it may be found to be for less than a reasonably equivalent value. See e.g., In re Peoria Braumeister Co., 138 F.2d 520, 523 (7th Cir. 1943) (chattel mortgage securing a $3,000 note held to be fraudulent when the debt secured was only $2,500); Hartford Acc. & Indemnity Co. v. Jirasek, 254 Mich. 131, 140, 235 N.W. 836, 839 (1931) (quitclaim deed given as mortgage held to be fraudulent to the extent the value of the property transferred exceeded the indebtedness secured). If the debt is a fraudulent obligation under this Act, a transfer to secure it as well as the obligation would be vulnerable to attack as fraudulent. A transfer to satisfy or secure an antecedent debt owed an insider is also subject to avoidance under the conditions specified in Section 5(b) (numbered as section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.).

(4) Section 3(a) of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act has been thought not to recognize that an unperformed promise could constitute fair consideration. See McLaughlin, Application of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, 46 Harv.L.Rev. 404, 414 (1933). Courts construing these provisions of the prior law nevertheless have held unperformed promises to constitute value in a variety of circumstances. See, e.g., Harper v. Lloyd's Factors, Inc., 214 F.2d 662 (2d Cir. 1954) (transfer of money for promise of factor to discount transferor's purchase-money notes given to fur dealer); Schlecht v. Schlecht, 168 Minn. 168, 176-77, 209 N.W. 883, 886-87 (1926) (transfer for promise to make repairs and improvements on transferor's homestead); Farmer's Exchange Bank v. Oneida Motor Truck Co., 202 Wis. 266, 232 N.W. 536 (1930) (transfer in consideration of assumption of certain of transferor's liabilities); see also Hummel v. Cernocky, 161 F.2d 685 (7th Cir. 1947) (transfer in consideration of cash, assumption of a mortgage, payment of certain debts, and agreement to pay other debts). Likewise a transfer in consideration of a negotiable note discountable at a commercial bank, or the purchase from an established, solvent institution of an insurance policy, annuity, or contract to provide care and accommodations clearly appears to be for value. On the other hand, a transfer for an unperformed promise by an individual to support a parent or other transferor has generally been held voidable as a fraud on creditors of the transferor. See, e.g., Springfield Ins. Co. v. Fry, 267 F.Supp. 693 (N.D.Okla. 1967); Sandler v. Parlapiano, 236 App.Div. 70, 258 N.Y.Supp. 88 (1st Dep't 1932); Warwick Municipal Employees Credit Union v. Higham, 106 R.E. 363, 259 A.2d 852 (1969); Hulsether v.

Sanders, 54 S.D. 412, 223 N.W. 335 (1929); Cooper v. Cooper, 22 Tenn.App. 473, 477, 124 S.W.2d 264, 267 (1939); Note, Rights of Creditors in Property Conveyed in Consideration of Future Support, 45 Iowa L.Rev. 546, 550-62 (1960). This Act adopts the view taken in the cases cited in determining whether an unperformed promise is value.

(5) Subsection (b) (numbered as subsection (2) in C.R.S.) rejects the rule of such cases as Durrett v. Washington Nat. Ins. Co., 621 F.2d 201 (5th Cir. 1980) (nonjudicial foreclosure of a mortgage avoided as a fraudulent transfer when the property of an insolvent mortgagor was sold for less than 70% of its fair value); and Abramson v. Lakewood Bank & Trust Co., 647 F.2d 547 (5th Cir. 1981), cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1164 (1982) (nonjudicial foreclosure held to be fraudulent transfer if made without fair consideration). Subsection (b) adopts the view taken in Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. v. Madrid (In re Madrid), 21 B.R. 424 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1982), aff'd on another ground, 725 F.2d 1197 (9th Cir. 1984), that the price bid at a public foreclosure sale determines the fair value of the property sold. Subsection (b) prescribes the effect of a sale meeting its requirements, whether the asset sold is personal or real property. The rule of this subsection applies to a foreclosure by sale of the interest of a vendee under an installment land contract in accordance with applicable law that requires or permits the foreclosure to be effected by a sale in the same manner as the foreclosure of a mortgage. See G.Osborne, G.Nelson, & D.Whitman, Real Estate Finance Law 83-84, 95-97 (1979). The premise of the subsection is that "a sale of the collateral by the secured party as the normal consequence of default . . . [is] the safest way of establishing the fair value of the collateral . . ." 2 G.Gilmore, Security Interests in Personal Property, 1227 (1965).

If a lien given an insider for a present consideration is not perfected as against a subsequent bona fide purchaser or is so perfected after a delay following an extension of credit secured by the lien, foreclosure of the lien may result in a transfer for an antecedent debt that is voidable under Section 5(b) infra (numbered as section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.). Subsection (b) does not apply to an action under Section 4(a)(1) (numbered as section 38-8-105 (1)(a) in C.R.S.) to avoid a transfer or obligation because made or incurred with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor.

(6) Subsection (c) (numbered as subsection (3) in C.R.S.) is an adaptation of § 547(c)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. A transfer to an insider for an antecedent debt may be voidable under § 5(b) infra (numbered as section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.).

38-8-105. Transfers fraudulent as to present and future creditors. (1) A transfer made or obligation incurred by a debtor is fraudulent as to a creditor, whether the creditor's claim arose before or after the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation:

- (a) With actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of the debtor; or
- (b) Without receiving a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation, and the debtor:

(I) Was engaged or was about to engage in a business or a transaction for which the remaining assets of the debtor were unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction; or

(II) Intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed that he would incur, debts beyond his ability to pay as they became due.

(2) In determining actual intent under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section, consideration may be given, among other factors, to whether:

- (a) The transfer or obligation was to an insider;
- (b) The debtor retained possession or control of the property transferred after the transfer;
- (c) The transfer or obligation was disclosed or concealed;
- (d) Before the transfer was made or obligation was incurred, the debtor had been sued or threatened with suit;
- (e) The transfer was of substantially all the debtor's assets;
- (f) The debtor absconded;
- (g) The debtor removed or concealed assets;
- (h) The value of the consideration received by the debtor was reasonably equivalent to the value of the asset transferred or the amount of the obligation incurred;
- (i) The debtor was insolvent or became insolvent shortly after the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred;
- (j) The transfer occurred shortly before or shortly after a substantial debt was incurred; and
- (k) The debtor transferred the essential assets of the business to a lienor who transferred the assets to an insider of the debtor.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) Section 4(a)(1) (numbered as section 38-8-105 (1)(a) in C.R.S.) is derived from § 7 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. Factors appropriate for consideration in determining actual intent under paragraph (1) (paragraph (a) in C.R.S.) are specified in subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.).

(2) Section 4(a)(2) (numbered as section 38-8-105 (1)(b) in C.R.S.) is derived from §§ 5 and 6 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act but substitutes "reasonably equivalent value" for "fair consideration." The transferee's good faith was an element of "fair consideration" as defined in § 3 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, and lack of fair consideration was one of the elements of a fraudulent transfer as defined in four sections of the Uniform Act. The transferee's good faith is irrelevant to a determination of the adequacy of the consideration under this Act, but lack of good faith may be a basis for withholding protection of a transferee or obligee under § 8 infra (numbered as section 38-8-109 in C.R.S.).

(3) Unlike the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act as originally promulgated, this Act does not prescribe different tests when a transfer is made for the purpose of security and when it is intended to be absolute. The premise of this Act is that when a transfer is for security only, the equity or value of the asset that exceeds the amount of the debt secured remains available to unsecured creditors and thus cannot be regarded as the subject of a fraudulent transfer merely because of the encumbrance resulting from an otherwise valid security transfer. Disproportion between the value of the asset securing the debt and the size of the debt secured does not, in the absence of circumstances indicating a purpose to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, constitute an impermissible hindrance to the enforcement of other creditors' rights against the debtor-transferor. Cf. U.C.C. § 9-311.

(4) Subparagraph (i) of § 4(a)(2) (subparagraph (I) of section 38-8-105 (1)(b) in C.R.S.) is an adaptation of § 5 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act but substitutes “unreasonably small [assets] in relation to the business or transaction” for “unreasonably small capital.” The reference to “capital” in the Uniform Act is ambiguous in that it may refer to net worth or to the par value of stock or to the consideration received for stock issued. The special meanings of “capital” in corporation law have no relevance in the law of fraudulent transfers. The subparagraph focuses attention on whether the amount of all the assets retained by the debtor was inadequate, i.e., unreasonably small, in light of the needs of the business or transaction in which the debtor was engaged or about to engage.

(5) Subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.) is a nonexclusive catalogue of factors appropriate for consideration by the court in determining whether the debtor had an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud one or more creditors. Proof of the existence of any one or more of the factors enumerated in subsection (b) may be relevant evidence as to the debtor’s actual intent but does not create a presumption that the debtor has made a fraudulent transfer or incurred a fraudulent obligation. The list of factors includes most of the badges of fraud that have been recognized by the courts in construing and applying the Statute of 13 Elizabeth and § 7 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. Proof of the presence of certain badges in combination establishes fraud conclusively—i.e., without regard to the actual intent of the parties—when they concur as provided in § 4(a)(2) or in § 5 (section 38-8-105 (1)(b) or in section 38-8-106 in C.R.S.). The fact that a transfer has been made to a relative or to an affiliated corporation has not been regarded as a badge of fraud sufficient to warrant avoidance when unaccompanied by any other evidence of fraud. The courts have uniformly recognized, however, that a transfer to a closely related person warrants close scrutiny of the other circumstances, including the nature and extent of the consideration exchanged. See 1 G. Glenn, Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences § 307 (Rev. ed. 1940). The second, third, fourth, and fifth factors listed are all adapted from the classic catalogue of badges of fraud provided by Lord Coke in Twyne’s Case, 3 Coke 80b, 76 Eng.Rep. 809 (Star Chamber 1601). Lord Coke also included the use of a trust and the recitation in the instrument of transfer that it “was made honestly, truly, and bona fide,” but the use of the trust is fraudulent only when accompanied by elements or badges specified in this Act, and recitals of “good faith” can no longer be regarded as significant evidence of a fraudulent intent.

(6) In considering the factors listed in § 4(b) (section 38-8-105 (2) in C.R.S.) a court should evaluate all the relevant circumstances involving a challenged transfer or obligation. Thus the court may appropriately take into account all indicia negating as well as those suggesting fraud, as illustrated in the following reported cases:

(a) Whether the transfer or obligation was to an insider: Salomon v. Kaiser (In re Kaiser), 722 F.2d 1574, 1582-83 (2d Cir. 1983) (insolvent debtor’s purchase of two residences in the name of his spouse and the creation of a dummy corporation for the purpose of concealing assets held to evidence fraudulent intent); Banner Construction Corp. v. Arnold, 128 So.2d 893 (Fla. Dist. App. 1961) (assignment by one corporation to another having identical directors and stockholders constituted a badge of fraud); Travelers Indemnity Co. v. Cormaney, 258 Iowa 237, 138 N.W.2d 50 (1965) (transfer between spouses said to be a circumstance that shed suspicion on the transfer and that with other circumstances warranted avoidance); Hatheway v. Hanson, 230 Iowa 386, 297 N.W. 824 (1941) (transfer from parent to child said to require a critical examination of surrounding circumstances, which, together with other indicia of fraud, warranted avoidance); Lumpkins v. McPhee, 59 N.M. 442, 286 P.2d 299 (1955) (transfer from daughter to mother said to be indicative of fraud but transfer held not to be fraudulent due to adequacy of consideration and delivery of possession by transferor).

(b) Whether the transferor retained possession or control of the property after the transfer: Harris v. Shaw, 224 Ark. 150, 272 S.W.2d 53 (1954) (retention of property by transferor said to be a badge of fraud and, together with other badges, to warrant avoidance of transfer); Stephens v. Reginstein, 89 Ala. 561, 8 So. 68 (1890) (transferor’s retention of control and management of property and business after transfer held material in determining transfer to be fraudulent); Allen v. Massey, 84 U.S. (17 Wall.) 351 (1872) (joint possession of furniture by transferor and transferee considered in holding transfer to be fraudulent); Warner v. Norton, 61 U.S. (20 How.) 448 (1857) (surrender of possession by transferor deemed to negate allegations of fraud).

(c) Whether the transfer or obligation was concealed or disclosed: Walton v. First National Bank, 13 Colo. 265, 22 P. 440 (1889) (agreement between parties to conceal the transfer from the public said to be one of the strongest badges of fraud); Warner v. Norton, 61 U.S. (20 How.) 448 (1857) (although secrecy said to be a circumstance from which, when coupled with other badges, fraud may be inferred, transfer was held not to be fraudulent when made in good faith and transferor surrendered possession); W.T. Raleigh Co. v. Barnett, 253 Ala. 433, 44 So.2d 585 (1950) (failure to record a deed in itself said not to evidence fraud, and transfer held not to be fraudulent).

(d) Whether, before the transfer was made or obligation was incurred, a creditor sued or threatened to sue the debtor: Harris v. Shaw, 224 Ark. 150, 272 S.W. 2d 53 (1954) (transfer held to be fraudulent when causally connected to pendency of litigation and accompanied by other badges of fraud); Pergrem v. Smith, 255 S.W.2d 42 (Ky.App. 1953) (transfer in anticipation of suit deemed to be a badge of fraud; transfer held fraudulent when accompanied by insolvency of transferor who was related to transferee); Bank of Sun Prairie v. Hovig, 218 F.Supp. 769 (W.D.Ark. 1963) (although threat or pendency of litigation said to be an indicator of fraud, transfer was held not to be fraudulent when adequate consideration and good faith were shown).

(e) Whether the transfer was of substantially all the debtor's assets: Walbrun v. Babbitt, 83 U.S. (16 Wall.) 577 (1872) (sale by insolvent retail shop owner of all of his inventory in a single transaction held to be fraudulent); Cole v. Mercantile Trust Co., 133 N.Y. 164, 30 N.E. 847 (1892) (transfer of all property before plaintiff could obtain a judgment held to be fraudulent); Lumpkins v. McPhee, 59 N.M. 442, 286 P.2d 299 (1955) (although transfer of all assets said to indicate fraud, transfer held not to be fraudulent because full consideration was paid and transferor surrendered possession).

(f) Whether the debtor had absconded: In re Thomas, 199 F. 214 (N.D.N.Y. 1912) (when debtor collected all of his money and property with the intent to abscond, fraudulent intent was held to be shown).

(g) Whether the debtor had removed or concealed assets: Bentley v. Young, 210 F. 202 (S.D.N.Y. 1914), aff'd, 223 F. 536 (2d Cir. 1915) (debtor's removal of goods from store to conceal their whereabouts and to sell them held to render sale fraudulent); Cioli v. Kenourgios, 59 Cal.App. 690, 211 P. 838 (1922) (debtor's sale of all assets and shipment of proceeds out of the country held to be fraudulent notwithstanding adequacy of consideration).

(h) Whether the value of the consideration received by the debtor was reasonably equivalent to the value of the asset transferred or the amount of the obligation incurred: Toomay v. Graham, 151 S.W.2d 119 (Mo.App. 1941) (although mere inadequacy of consideration said not to be a badge of fraud, transfer held to be fraudulent when accompanied by badges of fraud); Texas Sand Co. v. Shield, 381 S.W.2d 48 (Tex. 1964) (inadequate consideration said to be an indicator of fraud, and transfer held to be fraudulent because of inadequate consideration, pendency of suit, family relationship of transferee, and fact that all nonexempt property was transferred); Weigel v. Wood, 355 Mo. 11, 194 S.W.2d 40 (1946) (although inadequate consideration said to be a badge of fraud, transfer held not to be fraudulent when inadequacy not gross and not accompanied by any other badge; fact that transfer was from father to son held not sufficient to establish fraud).

(i) Whether the debtor was insolvent or became insolvent shortly after the transfer was made or obligation was incurred: Harris v. Shaw, 224 Ark. 150, 272 S.W. 2d 53 (1954) (insolvency of transferor said to be a badge of fraud and transfer held fraudulent when accompanied by other badges of fraud); Bank of Sun Prairie v. Hovig, 218 F.Supp. 769 (W.D. Ark. 1963) (although the insolvency of the debtor said to be a badge of fraud, transfer held not fraudulent when debtor was shown to be solvent, adequate consideration was paid, and good faith was shown, despite the pendency of suit); Wareheim v. Bayliss, 149 Md. 103, 131 A. 27 (1925) (although insolvency of debtor acknowledged to be an indicator of fraud, transfer held not to be fraudulent when adequate consideration was paid and whether debtor was insolvent in fact was doubtful).

(j) Whether the transfer occurred shortly before or shortly after a substantial debt was incurred: Commerce Bank of Lebanon v. Halladale A Corp., 618 S.W. 2d 288, 292 (Mo.App. 1981) (when transferors incurred substantial debts near in time to the transfer, transfer was held to be fraudulent due to inadequate consideration, close family relationship, the debtor's retention of possession, and the fact that almost all the debtor's property was transferred).

(7) The effect of the two transfers described in § 4(b)(11) (section 38-8-105 (2)(k) in C.R.S.), if not avoided, may be to permit a debtor and a lienor to deprive the debtor's unsecured creditors of access to the debtor's assets for the purpose of collecting their claims while the debtor, the debtor's affiliate or insider, and the lienor arrange for the beneficial use or disposition of the assets in accordance with their interests. The kind of disposition sought to be reached here is exemplified by that found in Northern Pacific Co. v. Boyd, 228 U.S. 482 (1913), the leading case in establishing the absolute priority doctrine in reorganization law. There the Court held that a reorganization whereby the secured creditors and the management-owners retained their economic interests in a railroad through a foreclosure that cut off claims of unsecured creditors against its assets was in effect a fraudulent disposition (id. at 502-05). See Frank, Some Realistic Reflections on Some Aspects of Corporate Reorganization, 19 Va. L.Rev. 541, 693 (1933). For cases in which an analogous injury to unsecured creditors was inflicted by a lienor and a debtor, see Jackson v. Star Sprinkler Corp. of Florida, 575 F.2d 1223, 1231-34 (8th Cir. 1978); Heath v. Helmick, 173 F.2d 157, 161-62 (9th Cir. 1949);

Toner v. Nuss, 234 F.S. 457, 461-62 (E.D.Pa. 1964); and see In re Spotless Tavern Co., Inc., 4 F.Supp. 752, 753, 755 (D.Md. 1933).

(8) Nothing in § 4(b) (section 38-8-105 (2) in C.R.S.) is intended to affect the application of § 2-402(2), 9-205, 9-301, or 6-105 of the Uniform Commercial Code. Section 2-402(2) recognizes the generally prevailing rule that retention of possession of goods by a seller may be fraudulent but limits the application of the rule by negating any imputation of fraud from "retention of possession in good faith and current course of trade by a merchant-seller for a commercially reasonable time after a sale or identification." Section 9-205 explicitly negates any imputation of fraud from the grant of liberty by a secured creditor to a debtor to use, commingle, or dispose of personal property collateral or to account for its proceeds. The section recognizes that it does not relax prevailing requirements for delivery of possession by a pledgor. Moreover, the section does not mitigate the general requirement of § 9-301(1)(b) that a nonpossessory security interest in personal property must be accompanied by notice-filing to be effective against a levying creditor. Finally, like the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act this Act does not pre-empt the statutes governing bulk transfers, such as Article 6 of the Uniform Commercial Code. Compliance with the cited sections of the Uniform Commercial Code does not, however, insulate a transfer or obligation from avoidance. Thus a sale by an insolvent debtor for less than a reasonably equivalent value would be voidable under this Act notwithstanding compliance with the Uniform Commercial Code.

ANNOTATION

The Colorado Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (CUFTA) changes the common law rule that a claim of conspiracy to fraudulently convey property fails unless the claimant establishes a lien against the property transferred. Double Oak Constr., L.L.C. v. Cornerstone Dev. Int'l, L.L.C., 97 P.3d 140 (Colo. App. 2003).

The principle behind the "lien requirement" rule is that, until a creditor obtains a lien giving him or her vested or specific rights in the debtor's property, the debtor is legally free to do what he or she will with his or her property. However, modern fraudulent transfer law, like CUFTA, has dispensed with the lien requirement, focusing instead on the debtor's intent to frustrate the creditor once its claim is made known. Double Oak Constr., L.L.C. v. Cornerstone Dev. Int'l, L.L.C., 97 P.3d 140 (Colo. App. 2003).

A transfer in violation of CUFTA is a legal wrong that will support a conspiracy claim. A creditor who does not have a lien on the subject property is nevertheless entitled to assert a civil conspiracy cause of action against persons who participate in a fraudulent conveyance. Double Oak Constr., L.L.C. v. Cornerstone Dev. Int'l, L.L.C., 97 P.3d 140 (Colo. App. 2003).

For purposes of CUFTA, the intent of a transferee can be imputed to the debtor when the transferee is in a position to dominate or control the disposition of the debtor's property. Schempp v. Lucre Mgmt. Group, 18 P.3d 762 (Colo. App. 2000).

The transferee's intent is not interchangeable or synonymous with the debtor's intent. Schempp v. Lucre Mgmt. Group, 75 P.3d 1157 (Colo. App. 2003).

Nothing in this section indicates that the plaintiff's burden of proving fraudulent intent may be reduced by attaching a presumption of fraud to a transaction between a principal and an agent. Schempp v. Lucre Mgmt. Group, 75 P.3d 1157 (Colo. App. 2003).

Whether a debtor intended to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors is a question of fact. The movant has the burden of proving all elements of a fraudulent transfer before the debtor must come forward to prove his or her defenses. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

Evidence that transactions were in the ordinary course of business may negate the actual intent element of fraudulent transfer. Sender v. Mann, 423 F. Supp. 2d 1155 (D. Colo. 2006).

In determining whether a transfer is made with actual intent to defraud, CUFTA sets forth several factors, known as the "badges of fraud", from which an inference of fraudulent intent may be drawn. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

When these "badges of fraud" are present in sufficient number, they may give rise to an inference or presumption of an intent to defraud. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

Separate findings are not required on each of the "badges of fraud" in subsection (2) where the findings and the record make it clear that the court was aware of and considered many, if not all, of such factors. Silverberg v. Colantuno, 991 P.2d 280 (Colo. App. 1998).

"Reasonably equivalent value" is not the same as market value, although market value is an important factor to be used in the assessment. Silverberg v. Colantuno, 991 P.2d 280 (Colo. App. 1998).

Whether "reasonably equivalent value" has been received is a question of fact. What constitutes "reasonably equivalent value" for the transfer requires an analysis of all of the facts and circumstances surrounding the trans- action. The standard of reasonably equivalent value implies a rule of reasonableness in light of the particular circumstances. Reasonable equivalence is not synonymous with market value, even though market value is an important factor to be utilized in the assessment. For purposes of the Colorado Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act, equity looks to the substance of the transaction rather than its form. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

A transfer for which the transferor received no direct or indirect benefit cannot be considered reasonably equivalent value, even with the undisputed history of the transfers of the property back and forth between a husband and wife for zero dollars. Leverage Leasing Co. v. Smith, 143 P.3d 1164 (Colo. App. 2006).

Reserve asset was not unreasonably small and was therefore not constructively fraudulent under subsection (1)(b)(I). In dispute over real estate commission between real estate broker and judgment debtor, broker failed to show that debtor should have reasonably foreseen that its distribution of proceeds from real estate sale would create an unreasonable risk of insolvency. CB Richard Ellis, Inc. v. CLGP, LLC, 251 P.3d 523 (Colo. App. 2010).

In considering whether distribution of proceeds from real estate sale was constructively fraudulent under subsection (1)(b)(II), trial court applied the proper two-pronged test, consisting of both a subjective and an objective prong. In dispute over real estate commission between real estate broker and judgment debtor, trial court's finding that debtor did not have an intent or belief that it would be unable to pay entire commission addressed the subject tive prong. With regard to the objective prong, trial court found that debtor's reserve asset was reasonable to pay its debts as they came due. CB Richard Ellis, Inc. v. CLGP, LLC, 251 P.3d 523 (Colo. App. 2010).

The failure to pay the taxes due results in a forfeiture of the original owner's interest in the property, by operation of law, to the state, which then grants title to the property to the holder of the lien free and clear of any other claims. Because the state transferred the tax deeds free of all prior interests, there was no transfer by a debtor, as is required to violate CUFTA. In re Grandote Country Club Co., 252 F.3d 1146 (10th Cir. 2001).

Where property was acquired through a regularly conducted tax sale subject to a competitive bidding procedure, the tax sale constitutes transfer for "reasonably equivalent value" under CUFTA. In re Grandote Country Club Co., 252 F.3d 1146 (10th Cir. 2001).

The recording of a mortgage is a transfer under CUFTA. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

Debtor's assets of between $785,000 and $800,000 were unreasonably small in relation to an allegedly fraudulent transfer under subsection (1)(b)(I) where the debtor was exposed to $2 million in liability. Tiger v. Anderson, 976 P.2d 308 (Colo. App. 1998).

A subsidiary's loan payments on behalf of its corporate parent are made in exchange for reasonably equivalent value if the subsidiary receives a benefit of the loan made to its parent. Ciccarelli v. Guaranty Bank, 99 P.3d 85 (Colo. App. 2004).

Applied in Vickery v. Evelyn V. Trumble Living Trust, __ P.3d __ (Colo. App. 2011).

38-8-106. Transfers fraudulent as to present creditors. (1) A transfer made or obligation incurred by a debtor is fraudulent as to a creditor whose claim arose before the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation without receiving a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation and the debtor was insolvent at that time or the debtor became insolvent as a result of the transfer or obligation.

(2) A transfer made by a debtor is fraudulent as to a creditor whose claim arose before the transfer was made if the transfer was made to an insider for an antecedent debt, the debtor was insolvent at that time, and the insider had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was insolvent.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) Subsection (a) (numbered as subsection (1) in C.R.S.) is derived from § 4 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. It adheres to the limitation of the protection of that section to a creditor who extended credit before the transfer or obligation described. As pointed out in

Comment (2) accompanying § 4 (section 38-8-105 in C.R.S.), this Act substitutes “reasonably equivalent value” for “fair consideration.”

(2) Subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.) renders a preferential transfer—i.e., a transfer by an insolvent debtor for or on account of an antecedent debt—to an insider vulnerable as a fraudulent transfer when the insider had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was insolvent. This subsection adopts for general application the rule of such cases as Jackson Sound Studios, Inc. v. Travis, 473 F.2d 503 (5th Cir. 1973) (security transfer of corporation’s equipment to corporate principal’s mother perfected on eve of bankruptcy of corporation held to be fraudulent); In re Lamie Chemical Co., 296 F.2d 4th Cir. 1924) (corporate preference to corporate officers and directors held voidable by receiver when corporation was insolvent or nearly so and directors had already voted for liquidation); Stuart v. Larson, 298 F.2d 223 (8th Cir. 1924), noted 38 Harv.L.Rev. 521 (1925) (corporate preference to director held voidable). See generally 2 G. Glenn, Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences 386 (rev. ed. 1940). Subsection (b) overrules such cases as Epstein v. Goldstein, 107 F.2d 755, 757 (2d Cir. 1939)

(transfer by insolvent husband to wife to secure his debt to her sustained against attack by husband’s trustee); Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Jirasek, 254 Mich. 131, 139, 235 N.W. 836, 389 (1931) (mortgage given by debtor to his brother to secure an antecedent debt owed the brother sustained as not fraudulent).

(3) Subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.) does not extend as far as § 8(a) of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act and § 548(b) of the Bankruptcy Code in rendering voidable a transfer or obligation incurred by an insolvent partnership to a partner, who is an insider of the partnership. The transfer to the partner is not vulnerable to avoidance under § 4(b) (section 38-8-105 (2) in C.R.S.) unless the transfer was for an antecedent debt and the partner had reasonable cause to believe that the partnership was insolvent. The cited provisions of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act and the Bankruptcy Act make any transfer by an insolvent partnership to a partner voidable. Avoidance of the partnership transfer without reference to the partner’s state of mind and the nature of the consideration exchanged would be unduly harsh treatment of the creditors of the partner and unduly favorable to the creditors of the partnership.

38-8-107. When transfer is made or obligation is incurred. (1) For the purposes of this article:

(a) A transfer is made:

(I) With respect to an asset that is real property other than a fixture, but including the interest of a seller or purchaser under a contract for the sale of the asset, when the transfer is so far perfected that a good-faith purchaser of the asset from the debtor against whom applicable law permits the transfer to be perfected cannot acquire an interest in the asset that is superior to the interest of the transferee; and

(II) With respect to an asset that is not real property or that is a fixture, when the transfer is so far perfected that a creditor on a simple contract cannot acquire a judicial lien otherwise than under this article that is superior to the interest of the transferee.

(2) If applicable law permits the transfer to be perfected as provided in subsection (1) of this section and the transfer is not so perfected before the commencement of an action for relief under this article, the transfer is deemed made immediately before the commencement of the action.

(3) If applicable law does not permit the transfer to be perfected as provided in subsection (1) of this section, the transfer is made when it becomes effective between the debtor and the transferee.

(4) A transfer is not made until the debtor has acquired rights in the asset transferred.

(5) An obligation is incurred:

(a) If oral, when it becomes effective between the parties; or

(b) If evidenced by a writing, when the writing executed by the obligor is delivered to or for the benefit of the obligee.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) One of the uncertainties in the law governing the avoidance of fraudulent transfers and obligations is the difficulty of determining when the cause of action arises. Subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.) clarifies this point in time. For transfers of real estate Section 6(1) (section 38-8-107 (1) in C.R.S.) fixes the time as the date of perfection against a good faith purchaser from the transferor and for transfers of fixtures and assets constituting personalty, the time is fixed as the date of perfection against a judicial lien creditor not asserting rights under this Act. Perfection typically is effected by notice-filing, recordation, or delivery of unequivocal possession. See U.C.C. §§ 9-302, 9-304, and 9-305 (security interest in personal property perfected by notice-filing or delivery of possession to transferee); 4 American Law of Property § 17.10-17.12 (1952) (recordation of transfer or delivery of possession to grantee required for perfection against bona fide purchaser from grantor). The provision for postponing the time a transfer is made until its perfection is an adaptation of § 548(d)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. When no steps are taken to perfect a transfer that applicable law permits to be perfected, the transfer is deemed by paragraph (2) to be perfected immediately before the filing of an action to avoid it; without such a provision to cover that eventuality, an unperfected transfer would arguably be immune to attack. Some transfers—e.g., an assignment of a bank account, creation of a security interest in money, or execution of a marital or premarital agreement for the disposition of property owned by the parties to the agreement—may not be amenable to perfection as against a bona fide purchaser or judicial lien creditor. When a transfer is not perfectible as provided in paragraph (1), the transfer occurs for the purpose of this Act when the transferor effectively parts with an interest in the asset as provided in § 1(12) supra (section 38-8-102 (12) in C.R.S.).

(2) Paragraph (4) requires the transferor to have rights in the asset transferred before the transfer is made for the purpose of this section. This provision makes clear that its purpose may not be circumvented by notice-filing or recordation of a document evidencing an interest in an asset to be acquired in the future. Cf. Bankruptcy Code § 547(e); U.C.C. § 9-203(1)(c).

(3) Paragraph (5) is new. It is intended to resolve uncertainty arising from Rubin v. Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., 661 F.2d 979, 989-91, 997 (2d Cir. 1981), insofar as that case holds that an obligation of guaranty may be deemed to be incurred when advances covered by the guaranty are made rather than when the guaranty first became effective between the parties. Compare Rosenberg, Intercorporate Guaranties and the Law of Fraudulent Conveyances: Lender Beware, 125 U.Pa.L.Rev. 235, 256-57 (1976).

An obligation may be avoided as fraudulent under this Act if it is incurred under the circumstances specified in § 4(a) (section 38-8-105 (1) in C.R.S.) or § 5(a) (section 38-8-106 (1) in C.R.S.). The debtor may receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for an obligation incurred even though the benefit to the debtor is indirect. See Rubin v. Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., 661 F.2d at 991-92; Williams v. Twin City Co., 251 F.2d 678, 681 (9th Cir. 1958); Rosenberg, supra at 243-46.

ANNOTATION

Rather than relying on date when deeds were recorded to determine when a transfer was made under subsection (1)(a)(I), court ordered remand proceedings regarding when transferee's interest in real property based upon possession or contract prevented would-be good faith purchaser from acquiring superior interest. Tiger v. Anderson, 976 P.2d 308 (Colo. App. 1998).

38-8-108. Remedies of creditors. (1) In an action for relief against a transfer or obligation under this article, a creditor, subject to the limitations in section 38-8-109, may obtain:

(a) Avoidance of the transfer or obligation to the extent necessary to satisfy the creditor's claim;

(b) An attachment or other provisional remedy against the asset transferred or other property of the transferee in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Colorado rules of civil procedure;

(c) Subject to applicable principles of equity and in accordance with applicable rules of civil procedure:

(I) An injunction against further disposition by the debtor or a transferee, or both, of the asset transferred or of other property;

(II) Appointment of a receiver to take charge of the asset transferred or of other property of the transferee; or

(III) Any other relief the circumstances may require.

(2) If a creditor has obtained a judgment on a claim against the debtor, the creditor, if the court so orders, may levy execution on the asset transferred or its proceeds.

Editor's note - Colorado legislative change: This section was numbered as section 7 in the uniform act. In subsection (1) (b), Colorado inserted the words "the rules of civil procedure" in the blank provided in the uniform act.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) This section is derived from §§ 9 and 10 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. Section 9 of that Act specified the remedies of creditors whose claims have matured, and § 10 enumerated the remedies available to creditors whose claims have not matured. A creditor holding an unmatured claim may be denied the right to receive payment for the proceeds of a sale on execution until his claim has matured, but the proceeds may be deposited in court or in an interest-bearing account pending the maturity of the creditor's claim. The remedies specified in this section are not exclusive.

(2) The availability of an attachment or other provisional remedy has been restricted by amendments of statutes and rules of procedure to reflect views of the Supreme Court expressed in Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp. of Bay View, 395 U.S. 337 (1969), and its progeny. This judicial development and the procedural changes that followed in its wake do not preclude resort to attachment by a creditor in seeking avoidance of a fraudulent transfer or obligation. See, e.g., Britton v. Howard Sav. Bank, 727 F.2d 315, 317-20 (3d Cir. 1984); Computer Sciences Corp. v. Sci-Tek Inc., 367 A.2d 658, 661 (Del. Super. 1976); Great Lakes Carbon Corp. v. Fontana, 54 A.D.2d 548, 387 N.Y.S. 2d 115 (1st Dep't 1976). Section 7(a)(2) (section 38-8-108 (1)(b) in C.R.S.) continues the authorization for the use of attachment contained in § 9(b) of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, or of a similar provisional remedy, when the state's procedure provides therefor, subject to the constraints imposed by the due process clauses of the United States and state constitutions.

(3) Subsections (a) and (b) of §10 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act authorized the court, in an action on a fraudulent transfer or obligation, to restrain the defendant from disposing of his property, to appoint a receiver to take charge of his property, or to make any order the circumstances may require. Section 10, however, applied only to a creditor whose claim was unmaturing. There is no reason to restrict the availability of these remedies to such a creditor, and the courts have not so restricted them. See, e.g., Lipskey v. Voloshen, 155 Md. 139, 143-45, 141 Atl. 402, 404-05 (1928) (judgment creditor granted injunction against disposition of property by transferee, but appointment of receiver denied for lack of sufficient showing of need for such relief); Matthews v. Schusheim, 36 Misc. 2d 918, 922-23, 235 N.Y.S.2d 973, 976-77, 991-92 (Sup.Ct. 1962) (injunction and appointment of receiver granted to holder of claims for fraud, breach of contract, and alimony arrearages; whether creditor's claim was mature said to be immaterial); Oliphant v. Moore, 155 Tenn. 359, 362-63, 293 S.W. 541, 542 (1927) (tort creditor granted injunction restraining alleged tortfeasor's disposition of property).

(4) As under the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, a creditor is not required to obtain a judgment against the debtor-transferor or to have a matured claim in order to proceed under subsection (a) (subsection (1) in C.R.S.). See § 1(3) and (4) supra (section 38-8-102 (3) and (4) in C.R.S.); American Surety Co. v. Conner, 251 N.Y. 1, 166 N.E. 783, 65 A.L.R. 244 (1929); 1 G. Glenn, Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences 129 (Rev.ed. 1940).

(5) The provision in subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.) for a creditor to levy execution on a fraudulently transferred asset continues the availability of a remedy provided in § 9(b) of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. See, e.g., Doland v. Burns Lbr. Co., 156 Minn. 238, 194 N.W. 636 (1923); Montana Ass'n of Credit Management v. Hergert, 181 Mont. 442, 449, 453, 593 P.2d 1059, 1063, 1065 (1979); Corbett v. Hunter, 292 Pa.Super. 123, 128, 436 A.2d 1036, 1038 (1981); see also American Surety Co. v. Conner, 251 N.Y. 1, 6, 166 N.E. 783, 784, 65 A.L.R. 244, 247 (1929) ("In such circumstances he [the creditor] might find it necessary to indemnify the sheriff and, when the seizure was erroneous, assumed the risk of error"); McLaughlin, Application of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, 46 Harv.L.Rev. 404, 441-42 (1933).

(6) The remedies specified in § 7, like those enumerated in §§ 9 and 10 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act, are cumulative. Lind v. O. N. Johnson Co., 204 Minn. 30, 40, 282 N.W. 661, 667, 119 A.L.R. 940 (1939) (Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act held not to impair or limit availability of the "old practice" of obtaining judgment and execution returned unsatisfied before proceeding in equity to set aside a transfer); Conemaugh Iron Works Co. v. Delano Coal Co., Inc., 298 Pa. 182, 186, 148 A. 94, 95 (1929) (Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act held to give an "additional optional remedy" and not to "deprive a creditor of the right, as formerly, to work out his remedy at law"); 1 G. Glenn, Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences 120, 130, 150 (Rev.ed. 1940).

ANNOTATION

Section 38-8-109 (2) does not provide an additional remedy to creditors but instead limits the remedy provided under subsection (1)(a) of this section by limiting the creditor's recovery in an action to avoid a fraudulent transfer to the lesser of the adjusted value of the transferred asset or the amount of the creditor's claim. Because a bankruptcy trustee thus has the power to recover the same amount sought by the plaintiff creditor for the benefit of all creditors and because allowing individual creditors to file actions for recovery would interfere with the bankruptcy estate and the equitable distribution scheme dependent upon it, the plaintiff creditor lacked standing. Summers v. Perkins, 81 P.3d 1141 (Colo. App. 2003).

38-8-109. Defenses, liability, and protection of transferee. (1) A transfer or obligation is not voidable under section 38-8-105 (1) (a) against a person who took in good faith and for a reasonably equivalent value or against any subsequent transferee or obligee.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this section, to the extent a transfer is voidable in an action by a creditor under section 38-8-108 (1) (a), the creditor may recover judgment for the value of the asset transferred, as adjusted under subsection (3) of this section, or the amount necessary to satisfy the creditor's claim, whichever is less. The judgment may be entered against:

(a) The first transferee of the asset or the person for whose benefit the transfer was made; or

(b) Any subsequent transferee other than a good-faith transferee or obligee who took for value or from any subsequent transferee or obligee.

(3) If the judgment under subsection (2) of this section is based upon the value of the asset transferred, the judgment must be for an amount equal to the value of the asset at the time of the transfer, subject to adjustment as the equities may require.

(4) Notwithstanding voidability of a transfer or an obligation under this article, a good-faith transferee or obligee is entitled, to the extent of the value given the debtor for the transfer or obligation, to:

(a) A lien on or a right to retain any interest in the asset transferred;

(b) Enforcement of any obligation incurred; or

(c) A reduction in the amount of the liability on the judgment.

(5) A transfer is not voidable under section 38-8-105 (1) (b) or 38-8-106 if the transfer results from:

(a) Termination of a lease upon default by the debtor when the termination is pursuant to the lease and applicable law; or

(b) Enforcement of a security interest in compliance with the provisions of the "Uniform Commercial Code - Secured Transactions", article 9 of title 4, C.R.S.

(6) A transfer is not voidable under section 38-8-106 (2):

(a) To the extent the insider gave new value to or for the benefit of the debtor after the transfer was made unless the new value was secured by a valid lien;

(b) If made in the ordinary course of business or financial affairs of the debtor and the insider; or

(c) If made pursuant to a good-faith effort to rehabilitate the debtor and the transfer secured present value given for that purpose as well as an antecedent debt of the debtor.

Editor's note - Colorado legislative change: This section was numbered as section 8 in the uniform act. In subsection (2) (b), the phrase "or obligee" has been added after "transferee" in both places where "transferee" appears.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) Subsection (a) (subsection (1) in C.R.S.) states the rule that applies when the transferee establishes a complete defense to the action for avoidance based on Section 4(a)(1) (section 38-8-105 (1)(a) in C.R.S.). The subsection is an adaptation of the exception stated in § 9 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act. The person who invokes this defense carries the burden of establishing good faith and the reasonable equivalence of the consideration exchanged. Chorost v. Grand Rapids Factory Showrooms, Inc., 77 F. Supp. 276, 280 (D.N.J. 1948), aff'd, 172 F.2d 327, 329 (3d Cir. 1949).

(2) Subsection (b) (subsection (2) in C.R.S.) is derived from § 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. The value of the asset transferred is limited to the value of the levyable interest on the transferor, exclusive of any interest encumbered by a valid lien. See § 1(2) supra (section 38-8-102 (2) in C.R.S.).

(3) Subsection (c) (subsection (3) in C.R.S.) is new. The measure of the recovery of a defrauded creditor against a fraudulent transferee is usually limited to the value of the asset transferred at the time of the transfer. See, e.g., United States v. Fernon, 640 F.2d 609, 611 (5th Cir. 1981); Hamilton Nat'l Bank of Boston v. Halstead, 134 N.Y. 520, 31 N.E. 900 (1892); cf. Buffum v. Peter Barceloux Co., 289 U.S. 227 (1932) (transferee's objection to trial court's award of highest value of asset between the date of the transfer and the date of the decree of avoidance rejected because an award measured by value as of time of the transfer plus interest from that date would have been larger). The premise of § 8(c) is that changes in value of the asset transferred that occur after the transfer should ordinarily not affect the amount of the creditor's recovery. Circumstances may require a departure from that measure of the recovery, however, as the cases decided under the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act and other laws derived from the Statute of 13 Elizabeth illustrate. Thus, if the value of the asset at the time of levy and sale to enforce the judgment of the creditor has been enhanced by improvements of the asset transferred or discharge of liens on the property, a good faith transferee should be reimbursed for the outlay for such a purpose to the extent the sale proceeds were increased thereby. See Bankruptcy Code § 550(d); Janson v. Schier, 375 A.2d 1159, 1160 (N.H. 1977); Anno., 8 A.L.R. 527 (1920). If the value of the asset has been diminished by severance and disposition of timber or minerals or fixtures, the transferee should be liable for the amount of the resulting reduction. See Damazo v. Wahby, 269 Md. 252, 257, 305 A.2d 138, 142 (1973). If the transferee has collected rents, harvested crops, or derived other income from the use or occupancy of the asset after the transfer, the liability of the transferee should be limited in any event to the net income after deduction of the expense incurred in earning the income. Anno., 60 A.L.R.2d 593 (1958). On the other hand, adjustment for the equities does not warrant an award to the creditor of consequential damages alleged to accrue from mismanagement of the asset after the transfer.

(4) Subsection (d) (subsection (4) in C.R.S.) is an adaptation of §548(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. An insider who receives property or an obligation from an insolvent debtor as security for or in satisfaction of an antecedent debt of the transferor or obligor is not a good faith transferee or obligee if the insider has reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was insolvent at the time the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred.

(5) Subsection (e)(1) (subsection (5)(a) in C.R.S.) rejects the rule adopted in Darby v. Atkinson (In re Farris), 415 F.Supp. 33, 39-41 (W.D.Okla. 1976), that termination of a lease on default in accordance with its terms and applicable law may constitute a fraudulent transfer. Subsection (e)(2) (subsection (5)(b) in C.R.S.) protects a transferee who acquires a debtor's interest in an asset as a result of the enforcement of a secured creditor's rights pursuant to and in compliance with the provisions of Part 5 of Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code. Cf. Calaiaro v. Pittsburgh Nat'l Bank (In re Ewing), 33 B.R. 288, 9 C.B.C.2d 526, CCH B.L.R. paragraph 69,460 (Bk.W.D.Pa. 1983) (sale of pledged stock held subject to avoidance as fraudulent transfer in § 548 of the Bankruptcy Code), rev'd, 36 B.R. 476 (W.D.Pa. 1984) (transfer held not voidable because deemed to have occurred more than one year before bankruptcy petition filed). Although a secured creditor may enforce rights in collateral without a sale under § 9-502 or § 9-505 of the Code, the creditor must proceed in good faith (U.C.C.

§ 9-103) and in a "commercially reasonable" manner. The "commercially reasonable" constraint is explicit in U.C.C. § 9-502(2) and is implicit in § 9-505. See 2 G. Gilmore, Security Interests in Personal Property 1224-27 (1965).

(6) Subsection (f) (subsection (6) in C.R.S.) provides additional defenses against the avoidance of a preferential transfer to an insider under § 5(b) (section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.).

Paragraph (1) (paragraph (a) in C.R.S.) is adapted from § 547(c)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code, which permits a preferred creditor to set off the amount of new value subsequently advanced against the recovery of a voidable preference by a trustee in bankruptcy to the debtor without security. The new value may consist not only of money, goods, or services delivered on unsecured credit but also of the release of a valid lien. See, e.g., In re Ira Haupt & Co., 424 F.2d 722, 724 (2d Cir. 1970); Baranow v. Gibraltar Factors Corp. (In re Hygrade Envelope Co.), 393 F.2d 60, 65-67 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 393 U.S. 837 (1968); In re John Morrow & Co., 134 F.686, 688 (S.D.Ohio 1901). It does not include an obligation substituted for a prior obligation. If the insider receiving the preference thereafter extends new credit to the debtor but also takes security from the debtor, the injury to the other creditors resulting from the preference remains undiminished by the new credit. On the other hand, if a lien taken to secure the new credit is itself voidable by a judicial lien creditor of the debtor, the new value received by the debtor may appropriately be treated as unsecured and applied to reduce the liability of the insider for the preferential transfer.

Paragraph (2) (paragraph (b) in C.R.S.) is derived from § 546(c)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code, which excepts certain payments made in the ordinary course of business or financial affairs from avoidance by the trustee in bankruptcy as preferential transfers. Whether a transfer was in the "ordinary course" requires a consideration of the pattern of payments or secured transactions engaged in by the debtor and the insider prior to the transfer challenged under § 5(b) (section 38-8-106 (2) in C.R.S.). See Tait & Williams, Bankruptcy Preference Laws: The Scope of Section 547(c)(2), 99 Banking L.J. 55, 63-66 (1982). The defense provided by paragraph (2) is available, irrespective of whether the debtor or the insider or both are engaged in business, but the prior conduct or practice of both the debtor and the insider-transferee is relevant.

Paragraph (3) (paragraph (c) in C.R.S.) is new and reflects a policy judgment that an insider who has previously extended credit to a debtor should not be deterred from extending further credit to the debtor in a good faith effort to save the debtor from a forced liquidation in bankruptcy or otherwise. A similar rationale has sustained the taking of security from an insolvent debtor for an advance to enable the debtor to stave off bankruptcy and extricate itself from financial stringency. Blackman v. Bechtel, 80 F.2d 505, 508-09 (8th Cir. 1935); Olive v. Tyler (In re Chelan Land Co.), 257 F.497, 5 A.L.R. 561 (9th Cir. 1919); In re Robin Bros. Bakeries, Inc., 22 F.S. 662, 663-64 (N.D.Ill. 1937); see

Dean v. Davis, 242 U.S. 438, 444 (1917). The amount of the present value given, the size of the antecedent debt secured, and the likelihood of success for the rehabilitative effort are relevant considerations in determining whether the transfer was in good faith.

ANNOTATION

Whether “reasonably equivalent value” has been received is a question of fact. What constitutes “reasonably equivalent value” for the transfer requires an analysis of all of the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction. The standard of reasonably equivalent value implies a rule of reasonableness in light of the particular circumstances. Reasonable equivalence is not synonymous with market value, even though market value is an important factor to be utilized in the assessment. For purposes of the Colorado Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act, equity looks to the substance of the transaction rather than its form. Krol v. Unglaub, 332 B.R. 303 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2005).

Subsection (2) of this section does not provide an additional remedy to creditors but instead limits the remedy provided under § 38-8-108 (1)(a) by limiting the creditor’s recovery in an action to avoid a fraudulent transfer to the lesser of the adjusted value of the transferred asset or the amount of the creditor’s claim.

Because a bankruptcy trustee thus has the power to recover the same amount sought by the plaintiff creditor for the benefit of all creditors and because allowing individual creditors to file actions for recovery would interfere with the bankruptcy estate and the equitable distribution scheme dependent upon it, the plaintiff creditor lacked standing. Summers v. Perkins, 81 P.3d 1141 (Colo. App. 2003).

The ordinary course of business defense is available only to insiders. Sender v. Mann, 423 F. Supp. 2d 1155 (D. Colo. 2006).

Because ranch was encumbered by valid liens that exceeded its value, it was not an asset under this article. Because ranch did not constitute an asset under this article, jury’s verdict in favor of plaintiff on his fraudulent conveyance claim must be reversed. Park County Bd. of County Comm’rs v. Park County Sportsmen’s Ranch, LLP, 271 P.3d 562 (Colo. App. 2011).

38-8-110. Extinguishment of cause of action. (1) A cause of action with respect to a fraudulent transfer or obligation under this article is extinguished unless action is brought:

(a) Under section 38-8-105 (1) (a), within four years after the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred or, if later, within one year after the transfer or obligation was or could reasonably have been discovered by the claimant;

(b) Under section 38-8-105 (1) (b) or 38-8-106 (1), within four years after the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred; or

(c) Under section 38-8-106 (2), within one year after the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

(1) This section is new. Its purpose is to make clear that lapse of the statutory periods prescribed by the section bars the right and not merely the remedy. See Restatement of Conflict of Laws 2d § 143 Comments (b) and (c) (1971). The section rejects the rule applied in United States v. Gleneagles Inv. Co., 565 F.S. 556, 583 (M.D.Pa. 1983) (state statute of limitations held not to apply to action by United States based on Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act).

(2) Statutes of limitations applicable to the avoidance of fraudulent transfers and obligations vary widely from state to state and are frequently subject to uncertainties in their application. See Hesson, The Statute of Limitations in Actions to Set Aside Fraudulent Conveyances and in Actions Against Directors by Creditors of Corporations, 32 Cornell L.Q. 222 (1946); Annos, 76 A.L.R. 864 (1932), 128 A.L.R. 1289 (1940), 133 A.L.R. 1311 (1941), 14 A.L.R.2d

598 (1950), and 100 A.L.R.2d 1094 (1965). Together with § 6 (section 38-8-107 in C.R.S.), this section should mitigate the uncertainty and diversity that have characterized the decisions applying statutes of limitations to actions to fraudulent transfers and obligations. The periods prescribed apply, whether the action under this Act is brought by the creditor defrauded or by a purchaser at a sale on execution levied pursuant to § 7(b) (section 38-8-108 (2) in C.R.S.) and whether the action is brought against the original transferee or subsequent transferee. The prescription of statutory periods of limitation does not preclude the barring of an avoidance action for laches. See § 10 (section 38-8-111 in C.R.S.) and the accompanying Comment infra.

ANNOTATION

To determine when the four-year statute of limitations under subsection (1)(a) began to run, court ordered remand proceedings to determine when the transfer was made under § 38-8-107 (1)(a)(I). Tiger v. Anderson, 976 P.2d 308 (Colo. App. 1998).

38-8-111. Supplementary provisions. Unless displaced by the provisions of this article, the principles of law and equity, including the law merchant and the law relating to principal and agent, estoppel, laches, fraud, misrepresentation, duress, coercion, mistake, insolvency, or other validating or invalidating cause, supplement the provisions of this article.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is derived from § 11 of the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act and § 1-103 of the Uniform Commercial Code. The section adds a reference to "laches" in recognition of the particular appropriateness of the application of this equitable doctrine to an untimely action to avoid a fraudulent transfer. See Louis Dreyfus Corp. v. Butler, 496 F.2d 806, 808 (6th Cir. 1974) (action to avoid transfers to debtor's wife when debtor was engaged in speculative business held to be barred by laches or applicable statutes of limitations); Cooch v. Grier, 30 Del.Ch. 255, 265-66, 59 A.2d 282, 287-88 (1948) (action under the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act held barred by laches when the creditor was chargeable with inexcusable delay and the defendant was prejudiced by the delay).

ANNOTATION

The language of this section expressly permits parties to pursue other remedies, evincing the general assembly's intention not to abrogate preexisting common law claims and remedies by the enactment of the Colorado Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (CUFTA). Double Oak Constr., L.L.C. v. Cornerstone Dev. Int'l, L.L.C., 97 P.3d 140 (Colo. App. 2003).

Since civil conspiracy provides damage remedies independent of those provided under CUFTA, the trial court did not err in imposing joint tort liability for conspiracy to convey property fraudulently. Double Oak Constr., L.L.C. v. Cornerstone Dev. Int'l, L.L.C., 97 P.3d 140 (Colo. App. 2003).

38-8-112. Uniformity of application and construction. This article shall be applied and construed to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law with respect to the subject of this article.

Statute of frauds is inapplicable to revocation of contracts. Niernberg v. Feld, 131 Colo. 508, 283 P.2d 640 (1955).

Statute of frauds inapplicable to executed contracts. Sherman v. Randle, 79 Colo. 243, 245 P. 717 (1926).

Rescission of executing contract by parol agreement permitted. An executory contract involving title to, or an interest in, land may be rescinded by an agreement resting in parol. Niernberg v. Feld, 131 Colo. 508, 283 P.2d 640 (1955).

Statute of frauds is inapplicable to equitable trusts. Page v. Clark, 40 Colo. App. 24, 572 P.2d 1214 (1977), rev'd on other grounds, 197 Colo. 306, 592 P.2d 792 (1979).

Agreement restricting use of land is not within statute of frauds because it does not relate to an interest in land but merely to its use. Thornton v. Schobe, 79 Colo. 25, 243 P. 617 (1925).

Interest in deed of trust is not an interest in the underlying land. Since Colorado is a lien theory jurisdiction, statute of frauds does not bar suit on oral agreement to execute and deliver a mortgage upon real estate. Bigelow v. Nottingham, 833 P.2d 764 (Colo. App. 1991), rev'd on other grounds sub nom., Haberl v. Bigelow, 855 P.2d 1368 (Colo. 1993).

Promissory note secured by a deed of trust for real property does not create an interest in land. Crown Life Ins. Co. v. Haag Ltd. P'ship, 929 P.2d 42 (Colo. App. 1996).

Settlement of accounts following partnership termination independent of status of realty. When the business of a partnership, organized to lease and operate a mine during a limited period for the sole purpose of making a profit through the extracting and marketing of ores therefrom, had been terminated in a suit brought by one of the partners to settle the partnership accounts and distribute the partnership profits and other assets, no interest in realty was involved, and, in such cases, the right to a settlement and distribution in no way depends upon the legal status of realty under the statute of frauds, therefore, this section is inapplicable to the right to a settlement and distribution. Meagher v. Reed, 14 Colo. 335, 24 P. 681 (1890).

Partial performance removes contract from scope of statute. Where there is an accounting between parties when one party paid over half the profits from jointly owned land, there is such partial performance of a contract conveying a one-half interest in land as would remove the contract from the scope of the statute. Bushner v. Bushner, 134 Colo. 509, 307 P.2d 204 (1957).

Method of use of land not subject to section. Method of use of land is not estate or interest in land, subject to this section. Thornton v. Schobe, 79 Colo. 25, 243 P. 617 (1925).

Profits on purchase and sale of land not an "estate or interest" in the land, subject to this section. Thornton v. Schobe, 79 Colo. 25, 243 P. 617 (1925); Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890).

Defense involves questions of fact and law. The defense of the statute of frauds involves questions of fact as well as law. Bushner v. Bushner, 134 Colo. 509, 307 P.2d 204 (1957).

Proof of parol agreement prohibited absent fraud, accident, or mistake. In the absence of the elements of fraud, accident, or mistake, the grantor in an absolute conveyance is prohibited by the statute of frauds from setting up and proving a parol agreement, in which the grantee was to hold the land in trust for his benefit. Hall v. Linn, 8 Colo. 264, 5 P. 641 (1885); Bohm v. Bohm, 9 Colo. 100, 10 P. 790 (1885); Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890).

To exclude the operation of the statute on the ground of fraud where an oral agreement is alleged as a foundation of the trust, it must appear that the promise is used as a means of imposition or deceit; the promise may be received in evidence as one of the steps by which the fraud was accomplished. Bohm v. Bohm, 9 Colo. 100, 10 P. 790 (1885).

Unless the transaction was tainted with either actual or constructive fraud, trust could not be created by parol. Hodgson v. Fowler, 7 Colo. App. 378, 43 P. 462 (1896).

While Colorado recognizes that the intent to create a trust can be inferred from the nature of property transactions, the circumstances surrounding the holding of and transfer of property, the particular documents or language employed, and the conduct of the parties, the inference of an intent to create a trust must come from clear, explicit, definite, unequivocal, and unambiguous language or conduct. No finding of a trust is warranted as a matter of law where neither the language of the relevant documents nor the conduct of the parties satisfies this standard. Bishop and Diocese of Colo. v. Mote, 716 P.2d 85 (Colo.) (en banc), cert. denied, 479 U.S. 826, 107 S. Ct. 102, 93 L. Ed. 2d 52 (1986); In re Fairfield Pagosa, Inc., 97 F.3d 247 (8th Cir. 1996).

Applied in Farrand v. Beshoar, 9 Colo. 291, 12 P. 196 (1886); Beulah Marble Co. v. Mattice, 22 Colo. 547, 45 P. 432 (1896); Heron v. Weston, 44 Colo. 379, 100 P. 1130 (1908); Griffith v. Sands, 84 Colo. 456, 271 P. 191 (1928); Quelland v. Roy, 148 Colo. 316, 365 P.2d 899 (1961).

II. EXPRESS TRUSTS.

Parol evidence cannot establish existence of express trust. Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890); Johnson v. Calnan, 19 Colo. 168, 34 P. 905, 41 Am. St. R. 224 (1893).

Parol evidence admissible to show truth of transaction. Where there is some written evidence showing the existence of a trust, the door is thereby opened to the admission of parol evidence to show the truth of the transaction. Johnson v. Calnan, 19 Colo. 168, 34 P. 905, 41 Am. St. R. 224 (1893).

Written evidence of trust required. It is not required by this section that a trust should be created by a writing, but that there should be evidence in writing, proving that there was such a trust; the proof may be made by letters and informal documents. Johnson v. Calnan, 19 Colo. 168, 34 P. 905 (1893); Waterbury v. Fisher, 5 Colo. App. 362, 38 P. 846 (1894), aff'd, 23 Colo. 256, 47 P. 277 (1896).

To constitute a valid express trust in relation to realty, the conditions thereof must, by virtue of the statute of frauds, be in writing. Armor v. Spalding, 14 Colo. 302, 23 P. 789 (1890).

III. RESULTING AND CONSTRUCTIVE TRUSTS.

Resulting and constructive trusts arise by operation of law upon the transaction of the parties. Kayser v. Maugham, 8 Colo. 232, 6 P. 803 (1885); McPherrin v. Fair, 57 Colo. 333, 141 P. 472 (1914).

A constructive trust is a creature of equity and springs from a desire to prevent the statute of frauds from being used as a shield which would allow a party to be unjustly enriched. Page v. Clark, 197 Colo. 306, 592 P.2d 792 (1979); Ralston Oil and Gas Co. v. July Corp., 719 P.2d 334 (Colo. App. 1985).

Situations giving rise to resulting trusts.

There are three situations in which the trust which arises is properly called a resulting trust: (1) Where an express trust fails in whole or in part; (2) where an express trust is fully performed without exhausting the trust estate; and (3) where property is purchased and the purchase price is paid by one person and at his direction the vendor conveys the property to another person. Page v. Clark, 197 Colo. 306, 592 P.2d 792 (1979).

A trust in operation of law may occur where a trust is declared only as to part of the conveyance and nothing is said as to rest. Walker v. Bruce, 44 Colo. 109, 97 P. 250 (1908).

Statute of frauds does not prevent declaration of constructive trust nor does it prevent recovery of property delivered conditionally by one to himself and another as joint tenants in contemplation of marriage. In re Heinzman, 198 Colo. 36, 596 P.2d 61 (1979).

If the conditions for imposing a constructive trust are present, such remedy will not be precluded by application of the statute of frauds. Ralston Oil and Gas Co. v. July Corp., 719 P.2d 334 (Colo. App. 1985).

Resulting trust in lands may be established by oral testimony. Knox v. McFarren, 4 Colo. 586 (1879); Kayser v. Maugham, 8 Colo. 232, 6 P. 803 (1885); Bohm v. Bohm, 9 Colo. 100, 10 P. 790 (1885); Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890); First Nat'l Bank v. Campbell, 2 Colo. App. 271, 30 P. 357 (1892), rev'd on other grounds, 22 Colo. 177, 43 P. 1007 (1896); Warren v. Adams, 19 Colo. 515, 36 P. 604 (1894); Berry v. French, 24 Colo. App. 519, 135 P. 985 (1898); Walker v. Bruce, 44 Colo. 109, 97 P. 250 (1908); O'Byrne v. McNeill, 90 Colo. 226, 7 P. 956 (1932).

Statute of frauds has no application to resulting trust, for such a trust is created by operation of law. Kayser v. Maugham, 8 Colo. 232, 6 P. 803 (1885); Walker v. Bruce, 44 Colo. 109, 97 P. 250 (1908); McPherrin v. Fair, 57 Colo. 333, 141 P. 472 (1914); In re Doerfer's Estate, 100 Colo. 304, 67 P.2d 492 (1937); Vandewiele v. Vandewiele, 110 Colo. 556, 136 P.2d 523 (1943).

When constructive trust operates. It has been held that a constructive trust is the formula through which the conscience of equity finds expression; when property has been acquired in such circumstances that the holder of the legal title may not in good conscience retain the beneficial interest, equity converts him into a trustee. Page v. Clark, 197 Colo. 306, 592 P.2d 792 (1979).

Where legal title to land has been fraudulently acquired, and is still held in fraud of the rights of another having a valuable interest in the premises, a trust by operation of law may be declared upon equitable terms. Learned v. Tritch, 6 Colo. 432 (1882); Kayser v. Maugham, 8 Colo. 232, 6 P. 803 (1885); Stewart v. Stevens, 10 Colo. 440, 15 P. 786 (1887); Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890); Walker v. Bruce, 44 Colo. 109, 97 P. 250 (1908).

Essence of constructive trusts seems to be fraud, deceit, or bad faith; no effort is made to include them in the intention of the contracting parties. Kayser v. Maugham, 8 Colo. 232, 6 P. 803 (1885).

Fraudulent conveyance prevents trust from resulting to grantor. No trust can result to grantor when conveyance is made for a colorable, illegal, or fraudulent purpose. First Nat'l Bank v. Campbell, 2 Colo. App. 271, 30 P. 357 (1892), rev'd on other grounds, 22 Colo. 177, 43 P. 1007 (1896).

Confidential relations sufficient to create constructive trust. Confidential relations between the parties are sufficient to create a constructive trust. Bohm v. Bohm, 9 Colo. 100, 10 P. 790 (1885); Young v. Hinds, 68 Colo. 164, 188 P. 739 (1920); Vosburg v. Knight, 71 Colo. 473, 207 P. 1112 (1922); Herrick v. Woodrow-Shindler Co., 75 Colo. 363, 226 P. 137 (1924); O'Byrne v. McNeill, 90 Colo. 226, 7 P.2d 956 (1932).

Setting aside transaction for abuse of confidential relationship. If the existence of a confidential relationship has been established, a transaction may be set aside if that relationship has been abused. It is not necessary that the abuse of the confidential relationship be the procuring cause of the original conveyance, but rather the refusal to perform the promise to reconvey is itself a sufficient abuse of confidence to allow the conveyance to be set aside. Page v. Clark, 197 Colo. 306, 592 P.2d 792 (1979).

IV. AUTHORITY OF AGENT.

Agency for sale of lands can be created only by writing. Springer v. City Bank & Trust Co., 59 Colo. 376, 149 P. 253, 1917A Ann. Cas. 520 (1911).

In the absence of written authority from a wife, the owner of real property, to her husband, authorizing it, a lease and option given by him on a part of the land was void under the statute of frauds. Simpson v. Nelson, 71 Colo. 490, 208 P. 455 (1922).

Written authority required to create power of attorney in fact. A contract and deed, executed by father, professing to act as attorney in fact for his daughter, were void under the statute of frauds, so far as the daughter was concerned, because he was not authorized in writing to execute the contract and deed. Clement v. Major, 1 Colo. App. 297, 29 P. 19 (1892); Hagerman v. Bates, 5 Colo. App. 391, 38 P. 1100 (1895), rev'd on other grounds, 24 Colo. 71, 49 P. 139 (1897); Newman v. Tibbets, 27 Colo. App. 325, 149 P. 266 (1915), aff'd, 63 Colo. 74, 163 P. 720 (1917).

Ratification of signing of contract requires writing. In an action to enforce specific performance of a contract required by the statute of frauds to be in writing, where the statute of frauds was pleaded, ratification of the signing of the contract by one party for another could be shown only in writing. People's Mining & Milling Co. v. Central Consol. Mines Corp., 20 Colo. App. 561, 80 P. 479 (1905).

38-10-107. Not to affect will or trusts by operation of law. Section 38-10-106 shall not be construed to affect in any manner the power of the testator in the disposition of his real estate by a last will and testament nor to prevent any trust from arising or being extinguished by implication or operation of law.

ANNOTATION

Law reviews. For article, "Express Trusts in Colorado", see 10 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 9 (1937).

Statute of frauds is inapplicable to equitable trusts. Page v. Clark, 40 Colo. App. 24, 572

P.2d 1214 (1977), rev'd on other grounds, 197 Colo. 306, 592 P.2d 572 (1979).

38-10-108. Contracts for interests in land - must be written. Every contract for the leasing for a longer period than one year or for the sale of any lands or any interest in lands is void unless the contract or some note or memorandum thereof expressing the consideration is in writing and subscribed by the party by whom the lease or sale is to be made.

Statute of frauds should operate as shield against fraud. Burnford v. Banning, 189 Colo. 292, 540 P.2d 337 (1975).

Section is for protection of vendor and not vendee, and the vendee cannot take advantage of it. Colo. Lumber, Land, & Imp. Co. v. Dustin, 38 Colo. 398, 87 P. 1142 (1906); Gabarino v. Union Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 107 Colo. 140, 109 P.2d 638 (1941); Boyer v. Karakehian, 915 P.2d 1295 (Colo. 1996).

This section requires a contract for the sale of land or interest therein to be expressed in a writing signed by the selling or granting party, and such a contract must identify the parties to the transaction, the terms and conditions of the transaction, a description of the property, and the consideration. Luttgen v. Fischer, 107 P.3d 1152 (Colo. App. 2005).

When oral contract for land not considered void. An oral contract for the sale of land cannot be considered void so long as the vendor is willing to treat the contract as good; this rule applies where the vendee resists payment on a check given for the purchase price. Colo. Lumber, Land, & Imp. Co. v. Dustin, 38 Colo. 398, 87 P. 1142 (1906); Gabarino v. Union Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 107 Colo. 140, 109 P.2d 638 (1941); Houtchens v. United Bank of Co. Spgs., 797 P.2d 814 (Colo. App. 1990).

Where the oral contract is not void but voidable, a promise within the statute of frauds will serve as consideration for an enforceable promise by another. Colo. Lumber, Land, & Imp. Co. v. Dustin, 38 Colo. 398, 87 P. 1142 (1906);

Gabarino v. Union Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 107 Colo. 140, 109 P.2d 638 (1941).

Statute of frauds furnishes rule of evidence, but not of pleading. Tucker v. Edwards, 7 Colo. 209, 3 P. 233 (1883); Garbanati v. Fassbinder, 15 Colo. 535, 25 P. 991 (1890); Ruth v. Smith, 29 Colo. 154, 68 P. 278 (1901).

Defense involves questions of fact and law. The defense of the statute of frauds involves questions of fact as well as law. Bushner v. Bushner, 134 Colo. 509, 307 P.2d 204 (1957).

Unenforceable contract of the statute cannot be made indirectly enforceable by promising to execute a sufficient memorandum or otherwise to satisfy the requirements of the statute. Rupp v. Hill, 149 Colo. 48, 367 P.2d 746 (1961).

Statute of frauds concerns making of contracts only; it does not apply to the matter of their revocation. Niernberg v. Feld, 131 Colo. 508, 283 P.2d 640 (1955).

Executory contracts may be rescinded by mutual consent of parties thereto. Niernberg v. Feld, 131 Colo. 508, 283 P.2d 640 (1955).

When parol gift of interest in realty deemed good in equity. A parol gift of an interest in real property is good in equity, as a rule, only when valuable improvements have been made in reliance on the gift, so that to refuse to enforce it is inequitable. Kendall v. Metroz, 65 Colo. 387, 176 P. 473 (1918).

Contract not evidenced by memorandum conveying title to omitted property. A written memorandum by the grantor agreeing to convey the legal title to his grantee who has purchased, paid for, and reduced to peaceable possession, property which by mistake was omitted from the original deed, does not evidence a contract for the sale of land within the meaning of this section. Ross v. Purse, 17 Colo. 24, 28 P. 473 (1891).

Grubstake agreements not within statute of frauds. Grubstake agreements may be either oral or written and are not within the statute of frauds. Smaller v. Leach, 136 Colo. 297, 316 P.2d 1030 (1957), cert. denied, 356 U.S. 936, 78 S. Ct. 777 (1958).

Statute does not prevent declaration of constructive trust nor does it prevent recovery of property delivered conditionally by one to himself and another as joint tenants in contemplation of marriage. In re Heinzman, 198 Colo. 36, 596 P.2d 61 (1979).

Estoppel as bar to statute of frauds defense. In order to estop vendors from asserting the statute of frauds as a defense, the vendee must have performed acts constituting substantial action or forbearance. Tripp v. Shelter Research Inc., 729 P.2d 1024 (Colo. App. 1986).

Estoppel not found. Tripp v. Shelter Research Inc., 729 P.2d 1024 (Colo. App. 1986).

A party making an oral promise respecting the title to real estate may not rely on the statute if the other party fails to assure that the oral agreement is reduced to writing because of the confidence engendered by the first party. The promisor will be treated in such case as a constructive trustee for the other party. Jarnagin v. Busby, Inc., 867 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1993).

In order to escape the bar of the statute of frauds, it was necessary for the plaintiffs to prove, among other things, that they reasonably reposed confidence and trust in the promisor at the time of the negotiations leading to the oral agreement at issue and that, but for such confidential relationship, such oral agreement would have been reduced to writing. Jarnagin v. Busby, Inc., 867 P.2d 63 (Colo. App. 1993).

Applied in Wolf v. Burke, 18 Colo. 264, 32 P. 427, 19 L.R.A. 792 (1893); Thomas Realty Co. v. Guthrie, 71 Colo. 98, 204 P. 330 (1922); Swaim v. Swanson, 118 Colo. 509, 197 P.2d 624 (1948); Payne v. Cumming, 136 Colo. 244, 315 P.2d 818 (1957); Hunt v. Pick, 240 F.2d 782 (10th Cir. 1957); Coulter v. Anderson, 144 Colo. 402, 357 P.2d 76 (1960); Dolton v. Capitol Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 642 P.2d 21 (Colo. App. 1981); Great Falls Props., Inc. v. Prof'l Group, Ltd., 649 P.2d 1082 (Colo. 1982); Nicol v. Nelson, 776 P.2d 1144 (Colo. App. 1989), cert. denied, 785 P.2d 917 (Colo. 1989); Karakehian v. Boyer, 900 P.2d 1273 (Colo. App. 1994).

II. LEASES.

Verbal lease for year to begin in future valid. A verbal lease for the term of a year, to begin in the future, is valid. Sears v. Smith, 3 Colo. 287 (1877).

Lease of land for crop year not void. An oral lease of land for the crop year, made in June, 1943, where the crops to be planted would not mature until July or August, 1944, did not amount to a lease for a period longer than one year, and it is not void under this section. Northrup v. Nicklas, 115 Colo. 207, 171 P.2d 417 (1946).

Time between making lease and taking possession cannot be counted. The time between the making of the lease and the time when the lessee is entitled to possession thereunder cannot be counted in computing the year as that is no part of the term. Northrup v. Nicklas, 115 Colo. 207, 171 P.2d 417 (1946).

III. CONTRACTS FOR SALE OF INTEREST IN LAND.

Actual possession must be referable to contract. Actual possession in furtherance of an oral contract may be made the foundation for a decree of specific performance, but such possession must be referable to the contract. Rupp v. Hill, 149 Colo. 48, 367 P.2d 746 (1961).

Trier of facts determines whether possession referable. Whether possession is referable to an oral contract rests upon circumstances, and should be resolved by the trier of the facts. Rupp v. Hill, 149 Colo. 48, 367 P.2d 746 (1961).

Verbal agreements for profits and contracts for land may be independent. A verbal agreement to share the profits arising from the purchase and sale of real estate may be made independent of any contract for an interest in the land itself. Kayser v. Maugham, 8 Colo. 232, 6 P. 803 (1885); Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890).

Oral agreement for perpetual right-of-way constitutes easement. An oral agreement for a perpetual right-of-way over the premises of another constitutes an easement or interest in land and is within the statute of frauds. Whitsett v. Kershow, 4 Colo. 419 (1878); Ward v. Farwell, 6 Colo. 66 (1881); Stewart v. Stevens, 10 Colo. 440, 15 P. 786 (1887); Fetta v. Vandevier, 3 Colo. App. 419, 34 P. 168 (1893), aff'd, Vandevier v. Fetta, 20 Colo. 368, 38 P. 466 (1894); Laesch v. Morton, 38 Colo. 171, 87 P. 1081 (1906); Workman v. Stephenson, 26 Colo. App. 339, 144 P. 1126 (1914).

Agreement for joint benefit of several persons not within section. Agreement between two or more persons to explore the public domain and discover and locate lodes for the joint benefit of all is not within this section, and it is not necessary that it should be written. Murley v. Ennis, 2 Colo. 300 (1874); Meylette v. Brennan, 20 Colo. 242, 38 P. 75 (1894).

Statute inapplicable to extension of performance time of executing contract. The statute of frauds does not apply to an oral agreement to extend the time for performance of an executory contract. Poznik v. Urton & Co., 30 Colo. App. 475, 496 P.2d 1073 (1972), aff'd, 181 Colo. 15, 506 P.2d 741 (1973).

Retention right in mine requires writing. Where one enters upon a mine previously discovered, and to which the discoverer has lost his right by failing to make the development required by the law; from the moment of commencing the labor of development with the bona fide purpose to complete it, and so appropriate the mine, the party has a possession in fact, and for the time being a right to retain that possession, and this right is, perhaps, such an interest in land as cannot be contracted for or disposed of without writing. Murley v. Ennis, 2 Colo. 300 (1874).

Subsequent oral modification unenforceable. A contract for the sale of land required to be in writing cannot be validly changed or modified as to a material condition, by a subsequent oral agreement, without more, so as to make the original written agreement, as orally modified, an enforceable obligation. Burnford v. Blanning, 189 Colo. 292, 540 P.2d 337 (1975).

Exceptions to unenforceability of subsequent oral modification. Exceptions to general rule that contracts for sale of land cannot be modified by subsequent parol agreement include: (1) When subsequent oral agreement amounts to revocation of written contract; and (2) when party consents to, or requests postponement of, performance by other party which is for his benefit and other party has acted on such request or consent. Urton & Co. v. Poznik, 181 Colo. 15, 506 P.2d 741 (1973).

Contracts for the sale of land can be modified by subsequent oral agreement if a party consents to or requests a postponement of performance by the other party which is for the requesting party's benefit and the other party has acted thereon. Colo. Inv. Servs., Inc. v. Hager, 685 P.2d 1371 (Colo. App. 1984).

When oral agreement not violative of statute. Where an oral modification agreed to by the parties has been performed, a contract which affects interests in real property may be modified as to a material condition by a subsequent oral agreement without violating the statute of frauds. Discovery Land & Dev. Co. v. Colorado-Aspen Dev. Corp., 40 Colo. App. 292, 577 P.2d 1101 (1977).

IV. NOTE OR MEMORANDUM.

Required contents of "note or memorandum". The "note or memorandum" required upon sale of real estate must show on its face or by reference to other writings: (1) The names of the parties, vendor, and vendee; (2) the terms and conditions of the contract; (3) the interest or property affected; and (4) the consideration to be paid therefor. Eppich v. Clifford, 6 Colo. 493 (1883); Micheli v. Taylor, 114 Colo. 258, 159 P.2d 912 (1945).

Nexus required between writings. Where more than one writing is used to satisfy the requirements of the statute of frauds, some nexus between the writings must be shown. While the phrase "internal reference" is often used to describe the requisite nexus, it need not be in the form of express cross-references between the writings. Instead, the requirement may be satisfied by parol evidence where it is apparent that the memoranda referred to the same subject matter or transaction. Bennett v. Moring, 33 Colo. App. 390, 522 P.2d 741 (1974).

Business record qualifies as memorandum. "Church Roll and Record", a regular business record, although kept in a rather informal manner, qualifies as a memorandum capable of satisfying the statute of frauds. Bennett v. Moring, 33 Colo. App. 390, 522 P.2d 741 (1974).

V. COMPLETE PERFORMANCE AND PART PERFORMANCE.

Section is inapplicable when performance of contract is shown. Babcock v. Bouton, 85 Colo. 327, 275 P. 908 (1929); Rupp v. Hill, 149 Colo. 48, 367 P.2d 746 (1961); Ridgeway v. Pope, 163 Colo. 160, 430 P.2d 77 (1967).

An oral contract for a one-fourth interest in the water of a spring, based on a valuable consideration, and which is performed by both parties, except as to the expenses that may arise in the future, is such a complete performance on both sides as will remove the bar of the statute. Vandewark v. Widman, 79 Colo. 82, 243 P. 622 (1926).

Full performance of a parol contract respecting the construction of an irrigating ditch and the right-of-way therefor takes the case out of the operation of the statute of frauds. Tynon v. Despain, 22 Colo. 240, 43 P. 1039 (1896).

Part payment and partial performance complies with section. A written receipt given as part payment reciting balance due, together with partial performance, is sufficient to overcome claim that contract violated this section. Tolley v. Fritsinger, 150 Colo. 440, 374 P.2d 364 (1962).

Contracts enforceable where there is substantial part performance. Where there is substantial part performance, which would result in injustice, courts of equity will enforce contracts which otherwise might be unenforceable under the statute of frauds. Siler v. Inv. Sec. Co., 125 Colo. 438, 244 P.2d 877 (1952).

Payment of profits from jointly owned land partial performance. Where there is an accounting between parties when one party paid over half the profits from jointly owned land there is such partial performance of a contract conveying a one-half interest in land as would take the contract from under the statute. Bushner v. Bushner, 134 Colo. 509, 307 P.2d 204 (1957).

Money expended for labor and building materials sufficient part performance. Where persons expended from $1,200 to $1,500 in labor and materials in building their home on another's land in reliance on owner's consent, it is clearly apparent that there was sufficient part performance to overcome the defense of the statute of frauds. Zamboni v. Graham, 104 Colo. 23, 88 P.2d 98 (1939).

Part performance may take the place of a writing under the statute of frauds and will permit enforcement of an otherwise unenforceable oral contract. Walk v. Miller, 650 P.2d 1286 (Colo. App. 1981); Ralston Oil and Gas Co. v. July Corp., 719 P.2d 334 (Colo. App. 1985); L.V. Cattle Co. v. Wilson, 714 P.2d 1344 (Colo. App. 1986); A & R Co. v. Union Air Transp., Inc., 738 P.2d 73 (Colo. App. 1987).

Standards used in determining part performance. Part performance consists of performing something required by the contract, such as the payment of rent, plus the taking of possession by the tenant and the installation of trade fixtures or other similar equipment of a type that is indicative of a long-term tenancy. A & R Co. v. Union Air Transp., Inc., 738 P.2d 73 (Colo. App. 1987).

A party relying on part performance to defeat a defense based on the statute of frauds must show that the partial performance is more consistent with the terms of the contract than with some other arrangement, such as a month-to-month tenancy or a tenancy at will. A & R Co. v. Union Air Transp., Inc., 738 P.2d 73 (Colo. App. 1987).

Mere possession of property is not substantial part performance if possession may be attributed to some arrangement other than the one under the alleged oral agreement. A & R Co. v. Union Air Transp., Inc., 738 P.2d 73 (Colo. App. 1987).

In many cases where part performance has been allowed to defeat a statute of frauds defense, either a tenant or a putative owner has taken possession of the premises and made extensive improvements or expenditures in preparing to occupy the property in reliance on an oral agreement. A & R Co. v. Union Air Transp., Inc., 738 P.2d 73 (Colo. App. 1987).

Evidence insufficient to prove part performance. Walk v. Miller, 650 P.2d 1286 (Colo. App. 1981); Tripp v. Shelter Research Inc., 729 P.2d 1024 (Colo. App. 1986).

Agent's written authority required for binding contract. By this section as amended in 1887, a binding contract for the sale of real estate cannot be executed by an agent, unless the agent be authorized by writing. Castner v. Richardson, 18 Colo. 496, 33 P. 163 (1893); Springer v. City Bank & Trust Co., 59 Colo. 376, 149 P. 253, 1917A Ann. Cas. 520 (1915).

A down payment on the purchase price of realty made by a prospective purchaser to one claiming to be the representative of the seller is not binding on the seller in the absence of written authority in the agent to convey. Nunnally v. Hilderman, 150 Colo. 363, 373 P.2d 940 (1962).

Agent must be given specific authority to do either the general business of his principal or the particular thing which he assumed to do. Johnson v. Lennox, 55 Colo. 125, 133 P. 744 (1913); Nunnally v. Hilderman, 150 Colo. 363, 373 P.2d 940 (1962).

Act of partner in selling real estate is binding upon the partnership and the other parties without obtaining their written consent when in the apparent scope of the partnership's business. Ball v. Carlson, 641 P.2d 303 (Colo. App. 1981).

Burden is put on plaintiff, who sues upon a contract thus executed, to show that the person who signed the contract as agent was authorized, not only to negotiate the sale, but also to conclude in writing a binding contract within the terms, conditions, and limitations expressed in the contract upon which the action is founded. Nunnally v. Hilderman, 150 Colo. 363, 373 P.2d 940 (1962).

ANNOTATION

- I. General Consideration.
- II. Specific Performance.
- III. Part Performance.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For article, "Part Performance and the Statute of Frauds in Colorado", see 2 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 209 (1930). For article, "The Remedy of Specific Performance in Colorado Contracts", Part I, see 8 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 15 (1935); Part II, see 8 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 106 (1936).

Applied in Foster v. Caffey, 71 Colo. 171, 204 P. 900 (1922); Sackett v. Rodeck, 75 Colo. 425, 226 P. 295 (1924); Thornton v. Schobe, 79 Colo. 25, 243 P. 617 (1925); Moschetti v. Santarelli, 82 Colo. 346, 259 P. 515 (1927); Jutten v. Deeble, 88 Colo. 301, 295 P. 496 (1931); French v. Mitchell, 92 Colo. 532, 22 P.2d 644 (1933); Boyd v. McElroy, 105 Colo. 527, 100 P.2d 624 (1940); Poznik v. Urton & Co., 30 Colo. App. 475, 496 P.2d 1073 (1972).

II. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Specific performance enforceable for part performance. Specific performance of an oral contract will be enforced in favor of one who has partly performed it. Van Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890); Knoff v. Grace, 68 Colo. 527, 190 P. 526 (1920).

Essential contract terms must be established to justify specific performance of parole contract. In order to justify the specific performance of a parole contract for the sale of land on the ground of part performance, it is necessary that all the essential terms of the contract must first be established by competent evidence and shown to be definite, certain, clear, and unambiguous. Mestas v. Martini, 113 Colo. 108, 155 P.2d 161 (1944).

Where the purchaser of lands has partly performed under a verbal contract, he can recover for what he has done in pursuance of the oral agreement where the vendor insists upon the statute of frauds and refuses to perform. Colo. Lumber, Land, & Imp. Co. v. Dustin, 38 Colo. 398, 87 P. 1142 (1906); Drier v. Sherwood, 77 Colo. 539, 238 P. 38 (1925).

Sufficient consideration required for enforceability of agreement. An agreement, whether within or without the statute of frauds, must be founded upon a sufficient consideration before a court of equity will enforce it. Beulah Marble Co. v. Mattice, 22 Colo. 547, 45 P. 432 (1896).

Cause of performance other than contract alleged insufficient. What is fairly referable to some cause other than the contract as alleged will not be regarded as sufficient part performance to justify a decree of specific performance. Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890); Knoff v. Grace, 68 Colo. 527, 190 P. 526 (1920).

Requisites for rescission of oral contract for land purchase. Where a party has rendered services, or paid money, in consideration of an oral contract for the purchase of land, he cannot rescind such contract and recover for such services, or the money paid, unless the other party insists upon the statute of frauds, and refuses to perform it on his part. Colo. Lumber, Land, & Imp. Co. v. Dustin, 38 Colo. 398, 87 P. 1142 (1906).

Evidence of parole contract inadmissible where written contract alleged. In an action for specific performance of a contract to convey land, where the complaint alleges a written contract, evidence of a parole contract taken out of the statute of frauds by part performance is inadmissible to support the action. People's Mining & Milling Co. v. Central Consol. Mines Corp., 20 Colo. App. 561, 80 P. 479 (1905).

A trial court has discretion to grant the equitable relief of specific performance while the jury concurrently deliberates on the award of damages in cases where the damages are in no way contingent upon the trial court's equity decision. Soneff v. Harlan, 712 P.2d 1084 (Colo. App. 1985).

III. PART PERFORMANCE.

Part performance removes contract from bar of statute of frauds. Part performance of a contract removes it from the bar of the statute of frauds. Ridgeway v. Pope, 163 Colo. 160, 430 P.2d 77 (1967).

Acts of part performance must be pursuant to verbal contract. Acts of part performance, such as will furnish a foundation for enforcing a verbal contract respecting land otherwise void under the statute of frauds, must be such as are done in pursuance, or according to the terms, of the contract, and which in some manner affect or change the relation of the parties in respect to the property whereby one of the parties would be defrauded if the contract were not enforced. Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890).

Absent agreement, no acts of part performance would exist. The part performance, which will bring a contract within the provisions of this section, must consist of an act or of acts which it clearly appears the performing party would not have done in the absence of the agreement or without a direct view to its performance. Horton v. Stegmyer, 175 F. 756, 20 Ann. Cas. 1134 (8th Cir. 1913); Brown v. Johanson, 69 Colo. 400, 194 P. 943 (1920).

Money expended for labor and building materials constitute part performance. Where persons expended from $1,200 to $1,500 in labor and materials in building their home on another's land in reliance on owner's consent, it is clearly apparent that there was sufficient part performance to overcome the defense of the statute of frauds. Zamboni v. Graham, 104 Colo. 23, 88 P.2d 98 (1939); Hill v. Chambers, 136 Colo. 129, 314 P.2d 707 (1957).

Actual possession and making improvements constitute sufficient part performance. The most important acts which constitute a sufficient part performance to authorize courts of equity to decree specific performance are actual possession, and the making of permanent and valuable improvements. Hunt v. Hayt, 10 Colo. 278, 15 P. 410 (1887).

Where the plaintiff solicited defendant to quit his ranch, move to town, take possession of, furnish, and conduct a hotel on certain premises, promising that if he would do so, he, plaintiff, would execute to him a lease of the hotel at a specified rent for a specified term of years, and the defendant complied with this request, removed from his ranch, assumed possession of, and furnished, the hotel, and paid rentals monthly for several months, such acts constitute a sufficient part performance to entitle defendant to specific performance of the contract lease. Adcock v. Lieber, 51 Colo. 373, 117 P. 993 (1911).

Mere possession will not be deemed part performance sufficient to justify such relief when it may fairly be referable to some other cause than the execution of the contract. Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890).

Plaintiff has burden of proof. In an action to compel defendant to execute a written lease to premises for a term of two years, the burden of proof was upon plaintiff to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he and the defendant made an oral contract for a written lease of the premises for a period of two years and, that in reliance upon this contract, he had entered into possession and partly performed it. Kiter v. Owen, 115 Colo. 7, 168 P.2d 254 (1946).

38-10-111. Trusts for use of grantor void against creditors. All deeds of gift, all conveyances, and all transfers or assignments, verbal or written, of goods, chattels, or things in action, or real property, made in trust for the use of the person making the same shall be void as against the creditors existing of such person.

Object of section is to invalidate transfers of property which have the effect of placing it beyond the reach of creditors of the person making the transfer, but which leave a beneficial use, control, or ownership in him. Wilson v. Am. Nat'l Bank, 7 Colo. App. 194, 42 P. 1037 (1895).

Applicability of section. This section refers to cases where the use of trust for the grantor is the principal purpose accomplished by the conveyance, and not merely an incident thereto. Campbell v. Colo. Coal & Iron Co., 9 Colo. 60, 10 P. 248 (1885).

A public welfare official is not precluded from using the state debtor and creditor law set forth in this section to set aside an allegedly fraudulent transfer so as to recover under social services law. Alberico v. Health Mgmt. Sys., Inc., 5 P.3d 967 (Colo. App. 2000).

"Things in action" include assignment of wages to be earned under a contract existing at the date of the assignment. City & County of Denver v. Jones, 85 Colo. 212, 274 P. 924 (1929).

There is no necessity of proving intent to defraud, but, if the assignment is shown to be in trust for the grantor, it is, as to existing creditors, the same as if no transfer had been made. Fulton Inv. Co. v. Smith, 27 Colo. App. 279, 149 P. 444 (1915), aff'd, 64 Colo. 33, 170 P. 1183 (1918).

Question of intention determined from facts of each case. The question of intention is one to be determined from the facts and circumstances of each case. Hunter v. Ferguson, 3 Colo. App. 287, 33 P. 82 (1893); Innis v. Carpenter, 4 Colo. App. 30, 34 P. 1011 (1893).

Express language of section invalidates conveyance to a trust as against the Colorado department of health care policy and financing ("DHF") because DHF was a creditor at the time of the transfer. Section does not provide additional or conflicting requirements for eligibility or recovery under the medicaid act. Instead, section simply invalidates conveyance to trust made when creditors have outstanding claims at the time of the conveyance. Thus, defendants' liens are valid and enforceable against the mother's residence. Alberico v. Health Mgmt. Sys., Inc., 5 P.3d 967 (Colo. App. 2000).

Applied in Sickman v. Abernathy, 14 Colo. 174, 23 P. 447 (1890); Eppich v. Blanchard, 58 Colo. 139, 143 P. 1035 (1914); Zimmerman v. Mozer, 10 B.R. 1002 (D. Colo. 1981); In Re Baum, 22 F.3d 1014 (10th Cir. 1994).

38-10-111.5. Trusts to establish or maintain eligibility for certain public assistance void - exceptions. Any trust established by or for a person that consists of the person's individual assets, income, or property of any kind shall be void for the purpose of establishing or maintaining eligibility for any public assistance as provided by article 2 of title 26, C.R.S., or medical assistance as provided by articles 4, 5, and 6 of title 25.5, C.R.S., unless the trust is established in accordance with the provisions of sections 15-14-412.6 to 15-14-412.9, C.R.S.

(a) Every agreement that by the terms is not to be performed within one year after the making thereof;

(b) Every special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person;

Law reviews. For article, "The Remedy of Specific Performance in Colorado Contracts", Part I, see 8 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 15 (1935); Part

II, see 8 Rocky Mt. L. Rev. 106 (1936). For article, "One Year Review of Cases on Contracts", see 33 Dicta 57 (1956). For article, "Domestic Case Update", which discusses cases concerning antenuptial agreements, see 14 Colo. Law. 209 (1985).

Purpose of statute of frauds. The statute is to be invoked for the purpose of preventing the commission of a fraud. Walker v. Bruce, 44 Colo. 109, 97 P. 250 (1908).

Statute of frauds furnishes rule of evidence, but not of pleading. Tucker v. Edwards, 7 Colo. 209, 3 P. 233 (1883); Garbanati v. Fassbinder, 15 Colo. 535, 25 P. 991 (1890); Ruth v. Smith, 29 Colo. 154, 68 P. 278 (1901).

Plea of statute of frauds is personal privilege; if not pleaded, it will be regarded as waived. Benjamin v. Mattler, 3 Colo. App. 227, 32 P. 837 (1893).

Statute of frauds must be specially pleaded, if relied upon in defense. Benjamin v. Mattler, 3 Colo. App. 227, 32 P. 837 (1893); Schildt v. Topliss, 98 Colo. 464, 56 P.2d 1328 (1936).

In an action upon an oral contract, the defense that it was an agreement to answer for the debt of another and void under this section because it is not in writing is not available to defendant unless the statute be pleaded. Hamill v. Hall, 4 Colo. App. 290, 35 P. 927 (1894); Cerrusite Mining Co. v. Steele, 18 Colo. App. 216, 70 P. 1091 (1902).

Unless contractual violation shown in complaint. Tucker v. Edwards, 7 Colo. 209, 3 P. 233 (1883); Hunt v. Hayt, 10 Colo. 278, 15 P. 410 (1887); Garbanati v. Fassbinder, 15 Colo. 535, 25 P. 991 (1890); Hamill v. Hall, 4 Colo. App. 290, 35 P. 927 (1894); Tynon v. Despaign, 22 Colo. 240, 43 P. 1039 (1896).

Because the statute of frauds is a defense of which the defendant may or may not avail himself, and if he desires to take advantage thereof, unless the infirmity appears in the complaint, he must affirmatively plead it by answer and he must rely upon it at the trial. Hunt v. Hayt, 10 Colo. 278, 15 P. 410 (1887); Pettit v. Mayhew, 43 Colo. 274, 95 P. 939 (1908); Kingdom of Gilpin Mines, Inc. v. McNeill, 88 Colo. 44, 291 P. 1036 (1930); Gage v. Young, 95 Colo. 130, 33 P.2d 389 (1934).

Where the action alleges a contract price which does not appear in the writing relied upon, the writing is not sufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds. Howse v. Crumb, 143 Colo. 90, 352 P.2d 285 (1960).

Where the contract sued upon is denied by the answer, the statute of frauds is available without being specially pleaded. Salomon v. McRae, 9 Colo. App. 23, 47 P. 409 (1896); Sch. Dist. No. 46 v. Johnson, 26 Colo. App. 433, 143 P. 264 (1914).

Part-performance exception applied in the case of an oral joint venture partnership agreement where performance by both parties was substantial and consistent with evidence of the terms of the joint venture. McCrea & Co. Auctioneers, Inc. v. Dwyer Auto Body, 799 P.2d 394 (Colo. App. 1984) (disagreeing with Sch. Dist. No. 46 v. Johnson).

Parol agreement to reduce contract to writing unenforceable. A parol agreement to reduce to writing a contract which is within the statute of frauds is unenforceable because a contract that is unenforceable by reason of the statute cannot be made indirectly enforceable by promising to execute a sufficient memorandum or otherwise to satisfy the requirements of the statute. Rupp v. Hill, 149 Colo. 48, 367 P.2d 746 (1961).

Full performance by party makes void contract binding. Although a contract may have been void under the statute of frauds, nevertheless, if it has been fully performed by one of the parties, it is binding on the other party. Schust v. Perington, 169 Colo. 39, 453 P.2d 599 (1969).

When statute not defense to action on loan agreement. The statute of frauds is not available as a defense to an action on a loan agreement where the agreement has been fully performed by plaintiff. Nissen v. Dews, 43 Colo. App. 228, 603 P.2d 966 (1979).

Valid contract not altered by void subsequent oral agreement. Subsequent void oral agreement cannot alter, revoke, or modify previous valid contract. Harvey v. Morey, 22 Colo. 412, 45 P. 383 (1896).

Action may be maintained in Colorado on a contract valid where made, notwithstanding it would be void under the Colorado statute of frauds, if made in Colorado. Wolf v. Burke, 18 Colo. 264, 32 P. 427 (1893).

Applied in Schilling v. Rominger, 4 Colo. 100 (1878); Little v. Dougherty, 11 Colo. 103, 17 P. 292 (1887); Von Trotha v. Bamberger, 15 Colo. 1, 24 P. 883 (1890); Hill v. Groesbeck, 29 Colo. 161, 67 P. 167 (1901); Hall v. Allen, 46 Colo. 355, 104 P. 489 (1909); Yost v. Irwin, 53 Colo. 269, 125 P. 526 (1912); Jones v. Ceres Inv. Co., 60 Colo. 562, 154 P. 745 (1916); Jasper v. Bicknell, 68 Colo. 308, 191 P. 115 (1920); Johnson v. Sanchez, 72 Colo. 514, 212 P. 522 (1923); Enyart v. Orr, 78 Colo. 6, 238 P. 29 (1925); Heuschkel v. Wagner, 78 Colo. 61, 239 P. 873 (1925); Clayton Coal Co. v. King, 108 Colo. 63, 113 P.2d 672 (1941); Hoff v. Armbruster, 125 Colo. 198, 242 P.2d 604 (1952); Lindsey v. Oregon-Washington Plywood Co., 287 F.2d 710 (10th Cir. 1961); Kodekey Elecs., Inc. v. Merchanex Corp., 486 F.2d 449 (10th Cir. 1973); World of Sleep, Inc. v. Seidenfeld, 674 P.2d 1005 (Colo. App. 1983); In re Frontier Airlines, Inc., 121 Bankr. 386 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1990).

II. THE MEMORANDUM.

A. Form and Sufficiency.

Agreement must express all essential conditions of bargain to satisfy section. To satisfy this section, the agreement or memorandum must, either by its own terms or by reference to some other writing, express with reasonable certainty all the conditions and essential elements of the bargain. Salomon v. McRae, 9 Colo. App. 23, 47 P. 409 (1896).

Several writings read in connection show memorandum of agreement. Several writings of different dates may be read in connection to show a memorandum of an agreement. Beckwith v. Talbot, 2 Colo. 639 (1875), aff'd, 95 U.S. 289, 24 L. Ed. 496 (1877).

The contract, which the parties have made, may be gathered from letters which have passed in correspondence between them; it is not necessary that every paper should contain all the necessary elements of the contract which may be authenticated and established through the medium of letters and separate writings and documents, provided that they refer to each other and to the same persons and things, and that they manifestly relate to the same contract and transaction. Beckwith v. Talbot, 2 Colo. 639 (1875), aff'd, 95 U.S. 289, 24 L. Ed. 496 (1877); Crystal Palace Flouring Mills Co. v. Butterfield, 15 Colo. App. 246, 61 P. 479 (1900); McClurg v. Crawford, 209 F. 340 (8th Cir. 1913); South Carolina Ins. Co. v. Fisher, 698 P.2d 1369 (Colo. App. 1984).

Notices of premium due sufficient memorandum. Where each year the company sent notices of the premium due, identifying the contract, the dates between which the premium operated making the contract effective and subscribed to by an agent whose authority was not questioned, this is a sufficient memorandum as required by this section to take the obligation out of the statute of frauds. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 100 Colo. 398, 68 P.2d 555 (1937).

Agreement between finance company's officers and creditor sufficient memorandum. An agreement between officers of finance company and creditor, providing for a manager to operate the creditor's business subject to the supervision and control of the officers of the finance company, is a sufficient memorandum to prevent this section being a bar in action against finance company to recover for goods sold to the creditor. Colo. Fin. Co. v. B.F. Bennet Oil Co., 110 Colo. 1, 129 P.2d 299 (1942).

Letter insufficient to bind wife to payment of husband's debt. Where Mrs. B., who on account of the illness of her husband was attending to his business, wrote to his creditor the following letter: "Mr. H. You will find enclosed $50, all I can raise at present. I hope to be able to give you more very soon. Please give me credit, and oblige. Mr. B. is home sick. Mary B.". The letter was insufficient, under this section, to bind her to the payment of her husband's debt. Bohm v. Hoffer, 2 Colo. App. 146, 29 P. 905 (1892).

Extrinsic oral evidence inadmissible to vary written contract terms. Extrinsic oral evidence is inadmissible to contradict, add to, subtract from, or vary the terms of a written contract, and the rule applies with greater force to contracts required by the statute of frauds to be in writing. Randolph v. Helps, 9 Colo. 29, 10 P. 245 (1885); Nesmith v. Martin, 32 Colo. 77, 75 P. 590 (1904).

B. The Signature.

Term "subscribed" is substitute for term "signed". Coon v. Rigden, 4 Colo. 275 (1878).

Letters referring to contract evidence of assent and subscription. Where a contract was signed by one party and retained by the other, letters subsequently written by the latter, to which the contract was clearly referred, are sufficient to show his assent, and to show that he subscribed the contract within the meaning of this section. Beckwith v. Talbot, 2 Colo. 639 (1875), aff'd, 95 U.S. 289, 24 L. Ed. 496 (1877).

Bills initialed by salesman did not constitute memorandum in writing. Where a salesman sold bills of goods on credit and indorsed the bills thus: "O.K. McR.", the latter letters being his initials, the indorsement did not constitute an agreement or memorandum in writing within the meaning of this section, and that parol evidence was inadmissible to show that, by a prevailing custom of the trade, it was intended by the indorsement that the salesman should be answerable to his employer for the default of the purchaser in making payment. Salomon v. McRae, 9 Colo. App. 23, 47 P. 409 (1896).

III. AGREEMENTS NOT TO BE PERFORMED WITHIN ONE YEAR.

Agreement not performed within one year invalid generally. An agreement that by its terms is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof shall be invalid or void unless the agreement or some note or memorandum thereof is in writing and signed by the party to be charged. Lucas v. Whittaker Corp., 335 F. Supp. 889 (D. Colo. 1971), aff'd, 470 F.2d 326 (10th Cir. 1972).

Subsection (1)(a) inapplicable where possibility of performance within year. Subsection (1)(a) does not apply to oral contracts which may not be performed within one year. It refers to contracts which by their affirmative terms exclude performance within that time. Woodall v. Davis-Creswell Mfg. Co., 9 Colo. App. 198, 48 P. 670 (1897); Clark v. Perdue, 70 Colo. 589, 203 P. 655 (1922); Lloyd v. Grynberg, 464 F. 2d 622 (10th Cir. 1972).

Oral agreement not to engage in business for three years void. An agreement, not to engage in a certain business at, or near, a certain place for a period of three years, is an agreement not to be performed within one year, and under this section is void unless in writing. DeBord v. Holcomb, 13 Colo. App. 161, 57 P. 548 (1899).

Subsection (1)(a) is inapplicable to leases. Sears v. Smith, 3 Colo. 287 (1877).

Subsection (1)(a) has no application to parol leases or contracts relating to any interests in lands. Northrup v. Nicklas, 115 Colo. 207, 171 P.2d 417 (1946).

Oral agreement for yearly payments not within section. An oral agreement as to yearly payments of interest on a promissory note was not within this section for the original contract; a note payable on, or before, 10 years from date, could have been performed within one year. Kuhlmann v. McCormack, 116 Colo. 300, 180 P.2d 863 (1947).

Oral promise to pay debts upon inheritance not within section. A debtor's oral promise to pay his debts if he should inherit an interest in his father's estate, notwithstanding his discharge in bankruptcy, is not an agreement not to be performed within one year. Winbourn v. Crump, 77 Colo. 574, 238 P. 58 (1925).

Agreement whose performance is contingent upon happening not within section. An oral agreement, the performance of which is dependent upon the happening of a certain contingency, is not within the statute if the contingency is such that it may occur within one year; and this is true, although the contingency may not in fact happen until after the expiration of the year, and although the parties may not have expected that it would occur within that period. Winbourn v. Crump, 77 Colo. 574, 238 P. 58 (1925).

Modification of lease by parol for period less than one year. A modification of a written lease by parol for a period less than one year is not within the statute of frauds. Doherty v. Doe, 18 Colo. 456, 33 P. 165 (1893).

Computation of time. The year mentioned in subsection (1)(a) runs from the day when the agreement is made, and not from the day when the performance is to begin. Sch. Dist. No. 46 v. Johnson, 26 Colo. App. 433, 143 P. 264 (1914).

Oral agreement for at-will employment. Where defense of statute of frauds raised, neither partial performance nor payment of compensation deemed sufficient to avoid bar of statute as to enforcement of entire contract. Chidester v. E. Gas & Fuel Assoc., 859 P.2d 222 (Colo. App. 1992).

While part performance can take an oral agreement out of this section, such part performance must be fairly referable to no other theory besides that allegedly contained within the oral agreement. Nelson v. Elway, 908 P.2d 102 (Colo. 1995).

Where an oral agreement to sponsor sporting events for two seasons allowed a party to terminate the agreement after one season, the option to terminate may fairly be interpreted as an alternative way to perform the agreement; therefore, the agreement may be performed within one year, and the statute of frauds does not void the agreement. Prof'l Bull Riders, Inc. v. Autozone, Inc., 113 P.3d 757 (Colo. 2005).

IV. PROMISE TO ANSWER FOR THE DEBT OF ANOTHER.

Promise is considered original when given for promisor's benefit, rather than to secure credit for a third party debtor. Cramblit v. Cha- teau Motel, Inc., 28 Colo. App. 213, 472, P.2d 183 (1970).

A promise by one, for himself, to pay for services rendered to another, is an original promise, and binding without writing. Tuttle v. Welty, 46 Colo. 25, 102 P. 1069 (1909); Spelts v. Anderson, 67 Colo. 63, 185 P. 468 (1919).

Where one, to promote his own interest, promises to pay the debt of another, the transaction constitutes an original contract and is not within the statute of frauds. Spelts v. Anderson, 67 Colo. 63, 185 P. 468 (1919); Moon v. Greenlee, 69 Colo. 482, 195 P. 1100 (1921); Takamine v. Hirschfeld, 81 Colo. 501, 256 P. 312 (1927); Ady v. Weicker Transf. & Storage Co., 97 Colo. 230, 48 P.2d 807 (1935); Mayer Oil Co. v. Schnepf, 100 Colo. 578, 69 P.2d 775 (1937).

An agreement by a debtor to pay his creditor's obligation to a third party has never been regarded as a collateral promise, but wherever it is entered into upon a sufficient consideration and is accepted by the party to whom the money is to be paid, it has always been deemed an original promise, and enforceable by the party who is entitled to its advantages. Thatcher v. Rockwell, 4 Colo. 375 (1878), aff'd, 105 U.S. 467, 26 L. Ed. 949 (1881); Mulvany v. Gross, 1 Colo. App. 112, 27 P. 878 (1891).

The promise of one person, though in form to answer for the debt of another, if founded upon a new and sufficient consideration, moving from the creditor and promised to the promisor, and beneficial to the latter, is not within the statute of frauds, and need not be in writing. Green v. Morrison, 5 Colo. 18 (1879); De Walt v. Hartzell, 7 Colo. 601, 4 P. 1201 (1884); Maxwell v. Dell, 11 Colo. 415, 18 P. 561 (1888); Mulvany v. Gross, 1 Colo. App. 112, 27 P. 878 (1891); Green v. Latham, 2 Colo. App. 416, 31 P. 233 (1892); Fisk v. Reser, 19 Colo. 88, 34 P. 572 (1893).

Promise of the secretary of a corporation to pay a balance for printing stock certificates if printer "would go ahead" and print them, which he did is an original promise and not within the statute of frauds. Takamine v. Hirschfeld, 81 Colo. 501, 256 P. 312 (1927).

An oral promise is collateral and thus barred by the statute of frauds, if the leading object of the promise is to become a surety or guarantor on the debt of another; the promise is original when the performance of the agreement directly benefits the promisor. Idealco, Inc. v. Gunnin, 746 P.2d 69 (Colo. App. 1987).

An original oral promise will only be enforced if the accrual of the benefit to the promisor is contingent upon performance by the promisee. Idealco, Inc. v. Gunnin, 746 P.2d 69 (Colo. App. 1987).

Applicability of subsection (1)(b). A bank, which ignorantly pays money to the holder of an instrument upon the faith of a third person's statement that he knows the holder to be the payee and which is afterwards compelled to pay the amount to the true payee, may recover the sum from the third person in an action for damages occasioned by the deceit, and subsection (1)(b) cannot be invoked in behalf of the defendant in such case, because his liability does not grow out of any special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, nor upon any agreement required to be in writing. Lahay v. City Nat'l Bank, 15 Colo. 339, 25 P. 704 (1890).

Part performance which will withdraw a promise covered by subsection (1)(b) from the statute must consist of acts from which it clearly appears that the performing party would not have done in the absence of the agreement. Masinton v. Dean, 659 P.2d 50 (Colo. App. 1982).

What is done as part performance must be consistent with no theory other than the oral agreement, otherwise it does not tend to prove the latter. Masinton v. Dean, 659 P.2d 50 (Colo. App. 1982).

To be binding collateral agreement must be in writing. An agreement, if it is not collateral, but in the nature of an original agreement to pay the debt of another, founded on a sufficient consideration received by the promisor himself, is not within the provisions of subsection (1)(b), and therefore, need not be in writing; but, if the agreement to answer for the debt of another be wholly collateral, it must be in writing. Thatcher v. Rockwell, 4 Colo. 375 (1878), aff'd, 105 U.S. 467, 26 L. Ed. 949 (1881); Fisk v. Reser, 19 Colo. 88, 34 P. 572 (1893).

Words importing collateral undertaking. The words, "we will see the articles paid for", or equivalent words, standing alone and uncontrolled by circumstances showing a contrary intent, import a collateral undertaking, and are within the statute of frauds. Wagner v. Hallack, 3 Colo. 176 (1877); Clayton Coal Co. v. King, 108 Colo. 63, 113 P.2d 672 (1941).

Where the president of an insolvent bank presented to one of the directors, who was also a depositor, a release of his claim in the latter capacity, and to induce the execution thereof, said to the director: "You shall have your money out of the assets of the bank if this settlement goes through." "I will take the assets of the bank, and make the money out of them, and you shall have every nickel." "You shall have all your money back, with interest." These words were a promise to pay the debt of the bank and the oral agreement is void under subsection (1)(b). Freeman v. Hampton, 67 Colo. 90, 185 P. 251 (1919).

Where defendant said concerning lumber purchased by another: "If he doesn't pay for it, I will", this is not an original undertaking, but a collateral promise and within the statute of frauds. Seal v. Colo. Coal & Lumber Co., 79 Colo. 141, 244 P. 469 (1926).

Agreement within statute where object is to become guarantor to promisee. When the leading object of the promise or agreement is to become guarantor or surety to the promisee for a debt for which a third party is and continues to be primarily liable, the agreement, whether made before or after, or at the time with the promise of the principal, is within the statute of frauds and not binding unless evidenced by writing. Cramblit v. Chateau Motel, Inc., 28 Colo. App. 213, 472 P.2d 183 (1970).

Where plaintiff sold to a tenant goods and charged them upon his books to such tenant, a promise by the landlord to pay such account, made without consideration, was a promise to pay the debt of another within subsection (1)(b), and was not binding unless made in writing. Burson v. Bogart, 18 Colo. App. 449, 72 P. 605 (1903).

Full performance of promise by plaintiff removes matter from statute. Assuming that the alleged promises of the defendants amounted to a special promise to answer for the debt of another person, the full performance on the part of plaintiff of the acts required of him under the oral agreement would remove the case from the statute of frauds. Schust v. Perington, 169 Colo. 39, 453 P.2d 599 (1969).

Promise to pay another's debt for consideration not within statute. Where one promises to pay the debt of another in consideration of money or property received from the debtor for the expressed purpose of paying the debt, the promise is not within the statute of frauds. Hughes v. Fisher, 10 Colo. 383, 15 P. 702 (1887); Durkee v. Conklin, 13 Colo. App. 313, 57 P. 486 (1899); Cerrusite Mining Co. v. Steele, 18 Colo. App. 216, 70 P. 1091 (1902); McIntire v. Schiffer, 31 Colo. 246, 72 P. 1056 (1903); Burson v. Bogart, 49 Colo. 410, 113 P. 516 (1911); Argys v. McGlothlen, 130 Colo. 490, 276 P.2d 983 (1954).

Where, after the plaintiff refused to sell supplies to a corporation lacking credit, the defendant then said: "Charge these things to me, and let the boys at the mine have what they need", the promise was original rather than collateral or of guaranty; hence, not within the statute. Redington v. Jenkins-McKay Hdwe. Co., 111 Colo. 363, 141 P.2d 891 (1943).

Return to work on promise of payment of wages not within statute. Where oil drillers ceased work because of default of payment of their wages by the original contractor, and returned to work on the promise of officers of the owner company that the latter would see that their wages were paid, the promise is not within the statute of frauds. Mayer Oil Co. v. Schnepf, 100 Colo. 578, 69 P.2d 775 (1937).

Promise to assume notes for purchase of property not within statute. Where defendants purchased property of plaintiffs incumbered by trust deed, and orally agreed to assume the notes secured thereby, such promise is not an agreement to answer for the debt of another person within the meaning of subsection (1)(b). Enos v. Anderson, 40 Colo. 395, 93 P. 475 (1907).

Payment of note in exchange for conveyance of property not within statute. A promise to a debtor to pay his debt in consideration of the conveyance of property to the promisor is not within the statute of frauds. Enos v. Anderson, 40 Colo. 395, 93 P. 475 (1907); Burson v. Bogart, 49 Colo. 410, 113 P. 516 (1911); United States Mining Corp. v. Fred Goble, Inc., 82 Colo. 59, 256 P. 1091 (1927).

Where, in exchange for property conveyed to her by her husband, the wife promised to pay off the husband's note, the agreement was nothing more than a promise to perform an obligation in consideration of which the lands were conveyed to her; this agreement constituted an original contract by the wife, not within the statute of frauds. Green v. Richardson, 4 Colo. 584 (1879); McIntire v. Schiffer, 31 Colo. 246, 72 P. 1056 (1903).

Where agreement not promise to pay another's debt. An agreement to place a person's name upon a settlement check is not a promise to pay the debt of another, although performance of the promise may result in the discharge of the debt of another. Davis v. Ciancio, 172 Colo. 54, 470 P.2d 30 (1970).

Partnership, agreeing that a loan to one of partners would be a partnership debt, is a direct and not collateral agreement and does not come within the statute. Kelsey v. Munson, 198 F. 841 (8th Cir. 1912).

A contract, by which certain expert witnesses were to testify in behalf of the managing officers of a mining corporation in an action against them for sending fraudulent statements through the mail in regard to the values of its properties, is a direct promise to pay the stipulated fees and expenses of the corporation and is not a contract to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another within this section. Lincoln Mt. Gold Mining Co. v. Williams, 37 Colo. 193, 85 P. 844 (1906).

Test for liability for debt of another. The test for whether one by an oral promise becomes liable for the debts of another is whether or not a promise has been made as a surety of the debtor or as an original undertaking by the promisor. Seal v. Colo. Coal & Lumber Co., 79 Colo. 141, 244 P. 469 (1926).

Debtor and creditor may sue for breach of promise. Upon the breach of a promise to pay the debt of another in consideration of money or property received from the debtor, not only the debtor himself, but the creditor, may sue, even though the promise is made to the debtor alone. Argys v. McGlothlen, 130 Colo. 490, 276 P.2d 983 (1954).

Plaintiff has burden of establishing that oral promise asserted was original and unconditional and thus amounted to an assumption by defendant of the direct liability for goods thereafter furnished to third parties. Clayton Coal Co. v. King, 108 Colo. 63, 113 P.2d 672 (1941).

Novation of a guaranty is an original agreement rather than a collateral agreement and thus not within the purview of the statute of frauds. Moffat County State Bank v. Told, 780 P.2d 11 (Colo. App. 1989), aff'd, 800 P.2d 1320 (Colo. 1990).

V. AGREEMENT MADE UPON CONSIDERATION OF MARRIAGE.

Writing required for antenuptial agreement. Antenuptial agreements conveying lands are included in that class of contracts required by this section to be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, as equity will not permit subsection (1)(c) to be made an instrument for the perpetration of a fraud. Moore v. Allen, 26 Colo. 197, 57 P. 698, 77 Am. St. R. 255 (1899).

Widow's violation of antenuptial contract manifested bad faith. Where an oral contract was entered into between a husband and wife before their marriage wherein it was agreed that their property rights should not be affected by the marriage, and subsequent to their marriage they executed a written agreement in which each waived and released all right to the property of the other, and where the husband left a will in which no provision was made for the widow who attempted to repudiate both contracts as void, her violation of the solemn contracts was a manifestation of bad faith and ought not to be tolerated. Remington v. Remington, 69 Colo. 206, 193 P. 550 (1920).

Where the trial court concluded, and it was undisputed, that the obligations at issue were not made upon consideration of the parties marriage, the oral agreement was removed from the statute of frauds provision under this section. In re Lemoine-Hofmann, 827 P.2d 587 (Colo. App. 1992).

38-10-113. Goods sold at auction - memorandum. Whenever goods are sold at auction, and the auctioneer at the time of sale enters in a sale book a memorandum specifying the nature and price of the property sold, the terms of sale, the name of the purchaser, and the name of the person for whose account the sale is made, such memorandum shall be deemed a note of the contract of such sale within the meaning of section 38-10-112.

38-10-114. No delivery or change of possession - effect. Except as otherwise provided in section 4-2-402 or 4-2.5-308, C.R.S., or except where evidence of the transaction is included in the central registry maintained with respect to transactions relating to title to such goods and chattels, or is duly noted on the certificate of title to such goods and chattels by the authority issuing such certificate, or is included in the records of the proper filing office for a security interest in such goods and chattels under section 4-9-501, C.R.S., or is a transaction described in section 4-9-309 or 4-9-310, C.R.S., every sale made by a vendor of goods and chattels in his or her possession or under his or her control and every assignment of goods and chattels, unless each shall be accompanied by an immediate delivery and followed by an actual and continued change of possession of things sold or assigned, shall be presumed to be fraudulent and void as against the creditors of the vendor, or the creditors of the person making such assignment, or subsequent purchasers in good faith, unless the party opposed to the effect of the presumption shall establish that it is more probable than not that such sale or assignment was made by the seller or assignor in good faith and without any actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or subsequent purchasers.

Applicability of section limited. This section applies only to sales of chattels in possession of the vendor or under his control. Weiland v. Potter, 8 Colo. App. 79, 44 P. 769 (1896).

Section inapplicable where bailee possesses goods. This section is inapplicable where, prior to the sale, the vendor has placed the goods in possession of a bailee, and such bailee, being informed of the sale, agrees to hold them for the purchaser. Weiland v. Potter, 8 Colo. App. 79, 44 P. 769 (1896); Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Collins, 13 Colo. App. 8, 56 P. 815 (1899); Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Collins, 29 Colo. 102, 67 P. 164 (1901); Jones v. Mackenzie Bros. Wall Paper & Paint Co., 19 Colo. App.

121, 73 P. 847 (1903); Morrison v. McCluer, 27 Colo. App. 264, 148 P. 380 (1915).

Effect of proof of bona fide sale. A case is not taken out of the statute by proving that the sale was, in fact, bona fide. Bartell v. Griffin, 47 Colo. 569, 108 P. 171 (1910); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Party entitled to attack validity of property transfer. In an action of replevin for property claimed by the plaintiff under a sale to him by a third person, the defendant, who was neither a creditor of, nor a subsequent purchaser from, such third person, could not attack the validity of the transfer of the property between such third person and the plaintiff on the ground of no actual change of possession. Klug v. Munce, 40 Colo. 276, 90 P. 603 (1907).

One who is neither the purchaser of an animal, nor the creditor of the one who sold it, cannot object that a purchase asserted by another was not accompanied by a change of possession. Graves v. Davenport, 45 Colo. 270, 100 P. 429 (1909).

Review by supreme court. This section cannot be invoked for the first time in the supreme court on review. Hunt v. Hayt, 10 Colo. 278, 15 P. 410 (1887); Benjamin v. Matler, 3 Colo. App.

227, 32 P. 837 (1893); Hamill v. Hall, 4 Colo. App. 290, 35 P. 927 (1894); Tynon v. Despain, 22 Colo. 240, 43 P. 1039 (1896); Painesville Nat'l Bank v. Hannan, 64 Colo. 301, 171 P. 364 (1918).

Applied in Goodrich v. Michael, 3 Colo. 77 (1876); Finding v. Hartman, 14 Colo. 596, 23 P. 1004 (1890); McCraw v. Welch, 2 Colo. 284 (1892); Goard v. Gunn, 2 Colo. ## II. SUFFICIENT DELIVERY AND CHANGE OF POSSESSION.

Acts necessary to constitute sufficient delivery and change of possession depend in a great measure upon the nature and situation of the property. Crymble v. Mulvaney, 21 Colo. 203, 40 P. 499 (1895).

Determination of sufficient delivery. If there is a full surrender upon the part of the vendor and a full assumption on the part of the vendee of the control and dominion of the subject of the sale, the delivery is sufficient. Cook v. Mann, 6 Colo. 21 (1881); Wilcox v. Jackson, 7 Colo. 521, 4 P. 966 (1884); Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Sweeney v. Coe, 12 Colo. 485, 21 P. 705 (1889); Herr v. Denver Milling & Mercantile Co., 13 Colo. 406, 22 P. 770 (1889); Atchison v. Graham, 14 Colo. 217, 23 P. 876 (1890); Felt v. Cleghorn, 2 Colo. App. 4, 29 P. 813 (1892); Springer v. Kreeger, 3 Colo. App. 487, 34 P. 269 (1893); Crymble v. Mulvaney, 21 Colo. 203, 40 P. 499 (1895); Hugus & Co. v. Hardenburg, 19 Colo. App. 464, 76 P. 543 (1904).

Where, at the time of the sale, chattels were not in the physical possession of the vendor but were under his control, and where the sale was not accompanied by an immediate delivery to the bank, or any delivery, nor was it followed by an actual and continued change of possession of the things sold, the sale is void. Reed v. Ardway State Bank, 102 Colo. 266, 78 P.2d 624 (1938).

This section requires the removal of the property sold from the custody and control of the vendor whenever removal is possible, notwithstanding any expense or hardship the removal may entail. Burchinell v. Weinberger, 4 Colo. App. 6, 34 P. 911 (1893); Crymble v. Mulvaney, 21 Colo. 203, 40 P. 499 (1895).

Requirements of change of possession. The vendee of chattels must take actual possession of the articles sold, and the possession must be open, notorious, unequivocal, and such as to apprise the community that the goods have changed hands or that the sale is void as to creditors of the vendor. Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Sweeney v. Coe, 12 Colo. 485, 21 P. 705 (1889); Lloyd v. Williams, 6 Colo. App. 157, 40 P. 243 (1895); Willis v. Roberts, 18 Colo. App. 149, 70 P. 445 (1902).

The necessity of clear, unequivocal, and unmistakable change of possession, and retention of such possession by the vendee, has been properly, fully, and clearly asserted by the supreme court. Cook v. Mann, 6 Colo. 21 (1881); Wilcox v. Jackson, 7 Colo. 521, 4 P. 966 (1884); Herr v. Denver Milling & Mercantile Co., 13 Colo. 406, 22 P. 770 (1889); Baur v. Beall, 14 Colo. 383, 23 P. 345 (1890).

The possession taken by a purchaser of personalty must be actual, continued, visible, open, notorious, unequivocal, and exclusive. Cook v. Mann, 6 Colo. 21 (1881); Davis v. Patterson, 69 Colo. 226, 193 P. 662 (1920); Acott v. Sterling Hdwe. & Implement Co., 74 Colo. 195, 219 P. 1073 (1923); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Sale void absent visible indicia of change of ownership. The sale of a stock of goods in a store is void as no indicia of a change of ownership were visible, where the sign of the former proprietor, who made the sale, was permitted to remain on the building, the vendor frequented the store after the sale and occasionally made sales of goods himself; therefore, the retention of the old sign amounted to a declaration to the public that the former proprietor was still proprietor of the store and it gave to the transaction an equivocal character. Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886).

Gift of automobile by parent to minor child void as to creditors. Gift of an automobile by a parent to a minor child residing with him, unaccompanied by delivery and continued change of possession, is void as to creditors. Wilcoxen v. Morgan, 2 Colo. 473 (1875); Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Bartell v. Griffin, 47 Colo. 569, 108 P. 171 (1910); Goad v. Corrington, 61 Colo. 427, 158 P. 284 (1916); Davis v. Patterson, 69 Colo. 226, 193 P. 662 (1920); Chavez v. Haynie, 75 Colo. 414, 225 P. 852 (1924).

Purchaser's placing goods in locked room constituted possession. Where a purchaser of goods obtained possession thereof, put them in a room over which the vendor had no control, locked them up, took the key away, leaving a notice on the door that the goods were his, his possession satisfied the requirements of this section. Conly v. Friedman, 6 Colo. App. 160, 40 P. 348 (1895).

Conditional sale not avoided by vendor's continued possession. Where a bill of sale is made under an oral agreement that it shall be delivered only upon the happening of a certain event, the sale, being conditional, is not avoided by the fact that the vendor continued in possession until performance of the condition. Roberts v. Hawn, 20 Colo. 77, 36 P. 886 (1894).

If conditional sale is rescinded, seller is bound to immediately take and keep actual and continued possession of the personalty in order to make the transaction available against the buyer's creditors. Coors v. Reagan, 44 Colo. 126, 96 P. 966 (1908).

Rights of subsequent purchaser taking with knowledge of prior transaction. Where a sale of chattels is completed as between the parties thereto, but the possession temporarily remains with the vendor, a subsequent purchaser who has knowledge of the prior transaction takes subject to the rights of the prior vendee. McKee v. Bassick Mining Co., 8 Colo. 392, 8 P. 561 (1885).

Evidence admissible to determine actual change of possession of goods. Where the issue is as to whether an actual change of possession of the goods took place, the books of the warehouse in which they were stored, at and after the time of the sale, are admissible to show whether or not there has been such a change. Springer v. Kreeger, 3 Colo. App. 487, 34 P. 269 (1893).

Concurrent or joint possession inadmissible. A concurrent or joint possession between buyer and seller is not admissible. Cook v. Mann, 6 Colo. 21 (1881); Wilcox v. Jackson, 7 Colo. 521, 4 P. 966 (1884); Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Atchison v. Graham, 14 Colo. 217, 23 P. 876 (1890); Donovan v. Gathe, 3 Colo. App. 151, 32 P. 436 (1893); Bartell v. Griffin, 47 Colo. 569, 108 P. 171 (1910); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Purchaser's exclusive possession is question of fact for jury. A question as to whether exclusive possession of the chattels sold was given to the purchaser is one of fact for the jury. Eversman v. Clements, 6 Colo. App. 224, 40 P. 575 (1895).

III. RIGHTS OF CREDITORS.

Recording of bill of sale not notice to creditors. The recording of a bill of sale, the law not requiring or authorizing the recording of such instruments, is no notice to creditors of the vendor. Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Sweeney v. Coe, 12 Colo. 485, 21 P. 705 (1889); Allen v. Steiger, 17 Colo. 552, 31 P.

226 (1892); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Rights of parties unaffected by transfer subsequent to sale. The rights of the parties are not at all affected by any transfer which may be made subsequent to the time of the sale, even though the transfer may occur before any actual levy on the goods by creditors who have sued out attachments or have issued executions. Cook v. Mann, 6 Colo. 21 (1881); Ray v. Raymond, 8 Colo. 467, 9 P. 15 (1885); Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Sweeney v. Coe, 12 Colo. 485, 21 P. 705 (1889); Atchison v. Graham, 14 Colo. 217, 23 P. 876 (1890); Allen v. Steiger, 17 Colo. 552, 31 P. 226 (1892); Felt v. Cleghorn, 2 Colo. App. 4, 29 P. 813 (1892); Burchinell v. Weinberger, 4 Colo. App. 6, 34 P. 911 (1893); Autrey v. Bowen, 7 Colo. App. 408, 43 P. 908 (1896); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Creditor may secure debt by mortgage on property sold. A bona fide creditor may, notwithstanding notice or knowledge of a sale fraudulent and void under this section, secure his debt by mortgage on the property thus sold. Allen v. Steiger, 17 Colo. 552, 31 P. 226 (1892).

Creditor's knowledge of fraudulent sale immaterial. Knowledge of creditors of a sale which is fraudulent and void under this section is immaterial. Cook v. Mann, 6 Colo. 21 (1881); Bassinger v. Spangler, 9 Colo. 175, 10 P. 809 (1886); Allen v. Steiger, 17 Colo. 552, 31 P. 226 (1892); Lloyd v. Williams, 6 Colo. App. 157, 40 P. 243 (1895); Willis v. Roberts, 18 Colo. App. 149, 70 P. 445 (1902); Helgert v. Stewart, 20 Colo. App. 202, 77 P. 1091 (1904); Bartell v. Griffin, 47 Colo. 569, 108 P. 171 (1910); Davis v. Patterson, 69 Colo. 226, 193 P. 662 (1920); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

A sale, not accompanied by delivery and followed by actual and continued change of possession, is fraudulent and void as to creditors of the vendor, notwithstanding such creditors had actual notice of the sale. Helgert v. Stewart, 20 Colo. App. 202, 77 P. 1091 (1904); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Voluntary property transfer to creditor not void as to other creditors. A voluntary transfer by a debtor to one of his creditors of certain horses and mules and wagons used by the debtor at his sawmill, in trust to sell the same and to apply the proceeds in payment of certain preferred creditors, the balance being accepted by the assignee in settlement of his own claim, is not void as to other creditors under this section, where a bill of sale of the property was executed by the debtor, and delivered to the assignee, and formal possession of the property surrendered to the assignee one day, and the property removed by the assignee from the mill the next. Bailey v. Johnson, 9 Colo. 365, 12 P. 209 (1886).

38-10-115. Creditors defined. "Creditors", as used in section 38-10-114, includes all persons who are creditors of the vendor or assignor at any time while such goods and chattels remain in his possession or control.

Source: R.S. p. 340, § 15. G.L. § 1265. G.S. § 1524. R.S. 08: § 2669. C.L. § 5114. CSA: C. 71, § 15. CRS 53: § 59-1-15. C.R.S. 1963: § 59-1-15.

ANNOTATION

When attaching creditor not "creditor" within section. Where possession and control of the property had passed out of the vendor more than six months prior to the commencement of a suit by the attaching creditor, he is not a "creditor" within the definition of this section. Weiland v. Potter, 8 Colo. App. 79, 44 P. 769 (1896); Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Collins, 13 Colo. App. 8, 56 P. 815 (1899); Jones v. Mackenzie Bros. Wall Paper & Paint Co., 19 Colo. App. 121, 73 P. 847 (1903).

Wife with alimony claim is creditor. A wife who had a claim for alimony and a suit pending to secure a divorce and compel its payment is a creditor within the purview of this section. Gregory v. Filbeck, 12 Colo. 379, 21 P. 489 (1888); Hall v. Harrington, 7 Colo. App. 474, 44 P. 365 (1896).

Applied in Rizer v. McCarth, 3 Colo. App. 348, 33 P. 191 (1893); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

38-10-116. Lawful agent may subscribe. Every instrument required by any of the provisions of this article to be subscribed by any party may be subscribed by the lawful agent of such party.

Cross references: For legality of subscription of a document by a lawful agent, see § 38-10-109.

38-10-117. Conveyances to defraud creditors void. (1) Every conveyance or assignment in writing or otherwise of any estate or interest in lands, goods, or things in action or of any rents and profits issuing thereupon, and every charge upon lands, goods, or things in action or upon the rents and profits thereof made with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or other persons of their lawful suits, damages, forfeitures, debts, or demands, and every bond or other evidence of debt given, suits commenced, or decree or judgment suffered with the like intent as against the person so hindered, delayed, or defrauded shall be void.

(2) This section shall not apply to any transfer made or obligation incurred on or after July 1, 1991, and, for the applicability of this subsection (2), the time at which any such transfer or obligation is made or incurred shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of article 8 of this title.

Object of this section is to protect all persons against conveyances made to hinder or defraud them of their lawful suits, damages, forfeitures, debts, or demands. Gregory v. Filbeck, 12 Colo. 379, 21 P. 489 (1888).

Injured party deemed creditor. One who has sustained a personal injury by the negligence or misconduct of another is a creditor of the offending party within the meaning of this section even though his claim has not been reduced to judgment. Thuringer v. Trafton, 58 Colo. 250, 144 P. 866 (1914); Chalupa v. Preston, 65 Colo. 400, 177 P. 965 (1918).

"Creditor" includes persons with unlitigated claims against a defendant. Sands v. New Age Family P'ship, Ltd., 897 P.2d 917 (Colo. App. 1995).

"Obligation" includes the assumption by the debtor of a duty to transfer an asset as a fraudulent transfer, even though no actual transfer has as yet taken place. Sands v. New Age Family P'ship, Ltd., 897 P.2d 917 (Colo. App. 1995).

Neither "transfer" nor "obligation" refers to the creditor's claim against the debtor, but refers instead to the transaction by which the debtor sought to place assets beyond the reach of creditors. Sands v. New Age Family P'ship, Ltd., 897 P.2d 917 (Colo. App. 1995).

Hindering and delaying construed. The hindering and delaying meant by this section as vitiating an assignment is that hindrance and delay intended to be produced by the assignor through covin and malice, or for his own benefit and advantage. Burr v. Clement, 9 Colo. 1, 9 P. 633 (1885).

By listing the elements of hindrance, delay, or fraud in the disjunctive, the statute implies that each is to have substantive consequences and a creditor need only show that the debtor acted with one of the three elements in mind to support a remedy. Yetter Well Serv., Inc. v. Cimarron Oil Co., Inc., 841 P.2d 1068 (Colo. App. 1992).

A wrongful withholding within the meaning of § 5-12-102 (1)(a) need not involve actual fraud or be tortious in nature. Section 38-10-117 provides that any conveyance made with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors is fraudulent. Stansbury v. Commissioner of Internal Rev., 102 F.3d 1088 (10th Cir. 1996); Scott v. Commissioner of Internal Rev., 236 F.3d 1239 (10th Cir. 2001).

Corporate executive of insolvent company liable as a transferee of assets for unpaid income taxes and the interest that accrued since the taxes became due. Transferee liable under subsection (1) because conveyance was made with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, in this case, the internal revenue service. While structuring the sale of the assets of the insolvent company, corporate executive (transferee) obtained multiple opinions on the foreseeable tax consequences. Informed by those opinions and his corporate acumen, executive knowingly chose to take a calculated risk. Scott v. Commissioner of Internal Rev., 236 F.3d 1239 (10th Cir. 2001).

Conveyance to hinder and delay creditors is void only as to the creditor intended to be hindered or delayed. Lathrop v. Pollard, 6 Colo. 424 (1882); Italian-American Bank v. Lepore, 79 Colo. 466, 246 P. 792 (1926).

Transaction held to constitute conveyance with intent to hinder creditors. Love v. Olson, 645 P.2d 861 (Colo. App. 1982).

There was no evidence of intent to defraud, hinder, or delay creditors where the evidence showed that the transferee knew of a pending lawsuit against the transferor, but expected the transferor to win the lawsuit and continue as a going concern. Walk-In Medical Centers, Inc. v. Breuer Capital Corp., 778 F. Supp. 1116 (D. Colo. 1991).

Evidence that the transferee knew of a judgment against the transferor does not by itself show intent to defraud, hinder, or delay. Walk-In Medical Center, Inc. v. Breuer Capital Corp., 778 F. Supp. 1116 (D. Colo. 1991).

A good-faith conveyance between family members based upon a pre-existing debt may permissibly operate as a preference of a relative's loan even though it results in delay or hindrance to other creditors. Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992).

Fraudulent conveyance not void, but voidable. Fraudulent conveyances are not void ab initio in Colorado; they are voidable. The fraudulent transferee can convey good title to a bona fide purchaser for value. Appel v. Steamboat Ski Corp. (In re Smythe), 32 Bankr. 736 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983).

No conveyance may be adjudged "fraudulent" against creditors without proof that: (1) The transferor was insolvent at the time of the transfer, or was rendered insolvent thereby; (2) the purpose of the conveyance was to defeat, hinder, or delay creditors; (3) the transferor acted with fraudulent intent or with an intent to benefit or to secure an advantage to himself; and (4) the transferee knew of, or participated in, the transferor's intent. Yetter Well Serv., Inc. v. Cimarron Oil Co., Inc., 841 P.2d 1068 (Colo. App. 1992).

In order to state a claim under this section to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, a plaintiff need not first have a judgment against the debtor. Emarine v. Haley, 892 P.2d 343 (Colo. App. 1994).

Lis pendens appropriate. A proceeding to set aside a conveyance pursuant to this section falls within the type of action upon which a lis pendens pursuant to C.R.C.P. 105(f) may be recorded. Crown Life Ins. Co. v. April Corp., 855 P.2d 12 (Colo. App. 1993).

The three-year statute of limitations set forth in § 13-80-101 applies to suits brought under this section. In re Walden, 207 Bankr. 1 (D. Colo. 1997).

Applied in Gutheil v. Polichio, 103 Colo. 426, 86 P.2d 972 (1939); Mohler v. Buena Vista Bank & Trust Co., 42 Colo. App. 4, 588 P.2d 894 (1978); In re Carter, 4 B.R. 692 (D. Colo. 1980); Zimmerman v. Mozer, 10 B.R. 1002 (D. Colo. 1981); Appel v. Steamboat Ski Corp. (In re Smythe), 28 Bankr. 882 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983); Smith Office Serv., Inc. v. Kelley, 762 P.2d 791 (Colo. App. 1988).

II. VOID CONVEYANCES.

Fraud may be inferred from the facts and circumstances of each case. Grimes v. Hill, 15 Colo. 359, 25 P. 698 (1890); Innis v. Carpenter, 4 Colo. App. 30, 34 P. 1011 (1893); Helm v. Brewster, 42 Colo. 25, 93 P. 1101 (1908); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Intent of conveyance necessary determination. The necessary and material thing to bring a case within the protection of this section is not that the party invoking its aid should have an existing cause of action or demand at the time the conveyance is made, but that the grantor intended by such conveyance to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors or other persons in the manner set forth in this section. Gregory v. Filbeck, 12 Colo. 379, 21 P. 489 (1888).

While it is true that a fraudulent intent must be participated in by both parties, grantor and grantee, or mortgagor and mortgagee, when such is the case, the conveyance or mortgage is null and void. Livingston v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co., 12 Colo. App. 331, 56 P. 355 (1898); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

A sale of property, though for a full consideration, may be void, if made by the owner with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, and if the vendee participated in such intent. Helm v. Brewster, 42 Colo. 25, 93 P. 1101 (1908); Reithmann v. Godsman, 23 Colo. 202, 46 P. 684 (1896); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Intent need only be to hinder or delay payment. That the transferor did not intend to defraud his creditors will not defeat a suit to void a transfer as fraudulent. If the transferor's intent was merely to hinder or to delay the payment of his creditors, the transfer will be voided. United States v. Morgan, 554 F. Supp. 582 (D. Colo. 1982).

Burden of proof to show that a conveyance is honest and made in good faith for valuable consideration and without intent to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors is on the transferee and transferor. In re Genova v. Champion, 33 Bankr. 930 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983).

Once a bankruptcy trustee shows a family transfer, burden of proof shifts to the trans- feree and transferor to show that the transfer was honest and that there was no intent to defraud. Also, the burden of proof of solvency is upon the debtor and the transferee and not upon the trustee. In re Genova v. Champion, 33 Bankr. 930 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983).

Void transfer invalid even between parties. Where an attempted transfer by deed of a party's interest in property is set aside as an attempt to defraud creditors, it is invalid as between the parties to the deed. Park State Bank v. McLean, 660 P.2d 13 (Colo. App. 1982).

Conveyance intended to defraud future creditors void. A conveyance intended to defraud creditors, is voidable not only as to existing, but as to future, creditors. Gregory v. Filbeck, 12 Colo. 379, 21 P. 489 (1888); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940); House v. Johnson, 19 Colo. App. 524, 76 P. 743 (1904).

Party need not have been existing creditor at the time the conveyance was executed in order to invoke the protection of this section. House v. Johnson, 19 Colo. App. 524, 76 P. 743 (1904); Fish v. East, 114 F.2d 177 (10th Cir. 1940).

Action by judgment creditor to set aside conveyance maintainable. A judgment creditor may maintain an equitable action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of real property by the debtor, and enforce its judgment lien thereon. Hugo Nat'l Bank v. Ashworth, 84 Colo. 362, 270 P. 553 (1928).

Bar to money judgments implicit in remedy. Implicit in this remedy is a bar to any money judgments against the fraudulent transferor since awarding the judgment creditor a money judgment would amount to an increase in the judgment debt owed to the judgment creditor by the fraudulent transferor. Miller v. Kaiser, 164 Colo. 206, 433 P.2d 772 (1967).

Equity court has inherent power to award actual damages. A court of equity has the inherent power to award actual damages under certain circumstances in order to accomplish the fulfillment of the equitable remedy. Miller v. Kaiser, 164 Colo. 206, 433 P.2d 772 (1967); Morris v. Askeland Enter., Inc., 17 P.3d 830 (Colo. 2000).

When fraudulent transferee held personally liable. Under special circumstances which generally involve some activity of the fraudulent transferee in causing the property involved to be depreciated in value while in his hands or causing the property, either wholly or in part, to be placed beyond the reach of the court, it is in equity's power to hold a fraudulent transferee personally liable. Miller v. Kaiser, 164 Colo. 206, 433 P.2d 772 (1967).

Property statements and debtor's oral admission admissible as evidence. In an action to set aside alleged fraudulent conveyances, property statements and oral admissions of the debtor are properly admitted. Gallegos v. Lajara Livestock Loan Co., 73 Colo. 325, 215 P. 131 (1923). See Whitescarver v. Interstate Trust Co., 71 Colo. 416, 207 P. 81 (1922).

Transfer not fraudulent because value of the property transferred was worth a great deal less than the amount owed. In re Genova v. Triangle Truck Serv., Inc., 40 Bankr. 513 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1984).

III. TRANSACTIONS BETWEEN HUSBAND AND WIFE.

The decisions interpreting this section hold that married parties may stand in the relationship of debtor and creditor. Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992).

Bona fide loan transaction required. Although husband and wife may stand in the relationship of debtor and creditor, a bona fide loan transaction must be established. Love v. Olson, 645 P.2d 861 (Colo. App. 1982); Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992).

Lien enforceable on payment for land. Where a debtor transferred real property to his wife without consideration, in fraud of a judgment creditor, and the wife sold and conveyed the property to another, the creditor can establish and enforce his lien on the money to be paid by the purchaser of the land. Hugo Nat'l Bank v. Ashworth, 84 Colo. 362, 270 P. 553 (1928).

Wife may be "creditor" within the protection of this section based upon a judgment obtained subsequent to the conveyance. Linker v. Linker, 28 Colo. App. 136, 470 P.2d 882 (1970).

Wife's action against husband to set aside conveyance maintainable. A wife can maintain an action to set aside a conveyance by her husband, made with fraudulent intent, so as to enable her to collect alimony awarded in a divorce suit against him, though the cause for such divorce did not arise until after the conveyance was made. Gregory v. Filbeck, 12 Colo. 379, 21 P. 489 (1888); Hanscom v. Hanscom, 6 Colo. App. 97, 39 P. 885 (1895); Hall v. Harrington, 7 Colo. App. 474, 44 P. 365 (1896); Ruffenach v. Ruffenach, 13 Colo. App. 102, 56 P. 812 (1899); Fahey v. Fahey, 43 Colo. 354, 96 P. 251 (1908).

Conveyance by husband to his wife is deemed fraudulent, without regard to intent, if the conveyance is made without fair consideration and if the husband is insolvent at the time of making such conveyance, or if, by reason of such conveyance, he is rendered unable to pay his existing debts. Harvey v. Harvey, 841 P.2d 375 (Colo. App. 1992).

Parties related or married have burden of proving innocence and integrity. In a transaction between relatives or those connected in marriage, the parties thereto have the burden of establishing its innocence and integrity. Chalupa v. Preston, 65 Colo. 400, 177 P. 965 (1918); Helm v. Brewster, 42 Colo. 25, 93 P. 1101 (1908).

When a conveyance by an insolvent debtor to his wife is attacked by a creditor of the former at the time of such conveyance, the husband and wife are required to clearly establish that the transaction is honest, and that there is no intent to thereby hinder and defraud such creditor. Helm v. Brewster, 42 Colo. 25, 93 P. 1001 (1908); First Nat'l Bank v. Kavanaugh, 7 Colo. App. 160, 43 P. 217 (1895); United States v. Morgan, 554 F. Supp. 582 (D. Colo. 1982); Harvey v. Harvey, 841 P.2d 375 (Colo. App. 1992); Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992); U.S. v. Schaeffer, 245 Bankr. 407 (D. Colo. 1999).

When transactions between spouses are challenged under this section, husband and wife bear the burden of establishing that the conveyance was honest, made in good faith for a valuable consideration, and without intent to hinder and defraud creditors in the collection of their judgment. Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992).

Evidence sufficient to support the inference and conclusion that husband and wife possessed fraudulent intent to hinder or delay creditor where husband and wife admitted intention to transfer property in anticipation of an adverse outcome in litigation in favor of another creditor and the resulting depletion of husband's estate. Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992).

Conveyances wife made with intent to hinder or defraud creditors. In re Weyand, 33 Bankr. 553 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983).

Defense of laches denied. Where, after a fraudulent conveyance of a boardinghouse to the wife by a husband, the business was run in the same manner as before, and the wife devoted no more time nor money in improving the property and business than she would have done had the title remained in her husband, the delay of a creditor of the husband in recovering judgment and in instituting a creditor's suit to set the conveyance aside is not prejudicial to either the husband or wife, and hence laches is no defense to the bill. Dubois v. Clark, 12 Colo. App. 220, 55 P. 750 (1898); Morgan v. King, 27 Colo. 539, 63 P. 416 (1900); Farris v. Wirt, 16 Colo. App. 1, 63 P. 946 (1901); Helm v. Brewster, 42 Colo. 25, 93 P. 1101 (1908).

38-10-118. Grant or assignment of trust. Every grant or assignment of any existing trust in lands, goods, or things in action, unless the same is in writing and subscribed by the party making the same or by his agent lawfully authorized, shall be void.

38-10-119. Conveyances void against heirs. Every conveyance, charge, instrument, or proceeding declared to be void by the provisions of this article as against creditors or purchasers shall be equally void against the heirs, successors, personal representatives, or assignees of such creditors or purchasers.

ANNOTATION

Heir's claim accrued after mother's death. A claim to set aside conveyances on the grounds of undue influence did not accrue to the heirs until the mother's death, although the heirs had knowledge of the deed in question soon after it was executed; therefore, the heirs were under no duty to institute adjudication, or guardianship, or other proceedings during the mother's lifetime and their failure to institute legal proceedings during the mother's lifetime does not bar this action which was timely filed after her death. Gertge v. Gertge, 28 Colo. App. 246, 472 P.2d 188 (1970).

38-10-120. Intent, question of fact - want of consideration. The question of fraudulent intent, in all cases arising under the provisions of this article, shall be deemed a question of fact and not of law; nor shall any conveyance or charge be adjudged fraudulent against creditors or purchasers solely on the ground that it was not founded on a valuable consideration.

ANNOTATION

Section 38-10-114 unmodified by this section. This section unquestionably refers to other provisions of this article which pronounce certain transactions made with a fraudulent intent void, but it does not in any manner affect or modify the conclusive presumption of law declared by § 38-10-114. Ray v. Raymond, 8 Colo. 467, 9 P. 15 (1885).

Intention concluded from disclosed facts. The question of intention is only a conclusion or deduction from the facts as disclosed and, if the result of the transaction is fraud, the law supplies the intention or proceeds regardless of the intention. Knapp v. Day, 4 Colo. App. 21, 34 P.

1008 (1893); Wells v. Schuster-Hax Nat'l Bank, 23 Colo. 534, 48 P. 809 (1897).

Jury determines question of fraud. If there is any question of fraud, it is a question of fraud in fact to be determined by the jury, and not by the court. Sickman v. Abernathy, 14 Colo. 174, 23 P. 447 (1890).

Courts empowered to pronounce judgment of law. The courts are not deprived of the power to pronounce the judgment of the law in any case which the facts justify. Burr v. Clement, 9 Colo. 1, 9 P. 633 (1885); People ex rel. Wilson v. Court of Appeals, 28 Colo. 442, 65 P. 42 (1901).

One who alleges fraud must prove fraud he alleges. Sickman v. Abernathy, 14 Colo. 174, 23 P. 447 (1890).

In an action by a creditor of the grantor to set aside a conveyance on the ground that it was voluntary and that it was made with the intention to hinder, delay, and defraud existing creditors, it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to prove that the conveyance was purely voluntary, or that it was made with the intention to delay and defraud creditors. Homestead Mining Co. v. Reynolds, 30 Colo. 330, 70 P. 422 (1902).

Whether husband and wife met their burden of proving that they lacked the intent to delay, hinder, or defraud is a question of fact which the trial court is obligated to resolve by consideration of the facts and circumstances of each case. Erjavec v. Herrick, 827 P.2d 615 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Wilcoxon v. Morgan, 2 Colo. 473 (1875); Thomas v. Mackey, 3 Colo. 390 (1870); Burshall v. Waggoner, 4 Colo. 256 (1878); Knox v. McFarran, 4 Colo. 586 (1879); Curran v. Rothschild, 14 Colo. App. 497, 60 P. 1111 (1900); Homestead Mining Co. v. Reynolds, 30 Colo. 330, 70 P. 422 (1902); Eppich v. Blanchard, 58 Colo. 139, 143 P. 1035 (1914); Love v. Olson, 645 P.2d 861 (Colo. App. 1982).

38-10-121. Purchaser with notice of fraud. The provisions of this article shall not be construed in any manner to affect or impair the title of a purchaser for a valuable consideration, unless it appears that such purchaser had previous notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor or of the fraud rendering void the title of such grantor.

Source: R.S. p. 340, § 21. G.L. § 1271. G.S. § 1530. R.S. 08: § 2675. C.L. § 5120. CSA: C. 71, § 21. CRS 53: § 59-1-21. C.R.S. 1963: § 59-1-21.

ANNOTATION

Subsequent purchaser takes subject to prior vendee's rights. Under this section and § 38-10-114 where a sale of chattels is completed as between the parties thereto, but the possession temporarily remains with the vendor, a subsequent purchaser who has knowledge of the prior transaction takes subject to the rights of the prior vendee. McKee v. Bassick Mining Co., 8 Colo. 392, 8 P. 561 (1885).

The fact that consideration is given for the transfer constitutes no defense if the transferee has previous notice of the transferor's intent. Yetter Well Serv., Inc. v. Cimarron Oil Company, Inc., 841 P.2d 1068 (Colo. App. 1992).

Applied in Burdsall v. Waggoner, 4 Colo. 256 (1878); Welsh v. Noyes, 10 Colo. 133, 14 P. 317 (1887).

38-10-122. Construction of terms. "Lands", as used in this article, means lands, tenements, and hereditaments; and "estate and interest in lands" includes every estate and interest, freehold and chattel, legal and equitable, present and future, vested and contingent in lands as defined in this section.

Source: R.S. p. 340, § 22. G.L. § 1272. G.S. § 1531. R.S. 08: § 2676. C.L. § 5121. CSA: C. 71, § 22. CRS 53: § 59-1-22. C.R.S. 1963: § 59-1-22.

38-10-123. Term conveyance, how construed. "Conveyance", as used in this article, includes every instrument in writing, except a last will and testament, whatever may be its form and by whatever name it may be known in law, by which any estate or interest in lands is created, aliened, assigned, or surrendered.

Source: R.S. p. 341, § 23. G.L. § 1273. G.S. § 1532. R.S. 08: § 2677. C.L. § 5122. CSA: C. 71, § 23. CRS 53: § 59-1-23. C.R.S. 1963: § 59-1-23.

38-10-124. Credit agreements - required to be in writing. (1) As used in this section, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Credit agreement" means:

(I) A contract, promise, undertaking, offer, or commitment to lend, borrow, repay, or forbear repayment of money, to otherwise extend or receive credit, or to make any other financial accommodation;

(II) Any amendment of, cancellation of, waiver of, or substitution for any or all of the terms or provisions of any of the credit agreements defined in subparagraphs (I) and (III) of this paragraph (a); and

(III) Any representations and warranties made or omissions in connection with the negotiation, execution, administration, or performance of, or collection of sums due under, any of the credit agreements defined in subparagraphs (I) and (II) of this paragraph (a).

(b) "Creditor" means a financial institution which offers to extend, is asked to extend, or extends credit under a credit agreement with a debtor.

(c) "Debtor" means a person who or entity which obtains credit or seeks a credit agreement with a creditor or who owes money to a creditor. -

(d) "Financial institution" means a bank, savings and loan association, savings bank, industrial bank, credit union, or mortgage or finance company.

(2) Notwithstanding any statutory or case law to the contrary, including but not limited to section 38-10-112, no debtor or creditor may file or maintain an action or a claim relating to a credit agreement involving a principal amount in excess of twenty-five thousand dollars unless the credit agreement is in writing and is signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought.

(3) A credit agreement may not be implied under any circumstances, including, without limitation, from the relationship, fiduciary or otherwise, of the creditor and the debtor or from performance or partial performance by or on behalf of the creditor or debtor, or by promissory estoppel.

An agreement for the purchase of commercial paper is not a financial accommodation as that term is used in the definition of "credit agreement". Echo Acceptance Corp., 267 F.3d 1068 (10th Cir. 2001).

In a deficiency judgment action, settlement agreement was "credit agreement" for purposes of this section and was unenforceable because it was not reduced to writing. Pima Financial Serv. Corp. v. Selby, 820 P.2d 1124 (Colo. App. 1991).

A federally chartered bank is a bank for purposes of subsection (1)(d), and nothing indicates that the term "bank" is limited to state-chartered banks. The definition of "bank" in § 11-101-401 (5) does not apply to this section. To import that definition would be contrary to the obligation to apply this section broadly. Premier Farm Credit, PCA v. W-Cattle, LLC, 155 P.3d 504 (Colo. App. 2006).

A representation or promise made in connection with a credit agreement involving more than $25,000 is invalid unless it is in writing. As a matter of law, reliance placed on oral representations or promises cannot be reasonable or justifiable. Norwest Bank Lakewood v. GCC P'ship, 886 P.2d 299 (Colo. App. 1994).

Contract providing for financing in excess of $25,000 is a "credit agreement" for purposes of this section, and section applies to any agreement to extend credit regardless of the context in which the agreement was formed. Univex Int'l, Inc. v. Orix Credit Alliance, Inc., 902 P.2d 877 (Colo. App. 1995), aff'd, 914 P.2d 1355 (Colo. 1996).

Any tort claim relating to an oral credit agreement involving a principal amount greater than $25,000 is barred by this section. Instead of encouraging tortious behavior by lenders, such an interpretation comports with intent of the general assembly that borrowers and lenders must be sure to reduce agreement to writing to ensure enforceability of any claims they may have in the future. Hewitt v. Pitkin County Bank & Trust Co., 931 P.2d 456 (Colo. App. 1995).

This section does not preclude relevant extrinsic evidence offered to resolve the intended meaning of a facially ambiguous credit agreement. Fisher v. Cmty. Banks of Colo., Inc., __ P.3d __ (Colo. App. 2010).

This section, requiring a signature, and not § 38-10-112, controls in cases involving a credit agreement. Univex Int'l, Inc. v. Orix Credit Alliance, Inc., 902 P.2d 877 (Colo. App. 1995), aff'd on other grounds, 914 P.2d 1355 (Colo. 1996).

The phrase "action or claim" in subsection (2) is not limited to claims for affirmative recovery. It is not intended to cover only claims for relief while excluding defenses to liability based on oral representations. Accordingly, this section applies to a claim of fraudulent inducement that seeks rescission of the transaction on which the creditor's claim is based. Premier Farm Credit, PCA v. W-Cattle, LLC, 155 P.3d 504 (Colo. App. 2006).

This section specifically precludes assertion of a promissory estoppel claim to enforce an unsigned credit agreement. Univex Int'l, Inc. v. Orix Credit Alliance, Inc., 902 P.2d 877 (Colo. App. 1995), aff'd, 914 P.2d 1355 (Colo. 1996).

There is no basis to distinguish between promissory estoppel and equitable estoppel in this context, given that this section must be construed broadly to effectuate its purposes. Premier Farm Credit, PCA v. W-Cattle, LLC, 155 P.3d 504 (Colo. App. 2006).

Borrowers made co-makers their agents in executing future modifications of a note, in effect, by consenting to future modifications of the note in the original instrument. Modifications to note that were reduced to writing and executed by co-makers met the purpose and requirements of this section. Crown Life Ins. Co. v. Haag Ltd. P'ship, 929 P.2d 42 (Colo. App. 1996).

The terms "debtor" and "creditor" do not require a direct borrower-lender relationship under the credit agreement statute of frauds. The statute applies to a "credit agreement" that arose from oral representations made between lenders to the same borrower. Schoen v. Morris, 15 P.3d 1094 (Colo. 2000); Lang v. Bank of Durango, 78 P.3d 1121 (Colo. App. 2003).

A mortgage broker does not fall under the definition of "financial institution". Fisher v. 1st Consumers Funding, Inc., 160 P.3d 321 (Colo. App. 2007).

An email qualifies as a writing for purposes of subsection (2). PayoutOne v. Coral Mortg. Bankers, 602 F. Supp. 2d 1219 (D. Colo. 2009).

Multiple emails may serve to satisfy the writing requirement. There is no indication the credit agreement statute of frauds requires that the requisite writing be a single document. PayoutOne v. Coral Mortg. Bankers, 602 F. Supp. 2d 1219 (D. Colo. 2009).

A party may not avoid the writing requirement in the credit agreement statute of frauds by arguing promissory estoppel. PayoutOne v. Coral Mortg. Bankers, 602 F. Supp. 2d 1219 (D. Colo. 2009).

A claim for unjust enrichment that arises from an oral assertion regarding a credit agreement is barred by the credit agreement statute of frauds. Legislative history and case law strongly disfavor any type of claim involving oral credit agreements, and the credit agreement statute of frauds expressly bars all claims relating to a credit agreement unless the credit agreement is in writing. Lang v. Bank of Durango, 78 P.3d 1121 (Colo. App. 2003).

ARTICLE 11

Joint Tenancy

38-11-101. Personal property in joint tenancy - how created - vesting upon death.

38-11-101. Personal property in joint tenancy - how created - vesting upon death.

(1) An estate in joint tenancy in personal property is created if, in the instrument evidencing ownership of such property, it is declared that the property is conveyed, transferred, bequeathed, or held in joint tenancy or as joint tenants, whether or not additional words are used relating to tenancy in common or survivorship. The abbreviation "JTWROS" and the phrase "as joint tenants with right of survivorship" or "in joint tenancy with right of survivorship" shall have the same meaning. Upon the death of any such joint tenants, the title to and ownership of such personal property passes immediately to and vests in the surviving joint tenant or tenants. Any grantor or transferor in any such instrument of conveyance or transfer may also be one of the grantees or transferees therein.

(2) Repealed.

(3) Any such instrument evidencing ownership executed prior to July 1, 1996, as amended in compliance with subsection (1) of this section shall be deemed to have created an estate in joint tenancy.

Rights fixed and vested at creation of joint tenancy. The rights are fixed and vested in the joint tenants at the time of the creation of the joint tenancy under this section. Smith v. Greenburg, 121 Colo. 417, 218 P.2d 514 (1950).

To create joint tenancy with survivorship rights, there must be specific language manifesting such intent; where the instrument is silent or ambiguous as to the nature of the joint estate created, it will be construed as creating a tenancy in common and not a joint tenancy, and, if legal relief is sought, the naked wording alone without meeting statutory requirements will be insufficient to create a joint tenancy. Chilson v. Reed, 154 Colo. 149, 389 P.2d 87 (1964).

Where a husband, possessing corporate stock certificates issued in his name, indorses and delivers them to another with the request that new certificates be procured therefor naming his wife and himself as joint tenants with the right of survivorship and not as tenants in common, a joint tenancy was established. Eisenhardt v. Lowell, 105 Colo. 417, 98 P.2d 1001 (1940).

Circumstances unnecessary for creation of joint tenancy in bank account. It is not necessary for a joint tenant donee to have knowledge of the creation of the account, to sign a signature card, or to deposit or withdraw funds from the account in order to establish a valid joint tenancy in a bank account. Estate of Barnhart, 194 Colo. 505, 574 P.2d 500 (1978).

In order to set aside joint tenancy properly created, it is necessary to show that the joint tenancy was created purely for the convenience or a business necessity of the putative donor, and that no right of survivorship was intended. Estate of Barnhart v. Burkhardt, 38 Colo. App. 544, 563 P.2d 972 (1977), aff’d, 194 Colo. 505, 574 P.2d 500 (1978).

Purpose. The security deposit act was passed to control the practices of landlords who withhold, without justification, their tenants' damage deposits. Houle v. Adams State Coll., 190 Colo. 406, 547 P.2d 926 (1976).

38-12-102. Definitions. As used in this part 1, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Normal wear and tear" means that deterioration which occurs, based upon the use for which the rental unit is intended, without negligence, carelessness, accident, or abuse of the premises or equipment or chattels by the tenant or members of his household, or their invitees or guests.

(2) "Security deposit" means any advance or deposit of money, regardless of its denomination, the primary function of which is to secure the performance of a rental agreement for residential premises or any part thereof.

Landlord undefined. This section does not define the term landlord nor does it state what constitutes the landlord-tenant relationship. Houle v. Adams State Coll., 190 Colo. 406, 547 P.2d 926 (1976).

The legislative intent does not expand the common-law definition of a landlord and a tenant. Houle v. Adams State Coll., 190 Colo. 406, 547 P.2d 926 (1976).

College board of trustees is not landlord. Houle v. Adams State Coll., 190 Colo. 406, 547 P.2d 926 (1976).

Dormitory student is not tenant. Houle v. Adams State Coll., 190 Colo. 406, 547 P.2d 926 (1976).

"Residential premise". A furnished condominium unit containing complete sleeping and eating facilities and available for short-term rentals is a "residential premise" subject to the provisions of this act. Haan v. Mountain Queen Condo. Ass'n, Inc., 717 P.2d 969 (Colo. App. 1985), rev'd on other grounds, 753 P.2d 1234 (Colo. 1988).

The language adopted by the parties to a rental agreement to describe a payment made by the tenant to the landlord prior to occupancy is not dispositive of the question of whether the payment constitutes a "security deposit". Mountain Queen Condo Ass'n v. Haan, 753 P.2d 1234 (Colo. 1988).

Applied in In re Quintana, 28 Bankr. 269 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983).

38-12-103. Return of security deposit. (1) A landlord shall, within one month after the termination of a lease or surrender and acceptance of the premises, whichever occurs last, return to the tenant the full security deposit deposited with the landlord by the tenant, unless the lease agreement specifies a longer period of time, but not to exceed sixty days. No security deposit shall be retained to cover normal wear and tear. In the event that actual cause exists for retaining any portion of the security deposit, the landlord shall provide the tenant with a written statement listing the exact reasons for the retention of any portion of the security deposit. When the statement is delivered, it shall be accompanied by payment of the difference between any sum deposited and the amount retained. The landlord is deemed to have complied with this section by mailing said statement and any payment required to the last known address of the tenant. Nothing in this section shall preclude the landlord from retaining the security deposit for nonpayment of rent, abandonment of the premises, or nonpayment of utility charges, repair work, or cleaning contracted for by the tenant.

(2) The failure of a landlord to provide a written statement within the required time specified in subsection (1) of this section shall work a forfeiture of all his rights to withhold any portion of the security deposit under this section.

(3) (a) The willful retention of a security deposit in violation of this section shall render a landlord liable for treble the amount of that portion of the security deposit wrongfully withheld from the tenant, together with reasonable attorneys' fees and court costs; except that the tenant has the obligation to give notice to the landlord of his intention to file legal proceedings a minimum of seven days prior to filing said action.

(b) In any court action brought by a tenant under this section, the landlord shall bear the burden of proving that his withholding of the security deposit or any portion of it was not wrongful.

(4) Upon cessation of his interest in the dwelling unit, whether by sale, assignment, death, appointment of a receiver, or otherwise, the person in possession of the security deposit, including but not limited to the landlord, his agent, or his executor, shall, within a reasonable time:

(a) Transfer the funds, or any remainder after lawful deductions under subsection (1) of this section, to the landlord's successor in interest and notify the tenant by mail of such transfer and of the transferee's name and address; or

(b) Return the funds, or any remainder after lawful deductions under subsection (1) of this section, to the tenant.

(5) Upon compliance with subsection (4) of this section, the person in possession of the security deposit shall be relieved of further liability.

(6) Upon receipt of transferred funds under subsection (4) (a) of this section, the transferee, in relation to such funds, shall be deemed to have all of the rights and obligations of a landlord holding the funds as a security deposit.

(7) Any provision, whether oral or written, in or pertaining to a rental agreement whereby any provision of this section for the benefit of a tenant or members of his household is waived shall be deemed to be against public policy and shall be void.

ANNOTATION

I. General Consideration.

II. Treble Damages and Attorneys' Fees.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Law reviews. For comment, "Colorado's Wrongful Withholding of Security Deposits Act: Three Litigious Shares in an Untested Law", see 49 Den. L.J. 453 (1973). For article, "The Colorado Security Deposit Act", see 50 U. Colo. L. Rev. 29 (1978).

Purpose of section. From a consideration of the language of the entire section, it is evident that the legislative purpose of this section is to assure that tenants will not be wrongfully deprived of their security deposits, and that if so deprived they will be entitled to adequate judicial relief. Ball v. Weller, 39 Colo. App. 14, 563 P.2d 371 (1977).

This section is designed to assist tenants in vindicating their legal rights and to equalize the disparity in power which exists between landlord and tenant in conflicts over relatively small sums. Martin v. Allen, 193 Colo. 395, 566 P.2d 1075 (1977).

This section provides a court remedy against landlords who withhold security deposits willfully and wrongfully, and the tenant's attorney should be paid for the time necessary to prevail; absent reasonable attorneys' fees, the security deposit law would not be enforced. Mau v. E.P.H. Corp., 638 P.2d 777 (Colo. 1981).

Security deposit actually belongs to tenant; it is only security for the landlord. Turner v. Lyon, 189 Colo. 234, 539 P.2d 1241 (1975).

Landlords not absolved from notice requirement. The last sentence in subsection (1) does not absolve landlords from the notice requirement; it merely permits them, upon proper notice, to apply deposits against unpaid rent. Heatherridge Mgt. Co. v. Benson, 192 Colo. 190, 558 P.2d 435 (1976).

Justification for requiring tenants to notify landlords prior to claiming treble damages, attorneys' fees, and court costs is to give the landlord one last week to return the security deposit. Turner v. Lyon, 189 Colo. 234, 539 P.2d 1241 (1975).

"Willful" defined. The term "willful" in subsection (3)(a) means "deliberate". Turner v. Lyon, 189 Colo. 234, 539 P.2d 1241 (1975).

When retention "willful". If the landlord deliberately fails to return the security deposit during the additional seven-day period, the retention is logically "willful" under this section. Turner v. Lyon, 189 Colo. 234, 539 P.2d 1241 (1975).

Wrongful withholding of deposit determined. Failure to return the deposit, coupled with failure to provide a tenant with statutorily mandated written statement of reasons for the retention, makes the withholding of a deposit wrongful. Martinez v. Steinbaum, 623 P.2d 49 (Colo. 1981).

Deposit not "wrongfully" held. Where respondent authorized petitioner in writing to retain that portion of his deposit equal to one month's rent, petitioner did not withhold that part of the deposit "wrongfully", within the contemplation of subsection (3)(a). Heatherridge Mgt. Co. v. Benson, 192 Colo. 190, 558 P.2d 435 (1976).

Evidence of landlord's good faith. The discrepancy between the amount of a security deposit retained and the amount of actual damages proved by the landlord is important evidence of his good faith. Guzman v. McDonald, 194 Colo. 160, 570 P.2d 532 (1977).

Tenant may not accelerate statutory time requirements. McAuliffe v. Rooney, 38 Colo. App. 137, 552 P.2d 1031 (1976).

Where the statutory notice was given within the one-month period allowed by subsection (1), and only nine days after the surrender of the key to the premises, and suit was commenced prior to the expiration of the additional seven-day period contemplated by the notice requirements of subsection (3)(a), award of treble damages is improper. McAuliffe v. Rooney, 38 Colo. App. 137, 552 P.2d 1031 (1976).

A restrictive endorsement, by which a landlord attempts to create a waiver of a tenant's right to legal recourse, is void under this section. Anderson v. Rosebrook, 737 P.2d 417 (Colo. 1987).

A tenant cannot be compelled to arbitrate a claim for violation of the wrongful withholding of security deposits act. The act creates a cause of action enforceable in Colorado courts; the enforceability of the statutory cause of action in a legal proceeding cannot be limited or waived by an arbitration agreement. Thus an arbitration provision that would waive this cause of action in favor of mandatory arbitration is unenforceable to the extent that it applies to an action brought under the act. Ingold v. AIMCO/Bluffs, L.L.C. Apartments, 159 P.3d 116 (Colo. 2007).

Statute as basis for jurisdiction. Houle v. Adams State Coll., 190 Colo. 406, 547 P.2d 926 (1976).

Applied in In re Quintana, 28 Bankr. 269 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1983).

II. TREBLE DAMAGES AND ATTORNEYS' FEES.

Constitutionality of attorneys' fees provision. The legitimate aims of subsection (3)(a) supply a rational basis for the distinction between prevailing tenant-plaintiffs, who are entitled to attorneys' fees, and prevailing landlord-defendants, who are not, and therefore the provision is constitutional. Torres v. Portillos, 638 P.2d 274 (Colo. 1981).

Equality of opportunity to recover attorneys' fees is not a fundamental right, and therefore the rational relationship test, not the strict scrutiny test, is the appropriate standard for equal protection review. Torres v. Portillos, 638 P.2d 274 (Colo. 1981).

Entitlement to attorneys' fees. Tenants who are successful on appeal are entitled to an award of reasonable attorneys' fees. Martin v. Allen, 193 Colo. 395, 566 P.2d 1075 (1977); Kirkland v. Allen, 678 P.2d 568 (Colo. App. 1984).

Attorneys' fees allowable include those incurred on appeal. Martinez v. Steinbaum, 623 P.2d 49 (Colo. 1981).

Attorney fees allowable include those incurred in resolving an issue as to the amount of reasonable attorney fees incurred in the underlying litigation and those incurred on appeal. Mau v. E.P.H. Corp., 638 P.2d 777 (Colo. 1981).

Rationale for award of attorney fees. The reason this section provides for an award of attorney fees is two-fold: (1) To insulate the award of damages from being substantially reduced by the fees; and (2) to encourage the private bar to enforce its provisions in actions which generally involve small amounts of money. Ball v. Weller, 39 Colo. App. 14, 563 P.2d 371 (1977); Torres v. Portillos, 638 P.2d 274 (Colo. 1981).

Successful tenants are entitled to recover attorney fees for landlord's independent actions challenging rulings and fee awards in the underlying security deposit litigation. Mishkin v. Young, 198 P.3d 1269 (Colo. App. 2008).

Hearing to determine amount of attorneys' fees. When a successful plaintiff has requested attorneys' fees in his complaint, such an award is mandatory, and it becomes incumbent upon the trial court to hold a hearing to determine the amount of reasonable attorneys' fees to be awarded. Ball v. Weller, 39 Colo. App. 14, 563 P.2d 371 (1977); Kirkland v. Allen, 678 P.2d 568 (Colo. App. 1984).

Awarding fees without hearing error. The trial court erred in awarding attorneys' fees to respondent without a hearing on their reasonableness. Heatherridge Mgt. Co. v. Benson, 192 Colo. 190, 558 P.2d 435 (1976).

Factors considered in determining of reasonable fee. If the fee requested is reasonable in light of community standards and the other criteria to be considered by the court, it is not appropriate for a court to take into consideration what a major client may pay the attorney on an hourly basis or the possible absence of overhead expenses comparable to those borne by lawyers in private practice. Mau v. E.P.H. Corp., 638 P.2d 777 (Colo. 1981).

When penalty provision attaches. If a landlord does not return a security deposit within the required time, the penalty provision of subsection (3)(a) attaches to that portion of the money wrongfully retained, plus attorneys' fees, and court costs. Turner v. Lyon, 189 Colo. 234, 539 P.2d 1241 (1975); Kirkland v. Allen, 678 P.2d 568 (Colo. App. 1984).

Where landlord deliberately fails to return security deposit within the additional seven-day period following the tenant's notice to landlord of his intention to file legal proceedings, such retention is logically "willful" under subsection (3)(a) treble damages provisions. Kirkland v. Allen, 678 P.2d 568 (Colo. App. 1984).

The purpose of the seven-day notice provision in subsection (3)(a) is to give landlords one last week to avoid treble damages by returning the security deposit. Mishkin v. Young, 107 P.3d 393 (Colo. 2005).

A landlord may not avoid treble damages by accounting for a security deposit during the seven-day period established by subsection (3)(a). The seven-day period is beyond the statutory deadline of subsection (1) and, therefore, the landlord has already forfeited all rights to retain the deposit. Mishkin v. Young, 107 P.3d 393 (Colo. 2005).

Statutory liability of subsection (3)(a) may be offset by an award, if any, made to the landlord by counterclaim for damages caused by the tenant to the property, and the landlord has the burden of proving the claim by a preponderance of the evidence. Turner v. Lyon, 189 Colo. 234, 539 P.2d 1241 (1975).

Treble damages action not "frivolous" merely because landlord wins. A treble damages action under subsection (3)(a) cannot be characterized as "frivolous" or "groundless", as used in § 13-17-101(3), merely because the landlord prevails on the merits of his defense. Torres v. Portillos, 638 P.2d 274 (Colo. 1981).

Prospective renter was not entitled to treble damages pursuant to this section since deposit paid for rental of condominium unit was not a security deposit but was instead prepayment of the entire rent for said unit. Mountain Queen Condo. Ass'n v. Haan, 753 P.2d 1234 (Colo. 1988).

Statute of limitations. The treble damages provision of this section, being penal in nature, is governed by the one-year statute of limitations; however, the recovery of the actual security deposit and the award of attorneys' fees, being remedial in nature, are limited by the six-year statute of limitations. Carlson v. McCoy, 193 Colo. 391, 566 P.2d 1073 (1977).

38-12-104. Return of security deposit - hazardous condition - gas appliance.

(1) Anytime service personnel from any organization providing gas service to a residential building become aware of any hazardous condition of a gas appliance, piping, or other gas equipment, such personnel shall inform the customer of record at the affected address in writing of the hazardous condition and take any further action provided for by the policies of such personnel's employer. Such written notification shall state the potential nature of the hazard as a fire hazard or a hazard to life, health, property, or public welfare and shall explain the possible cause of the hazard.

(2) If the resident of the residential building is a tenant, such tenant shall immediately inform the landlord of the property or the landlord's agent in writing of the existence of the hazard.

(3) The landlord shall then have seventy-two hours excluding a Saturday, Sunday, or a legal holiday after the actual receipt of the written notice of the hazardous condition to have the hazardous condition repaired by a professional. "Professional" for the purposes of this section means a person authorized by the state of Colorado or by a county or municipal government through license or certificate where such government authorization is required. Where no person with such government authorization is available, and where there are no local requirements for government authorization, a person who is otherwise qualified and who possesses insurance with a minimum of one hundred thousand dollars public liability and property damage coverage shall be deemed a professional for purposes of this section. Proof of such repairs shall be forwarded to the landlord or the landlord's agent. Such proof may also be used as an affirmative defense in any action to recover the security deposit, as provided for in this section.

(4) If the landlord does not have the repairs made within seventy-two hours excluding a Saturday, Sunday, or a legal holiday, and the condition of the building remains hazardous, the tenant may opt to vacate the premises. After the tenant vacates the premises, the lease or other rental agreement between the landlord and tenant becomes null and void, all rights and future obligations between the landlord and tenant pursuant to the lease or other rental agreement terminate, and the tenant may demand the immediate return of all or any portion of the security deposit held by the landlord to which the tenant is entitled. The landlord shall have seventy-two hours following the tenant's vacation of the premises to deliver to the tenant all of, or the appropriate portion of, the security deposit plus any rent rebate owed to the tenant for rent paid by the tenant for the period of time after the tenant has vacated. If the seventy-second hour falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, the security deposit must be delivered by noon on the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday. The tenant shall provide the landlord with a correct forwarding address. No security deposit shall be retained to cover normal wear and tear. In the event that actual cause exists for retaining any portion of the security deposit, the landlord shall provide the tenant with a written statement listing the exact reasons for the retention of any portion of the security deposit. When the statement is delivered, it shall be accompanied by payment of the difference between any sum deposited and the amount retained. The landlord is deemed to have complied with this section by mailing said statement and any payments required by this section to the forwarding address of the tenant. Nothing in this section shall preclude the landlord from withholding the security deposit for nonpayment of rent or for nonpayment of utility charges, repair work, or cleaning contracted for by the tenant. If the tenant does not receive the entire security deposit or a portion of the security deposit together with a written statement listing the exact reasons for the retention of any portion of the security deposit within the time period provided for in this section, the retention of the security deposit shall be deemed willful and wrongful and, notwithstanding the provisions of section 38-12-103 (3), shall entitle the tenant to twice the amount of the security deposit and to reasonable attorney fees.

38-12-201.3. Legislative declaration - increased availability of mobile home parks.

The general assembly hereby finds and declares that mobile homes, manufactured housing, and factory-built housing are important and effective ways to meet Colorado's affordable housing needs. The general assembly further finds and declares that, because of the unique aspects of mobile homes and mobile home park ownership, there is a need to protect mobile home owners from eviction with short notice so as to prevent mobile home owners from losing their shelter as well as any equity in their mobile homes. The general assembly encourages local governments to allow and protect mobile home parks in their jurisdictions and to enact plans to increase the number of mobile home parks in their jurisdictions. The general assembly further encourages local governments to provide incentives to mobile home park owners to attract additional mobile home parks and to increase the viability of current parks.

38-12-201.5. Definitions. As used in this part 2, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "Home owner" means any person or family of such person owning a mobile home that is subject to a tenancy in a mobile home park under a rental agreement.

(1.5) "Management" or "landlord" means the owner or person responsible for operating and managing a mobile home park or an agent, employee, or representative authorized to act on said management's behalf in connection with matters relating to tenancy in the park.

(2) "Mobile home" means a single-family dwelling built on a permanent chassis designed for long-term residential occupancy and containing complete electrical, plumbing, and sanitary facilities and designed to be installed in a permanent or semipermanent manner with or without a permanent foundation, which is capable of being drawn over public highways as a unit, or in sections by special permit, or a manufactured home as defined in section 38-29-102 (6) if the manufactured home is situated in a mobile home park.

(3) "Mobile home park" or "park" means a parcel of land used for the continuous accommodation of five or more occupied mobile homes and operated for the pecuniary benefit of the owner of the parcel of land, his agents, lessees, or assignees. Mobile home park does not include mobile home subdivisions or property zoned for manufactured home subdivisions.

(4) "Mobile home space", "space", "mobile home lot" or "lot" means a parcel of land within a mobile home park designated by the management to accommodate one mobile home and its accessory buildings and to which the required sewer and utility connections are provided by the mobile home park.

(5) "Premises" means a mobile home park and existing facilities and appurtenances therein, including furniture and utilities where applicable, and grounds, areas, and existing facilities held out for the use of home owners generally or the use of which is promised to the home owner.

(6) "Rent" means any money or other consideration to be paid to the management for the right of use, possession, and occupation of the premises.

(7) "Rental agreement" means an agreement, written or implied by law, between the management and the home owner establishing the terms and conditions of a tenancy, including reasonable rules and regulations promulgated by the park management. A lease is a rental agreement.

(8) Repealed.

(9) "Tenancy" means the rights of a home owner to use a space or lot within a park on which to locate, maintain, and occupy a mobile home, lot improvements, and accessory structures for human habitation, including the use of services and facilities of the park.

Source: L. 81: Entire section added, p. 1813, § 2, effective June 9. L. 87: (1) R&RE, (1.5) added, (5), (7), and (9) amended, and (8) repealed, pp. 1310, 1315, §§ 2, 1, 15, effective May 8. L. 2010: (2) amended, (SB 10-156), ch. 343, p. 1584, § 2, effective July 1.

38-12-202. Tenancy - notice to quit. (1) (a) No tenancy or other lease or rental occupancy of space in a mobile home park shall commence without a written lease or rental agreement, and no tenancy in a mobile home park shall be terminated until a notice to quit has been served. Said notice to quit shall be in writing and in the form specified in section 13-40-107 (2), C.R.S. The property description required in section 13-40-107 (2), C.R.S., shall be deemed legally sufficient if it states:

- (I) The name of the landlord or the mobile home park;
- (II) The mailing address of the property;
- (III) The location or space number upon which the mobile home is situate; and
- (IV) The county in which the mobile home is situate.

(b) Service of the notice to quit shall be as specified in section 13-40-108, C.R.S. Service by posting shall be deemed legally sufficient within the meaning of section 13-40-108, C.R.S., if the notice is affixed to the main entrance of the mobile home.

(c) (I) Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (II) of this paragraph (c), the home owner shall be given a period of not less than sixty days to remove any mobile home from the premises from the date the notice is served or posted. In those situations where a mobile home is being leased to, or occupied by, persons other than its owner and in a manner contrary to the rules and regulations of the landlord, then in that event, the tenancy may be terminated by the landlord upon giving a thirty-day notice rather than said sixty-day notice.

(II) If the tenancy is terminated on grounds specified in section 38-12-203 (1) (f), the home owner shall be given a period of not less than ten days to remove any mobile home from the premises from the date the notice is served or posted.

(2) No lease shall contain any provision by which the home owner waives his or her rights under this part 2, and any such waiver shall be deemed contrary to public policy and shall be unenforceable and void. In those situations where a mobile home is being leased to, or occupied by, persons other than its owner and in a manner contrary to the rules and regulations of the landlord, then, in that event, the tenancy may be terminated by the landlord upon giving a thirty-day notice rather than said sixty-day notice.

(3) The landlord or management of a mobile home park shall specify, in the notice required by this section, the reason for the termination, as described in section 38-12-203, of any tenancy in such mobile home park. If the tenancy is being terminated based on the mobile home or mobile home lot being out of compliance with the rules and regulations adopted pursuant to section 38-12-203 (1) (c), the notice required by this section shall include a statement advising the home owner that the home owner has a right to cure the noncompliance within thirty days of the date of service or posting of the notice to quit. The thirty-day period to cure any noncompliance set forth in this subsection (3) shall run concurrently with the sixty-day period to remove a mobile home from the premises as set forth in paragraph (c) of subsection (1) and subsection (2) of this section. Acceptance of rent by the landlord or management of a mobile home park during the thirty-day right to cure period set forth in section 38-12-203 (1) (c) shall not constitute a waiver of the landlord's right to terminate the tenancy for any noncompliance set forth in section 38-12-203 (1) (c).

ANNOTATION

Applied in Hurricane v. Kanover, Ltd., 651 P.2d 1218 (Colo. 1982).

38-12-202.5. Action for termination. (1) The action for termination shall be commenced in the manner described in section 13-40-110, C.R.S. The property description shall be deemed legally sufficient and within the meaning of section 13-40-110, C.R.S., if it states:

- (a) The name of the landlord or the mobile home park;
- (b) The mailing address of the property;
- (c) The location or space number upon which the mobile home is situate; and
- (d) The county in which the mobile home is situate.

(2) Service of summons shall be as specified in section 13-40-112, C.R.S. Service by posting shall be deemed legally sufficient within the meaning of section 13-40-112, C.R.S., if the summons is affixed to the main entrance of the mobile home.

(3) Jurisdiction of courts in cases of forcible entry, forcible detainer, or unlawful detainer shall be as specified in section 13-40-109, C.R.S. Trial on the issue of possession shall be timely as specified in section 13-40-114, C.R.S., with no delay allowed for the determination of other issues or claims which may be severed at the discretion of the trial court.

(4) After commencement of the action and before judgment, any person not already a party to the action who is discovered to have a property interest in the mobile home shall be allowed to enter into a stipulation with the landlord and be bound thereby.

38-12-203. Reasons for termination. (1) A tenancy shall be terminated pursuant to this part 2 only for one or more of the following reasons:

(a) Failure of the home owner to comply with local ordinances and state laws and regulations relating to mobile homes and mobile home lots;

(b) Conduct of the home owner, on the mobile home park premises, which constitutes an annoyance to other home owners or interference with park management;

(c) Failure of the home owner to comply with written rules and regulations of the mobile home park either established by the management in the rental agreement at the inception of the tenancy, amended subsequently thereto with the consent of the home owner, or amended subsequently thereto without the consent of the home owner on sixty days' written notice if the amended rules and regulations are reasonable; except that the home owner shall have thirty days from the date of service or posting of the notice to quit set forth in section 38-12-202 (3) to cure any noncompliance on the mobile home or mobile home lot before an action for termination may be commenced, except if local ordinances, state laws and regulations, park rules and regulations, or emergency, health, or safety situations require immediate compliance. If a home owner was in violation or noncompliance pursuant to this paragraph (c) and was given notice and a right to cure such noncompliance and within a twelve-month period from the date of service of the notice is in noncompliance of the same rule or regulation and is given notice of the second noncompliance, there shall be no right to cure the second noncompliance. Regulations applicable to recreational facilities may be amended at the reasonable discretion of the management. For purposes of this paragraph (c), when the mobile home is owned by a person other than the owner of the mobile home park, the mobile home is a separate unit of ownership, and regulations that are adopted subsequent to the unit location in the park without the consent of the home owner and that place restrictions or requirements on that separate unit are prima facie unreasonable. Nothing in this paragraph (c) shall prohibit a mobile home park owner from requiring compliance with current park unit regulations at the time of sale or transfer of the mobile home to a new owner. Transfer under this paragraph (c) shall not include transfer to a co-owner pursuant to death or divorce or to a new co-owner pursuant to marriage.

(d) (I) Condemnation or change of use of the mobile home park. When the owner of a mobile home park is formally notified by a notice of intent to acquire pursuant to section 38-1-121 (1) or other similar provision of law, or a complaint in a condemnation action from an appropriate governmental agency that the mobile home park, or any portion thereof, is to be acquired by the governmental agency or may be the subject of a condemnation proceeding, the landlord shall, within seventeen days, notify the home owners in writing of the terms of the notice of intent to acquire or complaint received by the landlord.

(II) In those cases where the landlord desires to change the use of the mobile home park and where such change of use would result in eviction of inhabited mobile homes, the landlord shall first give the owner of each mobile home subject to such eviction a written notice of the landlord's intent to evict not less than six months prior to such change of use of the land, notice to be mailed to each home owner.

(e) The making or causing to be made, with knowledge, of false or misleading statements on an application for tenancy;

(f) Conduct of the home owner or any lessee of the home owner or any guest, agent, invitee, or associate of the home owner or lessee of the home owner, that:

(I) Occurs on the mobile home park premises and unreasonably endangers the life of the landlord, any home owner or lessee of the mobile home park, any person living in the park, or any guest, agent, invitee, or associate of the home owner or lessee of the home owner;

(II) Occurs on the mobile home park premises and constitutes willful, wanton, or malicious damage to or destruction of property of the landlord, any home owner or lessee of the mobile home park, any person living in the park, or any guest, agent, invitee, or associate of the home owner or lessee of the home owner;

(III) Occurs on the mobile home park premises and constitutes a felony prohibited under article 3, 4, 6, 7, 9, 10, 12, or 18 of title 18, C.R.S.; or

(IV) Is the basis for a pending action to declare the mobile home or any of its contents a class 1 public nuisance under section 16-13-303, C.R.S.

(2) In an action pursuant to this part 2, the landlord shall have the burden of proving that the landlord complied with the relevant notice requirements and that the landlord provided the home owner with a statement of reasons for the termination. In addition to any other defenses a home owner may have, it shall be a defense that the landlord's allegations are false or that the reasons for termination are invalid.

38-12-204. Nonpayment of rent - notice required for rent increase. (1) Any tenancy or other estate at will or lease in a mobile home park may be terminated upon the landlord's written notice to the home owner requiring, in the alternative, payment of rent or the removal of the home owner's unit from the premises, within a period of not less than five days after the date notice is served or posted, for failure to pay rent when due.

(2) Rent shall not be increased without sixty days' written notice to the home owner. In addition to the amount and the effective date of the rent increase, such written notice shall include the name, address, and telephone number of the mobile home park management, if such management is a principal owner, or owner of the mobile home park and, if the owner is other than a natural person, the name, address, and telephone number of the owner's chief executive officer or managing partner; except that such ownership information need not be given if it was disclosed in the rental agreement made pursuant to section 38-12-213.

38-12-204.3. Notice required for termination. (1) Where the tenancy of a mobile home owner is being terminated under section 38-12-202 or section 38-12-204, the landlord or mobile home park owner shall provide such mobile home owner with written notice as provided for in subsection (2) of this section. Service of such notice shall occur at the same time and in the same manner as service of:

- (a) The notice to quit as provided in section 38-12-202 (1); or
  - (b) The notice of nonpayment of rent as provided in section 38-12-204 (1).
- (2) The notice required under this section shall be in at least ten-point type and shall read as follows:

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THE HOME OWNER:

This notice and the accompanying notice to quit/notice of nonpayment of rent are the first steps in the eviction process. Any dispute you may have regarding the grounds for eviction should be addressed with your landlord or the management of the mobile home park or in the courts if an eviction action is filed. Please be advised that the "Mobile Home Park Act", part 2 of article 12 of title 38, Colorado Revised Statutes, may provide you with legal protection:

NOTICE TO QUIT: The landlord or management of a mobile home park must serve to a home owner a notice to quit in order to terminate a home owner's tenancy. The notice must be in writing and must contain certain information, including:

- The grounds for the termination of the tenancy;
- Whether or not the home owner has a right to cure under the "Mobile Home Park Act"; and
- That the home owner has a right to mediation pursuant to section 38-12-216, Colorado Revised Statutes, of the "Mobile Home Park Act".

NOTICE OF NONPAYMENT OF RENT: The landlord or management of a mobile home park must serve to a home owner a notice of nonpayment of rent in order to terminate a home owner's tenancy. The notice must be in writing and must require that the home owner either make payment of rent and any applicable fees due and owing or remove the owner's unit from the premises, within a period of not less than five days after the date the notice is served or posted, for failure to pay rent when due.
